PROBLEM OF IMMIGRATION IS BEFORE INQUIRY

Ottawa. — Rev. Canon Burd, of Prince Albert, quoting immigration statistics before the Commons committee on immigration, expressed his "very deep alarm" over the preponderance of immigration from Canada. Last year, he said, the increase over 1926 had been 1,068 British, 3,802 from the United States, and 5,526 Europeans. In March 3,156 British people came to the Dominion and 9,122 non-British.

"This is to show that the present system is detrimental to those of us living in the West," said the Canon.

The census of Saskatchewan showed that in 1916 the proportion of British residents in the province was 54.5; in 1921, 52.8, and in 1926, 50.7.

"Would you have the development of the West arrested until we can get Canadians, Americans, who seem reluctant to come?" asked C. H. Cahan (Conservative, St. Lawrence-St George).

A letter was read from a rural dean of the Peace River, who stated that every train that left that country was bringing in foreign-born, but no British. The foreigner, he said, would never become British.

"It is a libel on my district to say that foreign-born are not becoming good citizens," said Mr. George P. Phee (Liberal, Yorkton).

"I do not say that is true of every district, but every reports are in blocks it is correct," replied the Canon.

The British Government had voted £18 000 000 to spend on emigration. They had been able to spend only three and a half. Of that £1 000 000 made clear to the British Government that Canada wanted settlers it would go up to its pocket; for overseas settlement.

Mr. McIntosh was "not afraid of the future of immigration," so far as immigration was concerned.

The Canon made it clear that he did not mean the Anglican Bishop of Saskatoon, but the diocese of Saskatchewan. He represented the whole church in so far as he spoke from the general diocese journals.

Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, interjected: "I have direct information from the church that Canon Burd does not represent the church as a whole but only the diocese of Saskatchewan."

This was correct, agreed the Canon, but he represented the whole Synod of the general diocese which were the opinion of the whole of the Church of England.

He said that there was an unfriendliness toward the Department of Immigration in the West on the part of the rural people, in principle and in practice, to the ancient idea that the people were her people, the country her country. That she governed them and ruled over them in virtue of a scarcely mitigated conception of Divine Right, whereas the present people look upon the King, the Queen and the Royal Family as their possessions and as leaders of them and provided of them than of any other national institution The sense of ownership has ceased to be abstract and has become democratic. Unlike the railways and Mr coal mines, the Monarchy has been nationalized. Review of Reviews.

Gave Life To Aid Bronson

Floyd Scott Dies In Quebec Hospital From Double Pneumonia

Quebec.—Floyd Bennett, one of the world's best known aviators, died in hospital here, following a severe attack of double pneumonia.

Bennett, who, in conjunction with Bert Balchen, was one of the first to try to bring aeroplane aid to the stranded German and Irish transatlantic fliers at Greenly Island, contracted his illness on a diffcult, result of his attempt to help his stranded fellow airmen whose plane, the Bremen, was in a disabled condition at out-of-the-way Greenly Island.

Bennett had been suffering from a very cold prior to his take-off from Detroit and had undertaken the flight against advice of physicians.

His wife and Commander Byrd both of whom rushed here from New York when informed as to Bennett's serious condition, were at his bedside when he died. Mrs. Bennett herself was ill when she arrived here and was confined to bed in the hospital, suffering from tonsilitis.

Increase In Immigration

More Settlers Arrive and Canadians Returning From U.S.

Ottawa.—In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1928, immigration to Canada amounted to 161,537, an increase of 9 per cent. over the previous year, when it totalled 148,990. These figures were made public by the department of Immigration and colonization.

During the last 12 months, as compared with the preceding year, there has been an increase in British immigration of 1,068. Immigration from the United States has increased by 3,802, and from other countries the increase has been 2,336.

A significant feature of the statistics is the increase in immigration from the United States, which was greater than the increase from all other sources combined.

During March the total immigration to Canada was 14,683, of which 3,156 were British, 2,283 from the United States, and 9,122 from other countries.

During March 2,670 Canadians who had gone to the United States to reside returned to Canada, declaring their intention of remaining permanently in this country. The number of such returning Canadians in the fiscal year was 30,087.

Sunny Canuck Sees Results Of Twelve Year Campaign

Edmonton, Alta. — Announcement from Ottawa, that the Dominion Parliament would take steps to amend provisions of the British North America Act so that it would be legal for women to be appointed members to the Senate, brings to a climax a 12-year campaign to achieve this objective, Mrs. Nellie L. McClung declared with vigor by Mrs. Emily Murphy, first woman to be appointed police magistrate in Canada, and who, under the pen name of Janey Canuck, has contributed much literature to the cause of women's advancement in the social and political life of the country.

Asked regarding the statement on the subject made in Parliament, by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, Mrs. Murphy expressed the heartiest appreciation of the Government's action, and said it was one more indication of the high regard in the west part, were in perfect harmony, irrespective of "class, creed, party or sex."

BEATTY STRESSES CANADA'S NEED OF POPULATION

Ottawa. More executive efficiency and greater administrative latitude under experienced executive control are the outstanding features of the suggestions offered by E. W. Beatty president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Mr Beatty submitted his views to the press of British and French origin, he said.

This would indicate that we have not reached the stage at which the settlement of continuous, even in comparatively narrower, should be undertaken, Mr. Beatty declared.

We have all I think, said Mr Beatty impressed with the fact that Canada has reached the stage of progress in the last few years in we think progress can be expected to be maintained, namely, the development of resources, the increase of the wealth of the country, and the increase of population. I share the views of those who believe that the time has arrived when we should embark upon some comprehensive planning in Canada and when those opportunities are presented to settle the people on the land without difficulty and without effort In fact, the history of the U.S. has indicated that where jobs are offered settlers will immediately find for them in great numbers

In order to assure that the increase in the number of land settlements and colonization and efforts of establishing settlers in the new can in time become settlers have a great deal of encouragement in Canada.

Vote On New School May 21

A petition, signed by the required number of ratepayers, has been presented to the School Board demanding a vote on the bylaw to raise $32,000 by the issue of debentures for the erection of a six-roomed solid brick school building in compliance with the same. Monday, May 21st has been set for the taking of the vote. The school question has been prominently before the public for some time past and with the loss of the two-roomed west end building by fire a short while ago, the board had no alternative in the matter but to take necessary steps leading to the erection of a new school building. There is little doubt as to the by-law carrying by a large majority

A THOUGHT FOR MOTHER'S DAY
BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE

If you have a grey haired mother
In the old home far away,
Sit down and write the letter
You put off from day to day
Don't wait until her weary steps
Reach heaven's pearly gate,
But show her that you think of her
Before it is too late

If you have a tender message,
Or a loving word to say,
Don't wait till you forget it,
But whisper it today
Who knows what bitter memories
May haunt you if you wait?
So make your loved one happy
Before it is too late

The tender word unspoken,
The letter never sent,
The long forgotten message,
The wealth of love unspent.
For these some hearts are breaking,
For these some loved ones wait;
Show them that you care for them
Before it is too late.

—George Bancroft Griffith.

ANGLE LAKE NEWS

The usual spring activities have begun once more in this community. One or two farmers have already put in a crop of wheat, while others are rapidly preparing their fields for the seed.

Once again the hills on A. Anderson's farm are dotted with sheep. He has very recently purchased over a hundred head of ewes.

We are very glad to learn that the Berg family is recovering from that long and dreadful illness which has brought them so much suffering and sorrow during the past months. We extend our deepest sympathy to them.

Will one and all please bear in mind that there will be church service every Sunday evening commencing at 8 p.m in the Community Hall. It is hoped that these services will be well attended.

We welcome to our district the new pastor who will carry on the devotional work in this part of the country during the summer months.

Carl Lindbloom and family have returned to their farm after spending several years in B. C. It is good to see the old times in Angle Lake.

It has been rumored that a new store will soon be opened in this district. This will, no doubt, be good news to most farmers who find it rather inconvenient to get their supplies from Derwent, especially in the busy season.

OPEN SEASON FOR "KIDS" RACING ON MAY 24TH

Just imagine the carloads of people, four million gallons of ice cream and eighty-three miles of "hot dogs," and you would still have no idea of the elaborate preparations being made for the Kiddies' Day celebration on May 24th by the Vermilion Elks. In the first place, they do not intend buying in such large quantities, but they are certainly sparing no efforts to "put over" the biggest day ever for the kiddies. The whole afternoon will be given over to the entertainment of the youngsters, while the "oldsters" are strongly urged to save sheep sickels for the big dance at night.

Make a note of the date, and get your dancing pumps oiled and heeled —Don't be tasty, Charlie!"

ISLAY ITEMS

Earl Brewer returned home from Varsity on Friday last. Earl is not sure of his summer plans yet but intends staying at home until seeding operations are well over

A very enjoyable dance was held in Mooney's Hall last Friday night, people attending from all points between Islaville and Lloydminster lavigate. The dance was under the auspices of the Lloydminster orchestra.

The Pleasant Valley W. A. met last week and extended an invitation to the Rev. H. A. Novasio of Islaville, to conduct the twenty-first anniversary service of Pleasant Valley church.

JOINT RECITAL AT COLUMBIA THEATRE

Madame Rzilnsky and Wm. B. Elford in Present Pupils on May 14th

A joint recital by the pupils of Madame Rzilnsky and Mr. W. B. Elford is billed to take place in the Columbia Theatre on Monday evening May 14th.

In making their initial bow to the public as exponents of the terpsichorean art, Madame Rzilnsky's pupils will offer a varied programme of classical and character dancing, and Vermilion fans will be more than surprised to see what has been accomplished in a short time by these budding "Pavlowas," under the careful and expert training of Mme. Rzilnsky.

In addition to the demonstration by her pupils, Madame Rzilnsky herself will give an exhibition of classical and toe-dancing.

The remainder of the evening's programme will be undertaken by the advanced pupils of Mr. W. B. Elford, who will present a high-class programme of vocal and instrumental selections

Exchange tickets are now on sale, and may be obtained from members of the Vermilion Citizens' Band.

Reserved seats may be booked at Lang's Drug Store on and after Monday, May 7th.

The proceeds of the evening's entertainment will be used to replenish the coffers of the Vermilion Citizens' Band, which are at present sadly depleted; and the local boys are hoping to see a "bumper house."

Lorenne Cultures Are Ready for Distribution

Nitro cultures for the inoculation of the various legume crops are again being distributed this season from the Vermilion School of Agriculture. Over 4,000 bottles of these cultures were sent out last year to farmers in various parts of the province. The crops for which cultures have been prepared include mammoth red clover, alsike and Egyptian clovers, alfalfa, vetches, peas, perennial peas, sweet peas, garden beans, broad beans and scarlet runner beans. The cultures can be prepared at a cost of 25 cents per bottle and will be sent post paid. Farmers requiring treatment of this kind for their legume crops are advised to order early to ensure delivery

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Henry James Cambie, pioneer railway builder and explorer, died at his home in Vancouver, at the age of ninety-one after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Coal production in Canada during March was slightly less than in February. Alberta produced 616,043 tons; British Columbia's output was 251,842 tons.

Capt. George H. Wilkins scientist, headed from his great feat of flying across the top of the world in a monoplane already is planning a new adventure in the Arctic over the Polar, it is said in the shortest possible time.

The government of the province of Quebec has decided that a year in which the population of a school district is more than the equal of at least a year in Chicago or New York in what it will enable a man to live in and his family. It is a whole lot more than the average of the same sized city would make. It should say as anybody else in town is likely to make in finding the banker and the general merchant. And I don't think I'm far wrong if I put down a year as pretty nearly the minimum a man should live in Quebec with five average children to $5,000.

Canada all right to me," said an old timer who has been doing odd jobs for the last. I personally know at least fifteen country publishers in Canada who make more than $10,000 a year from their papers. It is a poor editor who can't earn 25 per cent a year on his investment in this business and I guess our average plant investment in country papers doesn't exceed $15,000.

That will come pretty close to it," said one of the others who turned out to be a representative of a publication carrying a general line of printing-office machinery. "Take the state of Iowa. I have not up to date in the typesetting machine, a line caster and the big city papers use Mighty few country papers haven't got one now, and many have two, the average is about one and a quarter machines to the thousand dollars a cheap for a typesetting machine, the $4,000 ones are more in demand. So put it at $4,000 per paper as the average of that class."

Then there's the press. There may be some here in the United States of a newspaper still being produced on a hand press but I don't know where it is. I did find that up the editor has sell him a power press. The ordinary country paper could be, and often was printed a page at a time on an Army press that cost $50. More of them used the Washington hand press that was invented by Ben Franklin, which cost $200 to $500 and printed two or four pages at a time. Then the cylinder press came in, with a chance to turn the crank while another fed the sheets or a little steam engine to turn the press over But all those are obsolete now The two-revolution press is the minimum, and that up to the flat-bed perfecting press printing from a continuous strips of presses cost from $12,500 to $20,000. I think a fair average here is another $5,000.

There we have $9,000 in only the two main items of the plant. But we've got to put in hand type and cases for job, imposing stones, chases, a folder, a mailer for the publication anchor for the machine, and all the rest of the necessary equipment including stereotyping machinery in many instances. Certainly there's another $4,000 there That makes an average investment of $13,000 exclusive of building. More country newspapers own their buildings than rent, and $2,500 is surely not too much for an average figure of the value of the building, counting in the lots they don't own their own.

Yes I agree with our friend from Ontario that the average investment in country weeklies runs well above $15,000, and it is increasing all the time."

The advertising-agency man had been loitering on the edge of his chair, eager to pick up the conversation again.

"Let me give you some more figures to be hunted. "You're wondering where the country editors get the money to invest in their plants, and where their profits come from. Here are some government statistics. There are nearly 20,000,000 people more than half the populations of the United States who live in these small towns or in the country around them. There are still 17,000,000 on the farms although 500,000 farmer families have moved to town since 1920. But where did they move to? To the big cities? Least I think it was moved to the small towns who they are still readers of the country weeklies.

And these 20,000,000 people instead of being the poorest part of our population are pretty nearly the richest on the average. There aren't many millionaires among them but they is average a higher cash income per family than the big cities average. Here is a survey of Edgar County, Illinois which shows an average cash income per family of $2,500 a year in addition to the rent for most of them and a large part of their food supply for many of them. That's a big income when you consider how small the living expenses are in rural communities

Here's another survey made by the General Federation of Women's Clubs in July 1927, of towns under 5,000 population The exact territory we are talking about It shows that in those towns there are 127,840 families owning phonographs 106,410 with pianos, and 56,000 with radio sets

Here are some more government figures from the Department of Agriculture. The farmers of the United States three 27,000,000 men, women and children spend $4,000,000,000 every year for manufactured goods they earn one-sixth of the national wealth and pay one-fifth of the cost of running the national and state governments.

They buy everything. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce reports that they buy the majority of all motor-trucks, more than 60 per cent of all automobiles and naturally, nearly all the tractors. A survey by the electric-appliance industries of 150 small towns showed that 85 per cent. of the homes were wired for electricity, and a larger proportion than in some good-sized cities. The people who live in these towns and in the nearby farm-houses which also have electric current, are customers for every sort of electric equipment.

Those are the folk who make the modern country newspaper possible and desirable.

Will Soon Banish Weeds

A new law passed by the Quebec Government makes it compulsory for every person to destroy all noxious weeds on his property whether that property is cultivated or not. The weeds must be destroyed before they go to seed, and if the owner fails to do so, the municipal authorities will step in and do the job, charging the farmer with the cost of removal.

Don't try to do the smallest amount of work possible for the pay you get.

WHERE WILD ANIMALS BECOME TAME

Jasper National Park, which will be visited by the members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association at the completion of their annual convention at Edmonton this year, is Canada's largest and finest game sanctuary. Within its 5,300 square miles, game and hunting dogs are forbidden, and he who would hunt there does so, not with rifle and shotgun, but with the camera as his weapon. And there is much thrill in bringing home a good snapshot of a bear or a deer, as there is in bringing home the skin or head of such a trophy.

There are 10 best mountain sheep and an equal number of deer in Jasper National Park according to an estimate made by J. B. Harkin, Commissioner of National Parks, in his annual report having with wild life in the park, Mr. Harkin states:

Wild life generally is increasing and wild animals seen were in the good condition. From the observations of the warden staff, it is estimated that there are between 800 and 1,000 elk in the park Herds numbering as many as 70 and 100 have been seen by the wardens at Cabin Creek.

A very gratifying increase is noted in Rocky Mountain sheep. They are spreading their range annually and previously described ranges are again being frequented. An estimate places the number of sheep within the park at 10,000. While Rocky Mountain goat generally keep to the higher altitudes, they are constantly spreading out. There are at present believed to be well over 2,000 goats in the park and all, including the kids, are in good condition.

Signs and tracks seen in different areas indicate a considerable increase among the grizzly bear, especially in the region of the Snake, Indian, Rocky and Smoky Rivers and Block Lake. Black bear are also increasing and it is a common sight for tourists to see one to thirteen of these animals in the neighborhood of Jasper at one time. A very conservative estimate places the total number of bear within the park at 2,000.

Almost every lake and stream in the park contains beaver and they are increasing rapidly. Buffalo Prairie at one time one of the finest grazing areas in the park, is now a little running stream passing through it, is now a series of small lakes and beaver dams, and is covered with a thicket of beaver. Especially good fishing is procured in these beaver lakes.

A Graceful Afternoon Or Evening Frock

Exceedingly graceful is the frock pictured here. The two-piece pointed skirt is gathered to a bodice having the low edge slightly rounded, thereby giving a graceful line. The attractive arrangement of the blouse effect is effectively shown, and there are two models in the front and back. The long pointed sleeves may be omitted for evening wear, if desired, thereby making this frock suitable for many occasions As a useful note of contrast is introduced in the flowers placed at the shoulder and the closing No 1501 is for misses and small women, and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years Size 18 (36 bust) requires 3¼ yards 39-inch material, or 2¾ yards 54-inch, and ¼ yard allover lace for the shields. Price 25 cents the pattern.

Financing is a Specialty

When Contemplating Investments Wise People Consult a Banker

News Items about agents of phony stock being sent to jail and about others who escape the law, are not infrequent today, and it makes serviceable reading, for the reason that in many of their victims are people who have entrusted their hard-earned savings to these agents or promoters. Of course there are many cases where conscience in which one may invest with safety. How can the good and distinguished from the bad? Very often they can't be. But those who have money to invest can be surer of their ground if they will consult their bankers or some other reputable financier.

When you're sick you consult a doctor; when you need the law, you see a lawyer. Financing is a specialty and as intricate as medicine or law. Therefore see your banker before you loosen your purse strings.

Explanations and Comments

The Request For Preferment, verses 35-37.—James and John the sons of Zebedee, came to Jesus with a special request. Matthew says that their mother came with the request (Matthew 20:20). "The case is by no means with the law maxim He who does anything through another, does it himself." John A. Broadus. An Australian writer suggests that Mark was more chivalrous than Matthew, or else that Matthew wished to save the face of James and John, and adds, "Anyhow, it was clearly a family affair, which is a suggestion of an Eastern intrigue. Salome may have been put on to it by some one."

"We would that Thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall ask us to do." Mark 10:35. They would involve Him, as it were, give them a signed check leaving them to fill in the amount as they pleased.

How like human nature! I say most." —of our petitions! We come to God to get, and if we receive not exactly what He wants us to have or wants from us, we think Divine love is a form of all pagan prayer is. "Will you do for me what I want to do?" The form of Christian prayer is, "Will You do with me and with all men what You want?"

To Jesus' question as to what they wished, they replied: "Grant unto us that we may sit, one on Thy right hand, and one on Thy left hand, in Thy glory." The two disciples were at least in error in thinking that they wanted precedence and asked for it in the wrong way. They appealed to Peter in their request for the chief places, were they jealous of him, and were seeking to get ahead of him? The right and the left hand were the places of honor. Matthew quotes a saying of Rabbi Acha to the effect that the Messiah of Israel would sit at His right hand, and Abraham at His left.

"Rank in itself is one of the false gods which the Christian religion and philosophy to dethrone. Outside the Christian conception of it, it is genuine respect is only accorded to real usefulness."—Donald Hankey.

An Interesting Edition

London Daily Mail Pictures Events in June 1,000

A newspaper as newspaper men like to call it, will be published, June 1, 2000, has been published in London by the Daily Mail.

It is to be printed within 24 flies to a fire in Regent street and quickly quenches a blaze with its "Anti-Fires" extinguishers.

"The big murder of the day is that of a man killed by mental suggestion from his enemy.

"By strictly, in fact, has the mental power of the race increased that school children play games during the day and there is silent battery of inventors' impressors' do their studying in their sleep.

"Television is a routine part of the day's affairs. A crowd gathers on Trafalgar Square to watch a cricket match between the English and Australian teams playing each other at Sydney, on the other side of the world.

"Captain Ralph Girdlestone's 24-hour flight around the world in four short parts daily by means of the sun was shining over his aunt during the flight. People have to wear trunk proof hats when flying to a part of their ordinary daily life.

"The only thing that seems unchanged is the color of war in China, which is still in the news."

The newspaper a full-sized one at 24 pages, was published with a Daily Mail exhibition of "Scenes of the Future," at the Great Olympia.

The Acid Test

"Put up notices that no book agents are to be admitted to the building," said the publisher.

"But you have just advertised for agents to help on your new work," protested the secretary.

"Of course, I want to try the applicants out. If a man could be stopped by a little thing like that notice, what good would he be to us."

Netted Relationship

A conceited young clergyman, feeling that he was on terms with one of the ladies of his congregation, remarked: I preached this morning to a congregation of asses."

"I thought of that," observed the lady, "when you called them beloved brethren."

Gilbert: "Horace is very religious, isn't he?"

Morgan. "I should say he is. Why, he even wears a herring-bone suit on Friday."

Fred: Do you think women can stand more suffering than men?

"Well, there's many a good girl has come to me before without expecting Mrs. Angus. I'm no such a hand for interference as I once was," said Miss Ritchie. "They are often written to get rid of a girl, you know."

"I do not know that," said Mrs. Angus; "I prefer references."

"Well, then, here you are," said Miss Ritchie, "here's an old country girl with letter from rector and all—she's rules and local bodies and all—she'll do fine for you."

That morning Helmi was interviewed by four other women. She was viewed with the favor by the first one, who enumerated her good points without ever thinking it might be embarrassing. "You look clean and smart," she said; "you know how to put your clothes on straight, and you look a good worker. I like your face, you are a foreigner, I see. From what country?"

"Finland," said Helmi.

"Goodnight!" cried the lady, with a harsh laugh. "Then it's all off. My husband has fixed up a bridge rang and, a positive nuisance he was, an assailist and agitator. He would put out if I had a servant that was not a want a British subject, Miss Ritchie. We owe it to our own to give them the chance. Your people are all right, the English girls have been a trial, too."

The next woman who talked to Helmi kept a boarding house, and fancied Helmi on account of her height. "I like a tall girl; I always think they better. You've done it?" that's good. Yes, you are a likely looking girl, I must say. You look well, still you have good English. I don't mind Finns they're longery, but clean and smart. What's that? You want to go home at night! Wh-h-h! A baby! Nothing doing—you won't come to me at all. No sir, I had a girl with a baby once and that was enough for me."

Helmi, I have three sons, young men; it would not be nice to have a young girl who has a baby- you know what boys are like inclined to tease."

"I like boys, good enough," said Helmi eagerly, "my son I am a smart worker. I have to get work, my money is nearly gone and I must pay for baby's care, my friends are not rich people."

"I would not suppose they were," said the lady, with emphasis "I suppose they are Finnish people like yourself simply working people."

"No, ma'am" said Helmi, "not a Canadian family who have been very good to me."

"Indeed" said Mrs Rowlwell "how good of them! I hope you are very grateful "

"Yes," said Helmi "I want to pay. Will you take me"

I will think about it I'd not like to turn a girl in a hurry My house is everything to me I plan to have as selectively People tell me I am fastidious but it's my nature I like me your phone number Mrs Lovett. Good? Oh, dear, how awkward! Let me see, you could phone me No 8312 that is easy to remember but I cannot just say when I will be in Every day there is something. Really, I grow busier all the time, it seems, and there are not refuse invitations even when one accepts them. Friday evening at dinner time we dine at seven I think I have no dinner engagement"

Sadly disappointed, Helmi turned away How could she wait until Friday she must have work. It was now near twelve—surely someone would take her? She looked back and searched the faces of the women Miss Ritchie nodded to her encouragingly.

"I'll phone about for you when I can," she said; "there is a rush on this morning."

Just at that moment the door opened and a shabby little lady entered. She came in the door hurriedly, with tiny steps like a mechanical toy "Oh, Miss Ritchie, I am in such trouble," she began, "Mary has left, me She quarrelled with Robin, and wanted him to apologize It is pretty hard for a big boy of seven to apologize, now, isn't it? He simply wouldn't. He had thrown a tomato at her cat, you know, and hit it, and, of course, not a boyish prank and she took it so seriously Have you somebody"

Miss Ritchie called Helmi over "Here is the very girl for you, Mrs Brand" she said, "she has a baby of her own and she'll be good to the twins I know."

"Oh, I couldn't take a girl with a baby—It would be . . ." she hesitated.

"I can work by the day and leave the baby with friends," said Helmi, She was pale and tired now, and looked too ill to be attractive, a misfortune for anyone looking for help.

"I am strong," said Helmi; "my baby is young, so I am going yet. Try me—for a day even."

"Well, I must ask my husband—I always consult him of course"—Mrs Brand would have been interested in this) "and I will let Miss Ritchie know. That will be the best. I couldn't very well let you bring the baby, and it's at night I need you most."

Helmi turned to Miss Ritchie. "I must go now," she said; "a little girl minds the baby—home from school, she stayed for me."

Miss Ritchie nodded. "Better luck next time," she said; "I shall hear you in mind."

In the afternoon Helmi came back Mrs. Corbett was not going out, she kept the baby But no one wanted Helmi she was a foreigner, and she was poor.

Kind-hearted Miss Ritchie was distressed, and flared up in anger when the woman said to Helmi; "You should have thought of this when this time last year?"

"I thought a baby is not a crime Mrs. Cootsworth; the poor girl is honest and willing to work. She'd give anything to keep her baby. I'll go ball. She isn't asking charity or even sympathy."

All afternoon Helmi waited, while well-dressed women came and went The seekers of employment sat together, forming a curious contrast to the calm and composed ones. Their manner was humble and beseeching. The way in which the questions had thrown at them showed the attitude of employment, and on the faces of many, gaunt fear was plainly written. This was particularly true of those who were the most refined and cultured.

The process of conversation fell around Helmi as she sat among the seekers.

Two women in seal coats were discussing the situation.

Moose Jaw, Sask., will have a refinery with a capacity of 10,000 barrels of crude oil per day, if the plans of the Imperial Oil Company are carried out. Work on the refinery will start at once, and will be completed by the end of the year, it is stated. The refinery will be built on the site of the old Moose Jaw brick plant.

Operate Landing Stations

Seven landing stations will be operated by the Saskatchewan Government this season, it is announced by the Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Producers' Marketing Association. Two of these will be at Regina Moose Jaw and North Battleford Park. Yorkton and Assiniboia. This year's schedule of boats remain open for use on the lakes.

Position Is Reversed

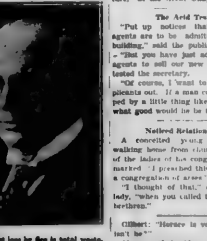
A Boy Asked Her Able To Pay Debt To Britain

Nearly as many people in the United States are in favor of paying the debt to Britain as are opposed to it, according to a recent poll conducted by the Literary Digest. Of 1,000,000 persons who have returned ballots, 49 per cent. favor payment and 51 per cent. are opposed. Of the 48 States heard from, the majority in favor of payment in 28 States and in opposition in 20 States. The Digest has received a large response to the question, "Should Britain pay her debt to us?" Following is a typical example of the answers received:

A little boy asked his father, "Why don't we pay our debt to Britain?" His father answered, "Because we don't have the money." The little boy replied, "Why don't we borrow it from Britain and pay our debt?"

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain



Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be pleased with but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. If used that, being handled, tickled and much or even screams, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Prettiness or crying and sleeplessness from the same cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset better give him a few drops of pure harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep, yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable the recipe on the wrapper Leading physician prescribe it for colic, worms, diarrhea constipation gas on stomach and bowels feverishness loss of sleep and all other upsets of babyhood Over 27 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold Look for Chas H Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

NEW GUIDE FOR AVIATORS

Roof Signs Would Aid Fliers To Identify Towns

The patriotic citizens of today is called upon to give a roof to his country. Roofs are to be the aerial guideposts for flyers, with signs identifying each community, pointing the direction to the nearest airport and telling the distance to it.

The family of a generation hence which goes out in its aerial flivver for a Sunday afternoon ride will be able to see beneath it the name of each town in large letters, and to learn at a glance how much of the carburetor gets to balking or the gasoline runs out.

Under the direction of the department of commerce has initiated the plan of guiding aviators by roof signs and hopes to get not only municipalities are such signs valuable to airmen it is pointed out, on roofs of factories in smaller towns and communities which have no landmarks which are easily distinguishable from the air.

Oil companies have been among the first to accede to the suggestion and many of their big tanks, painted on canvas on the tops of their gasoline and oil tanks in each community The name is visible, and from the standpoint that 10 000 of its posts will undertake the marking of their communities for the benefit of aviators.

Office buildings, shops and tanks are suitable for the signs, the advertising designers point out, and warehouses near railroads are particularly good because railway lines are frequently followed by flyers

Simple block letters in chrome yellow, on a dull black background, are best public service, it is said, and should be at least six feet high Arrows should point the direction of the nearest landing field and the mileage to it should be given.

Centennial Celebration

Henri Dunant, Founder Of Red Cross, Winner of Nobel Peace Prize

Born Geneva May 8, 1828 Died Paris, October 31 1910

Philanthropist and Author of several books

Casually travelling through Sneerville in Italy in 1859, Dunant came upon the ghastly plain of Solferino where on June 24th, 300,000 men had been engaged in a battle which had lasted fifteen hours

Shocked into action at the sight of 40,000 dead wounded and dying soldiers Dunant undertook to establish a volunteer medical and nursing service, recruited from the town of Castiglione With these work ers he obtained official permission to tend the wounded and dying on the field of battle, going out personally with each force, and secured the help for which he paid out of his own purse No indefatigably did he work that, in gratitude, the Swedish named him "The Good Samaritan of Castiglione"

The vision of the suffering witnessed at Solferino never left him For three years he travelled about Europe pleading for the setting up of societies to minimize the immediate need for change.

The Committee of Public Safety consequently under the presidency and charmanship of Gustave Moynier and General Dufour became interested that it succeeded in getting together an International Conference in 1863 As a result of these efforts still month's conference was called in 1864 when 16 nations sent delegates The meeting ended when 12 out of the 16 national representatives signed the first Treaty of Geneva and Red Cross was established for the first time in history Dunant was then 36 years old. Since this Treaty was in force most of the details of Henri Dunant's work have been adopted by the International Committee of the Red Cross, a large fraction of the Nobel Peace Prize money was awarded to him.

Piano Is Still Popular

Radio Or Mechanical Instruments Cannot Take Its Place

When the popularity of the radio began to be admitted, many persons expressed the opinion that all musical instruments would be in the background, especially the piano. But the recent statement of a New York piano manufacturer that the piano business had been helped by the sale of $1,000 grand pianos made their fears groundless. The same prediction was made when the player-piano and the phonograph made their first appearance, but this extraordinary one-day sale of piano indicates otherwise

RED AND WHITE CHAIN STORES

! ANNOUNCEMENT !

In order to serve you better we have joined the great International Red and White Chain Stores, which is the largest chain of individual retail grocers in the world and extends from coast to coast in Canada and the United States.

The main objectives are:
1. To get mass buying in order to give you better prices.
2. More efficiency in merchandising.
3. More orderly and better stores.
4. Fresh stock of the best quality.
5. To reserve the old personnel and capital, and protect existing ownerships and rights.
6. By enormous mass buying and simplified operations, needless expenses and costs are wiped out.
8. To eliminate bookkeeping expenses and credit losses all Groceries will be sold for cash only.

We have come to the conclusion that the time has now come when, t o hold business in our home district, it is necessary to provide a local source of supply for the cash buyer, and through chain buying and selling for cash we will be able to reduce practically all lines of merchandise.

Our store is being completely remodelled; come in and see us; you will like the clean and orderly display, all goods plainly priced — You can help yourself, ask the clerk, or telephone.

WE DELIVER IN TOWN TWICE DAILY

Watch for our week-end Specials. Lists will be mailed each week. You can shop economically in your own town.

The Red and White Chain Store operator is the owner of his store—a part of the community in which he operates —he is interested in the welfare of customers and community.

1927 Pig Club Won First Place for Car Lot

In November, 1927, members of the Vermilion and Mannville Swine Clubs shipped a car lot of hogs to Edmonton which was awarded a first prize of $100.00 in competition with similar car lots from all parts of Alberta.

The past year was in some respects a disappointing one for Club members. Because of the epidemic of infantile paralysis all local competitions in judging and competitions for Club loans at Edmonton were cancelled. In spite of these difficulties members finished their hogs, had them scored at the shipping point, and prizes awarded to the best pairs of bacon hogs. These hogs were then shipped and shown against similar car lots both at Calgary and Edmonton winning first place. These young people have been heartily congratulated by all who are interested in livestock.

This year there is unusual activity in evidence. Many have already selected their young pigs for the 1928 competition and there is every reason to hope that a strong showing will be made in the inter-club car lot competition.

Girls and boys in the district will be pleased to know that the Vermilion Agricultural Society is offering prizes in the classes for Pools, Beef Calves and Dairy Calves as follows:

First prize —	$15.00
Second prize —	$13.00
Third Prize —	$10.00
Fourth Prize —	$ 8.00
Fifth prize —	$ 6.00
Seventh prize —	$ 2.00

and $2.00 for each succeeding entry of merit. Very liberal prizes will also be given for bacon hogs and market lambs. No entry fees will be charged for these exhibits and in addition each exhibitor will be given a pass in the Fair. The Pig Club offers prizes ranging from a first prize of $12.00 to 15th prize of $1.00 for pairs of bacon hogs. Club members only being eligible to compete for these latter prizes

Such an attractive offering of cash prizes will certainly bring out strong classes and amply repay the young feeders for their time and feed.

Further information and personal attention may be had by getting in touch with W. H. Patton, Secretary of the Vermilion Agricultural Society or J. F. Andrew, Supervisor of Clubs

Commencing Wednesday May 9th, the Main Street Meat Market will be closed Wednesday afternoons during the summer.

Council To Ask For $53,000.00

Power Plant Extension and Central Heating

At its meeting last night, the town council of Vermilion gave first and second readings to a by-law having for its purpose the raising of the sum of fifty-three thousand dollars for public utilities. Of this amount $37,000.00 is for extensions and extra equipment in connection with the municipal power plant and $16,000.00 for the installing of a central heating plant.

The surplus revenue earned from these undertakings it is figured will be more than ample to meet annual capital re-payments and interest.

The action of The Royal Bank of Canada vs A. L. Lewis of Islay was tried here on Tuesday the 8th before His Honor Judge Taylor The Bank sued as a holder in due course of notes made by A. L. Lewis in favor of the A. Lewis Manufacturing Company and others. The notes were given for the purchase price of goods bought by the defendant which he claimed to have returned, but the notes having been endorsed to the Bank before maturity the judge held the bank entitled to recover from the defendant the amount of the notes and gave judgment for the plaintiffs there with costs. F. J. Richardson acted for the plaintiff bank and J. W. G. Morrison for the defendant Lewis.

MISTAKES MOTHERS MAKE IN CARE OF LITTLE ONES

Many mothers give their children ruled foods at too early an age. They say proudly that their babies eat everything that grown up people eat. Such a course is almost certain to bring on indigestion and lay the foundation of much ill-health for the little one.

Other mothers administer harsh, purgative medicines which are likely to irritate and injure the delicate stomach and bowels and at the same time cause the children to dislike all medicine.

Absolutely no meat should be given to a child until it reaches the age of 18 months and then only if approved by the doctor. For medicine all young druggerists oils and powders should be abandoned and Baby's Own Tablets given instead.

Baby's Own Tablets are especially made for little ones. They are pleasant to take and can be given with absolute safety by even the new-born babe. They quickly banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Small Town Papers

By FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

I wanted to know just how they did make money. Does the modern country newspaper publisher keep accounts like a business man, or does he just guess at his profits as the old-timers used to do and usually guessed wrong?

"That's one of the things we are doing in our state and regional press associations," said the Iowa man. "Teaching the country editor how to figure his costs and base his advertising and subscription rates upon them is one of the important items in the work of our organizations. Too many of them are still guessing at costs in fact, the former president of the National Editorial Association, Herman Roe, recently said that accounting was the weakest spot in the whole rural newspaper field."

I was at the meeting when Roe said that, and Bert Mills asked for estimates of the cost of publishing a six column eight-page paper 2,000 copies Would you tell me how that Mills estimate ran, all the way from $75 to $5.00 The man who was publishing the papers didn't know most of them, what it cost him, and were going to sell advertising space at a fair price." And that's one of the things that unless you know about it is bunk.

I think I've got the cost nearly down to brass tacks on the paper I publish here. It seems to be the first time I've ever been able to tell what it costs me to put out a copy of the paper. Now we have up to date machinery, the wages paid and material that I buy are such that I can get every inch of profit enough to cover my investment and interest on the investment at a fair rate for the tolling and necessary clerk hire and plant of the kind of expense including my own salary and then we add a profit of an arbitrary figure on top of all that to be safe."

I run a sixteen-page six-column paper, and print a little more than 2,000 copies every week I don't know about those figures of advertising as I've never figured the way I've just described it costs about $146 an issue to produce I get 40 cents an inch for advertising space, or about $100 per issue. That just leaves me $46 The Gazette were headed for bankruptcy when that extra dollar per week a week in effect first by the 25 per cent. proposition which has been figured into the cost all along the line so that an advertising space there is a profit in getting out the paper of $675.00 a week I draw a salary of $60 a week, which is included in the costs. Those two items come to $6,500 a year, and my subscription revenue runs anywhere from $7,000 to $7,500. The interest on the investment, charged also into costs, brings my profits about $15,000 a year, without counting legal advertising, sale of extra copies and such items."

I was pretty well convinced by this time on every point but one

"I'd like to try to borrow money at the bank on the strength of that subscription revenue," I suggested.

There was a chorus of laughter from the entire group around the luncheon table

"Try to subscribe to an up-to-date country weekly without paying cash in advance and see what you get," said one of them. "Credit-Advance-Ruin is one of our strongest and most persistent organizations. It has taken a good deal of educational effort, both with customers and with publishers, to establish the principle of paid-in-advance subscriptions, and there are a good many papers still which do not enforce it very strictly. But I should say that a clear majority of the country weeklies now get their money from subscribers promptly both for original subscriptions and for renewals. The modern farmer has not the aversion to paying one cent that his grandsire had. He has the cash to pay, for one thing, and he buys machinery and other things for cash, so that it seems natural to him to pay for his paper in cash. And while we think of the old-time editor as taking apples or cordwood for subscriptions, we've found some papers in the course of our association investigations, which have always enforced the cash-in-advance rule, from the Southern Standard, for example which has been published at Mineralville Tennessee since 1878 without a break and which has never sent a copy to a subscriber who wasn't paid up for a year ahead, to the one that got somewhat less than the prevailing rate of $2.50 a year, or five cents a copy which is now almost the standard rate all over the country and which gives the publisher a run for his money."

The whole trick is to make the paper so useful and interesting to the local readers that they can't get along without it," said Bert Mills.

Like the Star Chamber decree that came from Iowa "Make the people subscribe country weekly for 1927-28 or the things which the National Editorial Association does every summer will be held by a piper out to city state. in a town you probably never heard of, called Truce, in Tazewell county, Iowa. And what makes it the most unique paper in the United States, as it has a right to call itself, the fact that it is so full of local news about local people and events that everybody in the territory just has to read it. Truce has a population of 1,329, but the Star-Clipper has a circulation of 3,578—and all paid in advance at two dollars a year. When the N.E.A. committee checked up the circulation it was found that in thirteen townships in the county nine out of every ten farmers were subscribers. Three townships showed 100 per cent subscriptions.

"That's a real record," said Bert Mills "They give another award every year, too, for the paper with the best editorial page. It is an upstate New York paper that holds that this year Jacob Streeg's Rhinebeck Gazette. Most of us don't go in very strongly for editorial comment, but the Gazette does right out in meeting, about matters of local interest, and has a great influence in Dutchess County."

"I think there's a decided tendency toward stronger editorial expression, as well as toward constructive community service, among country weeklies generally," added the editor from Oklahoma. "That last is another matter which the National Editorial Association is encouraging. At the last convention the association gave a prize to the Clinton County Republican-News, published at St. Johns, Michigan, for the greatest community service, in recognition of its campaigns to raise money for a county hospital, for fireproof vaults for the courthouse and for tuberculosis testing of cattle in the county

Hay Growers Of Manitoba To Organize Central Selling Agency

A provincial hay pool, providing for a central selling agency and a contract system of delivery, is the most recent development in co-operative marketing in Manitoba. It was announced at the office of the co-operative marketing board.

Meetings to be held in different parts of the province have decided to proceed at once with the organization of an association to be known as Manitoba Co-operative Hay Growers, Ltd. An application is being made to the provincial government for a charter under the co-operative association act. George McKay, Marquette, Man., has been elected president of the pool.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM

Golden Text: "Behold, thy King cometh unto thee; He is just, and having salvation."—Zechariah 9:9.

Lesson: Mark 11:1-33.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 24:7-10.

Explanations and Comments

Christ's Kingship Openly Proclaimed, verses 1-10.—Six days before the Passover, on what is called Palm Sunday, the last Sunday of His life, Jesus made His triumphant entry of Jerusalem. On approaching Bethphage and Bethany, not far from the city, Jesus bade two of His disciples go into the village opposite, where on entering they would find a colt tied which no man had ever ridden; this animal they were to loose and bring to Him. If questioned as to their action they were to say, "The Lord hath need of him and will return him to you after he has been ridden." The disciples found the colt in a public street fastened to a door, and as they unbound him were questioned, but upon answering as Jesus had directed they were permitted to take him away. The owner was evidently a friend of Jesus.

They brought the colt and put their own clothes upon him for Christ their Master to sit upon. Others spread their garments on the road, and still others secured branches of palm trees (John 12:13), and cast them down for Him to ride upon. Thus the crowd that went before as well as the crowd that followed cried, "Hosanna (save now, compare the acclamation, God Save the King.) Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord; Blessed is the kingdom that cometh, the kingdom of our father David; Hosanna in the highest." The words are from the one hundred and eighteenth Psalm. "The Messiah's Triumph" was the text of the five "Hallel Psalms" which were sung by the people as they journeyed to Jerusalem to attend the great festivals. This was on this occasion the initial that the people recognized Jesus as the Messiah. (Hosa, O daughter of Jerusalem; Zechariah had cried; "behold thy King cometh unto thee; He is just, and having salvation, lowly, and riding upon an ass, even upon a colt, the foal of an ass.") This prophecy Jesus now literally fulfilled. Jesus was the prophetic of a peaceful King not of a warrior. The sun was the animal which the Roman soldier rode. In reality the ride over the Mount of Olives was the last attempt of Jesus way to those about Him by symbolic acts to show that He had failed to convey, that He had not come to a royal government for a charter was He but a lowly Servant and Prince of Peace."—George A. Rates For Branch Lines

Proposed To Spend Two Millions On C.P.R. Branches, Says Minister

"We are not interested in whether two hotels in Halifax will pay," Hon. Jacques Bureau, president of the Canadian National Railways, told the house committee on railways and canals. "We are interested in whether our own a hotel will pay. We believe, having regard to all circumstances, that the hotel we propose to build will pay."

The committee had under consideration Canadian National estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31 next.

Sir Henry said that it was proposed to spend ten millions on branch lines this year under the three-year programme.

The committee passed the estimates and accounts of the Canadian National.

Classic English Language

Swedish Paper Finds Majority Favor It As World Tongue

The English language is better suited to become a world tongue than Esperanto, Ido or any of the artificial languages, maintains Professor H. K. Ekblom, Swedish scholar. Pursuing the theory that these languages are easier to learn than the established tongues and knowing the fact that English is understood by 200,000,000 people in every corner of the globe, whereas Esperanto, for instance, is mastered by but some few hundred thousand, the professor finds reason to believe that English will be the future world language.

To ascertain to what extent the citizens of Stockholm understand and speak foreign tongues, a newspaper of the Swedish capital recently made an interesting investigation. A reporter capable of speaking many different languages was sent out to question at random a number of people, men and women, in various walks of life. German, French, Italian, Russian and the artificial languages of Esperanto and Ido were spoken but understood by only a few people, whereas the majority had a fair knowledge of English to the point of the result that a stranger in Stockholm may be reasonably assured of being understood if he or she knows English.

When asked by the interviewing reporter which language would be most suited as world tongues, 66 out of 100 were in favor of English, 10 advocated Esperanto, and 14 voted for Ido. Spanish received six votes, French 4, German and Latin two each, and Italian and Swedish one each.

Reject Undesirable Immigrants

Says Plan Adopted By U.S. Should Be Followed By Canada

"If Canada does not desire to be the dumping ground of those would-be immigrants for their resentment which the United States medical inspection system is weeding out, we must have no time in keeping close guard at our own ports of entry by adopting the method which is working so successfully with our neighbors to the south."

The warning was issued by Dr. J. D. Page, chief of the division of immigration, medical service, federal department of health, before members of the health division of the Canadian conference on social work now in session at Montreal. He was speaking on "the medical aspect of immigration."

Village Has Been Deserted

For more than 30 years a thriving village, Cutter, situated on the Canadian Pacific line to Sault Ste. Marie, has been completely deserted. Of late the population has gradually dwindled until only a few left and announcement that the ferry to Manitoulin will no longer call, the last two families, that of the station agent and the customs officer were forced to move. The ferry terminus has been moved to Spragge, leaving Cutter a deserted village.

"My dear," said one, "it is our patriotic duty to save every cent. I cut down my meals two dollars at once, and changed my dressmaker."

Her voice fell. "My dear, there's a wonderful German woman on the south side I went to her yesterday myself, and she made me a stunning little afternoon dress with so much handwork in it, and only charged me $25. Mrs. Frouchette would have charged thirty-five. She is a positive find. She's from that White Star liner that sank, her trade, and so has cut her prices away down. We're keeping it among ourselves, my dear. You know the rules of the I.O.D.E.'s would be up in arms if they knew. They say we should patronize our own, but, my dear the German woman has to live."

When Helmi walked secretly back to the "White Star" that night she was beginning to wonder if to being a child was the world's worst sin. The great tragedies for which there could be no pardon fell by the thumps of the bowed shelter of her own heart, and the world and its people who had befriended her kept her heart from despair. Mrs. Corbett had not thought it was so terrible. She had praised little Lilt, and Rose and Danny were getting marbles now from other children in the block for a knife at the child.

The traffic was congested at the corner of First and Jasper. A Elks Line car waited for the rush of passengers homeward bound, and a coal wagon, lumbering past, narrowly escaped a loaded motor which had clearly disregarding the traffic law. A newsboy in an overcoat much too long for him shouted "Evening Journal, all about the suicide."

Helmi shuddered and hurried on She wanted to feel the little warm cheek against her own, and to listen to the regular breathing, and get back the confidence she had lost. There must be someone in this city who would let her work.

The next day Miss Ritchie had an address for her. The lady there wasn't at home, and Helmi sat on the step and go home at night. Helmi set out at once, taking a street car to save time When she had spoken with the lady had already secured a helper for the day.

After Helmi had gone the lady remarked to her friend that the girl whom Miss Ritchie had sent looked rather pale, and she wished she had given her a street car ticket. The friend advised her not to worry over it. "It looks a brisk walk would do the girl good."

Helmi walked slowly over the long bridge, steering grand from pillars frowned coldly at her. On the river below men were drawing sleighloads of ice, glistening blue against the white snow. They looked as though happy in their fur coats. Helmi stopped for a moment to watch them, but soon hurried on, for it made her dizzy to look down, and yet it drew her back again in a horrible way that made her heart beat sickeningly. She compelled herself to think of little Lilt's pink fingers, with their long fine lashes curled, and the satiny feel of her little cheek.

Helmi knew there were kind women in the city; there were women like Miss Abbie and Miss Rodgers, and even like Mr. Terry and the lose for Mrs. Corbett. Maybe the two days was not long to be looking

When Helmi got back to the Dominion Hotel after she will she was her trade, and so has cut her prices away down. We're keeping it among ourselves, my dear. Looking up, Helmi saw a big policeman looking his head warningly at her She turned and ran Fear gave freshness to her feet she dared not pause to come by the day car. From the scene of the silent river Mary's Little Lamb.

"GIRL WANTED"

said the sign, Pale and trembling Helmi approached the door.

"Do you want a girl? Will you take me?" she said, before she noticed the person who sat there.

A tall, old Chinaman rose from his high stool. "You wanee dish, cook, waiter kind?" he asked.

"I will do anything," said Helmi "give me a chance"

"Sure, you have table girl; old man give you chance Want girl for night seven till twelve every night Come before dark Lots of nice lee kees come in at old Sammy's Nice bibble girl carry chop suey Make nice in white apron, bibble cap"

"I'll work hard if you'll give me a chance," said Helmi.

And so it happened that when Mayor Gowsell who was recruiting, began his nightly dinner he was entertaining the next night for a cup of coffee and a sandwich. He refused anything but coffee, and almost fainted with joy when he found how easy it was to get food.

Work in the restaurant kitchen She was dressed very smartly in her black dress with white apron and cap, and carried the trays with the old air of aloofness.

Deeply concerned as Major Gowsell was over the debauchery of the young women and he spoke often and with deep feeling even to the Chinaman, there was one thing that almost fathers would not forget to tell Helmi, has young daughter.

"Our knights belong to a club with a password in it, part of which is that we will never to that to a girl. Remember, my child, that I'm your friend, and that if you ever are in trouble you can always come to me. I'll be glad to help you."

Helmi looked at him gratefully, and he went on, "

SOME SALESMEN speak of the quality of their flour as if it resulted from secret and highly mysterious milling.

There are no secrets in milling.

The best flour is the result of intelligent selection of the very best wheat, a good mill, skilful milling and constant and never ceasing watchfulness. That combination insures good flour. Nothing else does.

M. Wener & Sons Join The Red and White Chain Stores

Progressive Step Taken by Vermilion Merchants

With the object of serving the buying public better, M. Wener & Sons, general merchants of Vermilion, are opening a Red & White Chain Store and in this connection the store is being completely remodelled. Particulars of this very important change are contained in the firm's advertisement this issue, to which attention is directed. Deliveries of purchases will be made throughout the town twice daily.

The Red & White Chain of stores is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the world and extends throughout the greater part of Canada and the United States. Each unit is individually and locally owned, and the huge mass buying makes possible lower cash prices to the consumer.

The Elks And The 24th.

The third topic of conversation among the juvenile population of Vermilion just now is the celebration on May 24th, when the local Elks will entertain the kiddies of Vermilion and district.

Almost everything is in readiness for the big event, and, given propitious weather, the kiddies are assured a real day's entertainment.

An additional attraction will be the special show at the Columbia Theatre where Manager Pilkie will exhibit the screaming comedy "Now We're in the Air" with Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton as the mirth-provokers. All children under 12 years of age will be admitted for 15 cents, and the show is timed to start at 7 p. m.

A special feature of the dance in the Community Hall at night will be the drawing of the winning numbers for the two gold watches. Every purchaser of a ticket for the dance is entitled to a chance on the watches and prospective purchasers can obtain numbered tickets from members of the Entertainment Committee, which is composed of the following: A Y Lee, A. McWilliams, W. B. Rivers, N. Robertson, C. W. Robinson and A. M. West.

The dance of the season, and a chance to win a gold watch,—all for 75 cents! Now, ladies and gents, don't crowd! ("Don't be nasty, Charlie!")

ISLAY ITEMS.

An auto collision occurred in the town Monday evening, when Frank Pauli of Kitscoty ran into the car of Thos Pinsitska of Dodds, Alberta damaging it badly. Provincial Police officer Olsen took the offender to Vermilion to appear before Police Magistrate Pilkie on charges of illegal possession of liquor laid by inspectors of the department, and driving while intoxicated laid by Pinsitka. On the first charge, Smith was fined $25 and costs and on the second he was sentenced to 7 days' imprisonment

The farmers are very busy in this vicinity. Everyone is trying to get all their wheat in before the middle of the month and has come when those having tractors have a double shift of 20 hours a day

There have been three tractor seeders drills and gang plows sold here this spring than in any year in the history of the town.

Wm. Davies & Sons expect to put 250 acres in wheat and as soon as the crop is off will put in 200 acres of alfalfa, will start breaking the 320 acres south of Kennilworth school.

Those who had a sporting a new Erskine sedan: Mr. Hunt a new Chevrolet sedan; Mr Stephens a new Pontiac sedan, Mr. McRae a new Pontiac sedan.

Mr Andrew Law of Vermilion was in town Tuesday fitting up the furnace in the Municipal Hospital.

Rev. T. A. Bowen very nearly had a bad accident coming across the trail bonds west of Kennilworth school. He found himself with the steering wheel of his car in his hand, the car jumped the trail and headed for a little lake. He jumped from the car and it stopped after running twice its length into the slough. A pair of horses very easily pulled the car out with no damage done.

J. E. Miller, one of our merchants, is recovering slowly after his serious operation. Miss Gladys Stone is also making rapid and steady progress.

A. H. Patterson of Mannville has leased the Monaghan garage and is fitting it up to serve the public with efficient service. Associated with Mr. Patterson is Mr. Ernest Johnson, automobile, who has taken a course in technical engineering in Denmark.

Mr. Math. Nirdnel has given the Islay Cafe a coat of white paint on the front and also satin finish white inside, and George Lee has put in a Frigidaire

Larkin Not Selling Salada Tea Business

Officials of the Salada Tea Company Toronto, have informed this paper that the Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, has cabled a denial to the rumour that he was selling his Salada tea business. "There is not a grain of truth in it," he said. "We have had numerous offers for the business since I took office under the government, but I would not entertain the idea of parting with any of the business interests of myself or my son, neither would my son."

Hon. Mr. Larkin said he hoped to return to Toronto to hoped to return to Toronto to resume his former life there when the Canadian Government no longer requires his services in London. His son, Gerald R. Larkin, is president of the Salada Tea Company which is one of the largest tea companies in the world, with branches in principal cities all over the North American continent. The Salada Tea Company was founded by Sir Thomas C. Larkin in 1892 and has attained such remarkable success because Mr. Larkin was for years the head buyer for a firm of wholesale grocers, who had to sell a lot of guaranteed quality packed in a sealed metal package in a pound and half pound tin. The Salada Tea Company supplies a quarter of all the tea used in Canada.

BALL TOURNEY AT VEGREVILLE

VEGREVILLE, May 8.—Vegreville baseball club has arranged a tournament for Victoria day with Viking, Vermilion, Innisfree and the home team participating. High class ball is assured as each team is stronger than ever before. At least that's what they all say.

Prizes are: first, seventy dollars; second, forty-five; third, twenty-five; fourth, twenty.

A band will be in attendance, and a big dance in Elks' hall will finish the day.

MANNVILLE HOOP STARS ARE BUSY

Men's Team Held to 26-26 Tie in Match with Girls on Friday

MANNVILLE, May 5.—The young men in Mannville have recently organized a basketball club and they are prepared to answer challenges from nearby towns for games.

A game on the court at the fair grounds between the Mannville team (ladies) and the men's team on Friday at 9 o'clock drew a fair crowd and was a lively contested affair. It was fair basketball for so early in the season. The final score was 26-26.

Ladies' team—Reynolds, Lily Croft and Lily Finch; centre, Algertha Bober; guards, Dorothy Bober and Vera Robinson; subs, Doris Taylor and Polly Milligan.

Men's team—Forwards, L. Croft and S. Bober; centre, R. Hetzler; guards, R. McAllister and D. Evanchiw; subs, D. Burch and H. Warnock.

Referees—T. Hart and W. Poage.

The return game is to be played on the same court next week.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Cattanach, formerly of Port Arthur, Ont. on their way to New Zealand, called for a couple of weeks to visit with their brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Cattanach who have just lately settled on the Dane farm near Islay. They are accompanied by their young son and daughter, Master George and Miss Mary, who enjoyed a holiday with their cousins, Master Nevil and Miss Mairy. We regret Alberta could not offer inducements to keep such citizens with us, but what is Alberta's loss is New Zealand's gain—and they still live under the old flag. Mr. Cattanach is still suffering from the effects of being at the front in the world war, and it is to be hoped that the warm climate of New Zealand will restore him to his former robust health, after which he and his noble wife and family may decide to return to our favoured land. We claim Canada is the garden of the world and Alberta is the garden of Canada and Islay is the garden of Alberta. Vermilion or Dewberry or some of those small hamlets may take exception to this, but when we speak of Islay we mean all the territory from the Battle River on the south to the Saskatchewan on the north and the boundary of Alberta on the east to Edmonton on the west—so Islay is really a larger place than some have thought.

A Triumph of Engineering Genius!

UNDERLYING the smart styling of Pontiac's Fisher-built bodies, you will find the master touches of skilled craftsmen and designers . . . the unmistakable evidences of engineering excellence.

The big, lusty Pontiac Six engine—with its GMR "blue-streak" cylinder head, its crankcase ventilation system, its oil filter, silencer, etc. . . . is the result of the skill and experience of Pontiac engineers, plus General Motors' great engineering and research laboratories!

The fuel-pump system (replacing the vacuum-tank) . . . the Lovejoy Shock Absorbers . . . are sure acting mechanical Four Wheel Brakes . . . are but two more developments of Pontiac plus General Motors.

General Motors' resources make Pontiac Six a triumph of engineering genius, just as they make it a revelation of six-cylinder value.

WORK TO BEAUTIFY GROUNDS.

Arbor Day at the school was a great success. In the very early hours of the morning, before the children arrived at work digging their quota of holes for the trees, and after calling school at 9 o'clock, Principal Rivers of the public school released the boys of grades seven and eight. Augmented by this formidable force of willing and industrious workers the task of digging forged ahead rapidly, all the holes being dug by noon. The locations had been mapped by Mr. Scarborough and Janitor Scott on Saturday afternoon for which they have the thanks of the Board. In the afternoon both the public and high school worked on the grounds in general, raking up and laying out of lawns, basketball land base ball fields, and vast improvements were made in the general appearance. The trees arrived from the nurseries today and will be put in at once

PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN PASSES.

Word of the death of J. H. Nelson of the hardware firm of Nelson-Hill, on Tuesday morning at the Royal Alexandra hospital, Edmonton was received here this morning by friends. The deceased had gone to the city a little over three weeks ago for treatment and a week previous to his death, underwent a second operation following which favorable reports were received regarding his condition with the hopes of ultimate recovery. The late Mr. Nelson was 62 years of age and a resident of Vermilion for the past four years. The funeral is being held this afternoon from the United Church. More extended reference will be made in the obituary next week

W.C.T.U. Convention Report

The sixteenth annual convention of Edmonton district Women's Christian Temperance Union opened in United Church, Vermilion, May 1, with a large attendance of delegates from all parts of the district. Reports from departmental superintendents showed a marked increase in interest and membership.

Officers present were Mrs. L. C. McKinney, Claresholm provincial president; Mrs. H. M. Hilliker, Viking, district president; Mrs. F. F. Knight, Edmonton, vice-president; Mrs. J. D. Stephens, Vermilion, recording secretary; Mrs. J. L. Hay, Ryley, treasurer; Mrs. McPherson, Ryley, 1st secretary.

Superintendents of departments Mrs. Marrison, Greenshields, asystitic temperance and anti-narcotics; Miss A. A. Sproule, Edmonton, press representative; Mrs. Townsend, Mannville, purity and mothers; Mrs. Johnson, Lamont, medical temperance; Mrs. P Swan, LittleWhite Ribbonettes Mrs M Hyslop, Toronto, at one time dominion organizer of W. C. T. U., was present.

Mrs McKinney announced to the convention that an essay contest had been inaugurated by the proprietors of Northern Messenger and Montreal Weekly Witness. The contest will be carried on in Sunday schools throughout the dominion in September, supervised by Women's Christian Temperance union. A medal contest was held in the evening with eight contestants, Llewellyn Weekes of Edmonton, was the winner of the gold medal. He made quite an impression upon the large audience present, and for already two silver medals to his credit

A feature of the proceedings of this sixteenth annual convention was the banquet tendered visiting delegates by the local union. Nearly seventy were present at the banquet which was presided over by Mrs. J. W. G Morrison, local president. Speakers were Mayor Fallen, who extended a hearty welcome on behalf of the town; Chairman Morrison, who spoke for the school population of Vermilion; Reverend and appreciation of the work of the W.C.T.U. were expressed on behalf of the Anglican church by Rev. Mr. Rapp and by Mr. Reimer for the Baptist church Mr. Cornell sent in a letter of encouragement of co-operation and the support of the Presbyterian church. Rev. Mr. Boyd said the prohibition flag waved at the mast head of the world. Played cleverly.

The president, Mrs. Hilliker, Mrs. Arthur, Mrs. Hyslop and Mrs. McKinney replied in addresses of welcome. All spoke of the wonderful work that was being accomplished by the union

Treasurer's report showed a balance of $ Mrs J L. Hay showed that during the year over one thousand dollars had been raised, of which over nine hundred and sixty dollars had been paid in to the provincial organization and the union was in fine condition financially Mrs Hill, district secretary, reported fifteen unions, all doing excellent work Mrs J D Stephens reported for 1927 convention Several papers on scientific questions were submitted by different superintendents. The daisy chain display was an interesting event of the evening program, as also were several musical numbers.

Mrs. H. Hilliker of Viking will direct the forces of the Women's Christian Temperance Union for the district of Edmonton for the coming year. This will be her second term as president of the district organization. Selection of the convention on Thursday was unanimous and greeted with prolonged applause. The other officers elected were as follows: Mrs. J. McArthur, Edmonton, vice-president; Mrs. R Jillson, Edmonton, Edmonton corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. D Stephens, Vermilion, recording secretary, Mrs J. L. Hay, Ryley, treasurer The superintendents for the different departments are as follows: Press, Mrs. A. O. Digging Into The Future

London Daily Mail Issues Clever Edition Dated January 1, 2000

Half a century ago Tennyson wrote of dipping into the future "far as human eye could see," and stated he "saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be." Some of the things that the Poet Laureate of England spoke of have become the common-place actualities of today. And now The London Daily Mail has been taking a "dip" into the future and has issued a twenty-four-page edition of the paper, the dateline of which is January 1, 2000. It is a clever imaginative presentation of events and occurrences as these will be related in the press seventy years hence.

It is a fearful and wonderful world that people will be living in then — that is provided the imaginations of The Daily Mail's reporters have not run away with them. "Television" bulletin services will give the news of the world as it occurs 12,000 miles away. People who hope to live to the year 2000 can look forward to being murdered by "suggestion" or by "concealed beam" rifles These will be their memories fading and are unable to remember the people to whom they owe money will be able to apply "memory impressors" while they sleep which will help the brain to function admirably when the sleeper awakes.

To interpret the world as it may exist when another thousand years have passed opens up an interesting field of speculation for the imaginative. At the present rate of progress, it is safe to say that every condition of human life will be completely revolutionized by the year 2000. But, gifted even with the most vivid imagination, it is impossible adequately to visualize conditions as they will be then. One has only to look at the amazing progress made during the last ten years to be convinced that it has not entered into the heart or the mind of man what the human race shall be when the dated millennium of the Christian era dawns.—Toronto Star.

EKIMOS ENJOY PORK WITH RAILWAY ENGINEERS

Partake Of White Man's Diet For First Time In Their Lives

When Major J. L. Charles, reconnaissance engineer of the Canadian National Railways, reached Fort Churchill on Hudson Bay, after surveying the new line which brings the saddle west a support of its own, he and his party invited two Eskimo postmen to lunch. The Eskimos came over the ice 150 miles on sledges with rumors casted with frozen mud. Neither was their usual diet and they chuckled with pleasure when Major Charles asked them to lunch and gave them. For the first time in their lives, pork.

"We had a very mild winter," said Major Charles, on his return to Winnipeg, "and lost only six out of our 40 dogs. On the day [illegible] arrived with the mail, the snow was melting at Churchill. The Eskimos had great difficulty in travelling as their mud runners thawed out."

By the end of May, there will be at least 1,200 men working on the Hudson Bay Railway. The steel has been laid for 256 miles north of The Pas. The total distance is more than 500 miles

Says Stones Do Not Grow

Quarries Have Been Denied By Experts At Winnipeg

Any farmer will tell you that stones grow. That is a belief that obtains all over this Dominion, and they assuredly seem to do so. How often has the patient picker of stones removed all the stones near or close to the surface, making the field fair to look at, only to see, after the next plowing, the surface covered by as many stones as there were before. This is another question that has been settled by the scientists, the city experts of agriculture at Washington. The agricultural department over there declares absolutely that rocks do not grow. According to them, what happens is this: Rocks of all sizes are continuously being bunched to the surface by the frost. The agency forms ice under the stones underneath the surface. This pushes the stones up. When this ice melts the stone does not drop back but dirt and sand are on the rock is lifted. Rocks thus pushed up from below are those which the farm lad thinks have grown while he was sleeping. It is there is any comfort in this decision, the Hon. W. R. Motherwell should endeavor to get our mental welfare.—The Boston Sun.

Speed and Common Sense

Safe Driver Is Not Necessarily a Slow One

It has been rather well established that laws which arbitrarily fix upon limits for automobiles are little protection against accidents. The speed at which one may safely drive depends upon the road and traffic conditions involved.

A high executive of one of the leading automobile manufacturing companies, who has made a close study of speed in its relation to accidents, declares that fifty or even sixty miles an hour over good open roads in the country may be safer than fifteen miles an hour in cutting corners in town.

The safe driver is not necessarily the slow driver, but one who uses common sense whether driving fast or slow. Careless driving while turning corners, passing pedestrians and cars, crossing railroad tracks and maneuvering in congested traffic is the greatest menace to life and limb.

Sense, not speed, is the important factor in determining whether a driver is safe or unsafe.

Longest Sentence On Record

Statesman Used 258 Words Before Period Was Necessary

There are many long sentences to be found in parish prison walls and the Manchester Guardian recently has been on the trail of a few. One found in a convict being examined in court blundered his elephantine way through a jungle of 39 lines of print. Even in accepted English literature there are a few sentences breeding doubt that all things must have an end. George Meredith made one of his women characters say, "I hope the wine was good," and the gentleman who had been to her party the night before launched into a 217 word discourse merely to prepare her for the news that the wine had been all right. It took a statesman however, to give the prize. In the British Finance Act of 1907, the author juggled words, phrases, clauses, and a few lines for 258 words before he decided a period was in order.

The Annoying Yard Driver

Not for many years had old Baxter been more than four or five miles from his native village, but his long cause into money, he decided to visit old friends in London and Manchester."

"Taxi, sir!" a driver bawled in his ear immediately he emerged from the London [illegible]

After seeing London he went on to Manchester Again, as he left the station a taxi pulled into the curb.

Taxi, sir!" asked its driver

No, no, you idiot!" snapped Baxter angrily. "I said 'no' in London. Now stop following me about."

Evened Things Up

Mother "Too darling, he ought to be punished."

Pamela "I did punis' him. I went straight to his kennel and dwank his milk."

She—I did.

Always look on the bright side of things—and if you are buying them it is well to look on both sides.

The Shoppie Post

Envelope and Oil Are Best Means Known To Keep Insects Under

During the warm months of the year most complaints are often a source of annoyance to the post office staff, particularly in rural and forested sections but also in towns and cities. The many species and the life history of this insect, as well as methods of controlling it, have been given serious study by the Entomological Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, and in Circular No. 62 of the department, recently issued, there are outlined plans that have been found successful in bringing it under control. The mosquito passes through several stages in its life history and the world over as registered in the history of all the warring countries; and I have no hesitation in saying that, vast as was that unparalleled catastrophe, it will not measure in historical importance with the still greater fact of the miraculous recovery of the ruined nations.

There is more history in the crowded post-war years, more energy let loose for the transformation of the conditions of life, more progress in the conquest of material and social welfare than ever took place in a decade of human history before; and this is a period and by a generation which has suffered more cruelly than any other in recent centuries. We are in the midst of forces which are not only more powerful than any in the past but are gaining in power in a sort of geometric ratio. This is not the place to develop the full importance of invention and discovery, but, unless the imagination grasps the fact that here we have a turning point in history utterly without parallel in the past, there is no hope of seeing clearly the political implications of the present.—Prof. J. T. Shotwell.

Using New Treatment To Cure Rheumatism

Hospitals In Europe Find Using Of Bees Effective

Science has come to the bee's sting as a cure for rheumatism. Long a remedy with beekeepers who tested it by experience the fact is now being recognized by the medical profession. Some European hospitals are employing the treatment the sites of the bees being regulated by the number of stings. Of course, patients have to have a valid reason and has discovered that the bee ejects the formic acid which counteracts the effect of uric acid, the natural fluid having a "punch" not possessed by the synthetic fluid.

Canada's Forest Industries

The capital invested in forest industries in Canada is approximately $875,000,000, one-third of which or a billion over $300,000,000 is in lumbering plants, saw-mills, etc., and $475,000,000 in the pulp and paper industry.

"Where's have you been, Henry?"

"Down to the drug store."

"Didn't I tell you to beat that rug?"

"I didn't so understand you. You said to take that rug out, hang it on the line, and beat it. I did."

"Do you believe in the power of prayer?"

"I would if you'd come home an hour ago."

This Marvellous Era

A Turning Point In History Utterly Without Parallel

I venture the suggestion that no one of the multitude appreciates the difference between the pre-scientific and scientific era. It is too soon for historians to register it; statesmen have missed it; scientists have been too close to it, philosophers too far away. But there is no other fact of history, from the ice age down, which compares with it. It has been my task to study in detail, during the last nine years, the nature of the World war as registered in the history of all the warring countries; and I have no hesitation in saying that, vast as was that unparalleled catastrophe, it will not measure in historical importance with the still greater fact of the miraculous recovery of the ruined nations.

There is more history in the crowded post-war years, more energy let loose for the transformation of the conditions of life, more progress in the conquest of material and social welfare than ever took place in a decade of human history before; and this is a period and by a generation which has suffered more cruelly than any other in recent centuries. We are in the midst of forces which are not only more powerful than any in the past but are gaining in power in a sort of geometric ratio. This is not the place to develop the full importance of invention and discovery, but, unless the imagination grasps the fact that here we have a turning point in history utterly without parallel in the past, there is no hope of seeing clearly the political implications of the present.—Prof. J. BC. Doctor Claims Custom Spreads Infectious Diseases

If you want great your friends carefully how and smile as much as you can and there's a good chance of a picture of violence, but don't shake hands.

Such is the warning uttered by Dr. R. W. Hill, head of the bacteriological department of the University of British Columbia, who claims that approximately one-third of the total of infectious diseases in Canada are communicated by the good, old-fashioned handshake.

Leading health authorities on America, said Dr. Hill, are convinced that typhoid fever, once thought to be contracted only from contaminated water, is passed on by handshaking. In fact, he said, most of the typhoid fever is spread by the practice. Soap and water are quite sufficient to wash away the germs, he said, except in about 90 per cent. of the cases. To play safe one should use a disinfectant.

"Mumsified was the right word," said Dr. Hill. "The Italian dictator has introduced the old Roman salute, which is not only a beautiful thing but sanitary. The Prime Minister, who has suffered from excessive hand-shaking on more than one occasion, is another devotee of the non-touch greeting. The military salute would not be bad for universal application, and the Japanese bow is all right for those not afflicted with stiff backs. Why, even the Hebrew manner of rubbing noses is better than the handshake.

"Don't worry about your own germs. You can use the same old pipe year after year and slip your hand into the dusty old pocket with immunity, for you will not be contaminated by your own germs. It's the other fellow's germs you have to watch."

But the business of living is not so serious as it sounds. Dr. Hill said that disease germs were comparatively rare. "Disease germs," he said, "form only about one billionth part of the germ world and the chance of getting sick from them is fairly rare."

Serves All Nationalities

There's a New York hotel that changes the nationality of the diners each night. Thus, for instance, one night there is French cooking, with Gallic Russian cooking, Chinese, Hindu, and so forth. The menu travels around the world in the course of a month and then starts all over. Chefs from each land take turns arranging the menus.

Record Price For Baby Beef

What is claimed to be an all-time Canadian record for the sale of baby beef was made at the Brandon Winter Fair on March 15th last, when R. H. Sparks, of Winnipeg, bought Miss Emma Hamilton's first prize calf for three dollars a pound. As the weight was 940 pounds, Miss Hamilton got $2,820.

A Land Of Opportunity

All That Has Been Said Of Canada Is True Says Hungarian Lecturer

"The friendship of Canadian-born citizens to those from my country who have come to this land is built on human and staet like none I have evidnet in all the Hungarian settlements I have visited in Western Canada that it is easily the most impressive thing I have seen in this country which is so full of impressive things, said His Excellency Baron Perenyi, on his return to Winnipeg from a visit to Hungarian settlements adjacent to the lines of the Canadian National Railways in Saskatchewan.

"I am more than satisfied," stated his excellency, "that Western Canada is a place where anyone can make an honest living with hard work. The land is here, the opportunity is here, but more than all these there is also here a sincere desire in those who have been born in Canada to lend their aid to assisting the Hungarian settler to establish himself. I find Canadian-born Hungarians to learn the language of the country; to learn its customs and to teach them how the land should be farmed. There are many instances where Canadians have even loaned machinery and gifted the Hungarian settler to put him in a position to have his own."

Hungarian settlers are making good, he said. In many instances he found beside the modern home with all its up-to-date conveniences, the humble dwelling which the settler occupied on arrival and the contrast was a vivid illustration of the progress made. "All that has been said of Canada is true. It is a land of real opportunity and I shall certainly come back again."

New Game Preserve

British Columbia Has Set Aside Area Along Alberta Boundary

Mountain sheep, moose, deer and other game animals will be protected from hunters in a large new game preserve created by the provincial government in the northeastern section of British Columbia.

The area has been along the Alberta boundary on Sheep Creek, 120 miles north of McBride, the nearest point of railway connection to it. It is thirty miles long, the eastern boundary being formed by the inter-provincial boundary and fifteen miles wide. It will contain 450 square miles.

Some of the largest bands of big game animals within the British Columbia live in the reserved area, and it is the purpose of the government to protect them, as well as other game animals within the area.

Washing It Over

The orderly sergeant with the officer of the day entered the dining-room.

"Any complaints," roared the sergeant.

Recruit—"Yes, sir. These ere tatties are bad."

Officer (inquiringly) "Tatties! Tatties."

Sergeant "The man is ignorant. He means spuds, sir."

A Large Grain Cargo

The largest grain cargo ever to leave Vancouver for the Orient, 460,000 bushels, has been loaded on the steamer Kaikyu Maru for Japan. The shipment will be the largest out of Vancouver this season and the third largest to any country in the history of the port

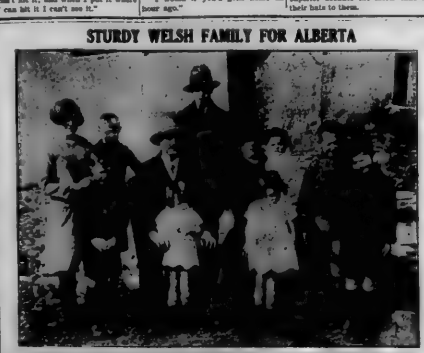
STURDY WELSH FAMILY FOR ALBERTA



C. P. Bowen, of Tredyrhiw Farm, Perth, in the Rhondda Valley of Wales, and his family, who were brought to Canada by the Canadian National Railways, and are settling near Calgary. The father is aged 48, his wife 37, the five boys are 17, 15, 13, 9 and 6, and the four girls, 14, 4, 2 and 3 years. This family has come to Canada under the 5,000 Family Scheme. Before leaving Mr. Bowen said: "We do not expect a bed of roses but plenty of hard work, but we are well used to that and have no doubts concerning the success of our venture. I am going to Canada because I see in the Dominion a better opportunity for my boys and girls."

SIXTH ELEVATOR NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION

BOSA LAKE, Alta., May 5.—Five elevators have been constructed and a sixth is now in course of erection at Haley Hill, on the Chauvin-Whitford Lake branch of the Canadian Pacific railway. DEWBERRY BUDGET

George Gray and sons of Greenacres shipped a carload of cattle through the Alexandra Co-Operative Livestock Shipping Association from here on Monday 29th April.

Farmers are now busy on the land. The bens of the tractors is over with us and will lately be all summer. Even our local graymen prefers the tractor for their while baaffing rocks to the elevator site.

One food thing about the tractor it cannot be impounded for straying away from home, and you don't have to brand it

The Dewberry Oil Warehouse is now complete, and a dance took place in the building on Monday night, when the local dancers, tripped the light fantastic over the plank floor angled by Buzz Bros. and L. McDonald with fiddle and guitar. Some of the carpenters who are building the pool elevator were guests and listened up the proceedings with some pain and fancy dash for a change. The dance kept on waits on a two by six, eight feet from the floor

A pleasant time was had by all.

Mr Cassels, I. H. C. tractor expert, is in the district to inspect the recently purchased tractors, and advise the operators on the care of these machines.

The new Pool elevator is now taking shape and many farmers are signing up contracts for the new series.

Mr. R. S. Wilson, a prominent pioneer of this district, who has been in Islay hospital for two weeks is progressing favorably after his operation. His many friends hope that it won't be long before he is back again with his family.

Mrs G T Rimmer of Vermilion was admitted to Islay hospital recently

Congratulations are in order to our local drayman, whose wife gave birth to a daughter last week, in the Islay hospital. What did you say about cigars, Jimmy?

Another dance last Saturday night in town. Everyone seems to be busy as Cars lined the streets until after midnight.

Trains are day time and cars and festivities at night. Really, we are getting gay these days. In the old days we used to go to bed at dark and discuss the merits of ox harness and three horse hitches Now it is mechanical items—cars, tractors and salad.

A special meeting of the Wheat Pool local is called for Saturday night 11th inst. All Pool members of Green lawn, Riverton and surrounding districts are requested to be present

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Porter, which took place suddenly on Monday, 7th May, about noon. Mrs. Porter resided on the farm of her son, Mr Tom Porter. The funeral took place at Dewberry cemetery on Tuesday afternoon

The annual spring clean-up campaign is again in full swing. Everyevening otherwise staid citizens may be seen in their shirt sleeves energetically plying a rake or hoe or some tool of manual labor. And every evening also the air in the town is full of smoke from the necessary rubbish burn-fires. "This is the life" chortled one rosy-cheeked youngster, indistinctly poking the bon-fire with his Dad's new rake.

A very interesting event took place on the evening of Monday, May 7th when a number of neighbors and friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. ELIZABETH PORTER

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Porter was held from her late home east of Dewberry on Tuesday afternoon, 8th inst. A large number of friends and neighbors gathered to show their respect to a very fine old lady who leaves behind a husband of over 50 years, and a number of children and grand-children.

Owing to the severe illness of her son, Tom, the services was kept as private as possible and the remains sent direct to the Dewberry cemetary for interment. The Rev. Mr. Robertson of Clandonald United Church conducted the service and arrangements were carried out under the direction of J. Waring

For some years Mrs. Porter had lived a rather secluded life but her loss is felt all the more and all join in her bereavement to the sorrowing husband and a large circle of friends extend their sincere sympathy.

NEW SETTLERS HAVE LARGE ACREAGE SOWN IN RECORD TIME

Four hundred and twenty-five acres in wheat, two hundred and seventy-five acres in oats, 350 acres of summer fallowing, is the achievement of Mr. B. Kluschinsky who settled on the old Barton farm north of town. Mr. Kluschinsky and family settled in the district just a year ago last fall and they are to be congratulated on the work accomplished. He has only one hired man, but a family bunch of boys. Most of the work was done by a Fordson and an Allis-Chalmers tractor, backed up by three horse outfits. Almost 350 acres of breaking on their own place is on the summer program of this energetic family.

St Mary' Anglican Church, Wellsdale, Picnic and Sports-ranic be held on Wednesday, June 6th, 1928 at Half Lake. President, W. Herridge. Excellent programme of flat races, tub races, water polo, greasy pole, Basketball, Football, Tennis tournament, etc. S. H. Goudge, Secretary. 9-1c

For Humanity!

The world scroll upon which is inscribed the names of men and women who have rendered distinguished service to the cause of humanity contains no name more worthy of such recognition than that of Henri Dunant, the centenary of whose birth in Geneva, Switzerland, was observed throughout the world on May 8th, of this year, and who lived to the ripe old age of 82 years.

What service did Henri Dunant render to mankind entitling him to this honor?

As a young man of 31 years, Dunant author and philosopher, was traveling for pleasure in the summer of 1859 in Northern Italy, and happened to arrive in the neighborhood of Solferino just at the conclusion of the battle which is known by that name, and which was waged between the Austrians under Franz z Joseph II and the Allied French and Sardinians The opposing forces were of about equal strength, the total of men engaged being something over 300,000. The armies met in the early morning and fought a sanguinary conflict until about two o'clock in the afternoon, when the Austrians were forced to retire. For no short a battle the losses were large, totalling in killed, wounded, and missing almost 40,000

Upon such a scene of carnage came Henri Dunant accidentally in the course of his journey for pleasure Suffering and dying soldiers left on the field filled the air with their cries and groans, but there was no organized care for them. His deepest sympathies stirred for these fellowmen, who had a few hours before were in the pride of health and strength, Henri Dunant organized the neighboring villagers who did what little they could to cope with the gigantic task of ministering to those whom lives might still be saved.

But Henri Dunant did more. The vivid and terrible scenes he had witnessed so impressed themselves upon his mind that a year or two later he published his experiences in a small volume entitled "Un Souvenir de Solferino" (A Remembrance of Solferino), in which he advocated the formation of voluntary organizations to aid the army authorities in carrying out the national obligation of caring for the sick and wounded in future campaigns.

In this day and generation, with the events of the Great World War still fresh in the minds of us all, the importance of the work of this international neutral humanitarian organization. Sufficient it is to say that probably no other organization in the world's history has a finer record of achievement, or one more highly commanded the confidence and support of all people. The Red Cross flag and insignia is known and respected everywhere as a sign of absolute neutrality among warring nations, and the highest standard of self-sacrificing service in all suffering humanity.

Originated for service to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war, its unceasing efficient organization and outstanding service during the Great War so impressed the statesmen of the world confronted with all the difficulties of after-the-war reconstruction of a well-nigh bankrupt civilization, that the Peace Conference at Versailles unanimously called upon the Red Cross throughout the world to remain organized and active, and undertake a comprehensive peace-time work among the civilian populations.

To the Red Cross, therefore, the creation of Henri Dunant, was accorded the distinction of being the only organization, apart from Governments, recognized in the Covenant of the League of Nations, with the solemn obligation imposed on all nations joining the League to encourage and promote the organization of voluntary national Red Cross Societies, having for their object "the promotion of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world."

Today the world around the world, the Red Cross with its tens of millions of members, including all races languages and creeds, is engaged in its mission of mercy When Nature in a violent mood brings disaster upon a small community or a province, or a whole nation, the Red Cross is the first on the spot Should an epidemic of disease break out, the Red Cross nurse and voluntary worker, inspired by the heroism and humanitarian ideals of Dunant and Florence Nightingale are active in the alleviation of suffering, Unceasing too, is the Red Cross educational campaign in the promotion of health and the prevention of disease And should war again inflict mankind, the Red Cross will be found better organized and stronger than ever to assume the burden thus imposed upon it.

In the galaxy of the world's great humanitarians, Pasteur, Jenner, Lister Florence Nightingale, William Booth, Curie, and others, the name of Henri Dunant shines brightly, while the sympathy which prompted his action on the bloody field of Solferino, and the inspiration leading to his ever-active efforts in organization in the cause of suffering humanity, continues to call forth the most splendid self-denial and service under the banner of the Red Cross.

Saskatchewan Farmers Have Purchased Many Bushels of Seed

The Saskatchewan Registered Seed Association advises that farmers throughout the province have purchased more registered seed this year than in any year in the past and that they are receiving many letters stating in good seed. There has been a heavy movement of tractors from United States points to points in Saskatchewan this spring and the sale of motor trucks has greatly increased. Evidently farmers are becoming more and more interested in mechanical power

RICH, RED BLOOD
A REAL NERVE TONIC

Is Weak, Watery Blood

Many people, both men and women, find themselves run down through overwork or exposure. Such sufferers find themselves tired, low-spirited and depressed. Their nerves seem to be worn out and they suffer from headaches and other nerve pains. All this comes from starved nerves.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich red blood. Therefore to relieve nervousness and run-down health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills enrich the blood which nourishes the nerves, improves the appetite, gives new strength and vitality. Such sufferers soon find themselves brighter and more independent people bright and cheerful. Miss Irene Denne, R.R. No. 3, Brantford, Ont., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her as follows: "I had to be in bed a part of every day, and on my return was taking medicine all the time, trying one medicine after another. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I have reason to be thankful I acted on this advice, as this was the first medicine that gave me any relief. In a comparatively short time restored me to the blessing of health. I cannot think of the marvelous good these pills did me, I can most highly recommend them to all weak, nervous people."

You can get these pills through any druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Recipe For This Week
(By Betty Barclay)

QUEEN GEORGIA'S CAKE

¾ cup shortening.
1½ cups sugar.
2 eggs.
½ cup sour milk.
1 teaspoon soda.
½ cup raisin juice.
1 cup nectar raisins.
2 teaspoons salt.
1 teaspoon nutmeg.
1 teaspoon cloves.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
2 cups flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.

Plump raisins drain and chop, using a coarse cutter. Cream the shortening and sugar. Add 3 beaten egg yolks and 1 white (save remaining white for frosting), raisins, sour milk, and raisin juice. Combine with flour sifted with baking powder, soda, salt, and spices. Mix thoroughly. Pour into 3 greased layer cake pans and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Put together with boiled frosting.

JUNE WEDDING SALAD

Cover individual salad plates with crisp leaves of head lettuce. Place on each slice of fresh or canned pineapple, one-inch squares of orange pulp, cut thick, and a few smaller pieces of sweetened grapefruit pulp. Top with a mound of flavored whipped cream and a maraschino cherry or candied rose. Just before serving, add a little lemon sauce—juice of one lemon mixed with two tablespoons sugar and one tablespoon water. This ideal salad for wedding feast, or for a company dinner.

Record Building Activity

Building and construction contracts awarded in Canada during the month of April, 1928, totalled $56,943,800 in value, the largest total for any month ever recorded except for May, 1928, when $57,138,700 worth of new work was awarded the figure April this year, $116,982,300 was the total of contemplated work to the Dominion. This total for the month is exceeded for any month without exception.

The accumulative contracts awarded for the first four months of the year is surprisingly large compared with previous years. It now stands at $125,617,100.

Calgary's Population

Calgary's total population on the city's population places the total at 72,500 this spring. The figure given by the census of 1921 was 63,513. Two hundred houses were erected here last year, and 300 will be built this year. There is an increase of 20 per cent. in the quantity of household effects being brought in by new residents, and apartment housing is all full and hotels are operating at capacity.

Useful In Camp.—Explorers, surveyors, prospectors and hunters will find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil very useful in camp. GREAT BRITAIN IS ANXIOUS TO OUTLAW WAR

London.—Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of the foreign office, speaking in the House of Commons concerning the Kellogg outlawry of war proposals, said that the British government not only warmly welcomed the initiative of the U.S. but was hopeful it would be successfully concluded, and would make a real contribution to world peace.

Sir Austen's statement followed remarks by Captain Elliot-Lister, the Labor leader, who supported the Kellogg proposals.

"Our attitude toward this note is going to have a very considerable influence in Anglo-American relations," Mr. MacDonald said. "Nobody who has been in America recently or who has followed the American press will deny that these relations are not quite as good as they should be."

Mr Austen said he would proceed to the United States immediately after the opening of the disarmament conference in Geneva.—A protest From China to the use of British troops during civil military action in Shantung is a possibility, Cheng Loh, Chinese member of the League Council, said to the Associated Press correspondent. He adds he was awaiting instruction from his government in Nanking.

Cheng Loh, who is now in Paris, but is coming to Geneva for the meeting of the council in June, said over the telephone that both Northerners and Southerners have the same view concerning the participation of foreign troops in Shantung. He thought it conceivable that both factions might unite in sending a protest to the Citizens to the League of Nations.

Japan's attitude on the question of sending troops to Shantung to settle the dispute is unknown here. The Chinese-Japanese conflict is regarded in Geneva as more likely to arise when the Kellogg outlawry of war proposal.

Looking For New President

University Of Alberta Will Seek Strong Man To Fill Vacant

Edmonton.—Hon. Perren Baker minister of education, will leave Edmonton on Monday on a tour of investigation that will have as its objective the location of likely appointees for the presidency of the University of Alberta.

He will go right across the Dominion, to the Maritime provinces, and may also cross the line into the Eastern and middle states

It has not even been decided yet that the new university president is to be a Canadian, but other things being equal, a Canadian would naturally be given to a man Canadian-born or at least Canadian experienced.

New Road To Coast

Project Reads For Northern British Columbia

Victoria, B.C. -A new railway route pass through the mountains from the Canadian Pacific River and northern British Columbia country was announced by H. M. Rolston, editor of the Canadian News who was here on his way north to Stewart.

"The new pass which has just been located by the engineers of the Kitsumkalum waterabeds to the Finlay basin, is 2,500 feet lower than the original pass through under Mt. Donald Mana," Mr. Rolston said.

"It will mean a much easier railway route to the coast."

Alberta Mounted Rifles

Ottawa.—"C" Squadron, 2nd Regiment the Alberta Mounted Rifles at Manton, has been relocalized at High River, Alta., the department of national defence has announced. A regimental badge of revised design has been approved for the Saskatoon Light Infantry, Saskatoon, Sask.

Governor Leaving Hong Kong

Hong Kong.—Sir Cecil Clementi, Governor of Hong Kong, has left for Hong Kong, Canada. Taken any doubt Sir Cecil Clementi has been governor of Hong Kong since 1925, and has been a public service in China for many years.

United Farmers Of Canada Have Scheme For Co-Operative Grain

Winnipeg.—As elaborate scheme for the organization of co-operative societies on the British model is now being drawn up by the United Farmers of Canada, according to W. M. Thrasher, secretary of the Saskatchewan section of that body. It is hoped to lay the foundation of a system of stores which will ultimately extend all over the West.

The central body in Canada will it is understood, have the hearty cooperation of the British Wholesale Co-operative in Manchester, which serves millions of customers in hundreds of stores all over the United Kingdom.

Share capital in small units, Mr. Thrasher stated, will be subscribed to start stores, and safeguards will be erected to prevent any one shareholder from becoming predominant. Though called share capital, the stock to be issued will virtually be debentures in character, since it will receive only a fixed return on the investment.

Possibility Of China and Japan Submitting Dispute To Geneva

Geneva.—A protest From China to the use of British troops during civil military action in Shantung is a possibility, Cheng Loh, Chinese member of the League Council, said to the Associated Press correspondent. He adds he was awaiting instruction from his government in Nanking.

Cheng Loh, who is now in Paris, but is coming to Geneva for the meeting of the council in June, said over the telephone that both Northerners and Southerners have the same view concerning the participation of foreign troops in Shantung. CLASH BETWEEN JAP TROOPS AND NATIONALISTS

Shanghai.—The Japanese 24th brigade, under General Motoyama, bore the brunt of fighting between the Japanese and Nationalists forces.

The Motoyama forces are reported into contact with a force of southerners at Kiolan, about 15 miles east of Tsinan, and engaged many of them after stubborn resistance.

When Motoyama's forces were returning to Tsinan they encountered a powerful force which attacked Chen Tao Yuan. Fighting was last reported still in progress with the result unknown.

Chen Tao Yuan was formerly governor of the province of Anwhei and commanded the Nationalist armies which succeeded in cutting the Hankow railway April 30 at Ningshui.

The Japanese were continuing today their attempts to disarm the natives in Tsinan and using their influence with them in the Tsinan area. The Mikado's forces took over the bridge across the Yellow River at Tsinan and other strategic points.

With the exception of the Japanese, counters with Motoyama's forces is not of the fighting was of a minor nature

Sunlight Soap Cleans Cold Storage Pay Imported Meat

London.—Speaking for the government in the House of Lords, Lord Strathcona, minister of agriculture, promised most carefully to consider a suggestion that all refrigerated meat imported into Great Britain from countries where the foot and mouth disease is prevalent should be placed in cold storage at the port of landing for three weeks.

Lord Kylsant, in opposing the suggestion, pointed out that 1,946,000 tons of meat were consumed in Britain in 1927, of which 920,000 tons were imported chilled beef of a quality almost equal to the best home-killed beef. In order to secure imported meat in a satisfactory condition, however, it should be available in Britain within 21 days after being shipped.

If chilled meat had to go into cold storage for three weeks on arrival, he said, its value would be considerably reduced and there would be a loss. The result would be that the importation of chilled meat would cease and nearly 1,000,000 tons of meat which Britain would have to consume from some of an inferior quality and pay a higher price for it than they did at present.

Week-End Tickets To Europe Cost Britishers $10.00 Extra

London The British Easter holiday crowd of "trippers" to the Continent was thrown into consternation by being required to pay $10 extra for their annual spring outing abroad for the first time since the war passports were required.

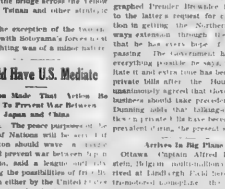
Since 1918 a special facility had been in force under which persons were allowed to buy week-end tickets to certain French and Belgian resorts, available from Friday to Tuesday, which allowed the holder to travel without a passport. Henceforth passports will be required

Persons who are domiciled at the French consulate-general in London, learned that the British authorities had never collected the extra charge in connection vantage to French and Belgian nationals, and the French Government now intended to make the abuse of this facility by one individual an occasion for withdrawing it altogether

Says Alberta Bill Is Given Support

Hon. C. A. Dunning Has Every Hope That It Will Pass

Edmonton.—Hon. Charles Dunning, Federal Minister of Railways, telegraphed Premier Brownlee in reply to a telegram from the latter concerning legislation getting the Northern Railways extension through the house so that he has every hope of the bill passing. The Government has done everything possible to assist the legislature in every way, he has been told by private bills affect the House had unanimously agreed that Government legislation should be given precedence. Dunning adds that talking-out tactics employed in the House recently were prevalent during the Conservative régime.



British Boys Study Agriculture

The above shows a splendid group of British Public and Secondary school students who have just arrived at the Macdonald Agricultural college, Winnipeg, Canada. Under the Canadian Pacific Railway these young men will pursue a two years' course at the College During the summer months they will work on farms where places have been selected for them. On completion of their studies they will engage in various branches of Canadian agricultural scheme.

operations by which they will be accustomed to Canadian methods

Each of the boys on the above list of students were brought to Canada last year, new entered upon the second year of their course. Each of the boys is at present attached with the completion of the year. At the conclusion of the course the boys will be placed on farms throughout the province to actually begin old age pension payments

Mr. Lobb has passed the necessary regulations to take advantage of the Immigrant Act and it is more than likely that payments will begin there some time during the summer.

It is expected that an agreement with the Yukon will be made very soon.

New Money For Ireland

London Mint Is Striking Coins For Free State

Dublin, Ireland.—A few months hence the people of the Irish Free State will begin to handle new coins intended to displace British coins in local circulation. The contract for minting was given to the London Mint, which has submitted Dublin the first strikings and now will proceed with production, beginning with silver coins.

The new coins will be of the same value as British coins up to half-crowns, and no higher denomination will be coined at present. Provision has been made for a proportion of silver higher than that in British coins, in order to counteract any possible suspicion of the new coinage. The sixpence and the threepenny piece will be of nickel the new threepenny piece being of the size of the British silver sixpence, but without any milling Bronze coins also are being struck, but it will take a little longer to substitute these for the corresponding British coins.

Urge Acceptance Of Canadian Currency

Washington Asked To Sanction Its Use In U.S. Centres

Ottawa.—The Journal in an editorial says:

"Due to a letter addressed by A. H. Jarvis, of Ottawa, to the United States consul-general here, steps have been taken by the State Department at Washington which may result in the future acceptance of Canadian currency at all centres across the line.

"Restitution on this score on the part of Americans in many districts has long been a source of inconvenience and annoyance to Canadians who go to the U.S. Although by a new Uncle Sam's best customer and despite the fact that the American dollar is accepted without question everywhere, there are many places and business houses and hotels across the border where the Canadian dollar is far more regarded than if it were the paper of Soviet Russia."

British Bankers Worried

Over Flood Of American Capital Which Is Entering Canada

London, Ont.—Grave fears are entertained by British bankers concerning the flood of American capital which is entering Canada, according to Major Hume Cronyn, London financier, who has just returned from a trip to England and the Riviera.

"It is impossible for us to secure money in England for anything like the rates at which we can secure it here," said Major Cronyn. "This is largely in the interest of the U.S in Canadian securities. The result is that British capital is naturally prevented from coming to this great extent and the fear is felt in Britain that the new alignment of money power in Canada will have a bearing on the future relations of the Empire I heard this referred to in England as a menace."

SASKATCHEWAN OLD AGE PENSION PLAN OPERATIVE

Ottawa Hon Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, signed on behalf of the Dominion Government the agreement with the province of Saskatchewan for old age pensions

The latter had passed corresponding legislation setting up an Old Age Pensions Board, and endorsing the plan of minimum rentals proposed by the province

The agreement was signed on behalf of the province by Hon. T. M. Bayshaw Provincial Minister of Agriculture, under whose jurisdiction the pensions scheme will be operated It is stated that Hon. Mr. Heenan was accompanied by Premier King and a number of Dominion Liberals

The scheme in Saskatchewan provides that persons who have resided in the province for 20 years may receive a pension of $240 per annum after the age of 70 years, the Federal Government agreeing to contribute the province to defray one-half of this amount.

The scheme will be the second province to actually begin old age pensions payments

Manitoba has taken advantage of the Immigrant Act and it is more than likely that payments will begin there some time during the summer.

It is expected that an agreement with the Yukon will be made very soon.

To Speed Mail Delivery

Cunard Steamship Line May Use Airplanes For This Purpose

Montreal.—To further speed up delivery of mail from the British Isles to Canada, it is understood that the Cunard Line in Liverpool have been considering a scheme whereby their ships in the Lawrence will each carry an aeroplane to be released when the coast of St. Lawrence is reached, the plane to take the mail to Montreal either to Rimouski or to Quebec.

Officials here state they know nothing definite of the scheme yet, but say that is quite feasible, as it is successfully being carried out by ships on the New York service.

At present there is complete air mail service from Rimouski to Toronto, operated by the postal department.

Wins In World Race

Jap Bank Competitor Who Was Held Up By Storms

Tokio.—Toichiro Araki, taking the lead in a 30,000-mile race around the world between him and his fellow countryman, Ryuichi Matsui, by his trip, in 23 days, 16 hours and 36 minutes. The Western hemisphere competitor, who is now on a liner crossing the Pacific ocean, ruined his chance of winning the novel race when the steamer carrying him from England to New York was delayed by fog and storms. A prize of $5,000 will be awarded Araki, while Matsui gets $2000.

JAPANESE FORCES IN CONTROL OF CITY OF TSINAN

Shanghai.—Japanese soldiers had cleared the last Nationalist forces from Tsinan, capital of Shantung province, and were in complete control of the city for the rapture of which the Southerners had expended the entire force of their drive.

Reports of casualties involved in the expulsion of the Southerners from the city are indefinite, but loss of life is believed to be heavy for both Japanese and Chinese with the possibility that many Tsinan civilians will be numbered among the dead.

Three field batteries which the Japanese had placed in the first "protectionist" zone near the United States consulate started to shell the city at dawn and kept up the fire for most of the population of 400,000 were caught unawares and a heavy slaughter is believed to have resulted

In the course of the fighting the Japanese blew up the southern and western gates of the city wall and what southerners were left in the city departed in a rout, fleeing northward after crossing the Yellow River

Resistance by the Nationalists in the main amounted to no more than sniping, although occasionally small units put up desperate fights to avoid disarming and expulsion from the city by the Japanese.

According to Nationalist reports to the city the Japanese now have control of the railway officials of Tsinan line of the entire Shantung railway, and the south end of the bridge across the Yellow River, and the city of Kolian, located 14 miles east of Tsinan.

DEATH OF ROBERT GRAHAM

In the person of Robert Graham, who passed away Thursday, May 10th after a lengthy illness from cancer, at the home of his daughter. Deceased was 66 years and four months old, and was a highly respected citizen.

The late Mr Graham was born near Orangeville, Ont. When twelve years old, he went to Manitoulin Island and there resided till in his early twenties when he moved to Wallgrd, Ont. from which place he came to Vermilion in 1906 and homesteaded in the Wilkmore district. His wife predeceased him eighteen years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, Mrs J Wallington, and two sons, Earl and Lawrence, all of Wildmere, also two sisters and six brothers: Mrs. Wilkins, William and George of Walford, Thomas of Massey Mrs ti Beals of Toronto, Samuel of Echo Bay, Ont., and John of Vancouver, B. C

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon last under the direction of J Waring, and a large number of friends and neighbors gathered to show their respect for Mr. Graham and sympathy for the family. Some beautiful flowers covered the casket, including a wreath from the family, and sprays from Mrs. Madill Dery and Earle Mrs & Mrs Crothers and family and Mrs Peterson The Rev Mr Beamer took the service and gave a very fitting address from the text "Thou shalt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee." Interment was made in Vermilion cemetery, alongside his wife.

To "stand and a large number of friends attended their sincere sympathy to the bereaved family

CARD OF THANKS

Mr and Mrs Wallington of Wildmere wish to thank the many friends for kindness shown in their recent bereavement, also for floral tributes.

Recital An Outstanding Artistic Performance

Highly Appreciated

The joint recital given in the Orpheum Theatre on May 14th, by pupils of Madame Ruinsky and Wm. B. Hilford was probably the most artistic performance Vermilion has seen for many years. Despite the distressing circumstances of the evening, the programme was an unqualified success and the audience was not only appreciative but enthusiastic.

The reception tendered Madame Ruinsky on her public appearance before a Vermilion audience was very gratifying. Rounds of applause greeted her excellent dancing. If one may choose, the more popular numbers were "The Death of a Swan," "Harlequin and Columbine" with Miss Alba McDonagh, and her last number "Trepak." Madame Ruinsky dances with charm and restraint. Vermilion is fortunate in having such an artist to entertain and give classes.

The pupils of Madame Ruinsky who took part in the programme were Gwen Robinson, Dorothy Weber, Jean Craig, Madelon McLean, Agnes Stapleton and Alba McDonagh. "The Dance of Youth" by Madame Ruinsky with Jean Craig, Agnes Stephens and Madelon McLean was probably the most difficult dance number, but owing to the confusion in the audience it was not greeted as it deserved. All showed real ability and careful training. Gwen Robinson was the smallest performer and accordingly her dance was much enjoyed. Dorothy Weber scored in "The Dagger Dance." Miss Weber danced with abandon and brought her number to a brilliant climax. Alba McDonagh was just delightful as Harlequin. The only thing wrong with her dance with Madame Ruinsky was that it was far too short.

The pupils of W. B. Hilford who took part were Mary Lorena Nelson, Miss Kina Bagley, A. M. West, Miss Eva Newton and Miss Irene McDonagh. Miss McLean was in excellent voice. Of her songs must be mentioned in particular "The Answer"; it will long be remembered with pleasure. A. M. West sang three fine songs. Ever popular with local audiences, Mr. West sustained himself on this occasion.

Miss Irene McDonagh furnished proof that she is a real singer. To say that she charmed with her songs is putting it mildly. From vogue in fine form and after her first few bars were over she went straight ahead and sang most pleasingly. (Congratulations, irene, Vermilion will yet be proud of you.)

The pianists for the evening were Miss Bagley and Miss Newton. Both played difficult and pleasing numbers and did great credit to themselves and their instructor.

The assisting artist on this occasion was Mr. R. Barwick "Bonnie" is easy to listen to at any time, but Monday night he rounded off an excellent programme with some fine violin numbers

Mention must be made of the playing of W. B. Hilford himself. As accompanist can make a programme, and the work done last evening by Mr. Hilford is worthy of his highest praise. The heartiest congratulations are offered him both on the work of his pupils and on his own fine performance.

NEXT MONDAY'S VOTE.

The school by-law to be voted on Monday should meet with the approval of the ratepayers by a large majority and there is little if any doubt but that it will. The present situation of the school district in relation to the accommodation is well understood and a four-room school, as was originally proposed and defeated, would not have been adequate to have met the additional requirements arising from time to time in the near future. A six room school built on economical lines at a minimum of cost and possessing flexibility such as that which it is proposed to erect, will be found to be a paltry worthy of receiving the endorsation of the elector citizens of the Vermilion Centre School District. Bettering the policy of the Board to be in the very best interest of the district, the Standard appeals for its support.

WHY NOT ENFORCE A FEW TRAFFIC REGULATIONS?

Now that the motor car season is in full swing and the town is crowded with cars in the evening, especially Saturday nights, we hear the usual run of complaints of motorists disregarding the ordinary traffic rules. If some road rules are made to be observed; the town coffers were considerably enriched for a short while, but if the present lax infringements are made on the traffic rules. It is true we cannot recall any serious accidents on Vermilion's streets, but prevention is better than cure, as the old proverb goes, and the beginning of the season is the time to make preventative measure.

EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW TO REMAIN THE SAME.

The movement to alter the early closing by-law to include the Wednesday afternoon of May and September unfortunately met with some opposition, resulting in no change being made in the by law. Doing in the dark as to the ins and outs of the affair we won't pass an opinion on it, but what anyone would lose if all were to early-early-especially when the interest of the towns and villages do not have yet to be pointed out to us

SIDEWALKS CAN STAND A LITTLE REPAIRING.

Last week in the dark on the sidewalk in the vicinity of the Bank of Montreal, a lady had the misfortune to trip and fall with the result that her ankle was badly sprained. Fortunately no bones were broken but the accident might have been avoided if the sidewalk had been in a better state of repair. Only a few days ago a horse broke through the sidewalk in front of the Bank of Montreal, and it is only a matter of time when the sidewalk will require extensive repairs. Why not start now?

$25,000 Fire at Demonstration Farm

Horse Barn and Machine Shed at School of Agriculture Burn

VERMILION, May 16.—A tangle of steel rods and tires, charred remains of a tractor and the smouldering embers of some twenty tons of hay are all that remain of the horse barn and machine shed at the school of agriculture following one of the severest fires against which the local fire brigade has been pitted in its history.

The blaze was blown at 8:30 last evening when some 200 people were gathered to listen to a recital at the Columbia theatre. It was first discovered by the scouts of the fire and from the time the theatre crowd arrived the flames were shooting some fifty feet in the air over the roof of the barn. It was a mass of fire before the brigade could get their hose-some three blocks to the nearest tank and then it was impossible to get an effective stream on the fire when the roiled mass to pump against a heavy suction. The machine shed caught as soon as the fire broke out in the barn.

32 Horses Saved

Before the fire had made much headway the boss teamster, one of the instruction of the new dormitory, most of whom are boarding on the premises, threw themselves into the struggle to save the horses, parking on the prong sides of the roads and driving for dear life them there in any need to are quite noticeable even on a crowded Saturday evening, while the poor old steed plodded on unaided by any hand as a joke, some even going so far as to run him down. Waiswright is an outstanding town and the rules of the road rules are made to be observed; the town coffers were considerably enriched for a short while, but if the present lax infringements are made on the traffic rules. It is true we cannot recall any serious accidents on Vermilion's streets, but prevention is better than cure, as the old proverb goes, and the beginning of the season is the time to make preventative measure.

Saskatoon Winter Fair Successful

Exhibits From Western Canada and Ontario Competed For

Premier Honours

"The biggest and best fair yet held," aptly describes the recent Saskatchewan winter fair held at Saskatoon March 20-23. Accommodation for the livestock classes proved entirely inadequate to the needs of the extended lists of entries in the horse and cattle departments, and four additional barns in the city had to be requisitioned to house the surplus stock. Exhibits from the three Western provinces and Ontario, together with recent importations from Great Britain and Europe competed for premier honors in many of the events and the judges were faced by some very strong classes in both horses and cattle sections. S. Wright, Drinkwater, Sask., placed the awards in the cattle classes. Dr. Reid, of Canora, Sask., judged the Purebreds, and Belgrade, and Albert Heim, of Morrick, Quebec, officiated in the Clydesdale section.

Ben Finlayson, of Brandon, Man., and C. M. Reay, of Rincnid, Sask., were prominent winners in the stallion classes, the former with his imported Clydesdales, and the latter with Percherons and Belgians. Female classes were chiefly represented by entries from Lorimer of Conquest, Falconer, of Govan, and Cruise, of Saskatoon. Leslie and Edmonds, Watrous, Morris and Robertson, Zealandia, and Murray and Patterson from Young, were prominent winners in the Clydesdale commercial classes.

The grand champion steer of the show was found in Victor Glencarock owned by John Brown, of Brandon, Man. Earl Howe, also of Pilot Mound, secured first place in the boys' and girls' calf class with Nigger Boy which three calves were of Angus breeding. A Shorthorn Angus steer which occasioned considerable interest was "Wee Willie," exhibited by the University of Saskatchewan This steer while weighing almost 2,000 pounds at 3 years and 9 months of age, was still good enough to win the Saskatchewan breed beef class.

Concluding the fair with a successful sale of fat stock at which the top calf offered by Burt Brown brought 30 cents per pound, the management expressed their keen satisfaction at the splendid progress that has attended this annual show. To the energetic manager, Mr. Sid. W. Johns, and to the President, Mr. A. Wilson, the increasing support of exhibitors generally, is particularly gratifying. New accommodation will have to be secured before another year as the present show building—an old Canadian National roundhouse is to be sold and removed from the premises. A permanent arena is the objective of the management and judging by the magnitude and the success of the fair just held, nothing short of this will adequately serve the need of Northern Saskatchewan's annual winter fair.

Sheep For Manitoba

Plan To Place 100,000 Sheep Annually On Manitoba Farms

A movement is under way for the placing of 100,000 sheep annually on Manitoba farms. These will be sold in groups of fifty to each farmer, somewhat similar to the plan now in operation in North Dakota. At a conference of members of the Sheep Breeder's Association financial representatives and members of the Winnipeg and Brandon boards of trade, J. D. McGregor was appointed temporary chairman of a committee to make further arrangements for the carrying out of the plan.

Used Wrong Metaphor

Lloyd George Credited With Making Only Mistake At The Table

And, speaking of the use of words.

Mr. Lloyd George's undoubted finesse has just been turned against him to an ingenious manner. There was a by-election in the north the other day, "LLG" intervened in the campaign, and the Liberal candidate won. The Liberal leader forthwith declared that the Tory party was "like a polar bear drifting south on an ice berg." And, pleased with his exotic metaphor he went on to declare that the defeated Conservative candidate had been "shanghaied."

Whereupon the defeated Conservatives produced a dictionary in support of his contention that he who is shanghaied is "the victim of a very mean outrage."—London Correspondent, New York Herald.

Name Hotel After Famous Wheat

Hotel Marquis To Be Erected In Lethbridge As a Community Enterprise

The new hotel which is being built in Lethbridge as a community enterprise, to be known as the Hotel Marquis, to commemorate the famous spring wheat of that name. Marquis wheat was originated at the Canadian Government Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, several years ago. Its introduction is regarded as the most important event in Canadian agriculture. About 90 per cent. of the spring wheat grown in Canada and 60 per cent. grown in the United States is of the Marquis variety. Marquis wheat has won more world championships at the International Grain and Hay Show at Chicago than any other variety.

Canadian Tree Species

Red Fife Wheat

Was the Standard Spring Wheat Variety In Western Canada For Years

The first notable variety of wheat to be introduced into Western Canada was one which had been developed more or less fortuitously, by a farmer named David Fife, of Peterborough County, Ontario, after whom the wheat came to be named. This variety, fortunately for Canada, proved to be a wheat of very high milling and baking quality as well as a good yielder. From the year of its introduction into Western Canada (about 1862) until the appearance of the world-famous Marquis some twenty-six years later, Red Fife was the leading, and, in fact, the standard spring wheat variety of Western as well as Eastern Canada. It was this variety which came to be taken as the basis upon which Canadian official and commercial grades of wheat were established. Thus the original grades required that, in each case, that wheat for a certain minimum per cent. of Red Fife present. It is of further interest to note that practically all the leading spring wheat varieties in Canada today are more or less closely related to Red Fife.

While the introduction of the Red Fife variety into Western Canada constituted an epoch-making event, yet this variety possessed certain serious defects. The defects of Red Fife, especially its tardiness in maturing, were quickly recognized by Dr. William Saunders, who became the first Director of the Canadian Government Experimental Farm System. He realized that if these great virgin plains of the Canadian West, just then opening up to extensive exploitation, were ever to attain a position of pre-eminence as a wheat producing country, an earlier maturing variety than Red Fife must be employed.

What Interested Him

Hubby didn't show much interest in the newly arrived baby, and the young wife was distressed. She was overjoyed one night to discover him standing over the baby's cot.

"A penny for your thoughts," she said, tenderly.

Startled, he blurted out: "For the life of me I can't see how anybody can make a cot like that for $4.50.

Col. Lindbergh is said to long for a double to do his talking for him. This is the first hint that the famous young man is contemplating matrimony.

Television in the Home

Should Be Possible Within a Year In Production

The New York Times quotes an unnamed representative of the Radio Corporation of America as predicting that one year ought to see television in the home.

The invention of television, the newspaper says, causes observers in the radio to give credence to the rumors of the acquisition of the Victor Talking Machine Company by the Radio Corporation. The observers and radio engineers say that television and picture radio requires a motor to revolve a disc or cylinder synchronized with similar apparatus at the transmitting end and that it is logical that the phonograph and radio should be one complete instrument.

Methodical As To Tips

New York Waiters Know What To Expect From Regular Customers

New Yorkers become accustomed to leaving the same amount of money as tips when they dine in hotel restaurants. For luncheon some leave a quarter, and for dinner they will leave a half-dollar. Waiters know just what to expect when they see various parties enter the dining rooms and take their favorite tables.

The other day a regular patron of Bretton Hall tearoom fumbled through his change trying to find enough changes to make up 25 cents. The best he could dig up was two dimes, three pennies and a 2-cent stamp. And that's what the waiter found when he cleared away the dishes.

Is Weight Less After Sleep?

Experiment Made By Lawyer Is Not Conclusive Proof

The proposition that the body loses weight during sleep is not in accordance with the views of scientific men. Farmers, when fattening hogs, try to have them sleep about two-thirds of the time. Chicken fatteners keep the fowls in darkened rooms. They plan to have them sleep all the time except for short feeding periods. Experience seems to teach that animals tend to put on weight while sleeping. Then let us see what is the evidence to the contrary.

A lawyer with considerable training as an engineer kept a very careful detailed record of himself for several years, or rather, during the course of several years he kept such records for several periods of several months each. He was equipped with accurate scales. He weighed himself many times a day and entered his weights in the record. He made detailed records of everything he did and everything of importance in his environment. All of this record was plotted on charts. One weighing was just before going to sleep and another was upon waking. Without exception he weighed less after sleeping than he did when he went to bed. Does this prove that sleeping causes loss of weight?

While sleeping nothing went into his body except comparatively dry air. Nothing left his body except expired air and sweat. Some body substance was used up in maintaining body temperature and in carrying on respiration, heart action and other vital processes.

Had this man weighed and analyzed the air he expired, and especially had he determined how much moisture it contained, and had he collected and weighed the perspiration he excreted he would have accounted for all his loss of weight during the sleeping period. In all probability he slept in air that was far too dry. His body, through breath and sweat, had the job of moistening the air of his room. Carrying out that job was responsible for the loss of weight.

This observation opens up a line of thought. Would there have been less weight had this gentleman been sleeping in a greenhouse, where the humidity was constantly over 70?

Starting a Strawberry Plantation

Strawberries Will Thrive On a Great Variety Of Soils

Strawberry plants will not stand being covered with water in early spring or during the late winter, therefore good surface drainage is absolutely necessary. A gentle slope is the best place on which to plant. The strawberry will thrive on a great variety of soils, from a very light sand to heavy clay, but, according to a Dominion Department of Agriculture bulletin on the "Cultivation Of the Strawberry," it is best to select a moderately light friable soil. A soil that does not pack or bake is to be preferred as it is important to get the young runner-plants rooted as early as possible. Land under cultivation should be used for a new strawberry plantation, as land which has been in sod for some time is liable to be infested with white grub. Land infested with couch grass or other persistent weeds should be avoided. A thorough ploughing, disking, harrowing and rolling is necessary before planting. The bulletin, which covers the whole subject of strawberry growing, may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture,

Good Memory Test

We were struck the other day by reading that the President of the Firemen's Federation of France was at a dinner in Paris the other day and offered to give a second dinner to the whole company if even three of the guests could tell him the position of the fire alarm nearest his own home. It was found that not one of them could. How does that apply to our readers? Do they know where the nearest fire alarm is? Also do they know the number to phone to in case of a fire? Try it first on yourself and then on your friends.

Bible Read and Sung

A young woman who seemed to be having her first experience in a bank approached the window of a paying teller and gave him a large check which she wanted to cash.

"How do you wish the money?" the teller inquired.

"Oh" replied the young woman, in some confusion, "I'll just hold out my hand and you can put the money in it."

Honor Heroic "Mounties"

Names Being Given To Stations On Hudson's Bay Railway

A project may be without honor in its own country, but it is different with the hero.

The foundations of Canada's North and West were laid with heroism and Canada does not forget her pioneers. The mounted policemen has always been a figure of romance in Canadian history, and it was a typically Canadian gesture that, when it came to the naming of stations along the Hudson's Bay Railway, two "mounties" who 50 years ago died heroically, should be remembered.

The point which has hitherto been known as mile 178.90 will be known in future as Hoskin, and, further along the line is a place called Wilde.

Corporal C. M. Hoskin was killed in 1897 by the Indian, Almighty Voice, and Sergeant W. B. Wilde was killed by another Indian, Charcoal, some years later. Both men died at their duty, trying to maintain the law, and in honoring them Canada honors itself.

In the revision of station names along the Hudson's Bay Railway, it was found that some of the names given have not been so spectacular but who have worked in their way for the opening of the new country are commemorated. Raweth is named after Ralph Webb, former mayor of Winnipeg, and there is a point bearing the name of General Fetherston president of the On-To-the-Bay Association, both of whom have been unresting in their efforts to bring the North to the sea. Jacan stands for J. A. Campbell, former M.P. for The Pas, and Ilell is named after the pioneer member for Dauphin.

The recent visit of Right Hon. J. C. M. S. Amery, secretary of state for the Dominions, is commemorated at Mile 356, which becomes Amery.

Agricultural Canada

Agriculture Holds Leading Place In Trade Of the Dominion

The importance of Canada as an agricultural country is emphasized in the trade report for 1927, in which agricultural, vegetable and animal products are credited with $711,518,480. Next comes wood and paper valued at $290,704,961. Among the principal items of imports agricultural, vegetable and animal products total $307,510,984 in value, with iron and its products in second place, valued at $240,143,893. Canada's principal foreign trade is done with 20 countries.

Thrift At Table

At the ship's concert on an ocean liner a collection was taken up for the Seaman's Fund. It totalled $460.63, and the chairman, amused at the three odd cents, suggested that perhaps there was a Scotchman on board. "Hoot mon," piped up a voice from the Highlands, "there are three of us!"

VERMILION MINUTES

Regular meeting of the Council of S. D. Malborn Rm. 498 was held in the municipal office, Vermilion, Monday, May 7th, 1928. All the members present with Reeve Scott in the chair.

Minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

Adjutant Jones, of the Salvation Army, addressed the meeting regarding a grant to the rooms hospital maintained by them. It was decided to give them a grant of $250. In return for this the council gets a rate of $50.00 per month for any patients we may have (we have one at the present time) in the old Soths house at Gladeon, otherwise the rate is $60.

Oscar Youngs was appointed weed inspector for the season, duties to commence not later than June 10th, at a remuneration of $5.00 per day for the actual days worked.

The committee appeal to Isaac Wm. Mrs. Clark and Mr. Millgan in connection with the "Clark Road," submitted a written report which was ordered filed. They reported a settlement with Mrs. Clark, but not with Mr. Millgan.

Mr. W. Crooks, a representative from the Meanville Village Council, addressed the council with a view to getting a grant to help beautify the cemetery grounds. The council was not disposed to give a grant but was willing to appoint a representative to meet with representatives from the villages and Buffalo Coulee to discuss a drive for voluntary subscriptions.

A delegation from Vermilion Agricultural Society was present to solicit aid for a grant to their association. Council was divided on the question and nothing was done.

Mr. R. A. Mercer wrote, calling the attention of council to a bad wash out between sections 18 and 4-51-4-4. As both divisions three and four divisions responsibility for this road, and as no settlement could be arrived at between them, the Reeve was instructed to have the washout repaired and the expense charged to general account.

Mr. Ostenderson was given authority to buy a grader from the Richardson Tire and Machinery Company and to trade in his old grader and five wheel scrapers as part pay.

A refund of $4.43 to Chas. Mis, and $5.42 to J. E. Finlay, overpayment of taxes in 1927 was authorized.

As both the June and July meetings come on holidays it was decided to hold the meetings on the following Saturday.

The municipal rate was fixed at 9 mills, Meanville hospital rate at 2½ mills, and Vermilion hospital rate at 2½ mills.

The assessment of the nuisance ground attained in Middleton and owned by the Village of Meanville was ordered struck off the roll.

Owing to the rapid settlement of the vacant land in the north part of the district, the three north divisions feel that they cannot open up new roads responsibility for this year.

Council then adjourned to meet on the second Monday in June.

Science Discovering Secrets Of Leprosy

Caused By Bacteria Says Professor Of Tropical Medicine

Leprosy, the dread disease, which sends its victims into colonies of "The Living Dead," has begun to give its age-old secrets.

New evidence relative to the ancient scourge, tending to show it is caused by a definite bacterium and is not contagious has been gathered by one of the famous "microbe hunters" of the University of California.

He is Dr. E. L. Walker, professor of tropical medicine in the University Medical School, Berkeley, Cal., who recently returned from a 14 months' stay in Honolulu. While there he carried on extensive investigations of the cause of leprosy at the Molokai Receiving Hospital.

Although Dr Walker made it clear his findings are only tentative, he predicted that if they are sustained by further research they will result in changes of great scientific, economic and governmental importance

Here are the two conclusions announced as the result of his studies in Honolulu

1 Leprosy is caused by a bacterium related to the fungus actinomyces, a plant-like growth of cattle, and to acne, which thrives on an living organism except that of man. It is found in the soil virtually everywhere in Hawaii.

2 These bacteria enter the body through wounds about the feet, and are not transmitted by the leper, despite the cry of "unclean," which has driven him as an outcast from society

Small Town Papers

BY FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

Reprinted by special permission from Stockbridge Printing Post Card Co., Inc., by the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia.

Awards like those, and the others which the association gives annually, have a great deal to stimulate the country editors to produce better papers. The Brookings Register, in South Dakota, for example, holds the record for prizes. The best front page That puts the Eastern publishers on their mettle. But it was the Eastern paper, the Graphic, of Newton, Massachusetts, which won the prize in the association's advertising contest, while the News, of Monticello, Minnesota, took first place in an example of good newspaper practice.

These awards are powerful influences for the betterment of the country press, the others agreed, but two or three spoke contemptuously of the schools of journalism as perhaps the most potent factor of all in the progress of the small-town weeklies

You didn't think that all this doctrine of truth and service in the press united every year from the schools of journalism, did you?" asked Herbert Mills, as I expressed my surprise. "I dare say that how many there are somewhere between 10 and 20 per cent. Everywhere, I believe, which have full-fledged journalism courses. The head of the Missouri School of journalism, Dean Walter Williams, is the father of the idea that there were more jobs than there are graduates to fill them, and I believe he's right. And the other big schools are concentrating on the production of men and women who will go into the daily press. Indiana University, for example, has almost put attention to daily journalism, but when a boy who has been graduated he or she can always find a job on the country paper. There's room for some perfumes in our own time, when the old-time editor of a big city daily or city graduate will be as rare a bird as the oldtime tramp printer is today

That turned the talk to the modern country press, the descendant of the real journalism, she drifted from them in the days when the big dailies of the old-fashioned country edited. The country paper was unmistakably a machinist as well as an operator and editor. It did job printing as well—has taken his place, they told me, and it is the rare thing to "make" time are the whisky bottle and the corn-cob pipe, the rubaid jaw and the editorial feet on the desk inside the old-time country newspaper shop are picturesque and picturesque It is a ladylike boudoir nowadays by comparison. It was a Nebraska linotype operator on the Cook Courier, who was crowned Queen of the Corn on Cass County Fair last fall! No trumpy printer ever achieved anything like that.

"Gentlemen," I said when we had got that far, "you have a reputation for being my heart by degrees ever since we formed it. You have knocked my flaming illusions into a cocked hat. You have taken my romance out to the hellion, as it were You have turned what I used to believe a perilous adventure into a sordid, commercial, efficient, prosperous money-making business. I can survive it's no use trying to. I have survived the discovery that Santa Claus and the type loose alike are myths. But do tell me that there is something link with the romantic memories of rural journalism as I know it in my youth. Do not, I beg of you, do not tell me that the patent inside is dead!"

My appeal moved them, though not precisely to tears. They hastened to assure me that the patent inside still lives. The patent inside and its younger brother, the boiler plate of history memory, are still stand-bys in country newspaper shops. Four or five thousand small-town weeklies still buy their paper stock printed on one side with a variety of news-features, pictures, fiction and the like, ready-printed on the back for the printer—but with this main difference from the old days: That the editor has the privilege of selecting just those features he fancies in the ready-print service instead of taking what the boiler-plate dispenser who used to deal out their money C.O.D. at the point of a gun chose to send him, advertisements and all. In the main, the same sort of material is boiler-plate and ready-print nowadays as in the old days, consisting of boiler-plate features comics, cartoons, fashion and sport services, among others, but also well-designed advertising readings and boosters to enable the country newspaper to make a profitable chance as attractive advertising display as the big city daily does in the city papers

Both ready-service services make it easier than ever for the ambitious young man to start a profitable country paper on small capital Etc. did for myself when I started my liberal the country editor to be a master of all trades and the jack of all trades. The ready-print papers are still started on shoestrings, to start a printing plant at all, getting the people to subscribe and advertise in small towns If the editor-publisher is really a live wire with his job and is willing to hustle hard for local news and advertising, he has a better chance than ever to establish himself in a prosperous business, Bert Mills and the rest assured me. And the established country weekly today is as valuable and as profitable that it Franklin Simons would turn over to his grave if he could hear how things have changed.

I guess that novelist is crazy like this route from Fort Churchill.

A SERVICE CHARGE ON SMALL ACCOUNTS

Is Predicted By Toronto Man But Bank Manager Thinks Not

Are Canadian banks likely to follow the example of those in the United States, and levy a service charge on small accounts? Is the Financial Post, A. D. Watts, a Toronto and New York stock broker, was reported as saying to a group of the younger financial men of Toronto, that this would come about.

The question was in turn propounded to C. L. Hodgkins, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada's Bracondale branch, and president of the Brantford Board of trade.

"I am not in accord with Mr. Watts when he predicts that Canadian banks should and will charge a service fee for operating a savings bank account, for two reasons:

1. "That the Canadian banks are performing a most valuable service, encouraging thrift among the small and with this in view the banks will open an account for a small amount, open a savings bank account with $1 and will afterwards accept deposits for any amount the customer may wish to deposit.

2. "While it is true that in some cases savings banks accounts are operating at a loss, this is the exception, as when a savings bank department has been secured, in addition to—as a bank and in many cases the original deposit has grown, in a few years to a substantial balance and a profitable account and valuable connection for the bank.

"The loss on small savings bank accounts would discourage many from acquiring the savings habit and with it the many profitable accounts would be avoided by charging a service fee, the small increase in profits from this source would be more than counterbalanced by the increase in profit that accrue from the prosperity engendered by thrift and the saving acquired throughout the whole Dominion."

New Industry In Winnipeg

One of the largest United States manufacturers of paper bags used in the cement industry is likely to locate in Winnipeg shortly, according to information received by the Industrial Development Board. Officials of the company have been in Winnipeg recently consulting with the Board as to the suitability of the location, and there is strong likelihood of their approving it.

To Improve Cattle Industry

Some 23 municipalities in Saskatchewan are in process of eliminating all grade sires and establishing themselves as pure-bred sire areas under the Sire Purchase Act, according to what has been estimated that if all the calves in Saskatchewan were sired by pure-bred bulls it would add $15,-000,000 to the value of the cattle in the province.

JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

Golden Text: "He taught them as one having authority"—Matthew 7, 29.

Lesson: Mark 12 13-44.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119.1-8.

Explanations and Comments

The Captious Question In Regard To Tribute, verses 13-17. Two Herodians were a small political party who were partisans of Herod, for of the Pharisees sympathized with Herod's rule. Matthew 22 16 Pharisees hated them as evil men, but they and the Sadducees, yet they united with these political enemies of Jesus to ensnare Jesus The men whom they sent to Jesus professed honesty in saying that the question they were about to propound was a dangerous one to answer, but they knew that He was not afraid of consequences. "Those regardest not the person of any, but of a truth teachest the way of God," they said. Thus would they flatter Him and put Him off His guard.

Then they asked their question, "Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar, or not?" "The 'tribute,' literally 'census-money'—that is, that which was paid by every Jew. It was imposition-ly followed a careful taking of the census, in which every man was numbered by his family, his property, and his income, and was required to pay a certain sum into the Roman treasury. It was the constant reminder of the fact that they were subjects of the Roman government. And, indeed, two days later they falsely said to Pilate, "We found this man perverting our nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Caesar." Luke 23.2.

Shall we give, or shall we not give? They put the question plainly. Here was their alternative: pay tribute to a foreign power under oppressive worship prevailed, or refuse to pay and remain loyal to God. They thought that whatever answer Jesus made, it would condemn Him. Jesus denied there was an alternative; both were aspects of one duty. He would not teach contempt of the authority of government and disobedience to law. He would be subject loyally to God.

Jesus well knew their evil intent. His quick eye thoroughly to the purpose of their flattering words. "Why make ye trial of Me?" He asked. He recalled for a coin, a denarius on which was graven the image and name of Caesar. The coin represented Rome's services to the people prevailing as well as Rome's power and authority. "Whose is this image and superscription?" He asked. "Caesar's," they answered, and when they gave it to Him He said, Whose miserable subscription is this?")

"Caesar's," they replied. Then said Jesus, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." Whatever belongs to Caesar, the coin comes from Caesar, and they should be willing to return it. They were accepting the services of Caesar's government, and these services they must render an equivalent.

Most Important Food

Irish Free Stalls Imports Bulk Of Wheat and Flour Brought For Home Consumption

Of the population of the Irish Free State, 53 per cent. is engaged in agricultural occupations. But less than 13 per cent. of the land is cultivated, and the country is annually paying Of Ireland's agricultural workers 74 per cent. are the farmers and their families, and only 13 per cent. are permanent wage earners. The Free State imports most of its food. The average annual import of wheat and flour is 522,763 tons. The country itself produces only 50,000 tons of wheat, on an average, in a year.

Criticizes Medical Inspection System

Hon. George Langley Says Reading Canadian Doctors To Britain Creates Antagonism

Canada was confronted with a blockade of British immigration to the Dominion as a consequence of the new medical inspection system, "this opinion was expressed by Hon. George Langley, Former Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, at the immigration inquiry in Ottawa.

"The sending of Canadian doctors into Great Britain has completely antagonized the medical men of the Old Country and has created an atmosphere of antagonism toward in-migration to Canada. It is all over the country from one end to the other," continued Mr. Langley, it was only through the courage of the Irish that the blockade could be removed as the displacement of British doctors did not meet with British public approval.

"You have to clear away this antagonism in the British Isles before the scared. Roster doctors should be used in connection with Canadian doctors in medical examinations at British ports.

Mr. Langley recounted his experience as a member for years of the Canadian farmers' tour of the British Isles. He was somewhat critical of the Irish family settlement scheme. The feeling in the Old Country, Mr. Langley stated, was that the scheme retarded the stimulating of the more desirable type of British immigrants such as the young single men.

Passage rates are too high, Mr. Langley commented. Efforts toward a reduction in ocean passage should be made by the government.

"That has been tried," interjected Hon. Robert Forke.

Mr. Langley visualized a prosperous situation in Canadian agriculture.

"The farming prospect of Canada has not been so good for 20 years as it is today," he remarked.

"How Much Water Should Baby Get?"

A Famous Authority's Rule

By Ruth Brinton

Baby specialists agree nowadays that during the first six months, between meals, he must take a half pint per pound of body weight daily. As eight pounds baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is ten ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after nursing for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle fed one Then make up say 3 ounces less.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, fretful, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say Castoria is an effective. It is purely vegetable The recipe is on the wrapper and millions of mothers have depended on it to cure thirty years of over increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should With each purchase you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Why Gum-Dipping Increases Tire Life

A tire in use is being constantly bent backwards and forwards by road action. Such movement generates friction and heat that has a deteriorating effect unless the tire is built to withstand it.

In the carcase of a Gum-Dipped tire there is less friction to generate heat between cords. Dipping puts a coating of new live rubber around each separate cord that keeps it from rubbing against the cords that lie next to it. It stays cooler and therefore lasts longer.

Your local Firestone Dealer will gladly advise you on your tire problems. See him today.

CHAPTER XXIV.

It was at Port Simpson, in November, that Mr. Grew met, that Jack Dorse heard of the war. They had floated down the Nekaneet River on a moose-skin barge to the Lake, and down the Lilard to the MacKenzie on a spruce scow, arriving in Fort Simpson one raw November day when a fierce wind from the North gave warning of the freeze-up. They had brought with them, besides Mr. Grew, George, the half-breed guide, had got with his trap-lines, and from the axle of these they had sold enough furs to buy supplies for the home journey.

Their summer had been full of adventure. They had seen the leaves come on the trees, the flowers bud, bloom and fade, the leaves fall, and now the ice was forming in shallows, driven by the cold winds; but with their bags full of gold quartz to show what large had found, and with their hoop of dust carried in channels bags and glass phials, they were elated and exultant.

Jack, with all the eagerness of the amateur, had been full of enthusiasm going in, and in the washing of gold from the sand of the river he had revelled in it. Joyed endless delight. To see the glint of yellow gold in the black sands at the bottom of the pan was a thrilling action. Keith had complimented him on his success in panning.

"She's a little beauty all the time" Keith had said, "no we are gettin' closer to the deposits." He had a map of the country showing the exact spot where the claims would be staked. "You'll have some nuggets to bring home to that wife of yours, Jack," that will make her eyes pop out of her head!

It was in September they reached the place and Keith announced the object of their search achieved. They staked their claims, and found some rich pieces of quartz to bring back with their. Keith was exultant and even more than Jack, for he had grew gradually with the prospect of riches. He was going to have three cars and a colored driver in a gray uniform!

Keith had the plan for it quite all arranged He thought of nothing else. Fusion would be placed drawing a diagram to show the angle at which they would run down the cliffs at Peace River. He had no concern ing thought in his mind now, and only one and that was to get to Keith's home. He was as homesick as Helmi He went at once to the telegraph office and sent her a wire Mrs. Jack Dorse, Eagle Mines Bark Lake, expect me in a week Love, Jack

Peace River was alive with excitement Homesteaders walked the streets waiting for the train to take them to Edmonton There was some delay, owing to trouble on the Jasper Hill

Jack Keith and George got a room at "The Peace" and soon had the prime of travel washed away, and went to the dining-room for supper It was pretty full and to keep such a small cow as that."

Teeth and Health

Issued By The Canadian Dental Association In Co-operation With The Provincial Dental Societies

CHILDHOOD DISEASES AFFECT TEETH

It occasionally happens that teeth grow fairly in shape or with the enamel pitted and stained, and you wonder what has caused it.

Now a very probable source of this trouble is a general disturbance of health during childhood. Some serious illness, such as scarlet fever, measles or whooping cough, or even a severe digestive disorder, may so upset the whole system that the enamel organs are not forming as they should. Fortunately this disturbance is so rare that it is only the exception to the rule. Most children suffer at least from one of these diseases, and the fact that their teeth are not affected proves that the enamel organs are not easily upset.

But there are two general diseases that do particularly affect teeth although they are not common. They are goitre and cretinism.

In goitre the thyroid gland, which is situated in the front part of the neck, is enlarged. In cretinism the thyroid gland is not developed at all. In both cases there is a serious disturbance of the whole system, and the teeth are affected.

Fortunately these diseases are rare. Most children escape them entirely. But the fact that they affect teeth proves that the enamel organs are extremely sensitive to any disturbance of health. Therefore, if your child's teeth are pitted or stained, you may be sure that the trouble was caused by some disturbance of health during childhood.

NEWEST MOTOR VEHICLE

Motorized Baby Carriage Now Being Used In London

The modern world has become notorious for the ideas it contributes to industries. Almost everything in the household is now operated by motors serving as vacuum cleaners, washing machines, dish-washing machines, sweepers operated on the vacuum principle, motor-cooling utensils of all kinds, from toasters to coffee percolators, electric fret-saws, and electric drills, to the almost countless assortment of other things, all mechanical, operated either by steam or electricity.

But the motorization has affected even the toys of childhood. There are now electric trains, motor cars, and even motor scooters, on the floors of toy emporiums. Now in London, Tiny motorcycles for children were shown. The first was a miniature of Rolls-Royce. Boys baby carriages, costing a thousand dollars, and in some special cases, even more, were shown. Miniature models are splendid specimens, in miniature, of the carriage-maker's art, with a six-cylinder motor attachment in front. They are already in use, and it is not an uncommon sight in the London fashionable baby carriage parade to see these baby carriages with their gaily uniformed nurse girls driving babies in the motorized carriages. The speed limit to the carriages is automatically limited to five miles an hour, and the average speed is three miles an hour.

Nurse girls are required to pass a test before they are given licenses to drive the motorized baby carriages. Special traffic regulations will undoubtedly have to be passed, governing the speed and right-of-way regulations as applied to such conveyances, and undoubtedly filling stations to supply petrol and oil for the "pramobiles" will make their appearance in the malls and parks to cater to the new type of vehicle.

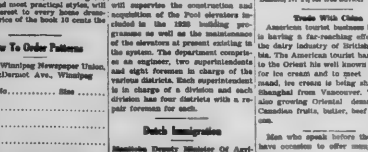
NEW WHITE STAR LINER LAURENTIC



The New White Star liner "Laurentic," 18,000 tons, completed late in 1927, especially for the St. Lawrence route, which arrived in Montreal on May 8, on her maiden voyage to St. Lawrence ports. With the White Star liner "Albertic" she shares the honor of being the largest cabin liner ever to come up the St. Lawrence to Montreal.

Canadian Game Animals For New Zealand

Pair Of Rocky Mountain Sheep and Pair Of Beaver Shipped To Auckland

One of the happy results of the wild life conservation policy carried out in our national parks by the Department of the Interior is that Canada is now in a position to assist conservationists of other lands. At various times in recent years donations of wild animals have been shipped to points in the United States and kindred lands.

Now comes a pair of beaver and one pair of Rocky Mountain sheep were shipped from Vancouver to the city of Auckland, New Zealand. The beaver were taken in Jasper national park, while the sheep are from the rapidly increasing wild herd in Rocky Mountains National Park.

Every precaution was taken to see that the animals reached their destination in good condition, and on arrival at Auckland they were placed in the Zoological Gardens of that city.

Asking For Federal Grant

Manitoba Applying For $300,000 Standing To Credit of Province

Application will be made by the Manitoba government for $300,000 which is approximately the amount Manitoba at the credit of the province in connection with the grants made by the Dominion government to the provinces also years ago for technical instruction, which, the hon. R. A. Hoey, minister of education, Manitoba, has announced.

Because of the industrial depression that prevailed at the time the grant was first made Manitoba was not able to take full advantage of it. Consequently there accumulated a large sum which, Mr. Hoey added, and the need for technical instruction, with the industrial expansion now occurring now, was more apparent than ever.

Saskatchewan Wheat Pool Will Supervise Building Of Elevators

A new Construction Department has recently been organized by Saskatchewan Pool Elevators Limited, which will supervise the construction, lease and acquisition of the Pool elevators included in the 1928 building programme as well as the maintenance of the elevators at present existing in the system. The department comprises an engineer, two superintendents and eight foremen in charge of the various districts. Each superintendent is in charge of a division and each division has four districts with a repair foreman for each.

Dutch Immigration

Manitoba Deputy Minister Of Agriculture Going To Holland On Mission

J. H. Evans, deputy minister of agriculture in the Manitoba Government, is leaving for Holland at the invitation of a Dutch emigration organization to address a meeting of farmers' tenant committees in Manitoba and Western Canada generally.

With L. A. Gibson, head of the dairy branch of the provincial department of agriculture, Mr. Evans will also represent Manitoba at the world's dairy congress to be held in London around the end of June.

THE WICKED HUSBANDMEN

Golden Text: "Inherit knoweth the way of the righteous: But the way of the wicked shall perish."—Psalm 1.6.

Lesson: Mark 12:1-12; 16:1-7.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 1.

Explanations and Comments

The Parable Of the Wicked Husbandmen, verses 1-8. "Is this the parable which Jesus spake to the Pharisees. A man planted a vineyard and provided it with all things necessary for the making of wine, protected it with a hedge, a wine vat, tower and dug a pit for the winepress. Recall the question of the prophet in Isaiah's "Song of the vineyard": "What could have been done more?" This parable was well known to the enemies of Jesus, and when Jesus began in this way they undoubtedly recalled it and its direct condemnation of the leaders of the people of Israel. They did not know that Jesus was about to utter a condemnation of themselves.

Then the lord of the vineyard let it to husbandmen that went away. (Possibly it may be subsidiary to explain to pupils that the husbandmen were the farmers. One pupil when asked the meaning of the word said they "had husbands.") Recall that in the season of fruits came round he sent one servant after another to receive what was due to him, but the husbandmen beat one, healed another, killed a third; in like manner they treated all the servants who were he sent. "Which of the prophets did not persecute Jehovah's messengers?" Raphael cried to the mob which soon stoned him; "and they killed Zimri that showed before of the coming of the Righteous One." Jesus treats the whole long series of violent outrages as the acts of the same husbandmen. The climax of cruelty was now at hand. Jesus, though all its particles are different, and like Pharisees and scribes were the living embodiment of the spirit which animated the past. Then Alexander Maclaren.

"The terrible moments of evil is that it never tends to reproduce itself in aggravated forms. Think of the dominance of habit; the searing of conscience, so that we become able to do things that we could not do before; from at an earlier stage Remember how logically Saul's sin led to that of Rabboni. Joyce baby carriages, costing a thousand dollars, and in some special cases, even more, were shown. Miniature models are splendid specimens, in miniature, of the carriage-maker's art, with a six-cylinder motor attachment in front. They are already in use, and it is not an uncommon sight in the London fashionable baby carriage parade to see these baby carriages with their gaily uniformed nurse girls driving babies in the motorized carriages. The speed limit to the carriages is automatically limited to five miles an hour, and the average speed is three miles an hour.

Nurse girls are required to pass a test before they are given licenses to drive the motorized baby carriages. Special traffic regulations will undoubtedly have to be passed, governing the speed and right-of-way regulations as applied to such conveyances, and undoubtedly filling stations to supply petrol and oil for the "pramobiles" will make their appearance in the malls and parks to cater to the new type of vehicle.

New Chemical Discovery

Purchased a Powerful Solvent Made From Cod Skills

Sit down at the breakfast table, and you may realize that once the ravishes and look at your watch to see if you can walk to the 8.15.

Then you may have heard the pushed the breakfast and helped make the watch and the magazine? make the cod-liver tablets you take? Perhaps, cods may have helped to make your motor car tires, to color your hose and to keep healthy a wounded tree. And that's only a part. What's the answer? Fortuna has a picturesque story. It is a powerful and effective solvent, which can be made from many waste products left by the fish. Corn cobs are an excellent source; but, unfortunately, corn cobs are scattered over many miles of farm land. Cod livers could be used, but

CHANGES IN UNIVERSITY STAFF ANNOUNCED

A. S. Ottewell, who for the past several years had been head of the department of extension, University of Alberta, has been appointed registrar of the University, succeeding the late C. E. Race. Mr. Ottewell's place as director of extension work will be taken by E. A. Corbett who has been connected for some time with the work of this branch.

NEW LOCOMOTIVES ON NORTH LINE LINES

Four new locomotives, the purchase of which was announced by the Alberta Government some time ago, have been received from the Canadian Locomotive Works at Kingston. They have now been placed in regular freight service on the Government owned lines in the northern part of the Province.

A social evening will be held in the Island Hill school on Wednesday, May 30th at 8 p. m. In order to enable friends to meet the Rev. and Mrs. Bell, under whom they have on a short visit and will not have time to make so many personal calls. The Island Hill school was chosen as the most central point between the parishes, being situated about midway between the high way and Wellsidely, but one-half mile west of the market road.

FOOT SEVERED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

While one foot practically severed as a result of being run over by an auto on Tuesday night in the Dewdney district, John Fita, 78, was admitted to the Vermilion hospital late Tuesday. The injured foot was amputated, and the old man is progressing as well as can be expected, though the condition, due to the shock, is considered serious.

Sixteen Years Ago Today

Interesting Items gleaned from the Files of The Vermilion Standard 12th May, 1912.

M. A. Brimacombe intends to erect a telephone exchange building just north of Kibble-Nichol's store. It will be constructed of cement blocks. The new addition to the Alberta Hotel is being commenced this week.

The last issue of the Alberta Gazette contains the appointment of Herbert Percy Lang of Vermilion, as a notary Public

Some idea of the number of retail land now on the market every year in the country surrounding Vermilion, can be formed when it is stated that 19 companies sent in notices of land which were turned out at The Standard office this spring. Clydes and Percherons are in the lead with Shire, Coach and Hackneys following.

Mrs. J. Sinclair of Dundalk, Ontario is visiting her brothers, I. Whitney of town and D. B. of Claymore.

There was a good shower of rain on Wednesday afternoon. North, heavy rains have fallen throughout the week and all grain is reported in excellent shape.

The first officers elected of the 10,000 Club are: Honorary President, Dr. G. H. Ryan, 1st Vice-Pres., W. E. Mackenzie; 2nd Vice-Pres., Roy Wood; Secy-Treas., Cedric A. Morris, Executive Committee—M. A. Brimacombe, F. C. Long and H. N. Symons.

A very sad burning fatality occurred on the farm of George Rutherford, a few miles east of Vermilion on Monday about 3 p.m., when his wife was so severely burned that death resulted.

With this number The Standard completes three years of publication in Vermilion.

Vermilion's Big Day June 4th.

Beginning at 10 a.m. with a monster Calithumpian parade and continuing on through a series of athletic events, a baseball tournament, senior and junior, girls' and boys' basketball tournaments, to wind up at night with a dance in the Community Club hall will be the order of the celebration on Vermilion Sports' Day, Monday, 4th of June.

The Calithumpian parade, the morning feature, lines up at 10 a.m. sharp. Always a favorite, it will probably attract its full this year, having eleven classes and $106.00 in prizes.

The baseball tournament, which will continue all day, has an increased purse of $226.00, divided into three prizes. Several teams along the line have already signified their intentions of entering, while the towns to the north of us will also be represented. All entries are to be in by June 1st as the draws are to be made at noon on Saturday, June 2nd.

Then we have the junior baseball event, with prizes of $10 and $5 for boys 15 years and under.

The other big open events of the day are the girls' and boys' basketball series, with the age limits of 20 years. The prizes in each in the girls' case amount to $30.00, but the match basketball and other challenge cup go to the winning team. The boys' prizes in this sport amount to $16.00.

All entries for these events are to be made under the same rulings as for senior baseball entries.

The big attraction on the athletic program will probably be the North-town three-mile road race, but a long list of open and junior events will amply uphold the town's reputation as holding the best all-round sports day of the season.

Admission to the grounds will be: Adults 50c, children over 11 years 25 cents, rare 25c.

SEVEN-DAY CANDLE WAS BURNED OUT

Auditors Are Now Working on Disposition of Model Bungalow

They're off!

What? Why, those who are seeking the winner of the model bungalow. Thousands of tickets must not take long for their primary duty is to find out the name of the lucky holder of the winning ticket.

Just before, shrewn o'clock was about to strike on Tuesday night, the candle that has been burning in the window of Mike's home stood since five o'clock Saturday evening, May 12, flickered and then burnt out. The official time the covered was 7 minutes 24 seconds in seven o'clock, making the time that it took the candle to burn out as 16 days, 5 hours, 52 minutes and 24 seconds.

Checking of the estimates is now being carried on as rapidly as possible but owing to the large number to be examined, it may be a day or more before the winner will be known.—Edmonton Journal.

ANNUAL AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS, 1928

OTTAWA, May 16.—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has made the following announcements of the collection and publication of the annual agricultural statistics of Canada for the year 1928. These statistics will be based upon returns to be collected next June from individual farmers upon cards recently forwarded to them through the teachers and children of the rural schools. The schedule is a very simple one, calling only for the Areas sown to field crops and the numbers of farm animals alive on the farm in mid-June. The resulting estimates of total areas sown are based the preliminary, provisional and final estimates of yield, which are of supreme importance in connection with the movement, financing, distribution, and sale of the principal cereals, so penalty at wheat of which Canada is now the world's leading exporter.

The present plan for the collection of these statistics have been followed annually since 1917, and the estimates based thereon have come to be substantially relied upon by all interested in the production and distribution of Canadian grain.

Accurate statistics are indispensable for a proper appreciation of the statistical progress, and in order to ensure that these statistics may be as accurate as possible it is earnestly hoped that farmers throughout the Dominion will fall in rather the small service required by filling up and returning the schedules.

It may fairer should not receive the cardboard schedule by the middle of June he should apply for same either to the school teacher of the nearest local rural school, or to his provincial Department of Agriculture; or to the Dominion Statistician at Ottawa. The aim is to obtain a completed schedule from every farmer, as the more men who make returns, the more trustworthy will be the resulting estimates.

April shows a gain of $17,000 over those of the corresponding month in

Then he exalted war and military life. It developed the best in a man, and at this the Major beat his breast, directing his audience to that storehouse of accumulated virtues. Then he appealed to the young men to "get into the game." He painted the glory of it, the freedom of it; the army was the place where a man was a man. The nation's hero was the warrior—militarydom was the place in the world, especially with women. There was truth in the old song put-

"If a lad a lass would marry
He must learn a gun to carry."

Then in a lighter vein the gallant Major hinted at the charms of the French girls and how they admired the Canadians. His manner indicated that but for the presence of the bodies he could tell more.

While he was speaking, Pte. Dewey's handsome face never still, nor did his lips cease from trembling. The Major then called for recruits

"One volunteer," he said, "is better than ten conscripts. Conscription is coming, though—he gloated over this—"we cannot desert our Army now. It must will not fight of their own accord, there are other methods." The Major unconsciously tapped his sword.

Suddenly it became apparent, even to the Major, that the spirit had gone out of the meeting. His audience sat stony-faced and rigid—the fires had gone out—the current was off. There was no response to his call.

The appeal had not gone home to the men of the north, who have the long trail, with its camp-fires and its peace, hence men, who do their duty from an inward sense, but to whom the thought of force brings not fear but rebellion.

The chairman tried to save the situation by calling for a song, but something had gone from the meeting. The people began to straggle out.

As Jack made his way back to the hotel he was deeply disturbed in mind. There was no moon, but the night was bright with stars. Looking up, he saw the North Star, like an old friend, looking as remote, serene and undismayed, though men no more fighting with war and hatred. The Major and his fiery eloquence were easy to turn aside, but Pte. Crean's pale and shaken, quivering with the horror of war walked beside him in spirit

The hotel that night seemed with jangling noise, shrill voices, snatches of song, bursts of harsh laughter. The Major was a prince of story-tellers. "Say, boys," did you hear this one? One of the boys who had been on leave . . . "Years of laughter followed, then more beer. "Too much hard liquor is bad," laughed the Major, "but too much beer is just right. No danger of being pinched for being sober—we have both the proprietor and the policeman. Now, listen to this. There was a French girl . . ."

At one o'clock the party broke up. The Major had secured six names. He fancied the men looked up to his Private Crean go back to the City. The kid was all right, but he lacked "pep." That was a job for a real leader, and after all, the best little recruiter apart from himself, if it ever could be considered himself, was the amber-colored bottle. It gave just the proper warmth and glow.

Jack made his way around by way Edmonton to Eagle Mines, arriving there on the first day of February. There had been no mail in, and he stepped off the train with a strangely beating heart. Helmi would be there, surely, but she was always almost late. Not a person whom he knew did he see as he hurried across the street and ran to the post office.

The door was not locked, and he went in. A strange scene met his eyes—dirty dishes in the sink, the remains of a slovenly meal; ashes from cigars on the plates; the bed sheeting; that it had been used for the coffee pot was on the stove. The floor had been trampled by muddy feet and past where he stood there were soiled and forgotten pipe was on the window-sill. The air was heavy with tobacco smoke and the stale fumes of beer.

Jack's heart was heavy with apprehension. He went up to the left by the ladder on the wall. The bed, too, had been used too, and a man's coat was thrown across it. There it was the house he had inherited. Helmi! What did it mean? He would know what it meant, he would go over to the boarding house.

Mrs. McMann, a few minutes later, related the interview to her friend Mrs. Turner. "Why, bless me, I'm sure she said, 'just when I was putting the potatoes on to boil. Helmi!" he exclaimed almost at me without even lookin' me the time of day. How could I tell him where Helmi was? She's gone, I says, and I don't know where she is—she's been gone over a month." I says, but did she go?" he said. "To Edmonton," I said.

"Why did she go?" he stormed! Didn't I tell her to come to me?" I says, "Where did she say she was going?" "Well, Helmi never confided in me, Mr. Brandon," I said.

"Land! I couldn't tell him who she was! I never seen that couple talk about things I don't know. Some of my people could. The Weekes were thorny that way.

"Mrs. Turner!" he said at a standing at me as if he didn't see me. Mrs. Mann's accident in no name and I'm sure you'll excuse me. Well, Helmi's here. Mrs. Turner says that I know I says, but I'm sure I don't know. I never seen her since you've gone."

I know, says Mrs. Turner, that she's been very lonely since you've gone, I and I were sorry for her. I wanted her to come over and see me, but she wouldn't. She said I'd only remind her of you. I says, I'm sure you're very fond of Helmi, and I says, I'm sure you're very fond of Helmi, and I says, I'm sure you're very fond of Helmi, and

BATHING HOUSES REPAIRED AT THE SWIMMING POOL

Thanks to action by M. Weber, the bathing houses at the swimming hole down at the river have been repaired and a new diving board placed on the bank. Mr. Weber had a load of lumber taken down Tuesday afternoon and with the aid of some hired help and volunteer assistance that happened along, put the buildings placed further back from the edge of the river and the necessary carpentering work carried out, as well as installing a new diving plank, so that everything is now in tip-top shape for bathers. Any one wishing to contribute towards the cost of the material may leave the with Ronnie Barwick. Mr. Weber deserves the gratitude of all who frequent the swimming pool for public-spiritedness and initiative shown in this matter.

Sec.-Treas. Elk Point Municipal Hospital District No. 14

DEWBERRY BUDGET

Saturday, June 2nd, has been set for the annual meeting and clean-up day of Dewberry cemetery, and the trustees hope that all good citizens will turn out and help along the good work.

Most of the wheat is now sown, and fields are beginning to look green again. A shower of rain would not come amiss and would lay the dust. Here's hoping.

Mr. J. E. Curtis of Greenlawn, who was operated on last Friday at Islay hospital is reported to be improving. His many friends in Dewberry and Greenlawn districts hope for his speedy recovery. These old timers deserve our best wishes, and our sympathies are with them in such circumstances.

The new Alberta Pool Elevator is now finished. Contractor Bonell's men leaving taken their departure to Vermilion, to build an elevator at that point. We wish them luck. They are a good bunch of boys who "work while they work and play while they play."

Mr. John Ward of Riverton was admitted to Islay hospital recently with an injured arm, the result of an accident while working his Fordson. It is hoped by his friends that it is not serious, and that he will soon be home again.

Born—At Islay hospital on Friday, 18th to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gardner of Dewberry, a son. Congratulations!

ISLAY ITEMS

Mrs. J. E. Miller returned home on Tuesday from Edmonton and reports that her husband doing splendidly. Mr. Miller went up to Edmonton last week to be examined by X-ray. He did not have to undergo any other operation.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Church met on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. B. Rossbach. The change of day was that many of the mothers wished to attend the debate between Grain Growers on the subject being "Resolved that the Moving Pictures are a hurt to the youth of the country."

Mr. D. H. Lent, teacher of Hindville school, is to preach in Trimbleville school and United Church, Islay on Sunday in the absence of the minister who is attending the United Church Conference at Edmonton.

Gladys Stone is improving slowly at the hospital.

Mrs. Neil McEachern is still suffering intermittently with rheumatism.

Mrs. Waterfield is still very sick at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. McNeely. Mr. Waterfield is home on account of his wife's long illness.

BABY CHICKS IN STRONG DEMAND

Over ten thousand chicks have been distributed during the past spring from the Provincial Government Poultry Plant at Olivet. Officials in charge of the plant report that the demand has been greatly in excess of the supply. Find that many applicants have been referred to other breeders and hatcheries for their requirements. The breeds represented in shipments include White Leghorns, Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes.

Over three thousand chicks are being reared on the farm this spring, and in view of their increasing economic importance a beginning is being made this year with turkeys.

WHEN A CHILD'S LIFE IS AT STAKE

BY WILLIAM ULLMAN

Too often the price of motoring is the life of a small child.

Accidents often are unavoidable, the fault of no one, and due solely to unfortunate circumstances beyond the control of man. The fact that they are unpreventable, however, does not minimize the sorrow that follows in their wake. The hearts they shadow and the lives they shatter call for one sovereign remedy, and that is caution.

The beautiful, sunshiny days of spring and summer are the unwitting heralds of daily traffic tragedies. Thousands of small children who have no safe places for play are forced into the streets. Thoroughfares are not intended to be used as playgrounds, but whether it is right or not the street will continue to be utilized as a playground as long as cities are crowded and play space continues to be inadequate.

If motoring is to continue to be a source of unalloyed pleasure, every motorist must pledge himself to drive an injured car, particularly where children are at play. Driving with care perhaps may mean going more slowly than one desires, but it is what one would want another motorist to do if his own child were to dart before an automobile.

BORN

BORN—At the Vermilion Municipal Hospital on Tuesday, May 22nd, 1928 to Mr. and Mrs. R. Rankin, a daughter.

GENERAL MEETING COUNCIL M. D. VERMILION VALLEY

A general meeting of the Council of Vermilion Valley No. 482 was held in the Municipal Office on Saturday, May 19th at 2 p.m., the Reeve, Norman McInnes being in the chair. The following councillors were in attendance: David Poole (deputy reeve), F. E. Cameron, Arthur Lord, W. Robson and W. R. Bain.

Court of Revision for Wild Land Tax was also held at this meeting. The following appeals were brought before the Appeal Court: All 23-56-6, N.E. 5-56-5, W½ 13-56-5, E½ 13-56-5, N.E. 16-56-5, S.W. 5-56-5, N.E. 5-56-5, and N.E. 21-56-5, N½ 19-56-5, all 21-56-5. The court granted the appeals on the following: W½ 13-56-5, Sec. 21-56-5, all 23-56-5, S.W. and N.E. 21-56-5. The following appeals were dismissed, N½ 19-56-5, S.W. and S.E. 5-56-5, E½ 17-56-5 and N.E. 19-56-5, W½th, the N. E. 19-56-5 being left in abeyance.

Court of appeal being closed, the following minutes were passed: That the old road diversion on the N. W. 14-56-6 be cancelled; that the monthly assessments on the municipal Hospital for April be passed. Grants to the School Fairs of Vermilion and Islay were passed. Mill rates for the Vermilion and Islay municipal hospitals were set, also the mill rates for the 12 schools situate in the Municipal District.

Petition from Islay Board of Trade and the ratepayers of Division 6 was read in connection with a road leading from Islay to Marvarne. Councillor Bain reported that action had been taken.

Application was made by I. Armstrong to purchase or lease or fraction of 23-51-5 lying east of new survey; the Secretary was instructed to draw up lease in connection with same.

A. W. Ebbett waited on the council re the roadway along the track on N.W. 29-56-6 and was instructed to draw up new transfer omitting proposed road.

The meeting then adjourned.

John Selbirk, Secretary-Treasurer.

CONTRACTS LET FOR NORTHERN RAIL EXTENSIONS

Contracts for the northern railway extensions authorized by the Provincial Government from Whitewater to Waterhole and from Wembley to Hythe have been awarded to Henry Enoss, Wilkstead and Brooks. It is announced by the Department of Railways that work on the extension from Whitewater will be proceeded with immediately, action on the Wembley-Hythe link being delayed to enable contest pending the granting of the necessary charter by the Federal Government.

THE GIRL GUIDES

The Second Company of Vermilion Girl Guides held their first "Investiture of Guides" on Saturday, May 19 in the Vermilion rink. Our officers, Mrs. H. N. Stephens (president) and Mrs. A. R. Hope (commissioner) were present to award Tenderfoot Badges to the following girls:

Jean Brennan, Verna Badgero, Jean Bedington, Joy Bell, Mabel Boland, Myrtle Bojcsi, Barbara Cameron, Eva Conklin, Madge Cook, Addie Dumont, Grace Cooper, Lillian Ethier, Mabel Gogal, Doris Gilbert, Mabel Hope, Jessie Law, Betty Law, Jessie Miller, Lillian Miller, Madeline McLeod, Helen Morton, Victoria Dunn, Ethel Temple, Edith Williamson.

These Guides are all prepared to keep the Guide Law They are out to serve others, and to do at least one good turn every day

A number of girls were unavoidably absent and will receive their badges later Margaret Harper, who has passed her Tenderfoot tests, is to be presented with her Badge on her next Birthday. The Bantam Patrol was sorry to have Ernestine Taylor out of the ranks during the Investiture. She is in quarantine with a very painful case of mumps.

The Guides are nearly all in full uniform. When a few more belts have been earned they will breathe more freely. Washing all the family dishes is the light task in this washer.

The Company expects to be free of debt in another two weeks. A complete financial statement from the treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Harper, will be published in the Standard shortly.

A Treasure Hunt by auto along delicious routes with hidden cues as to directions, is planned for Wednesday afternoon, the 13th June.

The hunt will start from the north hill of the Vermilion river, opposite the town, or at some other convenient site to be chosen by the committee before that date, at the hour of 2 p.m. Official starters and judges will be announced later.

Before the race will start, at least 20 cars must be entered. You may make up your own loads as you wish. There is no limit as to the number of persons riding in one car.

Entry fee for each car (not person) is two dollars. The license number and driver must register at Long's Drug Store on or before the 6th day of June; one dollar deposit on registration and one dollar before the Hunt. Don't miss it.

The Treasure will be hidden within a radius of 15 miles from Vermilion. Enter your cars without delay, and make June 13th a really enjoyable half-holiday. If you win you are $20 richer; if you lose, you will at least have enjoyed a good ride and an exciting one.

HORSE SHOE PITCHING TOURNAMENT

A horse-shoe pitching tournament will be one of the features of this year's Edmonton Exhibition, July 16 to 21.

Three competitions will be held for teams of two men each, and one for individual players, and the tournament will start on Tuesday, July 17th, with one of the team competitions, and the commencement of the series. Trophies will be provided for all contests, with miniatures to the winners, also special prizes. Entries close on July 10th.

The competitions will be held under the regulations of the National Horse-Shoe Pitchers' Association, and the championships for Alberta will be decided at this tournament. In addition to the championships, a special prize will be offered to the man making the largest number of points in rings. Games will be played 21 points, final and semi-final 50 points.

Entries are open to all, and it is hoped that every rural district will be represented by a team or the champion of the district. The Edmonton Exhibition Association will be glad to answer inquiries with respect to this contest.

Horse-shoe pitching has revived in interest all over North America, and every town, city and country store reads has its enthusiasts. It is played in tourist camps, vacant city lots, and in village and farms. Eternal Vigilance Is the Price Of Safety

Because of the appalling loss of life through motor car accidents, Governments and municipalities are enacting ever more stringent laws governing the use of highways and the operation of automobiles. Laws regulating the speed of driving, governing the use of headlights, compelling cars to come to a full stop before proceeding to cross railway tracks have been passed, while signalling devices, signs, guard rails at curves, embankments, and other danger spots are erected—all with a view to protecting the public.

For the same reason numerous and rigid regulations are enforced governing the management of factories; mines; operation of railways and ships, laying down conditions under which women and girls may be employed, and prohibiting a hundred and one things which must be done to safeguard workers in all departments of industrial life.

According to figures the correctness of which are vouched for by the Metropol. Safety Conference in session at the San Francisco paper, there were 24,000 deaths in the United States last year through traffic accidents and 23,000 deaths through industrial accidents almost all of which were preventable.

But it will be a surprise to many to learn that accidents occurring in the homes of the United States took an even greater toll of life than did traffic accidents or accidents in industry. Accidents in the home in the United States homes in 1927, numbered 27,000 and according to the report already referred to the bathtub and the stepladder were among the deadliest of agents of domestic life and the two combined contributed a large proportion of these 27,000 home fatalities.

Traffic regulations and industrial safety laws are the business of the public as well as of the individual, hence the interest displayed by all governments and units. Because they are susceptible of public regulation the problem they present and which fills the newspapers today should be easier than that of the household. Of the latter the San Francisco paper says, "it is not possible to put the equivalent of a traffic cop into every home to supervise the hanging of draperies, the slutting of walls and the training of the climbing vines. Nor would it be desirable even were it possible to have a uniformed police official handling careless people in and out of slippery bathtubs. The law cannot direct the turning on and off of gas cocks. It cannot keep matches out of the hands of children. It cannot be the keeper of the family medicine chest. It cannot make itself the custodian of the household arsenal and see that oil-soaked rags are always unheeded. It cannot prevent the starting of fires with kerosene or the use of gasoline near a lighted lamp or a burning fire.

These and a multitude of other vigilances rest solely with the individual. Until the individual realizes the importance of eternal vigilance and exercises caution the lurking dangers of the household will continue to take their toll.

Throughout this great Canadian west not a week passes but the newspapers tell the terrible story of a calamity in some home, resulting in death and maiming for life, the direct result of downright carelessness. A destructive prairie or forest fire rages because someone neglected to put out a camp fire, or dropped a match, or started burning grass or rubbish without taking necessary precautions. An explosion wrecks a home and takes a toll of life because gasoline was left where it should not have been. A child drinks a cup of lye in mistake for water, and dies or is crippled for life. And so on, and on, and on.

And all the laws, and regulations, and prohibitions that all the Parliaments and Legislatures and Municipal Councils in the country may have enacted will not prevent these tragedies. In the forceful slang of the day "it is up to the individual" to exercise caution, to be vigilant. Only so can the daily loss of life through these accidents in the home, in industry, and on the highways of our country be reduced and practically eliminated. Ninety-nine out of every one hundred of such accidents are preventable. It is for the people to realize this. When they do they will exercise a vigilance and caution over it and govern themselves accordingly, sorrow, pain and loss will continue to be a permanent visitor in our midst.

Named After Lindbergh

Baby Aviator's Name

Colonel Lindbergh will have the honor of having an heir to British Columbia and a namesake in the province named after him. Paul Lambert of New York, owns a small piebald pinto pony that Lindbergh flew in from Spokane to Vancouver. Lambert has asked the Geographic Board of British Columbia and Canada to approve of the name Lindbergh for the pony. The board has objected. They claim as private property he can call it what he likes as long as it doesn't interfere with present names.

The Dominion Geographic Board received an application from the Canadian National to approve naming a railway station in Alberta after the famous aviator. The board has given approval.

World's Grain Congress

Will Mark Fiftieth Anniversary Of Coming Of the Railway and Birth Of Prairie Agriculture.

The first world's grain congress scheduled for Regina, in 1932, will mark the 50th anniversary of the arrival of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the birth of prairie agriculture, outside of a comparatively small area settled in Manitoba. In outlining steps preliminary to the summoning of the congress, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, announced: "The proposal to hold a world's grain congress in Canada has been widely discussed and canvassed by a few enthusiasts in the west for the past two or three years. In the meantime, the pronounced success of the world's poultry congress has stimulated and crystallized the proposal to hold congress into possibility and viability."

NEW STRENGTH FOR ALL WEAK GIRLS

Comes From the Rich, Red Blood Made By Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

There must be no guesswork in the treatment of pale, nervous girls and children. If your daughter is languid, has a pale, sallow complexion, is short of breath after slight exertion or on going up stairs, if she has palpitation of the heart, headaches and a tendency to faint, she has anaemia—the medical name for poverty of the blood. Any delay in treatment may lead to serious illness that will be the rest of her life. When the blood is in this condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, coupled with nourishing food, will bring the glow of good health. The new, life-giving blood which comes from a fair supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I did so. It was not very long after she began taking the pills that I could see a change in her looks. She kept on taking the pills for several months, and they brought her back into a strong, healthy girl. Since then, if a tonic has been needed at any time, it has been Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

British-American Friendship

Chas. M. Schwab Says the British Are the Most Hospitable People in the World

In an appeal to abolish the "hands across the sea" sentiment between Great Britain and the United States, Charles M. Schwab said at an English-speaking union luncheon that the two nations are knit together not only sentimentally but actually, and that a large factor in this unity is the steel industries of the two countries. He said that Great Britain was the mother of the steel industry, but that the great British processes, including the Bessemer process, were developed in America.

"I consider the British the sportiest, truest, most sincere people in the world," Mr. Schwab said. "Nobody knows what they have suffered from the great war, and what they are now doing to get back on their feet. I am proud of my British friendship. I have received more honor from Great Britain than from any one country."

"I am not disturbed by the boastful, flamboyant Americans who falsely represent the people of our country. The new, life-giving blood which comes from a fair supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills increases the appetite, stimulates the nerves and brings the glow of health to the face. Don't be satisfied with anything else but the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I did so. It was not very long after she began taking the pills that I could see a change in her looks. She kept on taking the pills for several months, and they brought her back into a strong, healthy girl. Since then, if a tonic has been needed at any time, it has been Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Preparing For Trial Flights

Luxurious British Airship Built For London-New York Trade

From New York to London in 48 hours, and with all the comforts of the most luxurious ocean liners!

This may sound like a dream or Jules Verne but it will be accomplished this year by the R-100, a British airship, built under direction of Commander C. Dennis Burney, M.P.

The Burney ship, of 5,000,000 cubic feet displacement, has progressed so far that it is expected to be ready for trial flights in July.

American capital has become interested in the R-100 and a Detroit group has taken an option on a substantial interest in the Burney Company with a view of establishing a fleet of six 9,000,000 cubic feet airliners for the Detroit-Chicago and for use in London-New York traffic.

Half of these ships will be built in the United States and half in England with the operating company jointly owned by British and American capital.

The R-100 will carry 100 passengers. It will be a luxurious ship. It will be able to make the eastward passage in 45 hours and the trip from London to New York in a little more than 60 hours. The southern route on the westward passage is contemplated for the initial hand winter.

If plans for the trans-Atlantic airship company materialize, the R-100 will be the first of a fleet of such ships, followed by the larger dirigibles with capacities for 160 passengers and 30 tons of cargo.

The R-100 has been furnished, the staterooms are completed and rugs have already been laid in the dining saloon.

Most Unusual Job

Going Through Hotel Waste Paper Baskets To Retrieve Lost Articles

Waste-paper baskets sifting is an unusual job, but one that is highly important in large hotels. Most lost articles are found in waste-paper baskets, and in some hotels there are people who spend most of their working hours going through the vast quantities of papers and cast-off articles placed in waste-paper baskets by guests. Many thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry, valuable papers and such things as theatre tickets, railroad and steamship tickets and pieces of wearing apparel are discovered every month. One of the most expensive anesthysts in the world, owned by a guest who went to bed in a pyjamas, was picked up in a waste-basket rubbish less than a month ago. Recently, too, there were found in a waste-basket in the Ritz Hotel, London, two sums of money, one for £100 and the other for £50.

As a reminder an excellent preparation is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It has saved the lives of countless children.

First Elevator In Angora

Another Western Importation Added To Turkey's Progress

The first elevator has been placed in one of the buildings of Turkey's new capital.

This another red-letter day has been added to the series commemorating the progress of the first new house in the erstwhile village, the first turning of the tap of the new water system, the first puff of heat from the first steam radiator and the first switching on of electricity.

But the elevator, latest importation from the West, does no elevating as yet, for the Minister of Hygiene in whose new headquarters it has been installed has not yet been able to find any one in Angora capable of taking and setting it in motion.

Preserve Water Supply

Forests are nature's preservers of water supply. The forest floor, being porous, retains the maximum amount of rainfall. This physical condition combined with the mechanical obstructions of tree roots, retards the rapidity of runoff. Excess water is released gradually and the equilibrium of stream flow is preserved in this manner the melting of snows in the springtime is delayed by the lower temperature and shade in the forest, so that the danger of floods is lessened.

Landlady: "You have been here three months and have never paid any rent."

Student: "But you said it would be like home here."

Landlady: "Well, I hope it is."

Thrift is a state of mind. A man buys a $900 car as an example when he wants a $9,000 car and can afford the car at all.

Are Aids To Scientists

Rats and Monkeys Contribute To Knowledge Of Dietetics

Rats and monkeys are, in their humble way, contributing much to the knowledge of scientists regarding dietetics, says an article in Tit-Bits.

At the famous Lister Institute in London, is to be found a modern "Pied Piper" in the person of Miss Henderson Smith, who has charge of some 500 rats of all ages and sizes, which occupy a regular nursery.

People come from all parts of the world to see Miss Henderson's charges. They come with shudders of horror, but thought of as many "heroines" in no small a space, but they go away charmed with the little creatures.

You must not imagine that these are ordinary rats. They are nearly all black and white, and some are entirely white with pink eyes. They are tame and friendly, and if they do occasionally bite a little bite is kindly meant.

The rats and ten monkeys near by are doing extremely important work. They are teaching scientists all about the mystery of the all-important vitamins and are contributing daily to the knowledge of dietetics.

Simple and Sure.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is so simple in application and such things as theatre tickets, railroad and steamship tickets and pieces of wearing apparel are discovered every month. One of the most expensive anesthysts in the world, owned by a guest who went to bed in a pyjamas, was picked up in a waste-basket rubbish less than a month ago. Recently, too, there were found in a waste-basket in the Ritz Hotel, London, two sums of money, one for £100 and the other for £50.

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with but not for more than a quarter of an hour to be truly enjoyed that, being handled tickled, roused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in wakefulness, irritability, cross, irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from overstimulation can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, that when you can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it relieves baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, flatulence, diarrhea, constipation and sour stomach and bowels. Sweetens the breath and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

MUCH DEBATE OVER REVISED PRAYER BOOK

London.—Debate on the new revised prayer book probably will not begin in the House of Commons before the end of June, but controversy over the changes is raging.

The prayer book measure passed the first preliminary when the ecclesiastical committee of the House of Commons met on Tuesday, and voted 20 to 3 to allow it to proceed. The legislative committee must now approve it before it is submitted to the House.

The principal contenders in the controversy, so far, are Mr. William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, who opposes the revision, and the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, bishop of London, who supports it.

The bishop precipitated the argument by circularizing London Members of Parliament, urging them to support the measure. The Home Secretary announced that passage of the measure would be far more grave than the rejection of it, in his country than its rejection would be.

Some Conservative Members of Parliament questioned the propriety of the Home Secretary's action in identifying himself so prominently with the opposition since he was a cabinet minister.

The bishop, in his letter, declared the opponents of the measure were trying to drive the Anglo-Catholics out of the Church of England.

"He one," he said, "wants to drive out those who are ultra-Protestant in their doctrine. Cannot the people in your side be generous enough not only to tolerate but to welcome in England, but to make happy in the Church of England those to whose work and devotion we owe so much?"

"Your present policy, if successful, can only lead to the disruption of the Church of England," the bishop declared.

Discuss Exchange Of Lines

Co-operation Between Phone and Telegraph Service Possible In Alberta

Edmonton.—Ways and means for working out an exchange of facilities between the government telephone system and the telegraph companies are at present under consideration and a conference inaugurated with the matter was held between W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways and R. H. Hinzter, Deputy Minister of Telephones.

Mr. Robb in referring the question to this reporter to the head office of the Canadian National Railway Telegraphs said that he thinks a working agreement will result.

Under the proposal plan the wires of the provincial telephone system will be made use of by the telegraph company in certain parts of the province for the transmission of telegraphic messages, while the province will use telegraph pole lines for stringing its wires for other purposes of exchange. A similar arrangement in some parts of the province is already in operation between Edmonton and the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs.

Exports Cut in April

Imports Were Higher and Income Tax Revenue Increased

Ottawa.—Canada's exports in April were lower in volume than a year ago, while imports were higher Revenue from income and excess profits taxes, however, and even the value, thereof, was the government should take necessary action to control the importation of fruits into Canada of salted products of a class or kind produced in Canada, when such products operate to the detriment of the Canadian producers.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) voted with the Conservatives, while the Progressives and U.F.A. voted with the government.

To Study B.C. Systems

Winnipeg, Major C. H. Newcombe, chairman of the provincial superannuation board which will handle the administration of old age pensions in Manitoba, left for Victoria on Tuesday to study methods used by the coast province in handling the pensions system. To date, 1,200 persons have filed applications for pensions in Manitoba, and this number is expected to be doubled shortly.

Cuba. The plane in which Captain George H. Wilkins and Carl H. Ellson flew from Alaska to Spitsbergen, has left Panama aboard a ship for Glasgow. It will eventually be sent to America on a Norwegian liner.

Night Rules Separate Past

British Dominions Could Deal Directly With Washington

Proposal

Washington.—The possibility that the British Dominions may make separate treaties with Washington to outlaw war is being discussed here.

Secretary of State Kellogg, whose proposals for treaties between the great powers to disavow war on an instrument of national policy have been informally approved by Britain, said that he had no official intimation from London that any reservations would be demanded as indicated in news dispatches. He agreed that if any difference of opinion existed as to the exact basis on which Britain would negotiate with Washington, they probably were between Great Britain and her Dominions. He had been informed that London was taking up the whole question with the Dominion before replying to the U.S Secretary of State's overtures.

Asked if the Dominions would have separate treaties, Secretary Kellogg said that was a matter for the Dominions themselves to decide, in consultation with the British government. In a general way the opinion is expressed here that it would not be necessary for the Dominions to have treaties recent years if Ottawa elected to deal directly with Washington when it comes to a declaration to outlaw war, arbitration of disputes and the outlawing of war.

Salary Increase For Judges Recommended

House Will Have To Approve Report Of Committee

Ottawa.—An increase in salary to Canadian judges has been approved by the special parliamentary committee, it was learned. The committee's report will, it is stated, recommend an increase of $2,000 to county court judges; the same amount to provincial court judges, and $3,000 increase for judges of the exchequer court and the supreme court.

The committee held its sessions in camera. It is understood that the report was adopted on the casting vote of the chairman.

The committee's recommendation will be required to the approval of the house.

An increase in salary of $2,000 per annum is also recommended for judges of the exchequer court of Canada.

The conclusion reached by the committee was that the remuneration paid to judges in Canada was inadequate and should be increased.

Willingdon Opens Ice Institute For Blind

New Building Provides Treatment For Sightless in West

Winnipeg.—The opening of the new building of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, at Winnipeg, will be the means of not only combating and suppressing blindness in those now afflicted, but of saving the sight of at least half of those in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta who would otherwise be doomed.

This was the reported statement of Sir Arthur Pearson, representative of the institute when His Excellency Viscount Willingdon, governor-general of Canada, officially declared the new building open.

Announced Defeated

Anti-Dumping Move Lost By Large Majority in House

Ottawa.—A Conservative anti-dumping amendment to supply was defeated in the House by a vote of 116 to 39. The amendment was moved by H. H. Anderson (Conservative, Halton), and was that the government should take necessary action to control the importation of fruits into Canada of salted products of a class or kind produced in Canada, when such products operate to the detriment of the Canadian producers.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) voted with the Conservatives, while the Progressives and U.F.A. voted with the government.

Explorer Reported Safe

Rumor.—It is rumored here in diplomatic circles that Senator Edwards, counselor to the Japanese embassy here, will be the first Japanese minister to Ottawa. The Japanese embassy declines to comment on the rumor.

Farm Workers Scarce

Demand in Northern Alberta Exceeds Supply in Report

Winnipeg.—The influx of immigrants this season has been well covered, and in northern Alberta there is a demand for farm help in excess of the demands, according to J. S. McGown, western manager of the colonization department of the Canadian National railways who returned here from a tour of the west.

He estimated that well over a million acres of new land will be cleared and brought under the plow this year in northern Alberta and northern Saskatchewan.

New immigrants, he said, were being used extensively in this work.

No Opposition From British

But Chinese Troops Must Not Enter Legation At Peking

London.—The British government has no intention to offer an opposition to the advance of the Chinese Nationalist armies on Peking, Godfrey Isaacs-Lansbury, parliamentary for foreign affairs told the House of Commons.

Mr. Lansbury-Lampson said the Government's only care was to see that these troops did not enter the legation quarters.

ADVOCATE PLAN OF INSURANCE FOR UNEMPLOYED

Ottawa.—The House of Commons committee on industrial and international relations endorsed the principle of unemployment insurance based on compulsory contributions by the state, the employers and the employees in its report tabled in the House.

The report states that the necessity for providing a number of unemployment insurance, "will inevitably have to be dealt with before long as a solution to the grave industrial problems of the present day."

The report indicates that the success of any plan of unemployment insurance depends upon several of the provinces being willing to act simultaneously.

It is of the opinion that the matter should be referred to the province to find out the extent to which they will be willing to adopt legislation respecting unemployment insurance and to what extent they will be willing to go.

The committee experienced difficulty in arriving at a satisfactory basis of unemployment insurance because there was no definite method of ascertaining unemployment at any given point for any length of time.

The committee recommends:

"That the government immediately devise some means whereby the amount of unemployment over a period of years could be reasonably calculated."

The committee also recommends that the government request from Great Britain advice on the subject and that the subject be dealt with further by the committee at the next session of parliament.

Discusses Antarctic Plans

Wilkin. Hopes To Locate Suitable Base For Meteorological Station

Tromso, Norway Captain George H. Wilkins commanding an Eckbergen's plans in the future of Arctic airways, said: "It likely will be the spring or summer before Chicago and Chios.

Wilkins said, in discussing his plans for an Arctic base, that he hoped to make an aerial camera survey of the coasts of the Ross Sea to Graham's Land, for the purpose of aid to navigation and meteorological station. Such a station would be of great importance in forecasting the weather for Australia, South America and Southern California.

Ask Higher Tariff On Dairy Products

Findings Of U.S. Commission Not Yet Submitted To President

Washington.—The tariff commission's recommendation on milk and cream duties has not yet been sent to the president. The Canadian Press learned two weeks ago that the findings of the commission which recently investigated the cost of production in Canadian dairies, were ready for the White House, and it was understood that an increase in the duties would be recommended.

The farmers' co-operatives, who claim to represent 951,000 farmers in this country, asked for more than a dozen increases in the present tariff. In most cases they ask, in their resolution addressed to Congress, about 50 per cent. increase in the existing duties.

Staff Is Kept Busy

Requests For Returns By House Members Are Numerous

Ottawa.—Returns requested by members of the House of Commons are numerous and voluminous that some of the Government's departments are having difficulty in keeping pace with the demand.

This was stated in the House of Commons by Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance. Mr. Robb informed the members that Government departments stated that the requests from the House were adding materially to their work. Some of them declared that they must either have more time to get out the returns or more help to do the work.

Mr. Robb made this statement in explaining why it took some time to furnish certain returns requested by members.

DID NOT NAME MR. McMURRAY SAYS HON. FORKE

Ottawa.—Emphatic denial of any knowledge that Hon. E. J. McMurray, former Solicitor-General, had trafficked in special immigration privileges was made at the parliamentary immigration inquiry by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration.

"I can state emphatically that I did not make any of the statements which Mr Caldwell says I made about Mr. McMurray," Mr. Forke declared, in referring to the statement by Hon. M. J. Caldwell, in the House that Mr Forke had named Mr. McMurray in this connection.

Mr. McMurray's position was in 1920, two years before I came into the department," Mr. Forke continued "and I knew nothing about Mr McMurray's transactions with the department, if any took place, and where I came into the department I did have had no dealings with Mr McMurray, directly or indirectly."

Plan of School Considered By The Board

A special meeting of the school board was held Monday night to consider sketch plans received from the architects for the new school. Plans were submitted in the rough as the request of the board and embodied an outline of the type of building determined upon following consultations with and suggestions made by Chief Inspector Corman of the department of education.

As was pointed out in the paper in the event of the by-law carrying, the board contemplated erecting a school which would possess the desirable qualities of flexibility — that is, the extra classrooms would be available as required from time to time without burdening the taxpayers with a heavy increase in the mill rate to meet debentury payments. To this end a type of architecture in school construction is being adopted which practically does away with that unsightly and expensive monstrosity designated as the basement, thereby giving in a two storey building all the accommodations of eight classrooms should this be required as well as space for heating system and lavatories.

To attain this end the ground floor is placed three and a half feet below the fourth line and is really a four room lay-out, the first floor will have four complete classrooms. There is also room to be used for high school purposes, leaving one room vacant at present. The re-entry room of the basentry is located on the ground floor with a spare room adjoining it, the balance of the ground floor is being left in one room at about 46 feet by 22 feet dimension to be utilized as an assembly hall or auditorium. The heating plant is centrally located in front of the portable classrooms. From the main entrance to the building which is slightly elevated two sets of stairs descend to the ground floor. This is the point will give the public an idea of the class of structure their board contemplate erecting but while the by-law originally carried asks for the sum of $32,000 it is now possible that the cost will not greatly exceed $29,000 as the plans are adhered to.

The site selected is on the high school grounds purchased a few years ago in the west side of town and the front of the building will face east. Only the best of material will enter into the construction and the entire building will be in stucco.

The Vermilion Chamber of Commerce received here, all joined in singing "O Canada which was followed by an eloquent and inspiring address on "The Place in Every Man's Patriotism." The ceremonial part of the day's programme closed with the National Anthem.

The remainder of the day was given up to entertainment on and inside Kiwanis Park, many rides (at very popular positions) and balloons and fireworks all contributed to the afternoon's entertainment. Also tickets were distributed to the kiddies entitled them to ice cream cones, peanuts popcorn and "hot dogs" with which to satisfy the "inner man."

The task of entertaining a distinguished party of nearly eight hundred people is no mean one and the local Kiwanis Lodge are deserving of much praise for the smooth and efficient way in which the arrangements were carried out.

A fitting conclusion to the day's festivities took the form of a dance in the Community Hall, which was attended by a capacity crowd. During the evening the draw took place for the two gold watches offered to the holders of the lucky tickets. The lady's bracelet watch was won by Miss Beryl Bolstow of Islay, with the number 44, while the lucky number for the gents man's gold watch was 71. As the holder of this ticket was not present at the dance, he is requested to communicate with Mr A Y Law, who will be pleased to hand the prize to it, winner. The streaks of the "Home Wat's" marked the close of a wonderful day, and the Vermilion Kiwanis to be congratulated on the unqualified success of the day's celebration.

A public-spirited organization such as the local K'ns have proved themselves to be is a credit to any community and it is gratifying to learn that the membership has almost doubled during the past year.

Special mention should be made of the indefatigable efforts of the Entertainment Committee which was composed of the following members: A. Y. Law (chairman), A. McWilliams, A. H. Elford, W. Robertson, C. W. Robinson and A. M. West, and to whose zeal and energy much of the success of the day is due.

A special meeting of Britannia Rebekah Lodge No. 48 was held in the Lodge Room on Wednesday, May 23rd at which Sister Nelson, Inspector of D. D. for District No. 4 visited the lodge. Sister Nelson was able to give the members a splendid account of district work also gather a lot of help on the work of the Order. Many questions were asked and answered, and altogether a very profitable and happy time was spent, closing with a very dainty lunch and social hour It is hoped that Sister Nelson will pay us another visit in the near future

Vermiliou Elks Entertain 800 Kiddies

The 24th of May will not soon be forgotten by the happy crowd of kiddies who were given the time of their lives by the Brother Elks of the Vermilion Elks' Lodge.

The "Cleft of the Weather" was in one of his most gracious moods, and the attractive programme arranged for the enjoyment of the youngsters was run off without a hitch.

The assembly of children took place at 3 p.m. outside the Canadian Legion's club rooms, but it was 3:45 p.m before the constantly swelling numbers were arranged in parade order for the procession to the east end athletic grounds. The purple and white regalia of the Elks, the snappy blue dresses of the Girl Guides, and the spruce uniforms of the Boy Scouts and the Cubs combined to present a spectacle which was picturesque in the extreme Continuous music on the march was provided by the Vermilion Citizens' Band and Pipe-Major MacMillan, of Chauvinhoe.

The first stop was made at the Alexanders school grounds where a photograph of the kiddies was taken, after which the procession re-formed and proceeded to the athletic grounds. Arrived here, all joined in singing "O Canada which was followed by an eloquent and inspiring address on "The Place in Every Man's Patriotism." The ceremonial part of the day's programme closed with the National Anthem.

The remainder of the day was given up to entertainment on and inside Kiwanis Park, many rides (at very popular positions) and balloons and fireworks all contributed to the afternoon's entertainment. Also tickets were distributed to the kiddies entitled them to ice cream cones, peanuts popcorn and "hot dogs" with which to satisfy the "inner man."

The task of entertaining a distinguished party of nearly eight hundred people is no mean one and the local K'ns Lodge are deserving of much praise for the smooth and efficient way in which the arrangements were carried out.

A fitting conclusion to the day's festivities took the form of a dance in the Community Hall, which was attended by a capacity crowd. During the evening the draw took place for the two gold watches offered to the holders of the lucky tickets. The lady's bracelet watch was won by Miss Beryl Bolstow of Islay, with the number 44, while the lucky number for the gents man's gold watch was 71. As the holder of this ticket was not present at the dance, he is requested to communicate with Mr A Y Law, who will be pleased to hand the prize to it, winner. The streaks of the "Home Wat's" marked the close of a wonderful day, and the Vermilion Kiwanis to be congratulated on the unqualified success of the day's celebration.

A public-spirited organization such as the local K'ns have proved themselves to be is a credit to any community and it is gratifying to learn that the membership has almost doubled during the past year.

Special mention should be made of the indefatigable efforts of the Entertainment Committee which was composed of the following members: A. Y. Law (chairman), A. McWilliams, A. H. Elford, W. Robertson, C. W. Robinson and A. M. West, and to whose zeal and energy much of the success of the day is due.

A special meeting of Britannia Rebekah Lodge No. 48 was held in the Lodge Room on Wednesday, May 23rd at which Sister Nelson, Inspector of D. D. for District No. 4 visited the lodge. Sister Nelson was able to give the members a splendid account of district work also gather a lot of help on the work of the Order. Many questions were asked and answered, and altogether a very profitable and happy time was spent, closing with a very dainty lunch and social hour It is hoped that Sister Nelson will pay us another visit in the near future

Let Us Celebrate

A year ago the people of Canada engaged with a very real enthusiasm in the celebration of Dominion Day the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. It was, of course, an especially memorable anniversary and for weeks and months many communities of public-spirited citizens spent long hours in planning and preparation for the suitable ceremonies which marked the sixtieth anniversary of Canada's birth. The effect of that general observance of Dominion Day from sea to sea, and the carefully planned and well executed programmes, instructional and historical features of the great value, was at once noticeable in the greater pride and renewed confidence in Canada and its future which was displayed by the Canadian people in the year which has since elapsed than in a year of expansion and prosperity throughout the Dominion. Steadily, even rapidly, the Dominion of Canada has grown in national stature and in international importance. It has commanded, and continues to command, an ever increasing interest in other countries, while outstanding men and women in realms of government, education, finance commerce and industry, not only in Canada, but throughout the world, have referred to the Dominion as among the most favored of all lands, and the one country above all others which today offers the greatest opportunities and the brightest promise for the future

The Diamond Jubilee celebrations of a year ago helped to arouse and to stimulate the National consciousness of the Canadian people, and, because the country can be truly great lacking a national spirit and consciousness, the celebrations last year have more than repaid all the time, thought and money on them

It is not sufficient, however, to the cultivating and growth of a national spirit and national aspirations that the birthday of a nation be fittingly observed once in every sixty or one hundred years. Individuals observe their anniversaries annually. Once a year every successful business establishment takes stock of its position notes its gains or losses, and, in the light of the experience thus gained, lays future operations. Every year boys and girls reach that period in life when they grasp the inner meaning and deeper significance of things which formerly they gave little or no heed. Each succeeding year brings to every citizen added responsibilities, and therefore serious consideration and observance of its national day in each and every year in order that its real significance and all that it really represents may be impressed upon the minds and hearts of the rising generation of Canadians.

This article is a plea therefore, to the people of Canada that they should regard the approaching one hundred and first Dominion Day this year, as well as each succeeding year, as one that should be fittingly observed just as the case prove to last year. True it is not possible that each annual observance be on the scale of the Dominion Jubilee celebrations, but Dominion Day can be observed each year in something more than the rather perfunctory manner which prevailed in most places prior to 1927

It is gratifying to note in the columns of the weekly papers of Western Canada that steps are being taken in an unusually large number of communities to again fittingly celebrate Dominion Day this year. But the number of such places could be largely increased, and it is earnestly to be hoped that in those communities where as yet, no definite action has been taken to organize citizens' committees for a proper celebration of Dominion Day, 1928, no further time will be lost in taking such action. It is a duty we owe to the growing youth of Canada that they be taught to observe the natal day of their country, and that through observance of Dominion Day a true love for and pride in Canada be developed.

Takes Place Of Sight

Compos In New Airplane Enables Pilot To Fly Blindly

An aeroplane which can find its own way about is the latest wonder. This has been invented by a French aircraft designer. A new set of gauges, which a pilot can learn to read in a few hours, takes the place of human sight

Twelve French pilots were the first to give the new machine a trial. At the beginning each was inclined to spiral and then to wobble a little but when they had become used to their instruments, they were able to control their machines perfectly

They flew blindly to a point thirty miles away, turned, and came back to the take-off. The new invention should be invaluable for flying by night or in fog

Acid Stomach

Eat one of the common cause of indigestion it results in pain and gas soon after meals. Relief is quick. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and luxurious and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this prussier method acts. Phillips let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions.

Winnipeg Flying Field

Winnipeg Flying Club Expect To Have Finest Field In Western Canada

A flying field which, when work on it is completed, is expected to be the finest in Western Canada, has been secured by the Winnipeg Flying Club. It will be ready for the operations of the club shortly when two Moth planes will be received from the Dominion Government and the organization will start its summer flying The field is 135 acres in extent, high and level, in St. James municipality. Hangars capable of housing half-a-dozen planes will be constructed and an imposing club house will overlook on the Sackville St. side of the aerodrome. It is also planned to lay out tennis courts on the aerodrome for the use of the members and their friends. Half a hundred men, many of them war fliers, have already taken active membership in the club and the number of associate members is growing daily.

SAME SYMPTOMS IN MANY CASES

An Anaemic Condition Easily Recognized—Calls For a Blood Builder

In most cases Anaemia the symptoms are almost the same. The sufferer grows pale, is easily tired after the least exertion. The appetite is fickle and there is loss of weight, sometimes there are headaches, and often inability to sleep well. As the blood becomes thinner the symptoms become more pronounced and often there are fainting spells. All this shows that the blood is weak and that it and the very first symptom of this condition the patients should begin to take Dodds Pink Pills, the most reliable blood-builder and nerve tonic known. The sole mission of this medicine is to enrich the blood. Gladly I continued taking the pills until I fully realized that my health was much improved. I have since continued in the best of health. Later my daughter became anaemic and six boxes of the pills restored her health, strength and color. Naturally I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a blessing to weak, ailing girls."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Appointed Danish Consul

H. P. Madsen Will Represent Danish Government In Northern Alberta

H. P. Madsen, of the Edmonton City Dairy, has been appointed Danish Consul for Northern Alberta with headquarters at Edmonton. Increasing Danish settlement, estimated at 8,700 in 1927, is given by the Government as the reason for the establishment of the consulate The territory will likely extend from Red Deer north.

British Army Men For Canada

Will Arrange To Place Demobilized British Soldiers On Land Here

Col. J. H. Millbard, Commandant of the British Army Training Centre, at Chadesden (Wirksbire), England, is now in Canada planning to draft out large numbers of demobilized British Army men to Canadian farms if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the Government and other organizations. Up to the present most of these men have gone to Australia, the Colonial states, where they have done splendidly. Their course of farm training is thorough and begins six months prior to actual discharge's from the army.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE

Renders An Important Service To People Of Canada

The annual report of Canada's Government Merchant Marine by no means justifies those critics who label that the ships are an enormous and useless drain upon the Treasury and that they should be sold. It is true that there was an operating loss in 1927 of $720,000 as against $90,000 in 1926, but, on the other hand, the improvement over the 1925 showing was more than $200,000, and almost $700,000 over 1924.

The past year was not a good one for shipping, no matter how operated. There was a shortage of cargo tonnage, this producing increased competition which resulted in reduced freight rates. During the latter months of the year," says the report, "the volume of traffic moving from Canada to the United Kingdom became reduced, with the result that earnings of steamers trading to the United Kingdom were seriously lessened."

With brighter prospects for 1928, the annual report says that the Merchant Marine may well be of a more cheerful character. Nor must it be forgotten that, apart altogether from deficits or surpluses, the Merchant Marine renders an important service to the Canadian people. It unloubtedly provides traffic for the Canadian National Railways; it advertises Canada abroad and it is a measure of protection for Canadian exporters from private shipping rings

It is possible, of course, to pay too highly for such things; but, having regard to all existing conditions, and in view of future prospects, the time would hardly seem to have yet arrived when the Government could profitably dispose of the ships of the Merchant Marine—especially at existing prices.

Mechanical Man Is Assistant To Doctor

Administers Anaesthetic In Exact Amount Required and Minimize In Immobile

"A Robot, or mechanical interne, believed to be the first of its kind in the world, has been devised by a professor at the University of Maryland for use in the medical and surgical field.

"This machine, called an automatic anaesthetizer, was invented three years ago to be used in connection with experiments being conducted by the Department of Pharmacology. Not only does this new Robot do away with the necessity of having a special doctor, nurse or orderly to administer the anaesthetic during operation, but it also prevents an under or over-dose, and uses the exact amount necessary to keep the patient in total unconsciousness.

"The general principle of the machine is based upon the variation of pressure in the lungs of the patient during respiration. Danger of fatality is held impossible.

HORSE-SHOE PITCHING TOURNEY, SPORTS DAY

Attractive Feature Added to the Day's Programme by the V. A. A. A.

The Vermilion A. A. A. have decided to add a horse-shoe pitching tourney one-at to their long list of athletic events and sports on June 6th Two substantial prizes will be given the winning teams.

Horse-shoe pitching has revived in interest all over North America, and is bright every city and village crossroads has its enthusiasts It is played in varsity rooms, vacant city lots, and in village and farm yards. Regulation horse shoes will be provided for the tournament; these weigh 2¼ lbs., are 7½ inches in length, 7 inches in width and no heel or toe calks shall project more than one and one-sixteenth inch in height. The pitching box shall be a leading body of shoe, the square between heel calks shall not exceed 2½ inches. Stride measurement shall be not more than one-half inch from the extreme end of the shoe determined by measurement from the straight edge placed across the heel calks.

It is confidently expected that this tournament will prove one of the most interesting features of the day's programme. Entries should be made to the secretary, Mr. W. J. Chisholm at once so that arrangements can be completed early for this big event.

5 of the reasons why McLAUGHLIN -BUICK will serve you Better and save you More!

NOT only does today's McLaughlin-Buick excel in smart, low, daring lines—in vivid new color harmonies—in luxurious upholsteries and appointments—but it sweeps far ahead of its field in those vital engineering factors which mean greater comfort—greater performance—greater economy—and greater value.

In Most Cars—the springs have to be changed frequently—to drive the car and to cushion the load.

In Most Cars—wear, and dust on work their way into moving parts causing excessive wear, engine stalling and other troubles.

In Most Cars—vibration is merely dampened by means of additional hangers and inadequate devices.

In Most Cars—quality is often sacrificed for price, or price advanced to permit fine quality.

In Most Cars—the dealer's delivery of price, including the delivery or handling charge, to the buyer—not yet rigidly fixed by the factory behind the car.

In McLaughlin-Buick—the springs have only one function—to cushion the load—and naturally are designed to provide much finer riding qualities

In McLaughlin-Buick—the Lubrite Process and Triple-Sealed Engine absolutely prevent these troubles. All vital parts are enclosed in dirt-proof, dust-proof, water-tight housings.

In McLaughlin-Buick—the scientifically designed Valve-Head Engine, counterbalanced crankshaft and finely balanced motor parts are combined in performance vibrationless beyond belief.

In McLaughlin-Buick—tremendous demand makes possible both high quality and moderate price—and therefore unrivaled value.

In McLaughlin-Buick—the lowest possible delivered price, including the delivery or handling charge is definitely established by the McLaughlin-Buick factory. The McLaughlin-Buick quality is provided to McLaughlin-Buick owners everywhere at lowest cost.

Lowering Grades Of Wheat

Careless Methods Have Tended To Reduce High Western Standard

The best wheat in the world is produced by the soil and climate of Western Canada. Careless methods in farming methods and the excessive amount of weeds have tended to reduce the grades of western wheat and this degrading will continue with serious effects upon the reputation of the west's wheat unless the farmers themselves adopt measures to stop it

An old tale is told of a European municipality where the annual taxes were paid in wine. The growers brought their wine to a common vat into which they poured it. One man, and he knew that if he poured water into the vat it would not be noticed amongst so much wine. But when the payments were completed the municipality found that the vat contained nothing except water.

The table has its application to this province. The individual farmer may say that if he does not exercise care he has farming, if he grows weeds to grow and spread in his land and if he uses poor quality of seed he will be able to do pretty well in a way and his comparatively small quantity of wheat will not make much difference. But if all the western farmers act with a similar slip-shod disregard for the reputation of Alberta wheat the total effect will be highly damaging.

The pure seed authorities of the province have taken this matter in hand and are vigorously endeavoring to insure the wheat-growers to adopt more thoroughly the successful methods of production. The Calgary Board of Trade has actively co-operated in this work. Its standing grain competition aims in this direction. The Alberta Grain Company, Strong and Dowler, the Canadian Malting Company, and other grain-handling companies, have awarded handsome prizes for highest wheat and clean farms. These efforts are certain to have a good influence. What is most needed is for the farmers themselves to realize the importance of discriminating the prevailing tendency to a lower standard of wheat production with the inevitable financial result that this will eventually incur. Good Rule For Success

Learn Job Thoroughly Before Trying To Boss It

Oliver Wendell Holmes, 87-year-old member of the United States Supreme Court, has a motto. He says: "Rest is not the destiny of man." He might well add truth say that a routine, day by day job, is not the destiny of man. Work, merely as work, is not the destiny of man. Achievement is something else. Here Holmes has little place in life, but change of work, change from routine, may have a very important place.

One of the best of short and simple rules for success is "learn your job before you try to boss it." It is pleasant to see a man promoted to higher office and to find he can do the job that was ahead of him—carefully that he is thoroughly capable of being a boss. And nothing is more tragical than the tragedy of the unprepared.

A Scottish Quaker coal-merchant once a week distributed large lumps of coal from his yard to the deserving poor.

"Just those whose fathers and mothers will have to pay for this at the Last Day."

The chief replied:

"That's long credit. I'll just take another boy while I'm at it."

Average Length Less Than Other Occupations Says Doctor

Pity the poor bookkeeper. His experience in such that statistics prepared by Dr. J. M. Dodson of the [illegible] Insurance Company, show that the average bookkeeper's career [illegible] only occupation.

Doctors on the other hand seem to find the business of keeping others healthy a boon to their own well-being and longevity. The figures show bookkeepers live to an average age of 36.5 years, doctors 62 years and the life of the average American citizen is given at 47 years.

Handicap To Egg Trade

Marketing Dirty Eggs Is An Unbrotherly Practice

That one of the most aggravating problems confronting the egg trade at the present time is the far too frequent marketing of dirty eggs is the opinion of W. A. Brown, chief of the poultry division of the Dominion live stock branch. Farmers should realize states Mr. Brown, that they can do much towards improving the egg industry by taking steps to prevent the production and marketing of dirty eggs and by discontinuing the very undesirable practice of washing eggs before marketing.

Under any circumstances it is inevitable that a few slightly dirty or stained eggs will appear. But the farmer who consistently produces and markets large numbers of dirty eggs surely does not realize the bad effect of this practice on the market. These eggs are unpopular with consumers and in many cities it is almost impossible to sell them at any price. Washed eggs are even more unpopular and the practice of washing dirty ones. Washing destroys the natural protective bloom of the egg shell being damp would spoil sooner often enter, causing the egg to become unfit for food.

At the same time it is not difficult to prevent the production of dirty eggs. What is needed is an abundance of straw or litter on the floor, plenty of nests about one to every six hens, clean straw in the nests and frequent gathering of the eggs.

Should Work Both Ways

Tendency To Copy Others Could Help Instead Of Hinder

Man is an extremely suggestible animal, writes a modern philosopher. Many times he follows the suggestions of his eyes and ears and does his work afterwards. There is much truth in this statement it explains why we spend too much money when we are playing with a lot of spenders and perhaps pay a lot of things we never mean when we are in the company of the grumpy and cantankerous. We are just naturally "suggestible animals." "Copy cats" as the children often put it.

But it is a poor rule that won't work both ways. Why not make our tendency to suggestibility help us instead of hinder us? What is to prevent our associating with people who know the value of money, who are industrious and ambitious, and who are honestly concerned about the finest things of life? Why not turn this trait of suggestibility to good account?

Eels As Table Delicacy

Many Tons Of Silver Eel Sold In Toronto Annually

Eels not the species of lamprey that although bedecked themselves to the appearance in the table meanwhile a half summer, not yet the younger eel, but eels none the less to the extent of many tons come to many a Toronto dinner table. The silver eel is sold by one dealer at the rate of 10,000 pounds a year. "The Jew will not touch an eel. It is against his religious principles. Generally speaking they sell at from 12 to 15 cents a pound, and are brought from Prince Edward Island, Quebec British Columbia and Nova Scotia. The dealer said eels were palatable to taste when served up either fried or as a roasted pig.

Says Undergraduates Should Not Think

More Successful If Solutions Are Accepted, Opinion Of Professor

Dr Dalton Thomas Howard, Professor of Psychology and Director of Personnel at Northwestern University, Chicago, expresses doubt whether it pays for American university undergraduates to think

Under present educational systems he believes a student may be most successful by listening, agreeing, recording, memorizing and reproducing. The undergraduate is required to accept solutions rather than make them he said

The student's business is to learn rather than to think. He has not been asked to do good, competent, hardheaded thinking. Those who do think, do it under their own steam. Consequently most undergraduates are content to conform and obey. They mouth their lessons like Mexicans in school, understanding little."

In Howard's opinion the research can be developed only if the university forgets much of its present orthodoxy. Creative work is that the student requires, he said.

Widely Distributed Tree

The balsam fir is one of Canada's most widely distributed trees. It ranges along the Atlantic coast from Nova Scotia to Labrador, westward and northward through New Brunswick, Quebec, and Ontario to Hudson Bay, the Prairie Provinces to Great Slave Lake, and westward into northern British Columbia and Yukon Territory.

Customer: "Will you guarantee these seeds to grow trees?"

Storekeeper: "Absolutely!"

Customer: "Well, in that case I'll buy a hammock."

See 2,000-Year-Old Scripture

Many are the strange and almost unbelievable sights witnessed by world tourists, such as, camels being shaved in Egypt, foreign peoples in outlandish costumes that have been cast into moulds of plaster while alive and ransom bronze Buddhas in Japan and China. There are others, perhaps, not so remarkable but hardly less interesting.

The passengers on the round-the-world cruise of the "Empress of Australia," one of the largest in the Canadian Pacific fleet, were given the privilege of witnessing an ancient Pentateuch roll containing two books of the Scripture dating from about the time of Christ and kept in a Samaritan chapel in Nablus, Palestine. This scroll is reproduced above from the photo taken by one of the tourists on this luxurious and educational cruise.

ASSOCIATION IS EXCLUSIVE

Only "Blood Donor" Can Qualify For Membership In London "Club"

A social evening was held in London recently by what is perhaps the most unique association in the world. For every single person present was what is called a "blood donor." A "club" without an entrance fee and without a subscription, the sole qualifications for membership is the voluntary giving of one's blood.

Up to a very few years ago, blood transfusion was an extremely rare operation. Today, science has progressed, and hardly a week goes by in any great hospital without some patient's life being saved by the pumping into his veins of blood taken from another person. So there exists a branch of the Red Cross whose object is to find volunteers for the service of giving blood.

On applying to a hospital the donor is asked to allow a drop of blood to be taken from his or her thumb - for there are plenty of girls in the service. This blood is tested, and the donor's name recorded as suitable for emergency calls. After that, all that he or she has to do is wait till the call comes.

Day and night an office is open waiting for telephone calls from hospitals in need. A call comes through, and in a few minutes a messenger is on his way to a volunteer.

The volunteer feels no pain when the blood is extracted, and within a couple of hours is as fit as ever. Indeed, there are doctors who say that a moderate giving of blood is beneficially good for one. But the fact remains for the rest of his days the volunteer knows that he has saved a life.

Hello Lady Handsworth

One of the queerest shops in London, and perhaps in the world, is located on the Strand, where an entire policeman's uniform can be obtained at a considerable trade in the sale of second-hand clothes. The proprietor of the place claims to have clothed officers of all over the world. The majority of his orders come from private house parties, fancy dress balls, pageants, and passenger steamship lines.

Sweet Clover For Crop Rotation

The Raymond Sugar Co. has put down a contract for 12,000 pounds of sweet clover to test growers as a crop rotation for rejuvenation of the soil by means of a rotation of crops. The clover seed is sold by the company on easy terms to encourage soil conservation. Both the company and the farmers profit by this arrangement.

The man who acknowledges that he is a chump has begun to acquire wisdom.

MODEL RURAL HEALTH AREA

Efforts Are Being Made To Cope With Rural Health Problems

Following the establishment of county health units in a number of Quebec municipalities some years ago, and the inauguration of additional ones as rapidly as possible ever since, the announcement has now been made that the Rockefeller Foundation, co-operating with the Provincial Health Department, in Alberta, will shortly establish a model rural health area in that province.

Though the two types of organization differ in appearance the reason for their establishment is identical.

It marks the commencement of a long general effort into the part Canadian health departments and health officials to cope with the rural health problem.

Obviously, it is not possible, for financial reasons, to build up the same health organization in sparsely populated districts as it is in the cities, yet, modern methods for conserving life by the saving of just as many births there as anywhere else. Even a full-time health officer is not usually a possibility.

With the county health unit, several districts are lumped together, and a central bureau organized and staffed with experts, headed by a full-time health officer and including one or more nurses and a sanitary inspector.

The units in Quebec have brought about almost immediate reductions in the death rate and in the amount of infectious disease, throughout the districts which they serve.

While something similar, the model health area which is to be established in Alberta as an experiment, is somewhat more elaborate. It is to serve a district with a population of approximately 25,000, and at this point is a small model hospital with a surgeon, assistant and nurse.

But that where the unit will be chiefly concerned with general public health problems, including education and the prevention of disease, the model health area will specialize in treatment.

The circular is ready to be issued then will have to be supplied on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Where Work Is Systemized

No Lost Motion In Kitchen Of Large Hotels

The kitchen of a large hotel is an institution where lost motion is an unknown quantity. There are persons who do nothing but prepare fruit, others cut there are those other individuals who cut the meat, go for them, slice the apples, the grapefruit, the cantaloupe and the [illegible]. There is a chef in charge of the [illegible] somewhere [illegible] fowl. The man who [illegible] is not the man who [illegible]. There is a girl who does nothing but take things from a boiler and broil them to waiters. One man does nothing but boil ice cream. Another does nothing but peel vegetables. A waiter and another is in charge of artist rather for special dinner parties. The young man who spends his entire day rolling butter balls rolls both a thousand with out feeling fatigued.

Original Survey Records

In the Record Office of the Topographical Survey Branch, Department of the Interior, there are on file over 54,000 different items in the nature of plans and original survey notes, being the returns from Dominion lands surveys since their inception in 1869.

Dehorning Young Cattle

Caustic Potash Method Is Best For Young Calves

Whether calves are to go into the dairy herd or to be marketed as beef cattle, experience has shown that they are more suitable for either purpose when dehorned. A mean old cow carrying horns can give the individual animals an uncomfortable time and indeed cause injury besides reducing the milk flow. But horns are equally objectionable in feeding steers. Not only do dehorned steers make better gains either in the feed lot or in the fields, but the absence of horns on a bunch of finished cattle usually adds from fifteen to twenty-five cents per hundred to their value. Buyers invariably prefer dehorned steers even for local slaughter as the carcasses are likely to be free from bruises and injuries.

While it is possible and practicable to dehorn large cattle, the operation is much more simply performed while the animals are young. An easy way to remove the horn described in pamphlet No. 15, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, "Dehorn the young dairy cattle," is by the use of caustic potash, and the best time is when the calves are but a few days old. Caustic potash is sold in sticks about the thickness of a lead pencil and should fit the edge of the hair for a few cents at any drug store. Up to the time the calves are about ten days old the horn is only loosely attached to the skull and may be moved about with the pressure of the finger. This is the best stage for the operation. The hair should be clipped off around the horn butt and vaseline applied around the edge of the hair after the clipping. This prevents the potash, when applied to the horn, spreading and injuring the skin. The caustic is moistened and rubbed on the horn surface four or five times, being careful to wash the hands before applying the next. The calves should not be exposed to rain for at least half after the horns have been treated, or the caustic will be washed off. If the dehorning is delayed until after the calves are two weeks old, it is necessary to remove the horns with a fine saw or clipper made for the purpose. Caustic potash is preferable for young cattle, but the saw usually does a better job for older animals. In any case, the animals fill more easily in the operation performed. It is well, therefore, to treat the young herd before they are turned to grass in the spring.

Jack Pine's Wide Range

Best Development Is Reached In Northern Part Of Prairie Provinces

The jack pine (Pinus Banksiana) has a very wide range in Canada. It is found from Nova Scotia to the Rocky Mountains and can be said in the valley of the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Circle. Its best development as a timber tree is reached in northern Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. It is very useful for soil because of its ability to thrive on poor sites it will always hold up important position in Canadian forestry. Its principal use at present is for pulp and it is secured in seeing to it that it is not needlessly wasted by forest fire.

DOMINION IS INVITED TO SIGN U.S. PEACE PLAN

Washington, D.C. — Expressing keen satisfaction that the British Dominions had been invited to be included towards the treaty for the renunciation of war which the United States Government proposed on April 13, 1928, as to which to participate therein individually and as original signatories, Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg has extended to Canada a cordial invitation to become one of the primary parties to the treaty for the renunciation of war which is now under consideration.

Secretary Kellogg's note on this subject was despatched to the Canadian Government through Hon. Wm Phillips, American minister at Ottawa. An identical note has been sent to the governments of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the Irish Free State and the government of India.

The American note refers specifically to Canada's outlaw war pact as an instrument of national policy to which all the great powers have been invited to adhere.

No mention is made to a further proposed treaty to provide machinery for the arbitration of International disputes. That would be necessary in the case of the British Empire, would replace the Root-Bryan arbitration treaties, which expire.

Shows Regard For Dominion

Submission Of U.S. Peace Plan "Pretty Complimentary," Says London Paper

London.—Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State for the United States, has paid the British Dominions a pretty complimentary official compliment in asking for them the United States' proposal for a treaty for the renunciation of war by nations renouncing the minor powers in Europe," says the Daily Telegraph.

"Of course the inclusion of the Dominions is different from that of the minor European powers. On all big international questions the Dominional conferences since 1919 the British Empire has been represented by an Empire delegation, including delegations from all the Dominions.

"Still, Mr. Kellogg's gesture suggests a regard and influence for the Dominions which they and the Empire as a whole cannot fail to appreciate."

May Not Be Nominated

Reported That Hoover's Chances For Republican Nomination Not Bright

Washington.—It is the well-founded fear in informed and influential Republican circles here that Herbert Hoover, prospective candidate for the Republican presidential nomination cannot carry the country against Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, whose nomination as Democrat candidate seems assured, and that Hoover may eventually block Hoover's choice as party leader.

Hoover is identified himself with every policy of the Coolidge administration and is the popular Republican asset. Administration prosperity is far from assured. The formal opposition to his candidacy within the party is fairly strong and well organized.

Want Censor Committee

Toronto Men Would Have Books and Magazines Checked

Toronto.—At a conference between eight local ministers and the chief of police department to consider the advisability of appointing a committee to censor books, magazines and other periodicals against which complaints are made to the police it was decided to recommend to the Dominion Government and ask them to select a committee to act for the Dominion. If this cannot be done an effort will be made to appoint a committee here.

Denies Dealing In Immigration Permits

Former Solicitor-General Declares Charge Is Wrong

Ottawa.—Hon. E. J. McMurray, former Solicitor-General, denied absolutely before the parliamentary immigration inquiry that he had dealt in immigration permits for $100 apiece as charged by Alderman M. J. Coldwell, of Regina, before the immigration committee.

He was astounded and stunned to read in the papers the statements of Mr. Coldwell," Mr. McMurray said. "I denied it and welcomed the opportunity of coming before the committee and clearing away the charge. I would also read the denial of the minister of immigration. What he said was true. I have had no dealings with Mr. Forke since he has been in office."

Mr. McMurray explained he had been elected in 1921 from North Winnipeg, which was half foreign born. Many of these people wished to bring relatives to Canada.

"I assisted them, but I never charged them a cent," he said. The numbers had become so great that he had charged them time and telegraph costs and such things. Then he had turned them away.

Mr. McMurray's law firm of 1923 showed that seven applicants had been handled by his firm in a "regular legal way."

The legal fees charged varied from $15 to $60. After his return to Winnipeg in 1926, the practice had been abolished at fees of $25 each.

Frown On Sunday Labor

Alberta Will Take Steps To Enforce Lord's Day Act

Edmonton.—Attorney-General Lymburn is instructing the Commissioner of Provincial Police to notify all police detachments in the province that they are to follow the policy of the department to secure a wider and better observance of the law in respect to Sunday work.

The local police will be expected to co-operate with the citizens in maintaining the spirit of the provisions of the Lord's Day Act.

Mr. Lymburn points out that under the existing weather conditions that have prevailed at critical periods of the past two years, considerable leniency has been shown where the law has been exercised, because a certain amount of Sunday work on farms was unavoidable.

He says that this is not, however, to be taken as establishing a precedent, and the law of the land still stands. An effort is now being made to appeal to the interest and good judgment of the general public in the direction of better observance of the day of rest.

Endorses Peace Treaty

Kellogg Plan Would Make Armies Useless, Says Ramsay MacDonald

London.—When the great powers sign the treaty suggested by the pacts of the United States Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, the armies and navies of the world will dirtyup, Ramsay MacDonald, former labour Premier, declared before the American Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon.

Sign a multi-lateral pact outlawing war," said the leader of the opposition in the House, "and these false securities we have faintly trusted, these defensive armies which have never protected us, will disappear, because they are useless."

Mr MacDonald described the Kellogg peace note as "this magnificent declaration of simple fact."

With one part only of the British reply Mr. MacDonald found fault — that regarding self-defence.

"When such a treaty is signed," he said, "self-defence becomes unnecessary and any aggressor immediately becomes an outlaw."

Thornton Will Serve On League Committee

Resignation Of C. N. Railways Has Accepted Appointment

Geneva, — Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, has accepted an invitation to serve as a member of the League of Nations Railway Committee.

Major-General Raymond D. Candolle, former manager of the Great Southern Railways of Buenos Ayres, also has accepted an invitation to serve.

Montreal.—Sir Henry W. Thornton, K.B.E., chairman and president, of the Canadian National Railways has accepted an invitation to serve as a member of the railway sub-committee of the advisory and technical committee on communications and transit of the League of Nations, it was announced here.

The selection of the Federal administration to the acceptance of the invitation was given to Sir Henry by the Prime Minister and by the Minister of Railways and Canals.

As Sir Henry may not be able to attend some of the meetings, permission has been given to Dr. A. Clews, European traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways, located at London, to represent him when occasion requires.

AWARDS ARE MADE COVERING WAR LOSSES

Ottawa. — Canadians have been reimbursed to the tune of $1,301,544.40 as war reparations against Germany in a report by Commissioner James Friel, K.C.

The total amounts include $4,246, 868.75 awarded to 3,000 claimants, and $2,047,520.59 representing five per cent. interest on all awards calculated to March 31, 1926.

Claims dismissed by Commissioner Friel totalled 150 and involved $22,- 000. Claims withdrawn, or not proceeded with, totalling $4,391,544.40 are dismissed in the report with the notation "no action, claims withdrawn, or not proceed, may be considered dead."

The records the report states, cover the loss of life and property on the British ocean liner Lusitania sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland on May 7, 1915; on the Hesperian sunk by enemy submarine September 4, 1915, and on other passenger and merchant vessels; overhaul done lost on ships torpedoed; claims of fishermen and owners of fishing vessels and their submarine or raider; claims for property destroyed in enemy territory; internment claims; letter of hardship cases; claims of war losses, air raid claims, claims of ship owners and charterers; claims in respect to loss and sailors in hospital ships sunk; claims in respect of the Halifax explosion and other miscellaneous claims.

The awards of 1,613 claims dealt with range all the way from $5 to $1,250,000. The latter claim was awarded under the headings of claims, which include $250,000 to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company; $300,000 to the Dominion Steel Corporation, and $400,000 to the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company.

The Tatem Company, Limited was awarded $128,796.15 for claims due but on 19 vessels and another $1,250,000 to J. F. Codner. Total of this claim aggregated $165,231.14

Says St. Lawrence Scheme Unnecessary

Report Given To Senate By Shipping Federation Attorney

Ottawa.—"It is our firm conviction that as far as Canada is concerned the project is untimely and unnecessary," said A. L. W. MacCallum, manager of the Shipping Federation of Canada, to the Senate Committee on waterways with respect to the St. Lawrence project.

Mr. MacCallum assured the committee that the organization which he represented was concerned only with ocean shipping and that it was not wedded to any particular port or ports in Canada. It felt, however, that the immense expenditure on such a scheme as the St. Lawrence waterways could only be justified if it was proven that the benefits would be there.

The Federation had given special consideration to the matter and it was from that conclusion that the organization at present was not warranted.

Baron Hunsfield Now Owns Sister Ship To the Bremen

Albany, N.Y.—Baron Gunther von Hunsfield, backer of the first successful westward flgh. across the North Atlantic, has purchased the Junkers plane Europa, sister ship of the Bremen, but what flight he plans in the new plane, are a matter of conjecture.

One report is that the German Flyer-Capt. Ulrich Neth and Major Fritz Gaurite, would attempt a return flight to Europe having the new plane shipped to New York from Germany. Baron von Hunsfield, however, denies that such are his plans.

He said it was possible that the plane would be shipped to Ireland and that he and Neth would fly it there to Germany, but that the plans were indefinite

Doctor Studying Source Of Jungle Fever Succumbs To Disease

New York.—An expedition into Africa in an attempt to discover the relation between South America and African yellow fever resulted in the death of Dr. Hydeyo Noguchi, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, the institute was advised.

Dr. Noguchi, discoverer of the source of South American yellow fever in 1916, died at Accra, West Africa. Recently he wrote to New York friends that he had been stricken with African yellow fever and had been in an African hospital from December 28, 1927, to January 9, this year.

He said his own was the first case of the disease to come under his observation and that from he had had directed the inoculation of a monkey with some of his own infected blood. The animal died 12 days later, and additional experimentation, his letter said, disclosed the mosquito organism responsible for the disease.

Coarse Grain Payment

Saskatchewan Coarse Grain Fund Making Second Interim Payment

Regina, Sask.—A second interim payment amounting to 4 cents per bushel on all grades of oats except a few very low grades, and 10 cents a bushel on all grades of barley, flax and rye. This brings total payments to growers by the Coarse Grain Fund of the 1927 crop to the level of 10 cents a bushel for 2 c.w. oats, 75 cents for 3 c.w. barley; 1 c.w. flax, $1.75 per bushel and 2 c.w. rye, $1.75 per bushel basis Fort William.

ROYAL SOCIETY HONORS THREE FELLOW MEMBERS

Winnipeg. — Distinguished scientists and scholars honored with high fellow members of the Royal Society of Canada, in annual meeting here when outstanding awards were conferred on Miss Carman, Canadian poet; Dr. A. P. Coleman, F.R.S., of the University of Toronto, scientist, and Dr. Thomas Chamain, of Quebec, historian.

To the distinguished Canadian poet was awarded the Lorne Pierce medal; Dr. Coleman was the recipient of the Tyrrell medal, and Dr. Chamain received the Tyrrell medal the highest awards which science and literature can bestow in Canada.

The presentation of awards made by Professor A. H. Reginald Buller F.R.S.C., of Winnipeg, president of the Society, featured the evening session held at the University of Manitoba.

Many papers on important scientific problems and addresses by outstanding authorities were delivered before various sections of the society.

Unveiling Of Memorial Plaque At The Heatherbell School

Quite in keeping with the event was the patriotic concert given in connection with the unveiling of the Memorial Plaque in commemoration of Confederation. Great credit is due Miss Bessie Smith, the young teacher, in the training of her pupils and who so appropriately responded in a most patriotic way. Special mention might be made in regard to Miss Kathleen Mulgrey in her oratorical delineation on Canada's Future, and it is felt that had she entered the Dominion contest she certainly would have gone a long way; also Miss Della Stone on her rendition of the Colors of Our Flag. Perhaps the bit of the evening was the four wee tots singing "The Maple Tree and a Farm" with apologies to Henry Ford in the absence of the chairman of the school board, Mr. Mackah acted as chairman, and in a few well-chosen words gave a summary of Canada coming into Confederation, and also unveiled the plaque.

SAFETY FIRST — WARNING!

The authorities request that all drivers of vehicles observe the Act especially in regard to making correct turns in town, keeping on the right side of the street, and complying with the rule of speed provided for by the Vehicle and Highway Traffic Act.

It is further requested that all drivers submit their lights as to comply with the Act, and have all lights burning.

Should an accident occur from the reason of glare headlights, excessive speed and dust occasioned thereby, or your car being on the wrong side of the road, remember that you are not only liable to prosecution but to civil action for damages.

Never drive a car or allow anyone else to drive while the influence of liquor is in any way noticeable.

Be courteous and considerate in your driving, slow down when meeting another car; do not put him into the ditch by your glare headlights or be-cloud him in dust so that he can not see, by your excessive speed.

THE GIRL GUIDES

Truly the past week has seemed to us Guide Week, having held two meetings, joined in two parades, had "inspection" by two Girl Guide Commissioners and last but not least, having been presented with a beautiful Silk, the Canadian Ensign, by the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion. The Star will always be the most treasured possession of the 2nd Company of Girl Guides. Apart from our pleasure in owning the flag, we were delighted and encouraged by the recognition of our company by the Canadian Legion.

The Empire Day entertainment provided by the Elks was pure bliss. Unknowingly, the Elks were responsible for some prodigious feats. Three Girl Guides held an ice-cream-selling contest. Two tied and acknowledged defeat at the fifteenth cone! The eleven-year-old winner has not suffered from the slightest indigestion since. The innocents who found the day too hot for candy and popcorn, threw away the tickets, but those wise young ladies soon discovered their value.

On Sunday we attended the Anglican Church in company with the Elks, Scouts and Cubs where we listened to an inspiring address by Field Commissioner of Scouts, Mr. W. Solway. It was very suitable that our big week should end in such a fitting manner, for the Guides believe that social service should come as a result of Christianity, just never in place of it.

The time has come to consult with the parents about the summer camp. We have been urged by the Edmonton Commissioners to join the Provincial Camp near Edmonton. There will be over one hundred Girl Guides there under the direction of Commissioners with knowledge and expert care in camping. The drinking water is government-tested, provision is also made for wet weather, and the girls will be under the constant supervision of expert swimmers while bathing. The cost will be fifty cents per day for each girl for a period of ten days, June 30th to July 9th, with free transportation to and from the camp. The convenience to the girls will be invaluable. With the parents' please get in touch with the Guiders, and give your consent or (please don't) your refusal, so that we may send in the names of the Guides who are going.

Church Parade

A splendid service was enjoyed in St. Saviour's Church last Sunday. Packed to full capacity and every available chair in use, the Church of England was the scene of a parade service of the local Elks, as well as the local troops of Scouts and Guides and the local Cub Pack. Three local troops, together with the Elks, met at the Memorial Hall and paraded to St. Saviour's at 7:15 p.m. where seats had been roped off for their benefit. A very hearty service was enjoyed by all, special popular hymns having been previously selected.

During the service Scoutmaster Nevill of St. Faith's Boy Scout Troop in Edmonton, read the lesson, while the special speaker was Mr. W. Solway, assistant Provincial Scout Commissioner, who preached from the text "I am among you as he that serveth." Mr. Solway stressed the point that among the Cubs, the Guides, the Scouts and the Elks, whom he said, were just all one family, that amongst them the right spirit and only spirit and way of success was that of service. The speaker pointed out that it is not money that makes a man, but his self-sacrificing service for his fellow man, and wherever a service club was to be found, if it was to be a success, it must have as its motto the words of Christ when He said "I am among you as he that serveth."

Also among the visitors from Edmonton were Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Ellis, camp and district commissioners for the Girl Guides. After the service the commissioners were introduced to the local troop in the Parish hall

WOLF CUB NOTES

Last year on June 7 our Pack had its camp against the Boy Scouts for smartness, etc. This year prizes are awarded for the best Six in our own Pack, which is much more satisfactory.

It is up to the Sixer and Second to round up his Six and see they are all there — neatherchiefs washed, ironed and neatly tied. Some Cubs have a habit of arriving for Parade with their neatherchief dangling down their back — a pin would remedy this. Others have a bad habit of shewing the point of the scarf — since the dye is not always fast this does not improve the Cubs' appearance nor the scarves. Full uniform means cap, jersey, scarf, blue shorts (and for goodness' sake don't appear, as two Cubs did at the last Parade, in long-legged pants and expect to march with the Pack. Imagine a soldier on parade with a khaki coat and civilian trousers); socks below the knee (stockings rolled will do), running shoes and green garter tabs. If you are still without a Cub Cap, with your sleeve, make a point of asking Akela for it before March.

If your hair needs cutting, have it cut before Monday, so that your cap does not sit like a peanut on your head — oh, Goapley!

Be at the C. M.'s house by a quarter to ten. All Cubs in the country who can get in, come in uniform for the march.

Geoffrey Brimacombe was promoted Scaler Biter, at the last meeting. Only a 2 Star Cub can hold this office.

Mr. Alex Taylor has kindly invited the Cubs to a Wiener Roast. This will take place on June 7th, Thursday.

DEBRABTH.

LOCAL FOOTBALLERS WIN FROM ST. ANDREW'S CLUB

Playing the return game on the St. Andrew's club field north of town, the local players again defeated the northern football crew 4-3. In spite of the high wind prevailing the play was of high class, the town boys making the most of their opportunities while the Scottish lads were weak around the goal. Lovereedge, Cooper and Clarke batted scoring a penalty and also a field goal, got the nominees for the write-up, and a penalty shot accounted for the St. Andrew's goal

VERMILION BALL TEAM GRABS OFF SECOND MONEY

Beaten in Final by Lovsay in Victoria Day Tournament at Vegreville

Four ball teams competed in the holiday tournament on May 24th at Vegreville, these being Viking, Lavoy, Vermilion and Vegreville. Lavoy carried off first money with Vermilion taking second place.

Lavoy put the Viking crew out of the running in the first game of the day, Vermilion then met Vegreville, and took a lot of satisfaction in handing them a 7-6 set-back and thus taking all the interest out of the day for the western ball lassers.

In the final game between Lavoy and Vermilion with the score tied at three each at the end of the second, Lavoy's representatives went wild, running in ten. This clinched the game for Lavoy as the best our boys could running in ten. This clinched the game for Lavoy as the best our boys could running in ten. This clinched the game being called at the end of the 5th on account of darkness, with the score standing 11-4.

Is Champion Boy Orator

William Fox, Jr., Of London, Ont., Wins Oratorical Championship

Champion orator of Canada—William Fox, junior, of De Lasalle school, London, Ontario.

Second in oratorical honor — Miss Beswinhild Matthison, Vancouver.

Third—Miss Alice Elizabeth Muse Robbin, Manitoba.

The winner was presented by J. H. Burnett, of Charlottetown, with a ticket for a free trip to Europe as the guest of the newspaper and seven entrees in the various provinces associated in this educational enterprise, and in the contention he will represent Canada at the international contest to be held at Washington with competitors from Mexico Argentina, England, Japan, China, Holland, United States, and Germany. The runners-up get nothing out of the efforts but "glory." Each of the losing ladies was presented with a bouquet of roses as a mark of appreciation by the audience. Mrs. Frederick Hobson, of Tavistock, not last year's Canadian champion, was also given a bouquet of roses. Holland's Mr. Fox, but the lady competitors beat him to it," and shaking their bouquets under one arm rushed over and presented him with the other bouquet. The decision had been announced.

Twenty-seven thousand people jammed into the great arena at Toronto to listen to the final contests in the oratorical championship. Five thousand people were unable to get seats and were forced to stand. Many others were unable to gain admittance.

The contestants were addressed by Mrs. Wesley Gordon, president of the Women's Federation of Ontario, before the contest began. Mrs. Gordon is the daughter of Ticket holders streamed out for several hours in every direction

Mrs. Gordon's address—the only one of the contestants — the order of their appearance on the platform were Alberta Miss Margaret Kinnaird; Victoria High School. Miss Ernest Lapointe minister of justice stated in the House of Commons

Argument in dominion and provincial courts on the question as respecting power and property rights on waterways before the Supreme Court of Canada has been deferred until September by a decision made by Chief Justice Anglin

Prince Edward Island Edison Smith, of Provincial School, Provincial.

Ontario: William Fox, junior, of De LaSalle School, London.

Manitoba: Miss Muhle K., chief justice of the supreme court, presided as chairman, with Maxim Johnstone, of the Toronto Daily Star, annual chairman, as director. The judges were D. M. Kennedy, of Peace River, Alta., Rev. Canon Lamothe, P.S.I., Winnipeg, and Dr. Archibald, of British Columbia. F. Thorson, M.P. for South Centre Winnipeg and Prof. Cluerpo of Montreal.

The timekeepers and scrutineers were, Walter Kent, S. H. Henry, of the Teachers' Association.

The decision of the judges was unanimous. The subject matter of each of the contestants all of whom spoke on the "Future of Canada," covered much the same ground. Miss Matthison, of Edmonton, showed under the great disadvantage of a severe cold which seriously affected her vocal powers and handicapped her eloquence

Miss Muse as she stood before the judges, a set of facts, measured up in her task like a seasoned orator, but her voice was weak in so great an assemblage, notwithstanding, he appli fers used to earnestly the speaking She was cool in a plain navy blue dress, short with a red tie to harmonize with the shaded collar She evoked a spontaneous outburst of applause as she closed her brief but of spirituality made her many friends

Miss Matthison had a style that seemed to be to great advantage. Her subject matter was well selected and well treated

Edison Smith, of Prince Edward Island was visionary and original, but lacked style in delivery

William Fox, London, Ontario was easily the winner in point of subject matter personal appearance and delivery The one thing he lacked was what is known as "poise" in public speaking The spontaneous applause was the best evidence that the best man won.

Following the contest W. D Day ley, of Winnipeg spoke for brotherhood the thanks of the four provinces he represented for the co-operation and the splendid work of the local representatives J T Thorson, of Winnipeg also spoke, as did Dr James L. Hughes.

Messages of regret were received during the evening from Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister, and Hon R. B Bennett, Conservative leader, who could not be present

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Canadian National Men Tour To Great Britain and Denmark, 1928

Continued.

Our first engagement on the following day was to visit Liverpool Cathedral, one of the most beautiful examples of modern architecture in Great Britain and the largest ecclesiastical building in the country. It is 584 feet long and will take in all 76 years to complete It has now "been building twenty years." The wonderful cathedral is crowded in size only by St. Peter's, Rome; St. Sevils (Cathedral), and St. Paul's, London, New York. The style is Gothic and the building material red sandstone. The roof is of solid copper It is the first cathedral to be erected in the largest English countries for 600 years.

The material charged in the men of the dense relief in the War, is perhaps the most impressive part of the beautiful building. Here is to repose in a reredos lined with pure cloth of gold is now entombing the names of 40 000 men of all creeds who gave their lives in the great War. The volume itself has taken eight years to complete and the largest 24 karat gold chapel is ringed with the crests cut from the original war memorials. At the end is a "Window of Sacrifice" in the form of a cross, one of the greatest sets of stained glass in history. Flanking the high altar are the two largest pipes brought in solid oak, are two life size bronze figures of a soldier and a sailor.

The ceiling of the nave is the loftiest in the world, being 100 feet above the floor and the stained glass windows at one end of the nave are the largest in the country. The organ has 10,000 pipes and is operated by a console placed It cost 150,000 and is the largest in the world.

The crypt is directly under the spell of the beautiful cathedral that is to be. Here are the tombs of bishops to act with the Liverpool Produce Exchange, presided over by the Liverpool Provision Traders' Association. It is organized for the purpose of buying and selling of beeswax, hams, sides, lard, meats in pickle, in butter, cheese, eggs, poultry, and all products directly interested in Canadian trade. Its offerings are on a scale of exactly as liberal may be either option or spot. Liverpool is the largest market in Europe. The actual trading is practically all on "spot" basis and is now managed by telephone Considerable business is done from one city by the numbers who gave us a cordial welcome.

The president of the Liverpool Fruit Exchange and Auction was thoroughly fine. Being brought up from the farm auctioneer theirs view the fruit before the sale. The method of conducting the actual selling may be furnished with samples if desired. To facilitate this an elevator in the basement of the building. Samples from the basement of each lot offered for sale. These may be taken up or spread out in large shallow baskets in order that the buyer may get a fair idea of the whole lot.

The auctioneers work at the opposite end of the building in done by signal, and should the auctioneer miss a bid, as he occasionally does, the dealers express their disapproval by shouting. The president of the sale knows the name of every man in the hall. It is said that on one sale was as many as 16,000 boxes of apples in the building and that each one is a whole shipload was disposed of in a matter space of time.

Before leaving Liverpool, we had opportunity to discuss with representatives of the provision trades some of the problems in marketing Canadian products. Dr. Grisdale, M.P., and gained valuable information as to the requirements of the British market in bacon, cheese, butter and eggs.

Saturday, June 9th, due to leave for Manchester in the magnificent motor coaches of the Wales Travel Company calling en route at the Walton Hall Dairy School. This famous log breeding centre owned by Lord Daresbury, where herd of large Whites or Yorkshires that won awards at the most important shows in Great Britain. Several prize boars were brought out for our inspection and we were shown the system of cattle harvesting pens and some of the early season's litters. Individuals of this herd are shipped to breeders in South America, Italy, Finland, Hungary, Poland, Holland and Switzerland.

Near Manchester, Lancashire's greatest industrial city, although 35 miles in land, is connected with the port of Grew Britain This has been made possible through the construction of a ship canal, which has made it possible for ocean going steamers approach the very docks of the city

Within a radius of 30 miles of Manchester there are no less than 20 cities and towns are in the whole of Canada, and with a population of some 2 million people. Manchester is England and Wales.

Manchester is a great commercial centre, as well as being famous for its important cotton industry. Here are also situated the Smithfield Fruit and Vegetable Market, second in point of size only to that of its kind in the United Kingdom. Another market we had the opportunity to visit Z Acres. There we saw the famous Lancashire Plug Canal, extensive interests for milk supply, and model bakery and dairy, children and frozen meats.

We spent the morning in looking over the fruit, vegetable and produce market The party was divided into groups with well informed guides and was shown the produce in the market and the methods of carrying on business From here we proceeded to the Salmon factory of the Cheshire Pie Wholesale Society, where every process in the making of cigarettes, cigars, plug, twist or other forms of tobacco was shown to us in detail and before leaving we were presented with a substantial box of cigarettes and also one of cigars.

We next saw the buying room of the C.W.S., whose samples of products were spread out for our inspection also samples indicating the standards which they required for their purposes. We next proceeded to lunch in the great Assembly Hall at the Town Hall of the society, where we were addressed by two of the directors, Mr. Bradshaw and Councillor Sutton, who told us something of the history of the gigantic movement which has grown from a small organization of 48 affiliated societies to one with over 1,200, and resources exceeding $227,000,000.

When Radio is Expensive

Responsible For Lost Sleep On Part Of Devotees

Radio has created the world $60,000,000, says General Manager Bardoff, of the Radio Corporation of America. What is the value of the sleep it has cost the world?

There is no question but that that is one of the greatest troubles with the radio. It causes a woeful loss of sleep on the part of its devotees.

Take a man and a woman who must be at work by 7.30 or earlier in the morning, who night after night sit up with the radio until 2 or 3 o'clock, and this form of amusement is expensive. The expense is not its original dollars and cents at the time, but in lost rest, reduced energy and, in the end a breakdown of health.

Canadian Business Conditions Are Good

Report For End Of First Quarter Shows Business At High Level

At the end of the first quarter of the year Canadian business was running at a higher level. Out of ten leading colors of conditions reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics one is unchanged, compared with the end of year, and the others are all higher. Coal output remains at the same figure as at the end of December. The employment, pig iron, steel, bank clearings, car loadings, building permits, imports, exports and cost are higher, from one to twenty-eight points.

New Boarding Plane Tested

British Machine Heavily Loaded Travels 130 Miles An Hour

A further stage of development of aircraft for the commercial needs of aerial offence was reached when the Blackburn Ripon II., fitted with a 500 horse-power Napier "Lion" engine flew over the Humber river and dropped a torpedo weighing nearly a ton at an appointed mark in the presence of the air ministry officials and American and other foreign attaches.

The machine accommodates an observer as well as a pilot and mounts a machine gun in the rear cockpit. It can fly more than 130 miles an hour, rate carrying a load of 1¼ tons, can climb to several miles above ground level at its high speed, fly steadily at practically stalling speed and be controlled when actually stalled.

A development of a new fighter which until recently was on the air ministry secret list, also was given.

It is a Lyncott single seater with a 200 horsepower motor and is an experiment to show that a really efficient fighter could be produced with less than half the motorpower normally used.

Canadian Exhibits Abroad

Will Place Canadian Exhibits Throughout the British Isles

Major J. G. Gardiner, assistant deputy minister of trade and commerce, is sailing for England in connection with the installing of an extensive programme of exhibits throughout Great Britain with a view to further expanding the dominion's trade The visit of Major Gardiner is a result of the enlargement of the exhibitions branch which has recently been taken over by the department of trade and commerce.

Among the large centres in which empire exhibitions will be held during the present summer are Aberdeen Birmingham, Belfast, Bradford, Brighton, Hull, Dublin, Leeds, Leicester, Manchester, Newcastle, Portsmouth and Plymouth.

Surveying Air Mail Route

A survey will be made this year for a Canadian air mail route between Montreal and Winnipeg This will engage the services of a staff of men and locating landing fields. Recent announcement of four air mail contracts between points in Eastern Canada foreseen more extensive operations along this line at an early date.

To read all the United States laws would ake eight years and four months of steady reading, eight hours a day, counting in Sundays and holidays.

JESUS FACING BETRAYAL AND DEATH

Golden Text: "Not what I will, but what Thou will."—Mark 14.36.

Lesson: Mark 14.1-42.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 22.1-3, 16, 18.

Explanations and Comments

The Announcement Of the Betrayal, verses 17-21. As Jesus and His twelve disciples were eating the paschal supper, Jesus suddenly said, "Verily I say unto you, One of you shall betray Me, even he that eateth with Me." With great amaze each of the disciples heard this startling prophecy. One of them, one of that little group whom Jesus had been so closely united with their Lord's, was to be guilty of so infamous a treachery!

"Is it I?" one by one they questioned, in the form of the Greek implies a negative answer, as if each one said, "Surely I say not you. One of you should know well they were far too much ashamed of their own hearts to suspect their own. Each one surveyed each other, but there still remains therein much terra foreginin to himself" Thomas Fuller quaintly asks The mood of the disciples was not that of self-sufficiency. They did not indignantly deny the charge, nor passionately affirm their loyalty. Nor did they ask, "Is it Judas?" "Is it Andrew?" Each with head bowed in self-mistrust, "Is it possible that it is I?"

This is the test of sincerity for every follower of Christ. Let us read all of our Lord's words in this spirit, asking not whether they mean for us, how they apply to us.

"It is one of The Twelve he that dippeth with Me in the dish." Jesus had said. The dish was the one resembling the sauce of bitter herbs. No individual was singled out, but the words only emphasized the treachery of the betrayer. To John, Jesus had stated that it was Judas, John 13.26 "For the Son of Man goeth, even as it is written of Him." The cross was not an accident; the Lamb was slain from the foundation of the world. "But woe unto that man through whom the Son of Man is betrayed; good were it, for that man if he had not been born." Such a future sentence is a proverbial expression for the most terrible doom. In describing the thought of any deliverance, Jesus says, "Better" Dante's estimate of the turpitude of Judas' crime—he places the betrayer in the deepest depths of the inferno is probably a truer expression of the horror of his deed felt by the universal Christian conscience than are the the modern attempts to explain away his guilt."—Wm. A. Grist.

Rockets Will Propel New Plane

Pilot Plans Altitude Record and Return Trip By Parachute

The new rocket-propelled aeroplane is not going to blaze or other aderal destination, but only to the roof of this world's atmosphere. If it gets back safely, a more powerful type will be constructed for a trip across the Atlantic, which, He designers figure, can be made in four hours.

The Opel Werke, at Kassel, Germany, which is planning the experiment, has engaged Captain Julius Eaden, German war flier, to act as pilot of the aeroplane, says that it will be equipped by the Sander-Masters system of rocket propulsion, which should carry it well above an altitude of 30,000 feet. The plane will weigh 550 pounds. It will be equipped with a battery of rockets of 100 horsepower and less, which will be served by the pilot during the flight, also with oxygen containers and masks.

The plane will not be sent into space, but will take off at an initial speed of 37 miles an hour, which will be increased rapidly to 100 miles an hour, ascending to an altitude of 33,000 feet, on the assumption that rocket propulsion will operate at that and beyond 26,000 feet fogs and storms do not exist and blue skies and mild winds prevail.

No attempt will be made to penetrate beyond the earth's atmosphere's outer limit, as there is then a cold void in which living beings would be unable to exist.

After carrying out meteorological observations the pilot will effect a parachute landing, another parachute carrying the plane earthward.

Away To a Good Start

General Crop Conditions In West Are Most Favorable

With an optimistic survey of the general crop conditions in the three western provinces, a Winnipeg paper recently published its first general review of the season's prospects.

The paper is able to state with confidence that the prairie provinces had the largest area sown in wheat by May 10, that has been the case since 1921. Further, while only 90 per cent. of all the land sown was ready by May 23, last year, over 90 per cent. of the entire wheat crop was in the ground this year by May 15.

Continuing the report says: "All wheat has gone in on one of the best seed beds the west has seen in the last 14 years and the percentage of summerfallow and new breaking is also the largest for a number of years.

There is an increase in wheat acreage in all three provinces, ranging from nine to 13 per cent. and a larger percentage of registered wheat has been seeded than ever before.

"It is a long way to harvest but the West is away to a good start"

Mining In Saskatchewan

Ministry Of Mines Is To Be Created By Premier

Saskatchewan is going right after a place in the mining world, according to Premier W. M. Martin, President of the Regina Board of Trade, who is back from a trip east, in which he has been active in a study of the mining industry in all its phases. A ministry of mines is to be created by the legislature, he said. The Regina Board of Trade plans to extend its activities by the establishment of a mining bureau. While relief action is contemplated at the other principal cities in Saskatchewan Forty per cent of northern Saskatchewan is pre-Cambrian, Mr Van Vliet Rutherford declared.

With the letter in his hand Jack sat looking at his polished boots — his poor Canadian, isolated boots, the emblem of his own life. He had built his house with his own hands, lovingly, taking pleasure in driving every nail and fitting every board. And now—and now—so it had been with his life—he had lived it cleanly, decently.

Try as he would, Jack could not believe that Heimi had deliberately set fire to the house. It was unthinkable. If the worst he feared was true, it was some racial fault in her Heimi had not caused it. Jack had not indeed he know of her ra tional? He felt he knew her but little, although she was his wife. Something could also that—she was his wife.

A dog came whimpering to the door. Jack opened it. It was Sadie, thin and miserable, sorely nagged since old Him had gone, looked thankfully in and lay down on the mat the animal the crazy Englishman's dog. Mrs. Aickman and the Englishman had left for the south a few weeks before Here was the proof, and this explained the letters

"Arthur Warner," Jack had never heard his name He had seen him though, a strange, uncouth, unshaven figure.

Restraining a first impulse to drive the dog away, Jack coaxed her to come in, quieted her with caresses. Her feet were sore her nose red Jack went to the butcher shop and bought her some meat, which the hungry animal accepted gratefully. The dog was not to blame, whoever else might be

The butcher told him about the dog "The crazy Englishman had left all his dogs, but this one had run away, and, of course he could not bring himself to shoot her. Old Jim he let alter he was dead, but he could not bear to go to the hospital Yes, sure I'll give her house It's real good of you to be provided for her, Mr. Doran. Any man wasn't any friend of yours either was he?"

One routine Jack arrived at the must get out. He could not spend a night in his little broken house, every inch of which was so dear to him — the little house that had lent its soul to him.

When Jack left it he did not think of locking the door, although there were things in it, the stove, chairs, table, beds, for which he had paid his hard-earned money. But it do, not matter now. His little house, which he had built so eagerly, had been violated.

Jack sealed his letters and returned them to the Post Office, then hired a team at the livery stable and drove to Dunnerman where he would catch a train for Edmonton. On the way he met the time-keeper, who approached him with the usual greeting, "Say, Doran, you're going to be late for the fling."

He did not need to hurt his own thumb now—Jack Doran's face was enough. It had grown suddenly old and haggard and drawn. The time-keeper's countenance changed from a cheerful one to one of sympathy.

"What's the matter, Doran? Is there anything I can do for you?"

The man was about to go, but the magistrate waved him to a seat. "Mr. Doran, you were very indignant with the prisoner," he said. "I would say that I was very indignant, and of course I am ready to prosecute. I am sorry that you were very credulous, very credulous mistaken, but credulous. Since you are indignant, I will commit him for very bitter lesson. I did not harbor any ill will on the contrary, I was still ready to be a friend to him. I was your friend even though you accused my friendship." Old Blackwood began to fumble with papers. "Mr. Doran," he said, "I do not expect you to accept my position does not expect thanks we do not get thanks, but that is part of our duty. I am sorry to get thanks but I hope you see that I was trying to befriend you."

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Though my sing does look sweet in a baby but it is disturbing in the three-year-old. Especially when he bangs on until fifteen or sixteen. The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or make adenoids, and if he has them, forfeiture with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs which project further than the arms at the elbows are some of the ways to stop the habit

Another bad habit irregularity in bowel action is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in infancy. Give the child bowels an opportunity and it will not persist perhaps each time. If they don't act, give a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use for the occasional headache, gas on stomach and bowels constipation or sour stomach when baby is cross and irritable. Its gentle action relieves babies at once, enables him to get full mouth loosen the first tooth, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable, and harmless. The recipe is on the wrapper Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each purchase you get a valuable book about baby hood. Look for Chas H Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine

"PINKHAM'S COMPOUND IS WONDERFUL"

Read This Letter from a Grateful Woman

Yanoma, Ont.—"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine. I had a bad case of female trouble and my doctor said my only chance was an operation. I was afraid to go under the knife and I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and took them for a while and they made me well. I am now the mother of two children and am glad to recommend your medicine to any woman who is suffering from female trouble."—Mrs. Clifford Hall, R. R. No. 1, Yanoma, Ont.

From it I urge no formula to take. I did."—Miss. Milton Mollard, Yanoma, Ontario.

"The wonder metal of the age" is a fitting term for Aluminum. Its lightness, brightness, flexibility, freedom from rust, and many other good qualities, make it adaptable to a multitude of uses, a chief one being as a container par excellence for good food. Red Rose Tea is packed only in this modern metal package.

THE WALKING STICK

Appears To Be Doomed To Pass Into the Limbo Of Forgotten Things

The walking stick, so long the symbol of the Englishman at home or abroad, apparently is doomed to pass into the limbo of forgotten things as it of scarred things. A writer in the London Daily Express, after relating a number of walking stories that are annually left in trains and street cars by absent-minded travellers lays the blame for the decline of the unclaimed articles, declines that the day of the cane has passed

Even the umbrella, suspect, hates to be despised appanage of a gentleman which never walks at all, he declares, has not yet reached the point of decadence.

He was about to go, but the magistrate waved him to a seat. "Mr. Doran, you were very indignant with the prisoner," he said. "I would say that I was very indignant, and of course I am ready to prosecute. I am sorry that you were very credulous, very credulous mistaken, but credulous. Since you are indignant, I will commit him for very bitter lesson. I did not harbor any ill will on the contrary, I was still ready to be a friend to him. BUILT on a wheelbase of 107 inches—four inches longer than before—giving low to the road and with its hood streaming back in graceful, unbroken lines to blend with contours of the Fisher body—the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet is everywhere hailed as a car of outstanding distinction.

The new radiator is higher and narrower, and embellished with a large, fluted radiator cap. The hood is longer and deeper—artfully interspersing the greater staunchness, strength and fleetness of the new chassis. Windshield posts are slender and graceful bodies are beautifully beaded and panelled hardware is of period pattern, and roof lines are exceedingly low.

Interiors, too, are impressively rich—with new upholsteries, wide, restful seats, and a beautiful enclosed instrument panel—indirectly lighted.

Come, see this great new car—and you'll know why thousands have acclaimed it the world's most luxurious low-priced automobile.

Mr. H. H. Hebbert of Edmonton has been visiting W. J. Marnah of Cummings this week.

The local branch of the Red Cross Society will hold a Tag Day on June 11th. Come prepared to do your bit to help a very worthy cause.

Will the holder of the Elks' Dance Ticket No. 27 please communicate with Mr. A. T. Law, when he will receive the gentleman's gold watch offered by the holder of the lucky number?

The superintendent of the Vermilion electric light plant has requested the Standard to state publicly in the issue of the former week will operate on all holidays in future.

The fire brigade answered a call at 10:50 Tuesday morning to the rear of the dormitory of the Ukrainian Church. This will undoubtedly be one of the best construction years in the history of the town, secondary only to the two years succeeding the big fire.

*Next week-end at the Columbia: (June 7, 8, 9) "GIRL FROM CHICAGO" with Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy. Also a three-reel Harold Lloyd comedy "Never Weaken!"

The date of the next concert under the auspices of the Vermilion Citizens' Band has been changed to Sunday, June 17th, when the vocal and instrumental items will be provided by visiting artists from Vegreville.

Principal Markle is on the sick list and his place in the high school is being filled by Ted Kibblewhite, a former graduate of the high school and an old Vermilion boy.

Mrs. Owen Marryat of Camrose was visiting last week with her sister, Mrs. J. W. G. Morrison. Both are spending the week with friends at Fort Saskatchewan.

The future of the Red Cross activity is only limited by the loyalty of its members and the support given by the public.

There will be a dance in the Claremore school on Friday, June 1st under the auspices of the Claremore Community Club. 2-1p

The regular monthly meeting of the Vermilion Women's Institute will be held next Wednesday afternoon June 6th at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. A. Cameron. Subject—Canadianization, by Mrs Gould. Hostesses, Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. N Ganton. All interested cordially invited.

*JUNE 6th, Sports Day, and Tuesday, Wednesday, June 5, 6 at Columbia. Fred Thomson in "THE PIONEER SCOUT." Thrills aplenty in this great Western drama.

MARRIED

At the Sacred Heart Church, Edmonton, May 26th, Peter J. Bowe and Sadie A. (Mae) Kearns of Ottawa, Ont. daughter of Mr Peter J. Kearns. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Captain O'Gorman.

Mrs. Thos Watson of Colinton, Alta., who has been visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Wright, returned home on Monday after having spent a very pleasant holiday in Vermilion.

NOTICE TO SCOUTS

If the weather clears sufficiently for the grass and roads to dry on the surface, a Scout Hike will be held on Friday, starting from the Anglican Rectory, at 5 p.m. to return by 7.30 p.m. Scouts must bring enough sandwiches and cake for their own supper unless these are brought that Scout who discovers will not be able to eat on the hike. After the hike a Court meeting will be held in the Parish hall at 7:30 to arrange for plans for Monday, the 24th Sports Day. This meeting will be held even if the hike has to be rolled off owing to rain

There will be a Strawberry Social and Tea at the home of Mrs James Hay on Friday, June 8th, from 3 to 6 and from 7 to 9 o'clock p.m. under the auspices of the L.O.B.A. 3-6c

CONFEDERATION PLAQUE UNVEILED AT THE ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

The unveiling of a Confederation plaque on Empire Day was a pleasing feature of that day to the large gathering of pupils and citizens in the assembly hall of the Alexandra school. Dr. W. H Scott of the school board presided. The program included the singing of patriotic songs, a recitation from Lord Dufferin by Roy Cameron, a recitation "The Islands of Purity" by Norma Bedgero, and a reading "Canada's Future" by Roy Fraser. The plaque was unveiled by the Chairman of the Board. Mr. Morrison, who before doing so addressed the pupils and students outlining what was behind Confederation, pointed out the load taken by the great men of Canada in those days and asked them all to try and emulate those political giants in that it was a great thing for Canada that they lived. Such and every one of you, he said, should be good boys and good girls, play a lot but study hard as they did, and make up your minds that some day someone will say that you and you did a good thing for Vermilion, a good thing for Alberta, and a good thing for Canada."

The ceremony of the unveiling concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

Ratepayers Attention

I have received a letter from the Mid-Western Utilities addressed to the MAYOR and Councillors of Vermilion, in which they have outlined an offer to purchase the electric light and power distribution system of the Town of Vermilion. The exact details of the offer will be placed fairly before you at a general meeting which will be arranged for a date prior to the date of the vote on the by-laws advertised in the last issue of The Standard.

The terms of this proposal appear very attractive on the surface, but talking it on the whole, in my judgment, it is not as good an offer as that presented by the Calgary Power Co. I have every intention, however, of placing the whole question before you before June 22nd.

I cannot emphasize too strongly, the fact that you are going to be called upon to make the most momentous decision in the history of Vermilion By the exercise of your franchise within the next few weeks you will definitely shape the destiny of your Town. Providence has placed very marked advantages within your reach. Whether you appreciate that fact or not, will be demonstrated either by turning these advantages over to your own good, or handing them over in some private corners. Personally I feel confident that you are fully aware of the circumstances, but in any case may I urge everyone to give the matter most careful thought, be at the public meeting on the date set, but above all, turn out and vote one way or the other.

W. A. FALLOW, MAYOR.

Programme Will Be Highly Interesting

The programme to be presented at the Columbia Theatre on Sunday evening, June 17th, under the auspices of the Vermilion Citizens' Band, promises to be of exceptional interest. All the vocal and instrumental items, apart from the Band selections, will be provided by visiting artists from Vegreville.

The party includes Miss Clemente (pianiste), Miss A Kurisk (soprano) and Messrs. O. Williams, Crouch, Newcombe and Dr. Goodwin (vocalists) Mrs. W. Clements will act as accompanist

Miss Clements, the solo pianiste, is an Associate of Toronto Conservatory of Music and an artiste of recognized ability, while Miss Kurisk was the winner of the solo singing competition held in connection with the recent Vegreville Musical Festival

The male warblers combine in quartette and duet numbers, and have established a high reputation in this class of vocal work.

Mrs. W. Clements, the accompanist is well known as a musician of rare talent, who has done much for the advancement of music in Vegreville.

The visit of these artists on June 17th will be looked forward to by all who appreciate good music, and the Vermilion Citizens' Band are indeed fortunate in securing their services.

The full programme will appear in next week's issue of the Standard

Sport's Day A Big Success

Weather Unfavorable But Events All Held

The annual sports day of the Vermilion Amateur Athletic Association held on Monday, June 4th proved an other big success in fact—if any an even—if weather and double-up ar rangements—all the events were pulled off with the exception of the final game in the soft ball tournament being fought out at 7 o'clock, which only went 2 innings. Sharp showers fell from noon at intervals until 3 p.m. the rest of the afternoon while the rain came and rather chilly saw no rain fall and the ground went dry and with out a hitch till evening. The attendance at the grounds, while good was not so large as last year.

The morning attraction was the Calithumpian procession which paraded the streets of the town to the martial strains of the Citizens' Band under the leadership of Wm R Flood. The uniforms of this new famous aggregation of musicians was the source of considerable merriment followed closely by the fantastic costumes of the gaily decorated floats. Two Scouts, Ted Gibbs and Walt Cobb, complete costumed and made up, in the act of ... were indeed fortunate in securing their services. The full procession will appear in next week's issue of the Standard

Norse Celebration In Winnipeg

Expected To Be the Largest Gathering Of Norwegians Ever Held In Canada

The Norse Celebration at Winnipeg from July 5th to 10th, promises to be the largest gathering of Norwegians ever held in Canada. It will be an international gathering, for thousands of Norwegians are expected from the United States and representative men from Norway will be present. Many of the Canadians and United States Sydelags, or Norwegian Societies, and the League of Norsemen of Canada have arranged to hold their annual meetings in Winnipeg during the week of the celebration.

Besides a good program of recreation, music and speeches, there will be Norse art exhibits, several of which are being brought from Norway. The feature item on the musical programs to be given will be the singing by the 1,000-voice choir of the Norwegian Singers' Association of America.

Airmen In New Venture

Aviators Find Up To Check Spread Of Disease in Western Canada

Shooting mosquitoes from an aeroplane is the latest venture among aviators in the Royal Canadian Air Force. It has some of the fascination of a fast game, in addition to being an important undertaking for Canadian agriculture.

For the past few years the Canadian Federal Department of Agriculture has been trying to combat wheat rust, which makes its appearance in the great wheat fields of Western Canada, by working from the ground. The Department has now enlisted the aid of the Royal Canadian Air Force. The airmen, including a technical expert in agricultural bacteriology, are provided with sensitized plates which are exposed from the air. The spores of wheat rust, floating at high altitudes, are caught on the plate and analyzed under powerful microscopic contact. The use of sensitized plates and the airplane has revealed how rust has spread in the past, and provides a means of checking one of the menaces to the wheat crop of Western Canada and the Western States.

Use Of Electric Power Increasing

Canada Is Second In Per Capita Consumption Of Electricity

Norway, Canada and the United States lead the world in the per capita consumption of electricity power, according to a survey of the United States Bureau of Statistics by the authority place Canada's consumption for 1927 at 1,529 kilowat hours per capita, compared with 890 kilowatt hours in the United States. This is a remarkable gain as 2,600 kilowatt hours in 1925. Other statistics given in the statement afford comparisons of the relative pace in the ever increasing progress on the North American continent in 1927. The increase in the number of public utility plants in the United States from 1926 to 1927, was about 9 per cent. The output of central electric stations in Canada according to official figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in the same period gained 13½ per cent. The two statements also afford a comparison in the relation which water power bore to the total output in the United States the amount produced by water was 27 per cent. In Canada, 64 ½ per cent. was produced by water power, only 1½ per cent. of the electricity of central electric stations being produced by fuel. Camel Locate Owner

Ireland Unable To Collect Taxes On Valuable Load

How to collect taxes from a load that nobody owns and yet is occupied in pushing the May County Council has found in Letterkeh, North Mayo, are 2,291 acres, the owner of which cannot be found. Some time ago the Land Commission bought the estate of which those acres are part, but refused to include them as they contained nearly of mountain land and could not be used for farming. The adjoining tenants have taken possession of the mountain and now refuse it to commons. The Land Commission is unable to interfere, says the Mayo County Council wants, and cannot compel them to do so because they are not the legal occupiers

Farmers' Marketing Year

Canadian National Railways' Tour To Great Britain and Continent

Continued.

The Co-operative Wholesale Society quickroom almost every conceivable form of modern industry and commerce. It manufactures everything that the co-operator himself needs. It owns a fleet of ships, a printing establishment, wharves, warehouses, flotting stations, tea plantations in Ceylon and farms in the British Isles. It operates a bank, which has an annual turnover of several millions dollars; the flour Mill is the largest in Europe and works day and night. Indeed, great quantities of Canadian wheat are regularly ground. This was one special point of inspection. We were all equipped with long white coats and spent two hours seeing this tremendous mill.

Following our visit to the C.W.S. we were the guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held there by representatives of the Fruit and Vegetable Trade, who addressed us on the requirements of the Manchester market. We had been asked to gather such useful information.

We now hurried back to our hotel and to get ready for one of the outstanding functions it was our privilege to enjoy during our trip—the reception and banquet given by the Mayoress of Manchester. Over 1 200 guests were present at a meeting held in the Guildhall to meet us and the speeches, as all these people had to be the main body of the brilliantly lighted hall, while over here were seated the Lord Mayor, is one that will never be forgotten by any of our party.

On the morning of the 30th we were again in motion, this time to visit one of the greatest and most modern industrial sights of England. Here there were vast storage and handling facilities for products from every quarter of the Globe that find their way to Manchester. Some Canadian products were also in evidence. Shipments of apples were arriving here from Ireland, Denmark and other countries, but Canada was not in evidence. We saw the great sales room section in which there were also which the latest cotton storage safes are fitted with the most modern devices.

We were here privileged also to see one of the greatest industrial plants in the world, that of Messrs. Vickers Electrical Works—the magnificent Metro-Vick plant, the whole of which we had not seen it. Here, in fact, everything is electrical from the equipment of super-power stations to the smallest machine in the places. In the main shops each of the great cranes that find their way to 90 feet wide, the over-all width of the great bays and many other details was from the floor to the ridge of the roof. Each of the two main sheds is the great Metro-Vick plant for the electric cranes, which can pick anything in any part of the building.

We were next taken for a trip down the great Manchester Canal, by which ocean-going steamers reach the very centre of the city, 35 miles inland. Accompanied by the Chairman of the Board and many other officials we were rushed to view the great ship-canal locks at Eccles, and through the lock after lock toward the sea. Presently we reached the docking bridge over the Canal open to let our steamer pass and when it closed we saw, to our astonishment, that the docking bridge itself was part of a small canal on a higher level. Here the proceeds afterwards a number of barges passed over it.

The Manchester Ship Canal might well be called the 8th wonder of the world. Though a private company, it is owned by 40 000 private holders, many of them laboring men. The price of Manchester will in present position as a port, is almost entirely due to the completing of the Ship Canal. The long hard parliamentary fight for its construction developed in Manchester a co-operative spirit and civic pride which would be hard to duplicate. Of all these things we got very Canadian town.

After viewing the Ship Canal we were the guests of the company to a magnificent lunch in the Midland Hotel, to which were gathered the leading business men of Manchester.

Following this we paid a short visit to the Royal Exchange, the Produce Exchange in the world, with a ground-floor space of one and three-quarter acres. Unlike trading exchanges in our country, seats are not owned but members pay an annual fee basis. The Royal Exchange of Manchester represents chiefly the cotton industry and those allied to it. "High changes" is on Friday, when as many as 7,000 men may sometimes be seen gathered there buying and selling on the floor of the Exchange.

Our journey from Manchester to Wolverhampton provided a most delightful run through the countryside, which had reached Knutsford, a little town famous for Mrs. Gaskell, in her story "Cranford," a fog blanket had fallen. We "drove to," wondering if we would be able to continue the remaining 60 miles, or if this fog would become a sight to be seen by the side of the road, with every chance of being run into from behind by lorry or motorists. After an hour's wait, however, the fog lifted somewhat, and it was decided to push on as long as our drivers could see a yard ahead of them. The headlights were turned to the side of the road and with one man standing on the running board we made progress at about five miles an hour. During this long and tedious journey we sang songs and told stories, whiling away the time after all quite pleasantly.

We reached Wolverhampton at 11.30 where, notwithstanding the late hour we found the Mayor (Councillor A. E. Wood) waiting for us and a dinner supper which was certainly delicious. In the circumstances the Mayor was not all formality inviting us to join him after supper in the library where we were entertained. Here also we met Mr. R. W. Hodge of the London Office of the Canadian Pacific Railways, who, besides his business qualifications, has a first class reputation as a Canadian raconteur, and kindly gave us of his best. We left Wolverhampton immediately after breakfast for the home and the cosy factory of Messrs. March & Bastard, at Bletchley Hill, a small town a short distance out of Birmingham. Here we saw the one-of the finest of its kind in the country and Messrs. March & Bastard are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in bringing first to Great Britain. The Company believe that to maintain quality in their products, the very finest raw material must be used and to this end conduct educational campaigns amongst the farmers who supply them.

LIGHT LUNCH CHIQUETTES

Two cups left-over meat or fish may be used in this. Add ½ cup thick sauce for croquettes. Mold in desired shape, roll in dried bread crumbs, dip in egg and roll in bread crumbs and fry in hot fat. Thick cream sauce calls for 1 cup milk, 1-3 cup cream, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt and a touch of pepper.

RHUBARB PUNCH

1 quart rhubarb.
1 quart water.
1-3 cup orange juice.
1-4 cup lemon juice.
1½ cups sugar syrup.
Few grains salt.
1 pint mineral water.

Cut rhubarb in small pieces, cook with water until fruit is soft. Strain through double thickness of cheese cloth, add orange juice, lemon juice, sugar syrup and salt. When ready to serve pour over a cake of ice in a punch bowl, add mineral water and allow to get very cold. Makes 8 glasses; 24 punch glasses.

Big Aerial Camera

Machine Has Five Mile Range and Pictures Four Square Miles

An aerial camera with a range of more than five miles, designed to photograph areas as large as four square miles, has been built for the United States army air corps, the manufacturers announced.

It received its first tests at New York, and was sent to Wright Field at Dayton, O., where it will be installed in an army plane for extensive experimental photographic work.

The camera was made by the Fairchild Aerial Camera Corporation for use at altitudes at which photography never before has been attempted and without the range of anti-aircraft guns.

The per capita consumption in Canada of wheat ground for food for the years 1919-27 averaged 4.7 bushels.

Explanations and Comments

Pilate Questions Jesus, verses 1-5. —It was about six o'clock in the morning when the chief priests and the elders and scribes, the whole council or Sanhedrin, after holding a meeting, declaring Jesus worthy of death and binding Him, hurried Him to the Praetorium where Pilate held his court. Pilate was obliged to come out to them, for the priests would not pollute themselves by entering a Gentile court just before the Passover (John 18. 28, 29). They demanded that Pilate confirm their sentence of death pronounced [illegible] Pilate demanded to know what charge they brought against Him. They accusations they put forward: Pilate was concerned about one of them only, that He "made Himself the Jews?" Pilate questioned the Sanhedrin hierarchy, who brought against Him because they needed a political charge, one hostile to Roman supremacy, in order to influence Pilate. Perhaps there was something of contempt and sneering or pity in Pilate's voice as he looked at the wretched Prisoner standing before the pathetic picture of royalty. Pilate had the right to honor the Jewish custom and Jesus answered "Tes," as [illegible] translation of the Greek for "Thou sayest" means. (The Expositor's Greek Testament thinks one is hardly prepared for such a reply to an equivocal question, and says there is a temptation to seek escape in one of the words interrogatively—Dog Thou say so?—or evasively—I'm Sir You make no statement).

When the chief priests accused Jesus of many other things, he was silent. "Answerest thou nothing?" said Pilate: "Behold how many things they accuse Thee of." Still Jesus stood in regal silence, and Pilate marvelled. Jesus knew that no words would influence that one in their frame of mind. "I read very little in the life of Jesus respecting which Dr. Samuel W. Robertson writes, "but I hear a vast deal regarding His strange words born with a majestic, God-like silence."

"I have had to learn to keep absolutely still under every accusation," —Lincoln.

Nations Are All Interested

Many Aliens Preparing To Flee Adhesion Trip This Year

Almost every nation of Europe seems to have been bitten by the trans-Atlantic flying bug. Not only the larger nations like, Britain, France, Germany and Italy, but the smaller nations like Sweden and Holland as well are entering on the great aerial sweepstakes.

Now are some of the airmen content with a single flight. A few, like Captain R. H. McIntosh, who attempted a flight last summer expect to fly over and back. McIntosh with a flying boat says he will make a direct flight and crossing of both the North and South Atlantic.

The planes range from modest two-seaters like that of J. H. Charles, of England, and his wife, Lady Jone Charlton, to the 135-passenger airplane planned by Professor E. Rumpler, of Germany. E. P. Young, an English pilot, is building a plane capable of carrying 50 passengers. He has accepted the unique experiment of advertising for passengers, saying he will fly July 1 from London to New York.

The dirigibles in course of construction are attracting possibly more interest than the heavier-than-air machines. The R-100, is rapidly nearing completion at Howden, Yorkshire, England. It will carry 100 passengers, a crew of 40, ten tons of mail, and make the journey from England to America in 60 hours. The flight will take place in the summer. In England-norwegen, a sister ship, the D-LZ-127 is proceeding rapidly with semi-rigid airship, the RSB-1, about one-fifth the size of the R-100 is being built in Berlin. It is designed for a trans-Atlantic flight. In Germany, a Zeppelin is being built, competing in point of constructional speed with the R-100.

A Strange Luncheon Party

Twenty Guests Entertained Inside Great Organ At Royal Albert Hall

A luncheon party of twenty men inside an organ would seem impossible, yet this happened lately in the swell-box of the great organ at the Royal Albert Hall, London, beneath its 12,000 pipes and amid a storm of music.

The guests had come to be shown some of the intricacies of this wonderful instrument, which is soon to have added to it a solo organ with several thousand new pipes. It will then be the largest concert organ in the world.

At this strange luncheon party one of the hosts was Dr. Ingfield Hull, the organist, who in shortly giving a series of recitals to test every resource of the huge organ.

Praise For Canada

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin Cannot Imagine Anywhere Nearer Paradise

"If England ever gets tired of us, the Prime Minister and I will provide apply go to live in Canada, that is if we are not too old, for we were so delighted with the Dominion on our recent visit."

This was the declaration of Mrs. Baldwin, wife of the British premier, Stanley Baldwin, when addressing the girls at a distribution of prizes at the City of London school.

Mrs. Baldwin urged the girls to go to Canada for, she said, "there is no better place for young married people; and providing girls choose the right kind of men, I cannot imagine anything nearer paradise."

SHIP CHRISTIE'S BISCUITS BY AIR FREIGHT

When Major Fitzmaurice, the Irish member of the "Bremen" crew arrived at Seven Islands from Greenley Island, he said "Duke" Schiller, pilot of the relief plane, were met by Mr. L. A. Genest, Lower Quebec representative of Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, and Mr. Stewart of the Clarke Trading Company, who tendered them refreshments in the shape of hot coffee and Christie's Digestive wheat meal biscuits. The above picture shows the aeroplane which carried the first shipment of Christie's Biscuits by Canadian air freight from Toronto to Windsor.

Some Interesting Speculations As To What Future Holds For The Development Of Canada

Discussing the most recent statistics of Canada's national wealth placing the at $26,000,000,000, or $2,700 per head of population, the Monthly Journal of the British Empire Chamber of Commerce observes that "to make comparison with the United States it would be necessary to multiply Canada's wealth by twelve" in order to equalize conditions. This would give the Dominion an aggregate of $300,000,000,000 a sum that does not differ greatly from the estimate of the national wealth of the United States made for 1925. The Journal sees reason to believe that the national wealth of Canada will expand at a rate its great neighbor "will find it hard to exceed from the percentage standpoint." While the respective rates of increase will naturally be a matter of strong interest, much more important consideration relating to the development of the Dominion can be found elsewhere.

This was touched upon recently by the New York Sun when it pointed out that Canada is in a position to profit, proportionately more than the United States, from every advance made and to be made by science. Its industrialization is proceeding at an estimated that they may guide their activities not only by the success but by the failure of others. The increasing results of waste and wanton destruction, the possibilities of conservation and development of natural resources, are an open book to which chapters are added every day from industrial experience. Manifestly more economically far more efficient than anything now known, devices today are being perfected for the more remote possibilities, transportation facilities that will make what we are pleased to call inaccessible accessible, and immature, wise legislation and enlightened practices; these headings suggest, but do not exhaust the advantages that will arm men in the future as they unlock the treasure house of natural resources.

What is true of development in Canada is true of every other land hitherto unexplored. Today there is no measuring stick by which may be even faintly suggested the stupendous potentialities of the future utilization of the earth and the fullness thereof by man if he exercises ordinary common sense. Already the New York paper pronounces, have given many exhibitions of projection of that endowment.

WORLD TRADE IN NEWSPRINT PAPER

Canada's Exports Exceed Those Of All Other Countries Combined

According to the best data available the total export of newsprint paper from the different producing countries in 1927 was slightly more than 8,000,000 tons. Canada's export shipments accounted for over 60 per cent. of this total and the balance was contributed by some fifteen countries. Sweden, Norway, Newfoundland and Finland, each exporting less than 200,000 tons, were fairly closely grouped, while Germany and Great Britain had the major shares of the remaining trade. The diagram is based on figures published recently by the Newsprint Service Bureau.

The Dominion's commanding position in this field of international commerce is, for the time being, beyond dispute, but it should also be noted that other countries, notably the United States, Norway, Newfoundland and Finland, are each exporting less than 200,000 tons.

Because It Is Farmer-Owned

Because it is farmer owned, farmers expect, and they have a right to expect, the highest possible standard of service and treatment at elevators of this farmers' company.

And many farmers tell us that they do get such service and treatment at U. G. G. Elevators.

Five Reasons

WHY WHEAT PRODUCERS SHOULD SUPPORT

THE WHEAT POOL

1. Because your self-protection as a producer is incomplete and ineffective if private organizations can still exploit you by manipulating prices against you.
2. Because co-operation helps to uphold the standard of living by suppressing the element of profiteering in the grain produced by your labor.
3. Because co-operation eliminates unnecessary middlemen and dividend hunting shareholders, who take a heavy toll of the wealth produced by the farm workers
4. Because the co-operative principle of "each for all, all for each" is the workers' ideal which alone can bring economic and social justice, peace and prosperity, to all throughout the world.
5. Because the farm workers ought to concentrate their resources in co-operation instead of supporting capitalistic organizations hostile to co-operative movements athletic program and was followed with great enthusiasm by the large crowd of spectators. With a field of five summaries, R. H. McCall of Comrose, after running a splendid race, breasted the tape a winner, closely pushed by A. Hedich a few feet in the rear. Hedich was the winner last year. These were the only ones to finish, the other three dropping out as the race progressed and pace became too fast for them. Despite the heavy track McCall's time was remarkably good for the distance his time being 5 minutes and 29 seconds. He received a splendid ovation at the finish

BICYCLE DAMAGED IN ACCIDENT ON MONDAY

"Ahs!" snorted one of the Lading Henry made out of Lizzie, as she made scrap-iron out of Jimmy White's bike, while Jimmy himself was taking a nose dive to satisfy Mother Earth's ditch. The driver of the new Ford proved a gentleman, however, and returned to the mangled remains of the velocipede. "How much was it worth" quoth he, pointing to Jimmy's bike, which it must be confessed was of somewhat sinister vintage most of its known make. "Thirty dollars," piped up Jimmy, seeing the chance of a lifetime "Then we're even," said the driver, peeling off three tens from a roll. And Jimmy could expect a Ford owner to have and handing them to Master James. "Thanks," murmured the latter, picking up the wreck of his pedalmobile to continue on his way

PLAN CELEBRATION

The "twelfth of July" will be celebrated by the Orangemen of this province of the L.O.B.A. at Meanville this year, and a good program is being arranged for, by the committee in charge. It will consist of a baseball tournament with four of the best teams on C.N.R. between Edmonton and Lloydminster competing, also basketball and a full line of athletic events. Ten Vermilion boys band have been engaged for the day and will lead the grand parade at one o'clock from the ball park to the park. Other attractions will be the Wellesley bugle band, drum and fife music, and an address by the Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of Alberta, Past Grand Master S. S. McKenzie of Edmonton, and other prominent members connected with the Orange association.

WOLF CUB NOTES

On June 4th the Judge found it a hard task to pick out the six Wolf Cubs. Finally they decided that the White Cubs (parts scarlet) won 1st place — they were awarded $2.50. The Greys came second with $2.00 and the Tawnies third with $1.50. Of course we could not all win and the two remaining Cubs Browns and White Blacks—were not far behind in points.

Each Cub that won will have a letter ribbon with his name on it for the Totem Pole. This will include Leon Goold who turned himself into a black Cub by rubbing soot on his face—one of their members was unable to get in for the march.

A vote was taken on Tuesday on the matter of dividing up the pole money or using it for the Pack. It was unanimously decided that it should be used to buy a Wolf Cub Flag. All Cubs who have not yet done so are reminded that they must pay for the Bank Fund, to the next meeting.

Don't forget, Cubs, Akela offered a prize for the Cub who got best attendance at the end of June. It will soon be time to count up the marks.

GRIZZLY BEAR M. D. MINUTES

The council of the Municipal District of Grizzly Bear No. 453 met at Ireland on Saturday, May 26th. Reeve Shane taking the chair at 11 a.m.; also present Councillors S. E. Purser, R. J. Allan Roberts, C. Friedland, and Alex. Dickson; Mr. Green is still on the sick list. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Receipt of $62 reported as received from the Municipality's tenant at Vermilion. Correspondence submitted with the Salvation Army-Edmonton, regarding support of a destitute Norwegian charged to the Municipal District; agreed to refund $2 advanced by Dr. Bell to this party.

Estimates for the current year were finally adopted. Municipal tax to be unchanged at 10 mills. Requisitions from the various school districts were also submitted, and rates to be charged agreed to.

Sale of two quarters of land by the Secretary reported for $840.00.

W. E. Sutton wrote asking for a subscription on behalf of the Vermilion Schools Library. On motion of C. Friedland council agreed to give $25. Also on motion of S. E. Purser to donate $75 to Vermilion Agricultural Society.

A petition, signed by twenty-five ratepayers, was presented by R. E. Webber, asking that the Council open a mile of road on the blind line between Sections 15 and 22-55-5-4, and between sections on the same line further east. Agreed after due consideration to proceed at once in opening said north of Sec. 15 and in doing so, notice as to remainder asked for until later in the season.

Appeals against Wild Land Tax assessment were allowed to Hudson Bay Co. in respect to three quarters on Sec. 26-47-1-4, and Pt. 26-19-4-4, but refused for Sec. 8-54-1-4. Appeals were also allowed against N.E. 24-49-4-4 and N.E. 34-49-1-4. Note was made of reduction in the Cold Water district of White Cloud No. 6235, taking in S.E. corner of Tp. 47-6 and a nine mile slice on west side of 47-6, south of the Battle River.

Invoices were submitted for new grader for Div. 6, new machine for Div. 2 and plow and machine for Div. 5.

Letters were submitted from the C. P. R. Co. as to land taken in road deviations from R.W. 8-49-4, N.W. 35-49-4 and N.E. 25-49-4, and from the C.N.R. as to land taken from N.E. 10-49-6-4, were tabled for enquiry. Settlement of claim for land taken for roadway from N.W. 49-6-4 was delayed pending registration of survey.

Accounts passed and ordered paid were: Stamps $10.09; Mothers' Allowance $7.50; Manning Hardware Co. $1.50; Vermilion Press $5; Pt. 2-3-50, Vermilion Cartage Co. 2.00; A. Friedland 25.86; S. E. F. The first Lady Minto nursing hospital has just been erected at Islay. Ten months ago there was nothing of it, today there is a neat little building equipped throughout and with nurses and a doctor in charge. The municipal spirit in all this is Miss Tweedie, an Englishwoman who came to the west to visit her sister at Islay. While there it came to her how great a need there was for such an institution if the pioneers were to be given a chance to save for her life and that of her child. Miss Tweedie talked of the necessity, Miss Tweedie went forth to meet it, and the Islay hospital will stand as a mark of the indefatigable effort and unflagging zeal of Islay lady.

"I cannot see anything very clearly," said Jack, miserably; "I only know my wife has gone. Circumstantial evidence seems to be against her, but nevertheless I will do my utmost to find her. I will take her word against the world."

The magistrate laughed softly, but there was no mirth in the sound. "Have a care, my dear young friend," he said, "and forget her."

"No, thank you," said Jack. "I do not drink, and I am pretty sure I will never forget her."

Jack was looking out his wide view of the winter landscape, with the magnificent river, covered with snow and ice, and the long line of trees on the other side. Everything was the same as when he had come to this room with his wife, and yet how different! Then he had been happy and full of hope, and now—

"Have a drink, man," said Keith, grinning; "He told me some of the wildest stories I ever heard."

"I couldn't stand him and his station," Jack said with warmth, "but whatever you are writing about; write in the words as you can; cut out the purple patches, be sincere with our being dull, grip the subject before you. Don't be afraid to use the word 'I' in your editorials. I'm a simple English our fathers have held us down to us"

NEGLECTED ANAEMIA

Often Leads To the Most Serious Consequences

In no disorder is delay or neglect more dangerous than in anaemia. Usually the first noticeable signs are pale lips and cheeks, dark rims under the eyes and a feeling of weariness. Then follow headaches, backaches, palpitation and breathlessness. The only way that anaemia can be overcome is to enrich the blood, and it is because of their wonderful blood enriching and blood-making properties that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have won such great success in the treatment of that often most stubborn disease.

Thousands of young girls who were in an anaemic condition owe their present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. One of these, Miss Kate McEachern, Port Hood, N.S., says: "I state the day I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not been feeling well for some time. I was very pale, had severe headaches, and my general appearance was one of languor. The least exertion would leave me tired and breathless. In this condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I continued their use until I had taken six boxes, by which time I was again enjoying good health. I hope my experience will lead other sufferers to give this medicine a fair trial."

If you are at all run-down, or weak, you should begin at once to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon be well and strong. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Teeth and Health

Issued By The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council and Published By The Saskatchewan Dental Society

DENTAL HEALTH PILLARS

"Sugar and spice and everything nice" may be what little girls are made of, but certainly such a diet would never build strong, healthy little girls and boys.

With the child properly started on the road to health, through the mother's careful dietary habits, there must be no slacking in this regard, if it is to continue safely along the way.

Proper diet from the nursing period up through adolescence has much to do with teeth and health. It is now that nutrition plays the chief role in the formation of healthy tooth tissue or in their early degeneration and decay. But hand in hand with this must go the maintenance of cleanliness through training the child in the best and most thorough mouth hygiene.

The notion that the deciduous teeth being replaced by successors can therefore be allowed to go without the care necessary to keep them sound and comfortable is most mischievous. Too early loss of these little teeth from any cause, leads to disturbances of the permanent dentition with consequent general disorder.

It must be better for the young child not to know the taste of sweets or the dentist, at least, than years of age and thereafter at stated intervals. Regular visits to the dentist should be made before there are any cavities in order to establish the confidence of the young child in these sensible, helpful friends and of dental treatment, with its consequent neglect of mouth conditions among adults has arisen through recollections of a painful and occasional painful spells. The least exertion would leave me tired and breathless. In this condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I continued their use until I had taken six boxes, by which time I was again enjoying good health. I hope my experience will lead other sufferers to give this medicine a fair trial."

LLOYDMINSTER TO HAVE RECORD FAIR

Hope to Have Premier King, Hon. R. B. Bennet and Other Leaders

Lloydminster, June 1.—For the past two or three years the Lloydminster exhibition has had some special attraction, such as the arrival of the first C.P.R. train, Barr colonists re-union, Aaron Sapiro as the chief speaker, but this year Manager Huxley expects the biggest summer show will eclipse anything that the exhibition board have ever attempted. As a matter of fact 1928 is to be an extraordinary special year in the history of the Lloydminster Exhibition Association. There are three special events to be celebrated this year, namely, the 25th anniversary of the arrival of the Barr colonists in this country, the coming of age of the town of Lloydminster, and the coming of age of the Exhibition Association.

Although a definite program has not yet been decided upon it is understood from Manager Huxley that in all probability the first day will be set aside for the commemoration of the Barr colonists, the second day for the commemoration of the Exhibition association, and the third day, Citizens' Day, for the commemoration of the coming of age of the town.

Each day will have its official opening, and it is expected that the following will attend the fair during the three days: Right Honorable Mackenzie King, premier of Canada; Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition; Hon. J. E. Brownlee, premier of Alberta, Hon. R. Gardiner, premier of Saskatchewan, Hon. Geo. Langley, who was dominion land agent at the time of the Barr colonists, Right Rev. G. E. Lloyd, bishop of Saskatchewan; W. W. Robinson, dominion immigration officer at the time of the Barr colonists. Several of the above have already accepted the invitation of the association. The management of the Exhibition are doing all in their power to put this year's show over with a bang.

The exhibition board have just purchased from the town of Lloydminster 10 acres, adjoining the present exhibition grounds to the south they are also building a new barn, extending the sheep and pig pens, extending the space for the exhibition of ladies' and domestic work. Other needed improvements are also to be made in time for the big summer exhibition.

WHEAT POOL NEWS BULLETIN

Wheat Pool elevators in Alberta will be operated on a cost basis to patrons. This decision was reached by the seventy delegates assembled in convention in Calgary, commencing May 29th. It was decided to make this policy retroactive. The season earnings of the elevator system during the 1927-28 crop year will be distributed to the Pool members who put their grain through these elevators.

The change in elevator policy was recommended to the delegates by the directors and two proposals submitted. The first proposal was to eliminate handling and service charges upon delivery of the grain to the Pool elevator and deduct the actual operating cost on a per bushel basis from the final Wheat Pool payment. This method was adopted by the delegates after a lengthy discussion.

The second proposal was to make the usual elevator charges to Pool members delivering their grain and to refund to patrons at the end of the fiscal year any excess charges over and above actual operating and overhead costs. The Saskatchewan Pool embodies this policy in the operation of its elevators.

The new policy decided upon will mean a distribution of Pool elevator excess earnings during the present crop year only to those who patronized Pool elevators, on the following basis: (1) through Pool country houses, (2) platform shipments to Pool terminals, (3) through non-Pool line elevators to Pool terminals. The incoming tariffs in the different existing Pool elevators on an actual cost basis as described elsewhere in this article.

The new policy will never operate to increase the volume of grain passing through Pool elevators. C. H. Hall, general manager of the elevator system, in addressing the delegates, strongly urged that members use their own facilities to the fullest extent. He pointed out that only by following this policy could the elevator system be able to function with the greatest economy, and the full objective for which the system was built be realized. This coming harvest the Alberta Pool will have about 90 new line elevators in operation and three terminals at the Pacific coast. In order to bring it emphasized that every effort be made to have Pool grain handled through Pool elevators.

George McIvor, general sales manager, addressed the delegates and pointed out the advantage to the Selling Agency of having Pool grain in Pool elevators readily available to complete sales at any time. He stated that by placing their grain in their own elevators, Pool members can assist Pool salesmen to get better prices for their grain.

The new policy laid down by the Pool delegates will mean something new in co-operative effort in Canada, if not in the world. It means that members will be charged only the bare cost of operating the elevator facilities. When they haul their grain into Pool houses no service or elevator charges will be made. At the end of the fiscal year the actual operating cost will be deducted from the final Wheat Pool payment.

The decision to change the elevator policy was arrived at only after prolonged consideration. Every angle of the question was fully considered and debated

A fire which did $35,000 worth of damage visited Mannville about midnight Wednesday of last week. The Bedard and Breault blocks were burned down including electric light plant, garage and twelve cars and the post office building. The fire was first discovered by Mr. Bedard of the Mannville garage in the power house in rear of his garage. Two loads of firemen went up from Vermilion and responded what assistance they could.

CARDSTON TO HAVE $60,000.00 HOSPITAL

Announcement is made by the Department of Indian Affairs that a hospital costing in the neighborhood of $60,000 will be erected in the town of Cardston. Construction work will start very shortly on this building, which is intended for the benefit of the Blood Indians in that section of the Province.

Final arrangements for the Alberta Institute of Co-operation which will be held at the University from June 25 to 29 were made at a meeting of the executive committee held in Calgary on Monday, June 4. A large number of farmers and others from all parts of the province have sent in applications for attendance at this event while premises in be a milestone in the history of co-operative activity in marketing in Alberta

BIGGER WORK ON NEW LLOYDMINSTER LINE

Lloydminster, June 4.—The Brosta Construction company has commenced this morning the grading of a new branch line of the C. P. R. out of Lloydminster.

The work is being started at the 7 just east of town and the line will run in a northeasterly direction through the Greenwood and Tangleflag districts. It is expected that from 10 to 15 miles of steel will be laid by this fall and a quantity of this year's crop will be moved on this line.

WATER HILL WORK IN ONTARIO SUNDAY

Toronto, June 4.—Motor traffic on Ontario highways claimed a total of nine lives yesterday, while at least five others were seriously injured. The most serious accident of the day was reported at Thamesville, where two men were killed and four injured in a head-on collision crash of two United States touring motor cars.

WEED CONFERENCES TO BE HELD

In connection with the extensive program of weed control and eradication to be conducted during the coming summer, arrangements have been made to hold two-day conferences at a number of points in the Province in the near future. The first will be held at the four Provincial Schools of Agriculture, at Raymond on June 12 and 13; Claresholm, June 15 and 16; Olds, June 19 and 20; Vermilion, July 3 and 4, and at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, July 5 and 7.

These conferences will be attended by the Provincial field supervisors, weed inspectors of local improvement districts and municipal districts, secretaries, inspectors and other municipal officials who are interested in coping with the problem of the spread of noxious weeds. The public is cordially invited to attend these free courses at which the approved methods for the control and eradication of weeds will be outlined, in order that the widest possible measure of support may be secured by the Department of Agriculture in the war being waged on these troublesome and costly pests.

A TALK TO HOUSEWIVES

Real warm summer weather is just around the corner, hot days when it is impossible to find a cool spot anywhere, when hot food is nauseating and cold dishes are the order of the day. It is then that the housewife has to use her wits to invent and invelop dishes that will be tempting and at the same time nourishing.

The most perfect food we have is milk. It is the cheapest food we have and it is of such foods the most difficult to collect, handle and transport. It requires the greatest care from cow to consumer, and from consumer to consumer. Milk spoils quicker than any other food. It is difficult to handle during the winter and much more so during the hot summer days. It must be kept CLEAN, COLD and COVERED.

Milk tastes good; it is easily digested and is most nourishing. It makes bone, brawn and blood. Indeed it isn't too much to say that the vigor and success of a nation depend largely upon the amount of milk it uses. Milk is the great factor of safety in diet. It makes the ration complete, promotes growth and keeps the body strong. In the warm months when meat is not desired, various dishes can be made with milk, both hot and cold, and the cold ones are delicious. The housewife and mother need never worry about the question of calories and vitamines for the little folks if she feed them milk, milk that has been kept covered, cold and clean.

The various members of the germ family love two things:—Suitable food and warmth in which to grow and multiply. Milk is to them the choicest of foods and warmth milk is their paradise. When the housewife buys milk she does not buy a "germ paradise," she buys a nourishing food for her family. So she buys milk that she knows had been handled in a proper manner. She keeps it covered and cool. For those who have no refrigerator an efficient ice box can be made at home. Write to the Red Cross, 410 Civic Block, Edmonton, Alta, and get instructions how to do it. Recipes of delicious dishes with milk as the main ingredient can be had from the same source.

HOTEL LEASED

The Dwyer hotel at Mannville has been taken over by a Chinese syndicate and is now being operated on the Chinese plan. H. Dwyer, the owner of the hotel, has leased his property, and has moved to his farm 12 miles southeast of Mannville, where he intends engaging in farming and gardening.

Talk Peace To Have Peace

It is now fairly well recognized by students of international relations that one of the causes of war is to be found in the constant predictions of war, in references to "the next war," and surmises as to the varying forms which hostilities will take when nations again take up arms against each other. Those who constantly predict war are, says a college president, "not simply reporters of probable events, they are actual causes of war, generally among the chief causes. That is, talk is war and you have war.

Refer-ging the re-creation of this war, it is equally true that if the statesmen and leading men in all countries cultivate the habit of talking peace instead of war, the world will have peace. "The oftener world peace is discussed among serious minded men and women," says a United States paper, "the better the prospect that war can be at last conquered," and it adds that the more intelligent leaders of democracy the world over can be brought together to consider steps for peace As they gather from time to time at Geneva the brighter becomes the prospect that ultimately—perhaps no her than most of us now believe war will be abolished.

War after all, is largely a state of mind. Let the people of any community or country begin to talk a pessimistic view of things and constantly harp upon business depression and hard times, and it is inevitable that depression and hard times will come. Equally true is it that when people talk prosperity and adopt an optimistic tone, a revival in business and industrial activity follows If, instead of thinking of "the next war" and talking war, people think and talk peace, then peace rather than war will prevail.

It has been reported that the Supreme Court of the United States has settled the case of dispute between the States, and in Canada our Supreme Court and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, have settled numerous disputes between Provinces and between Provinces and Dominion. Why should not disputes between nations be settled in a like sensible way? There is quite as much justification for two States or two Provinces to declare war and fly at each other's throats as there is for two nations to take such insane action.

War is a stupid business It settles no issues. It comes about when a little group of men get into a quarrel with another little group. The law does not allow individuals to settle disputes by combat, but nations, both civil and international as should in like manner, outlaw war as a means of settling disputes between nations. War between nations is evidence that the leaders in those countries have not the requisite intelligence or sufficient patience to find a way out, so they select the finest men on both sides and set them pounding each other into the mud and blood and blowing each other to bits. The side that can kill the most men is the wiser and gets its own way. There is no reason employed in the settlement.

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador at Washington, in a recent address said, "If it can be proved to a man that if his country goes to war for any issue short of its absolute liberty of action at home, and in defence of that liberty, he will in future stand a very good chance of being bombed in his home; if we can show him that even though his country may be victorious, he will certainly have his taxes increased by 300, 300, 400 or 500 per cent; if we can make it clear to him that for the sake of some issue to which he is probably an entire stranger he risks having to give up that new Ford next month, or, even worse, that he may very probably be thrown out of work—he has lost the fair of millions in Europe after the last war; then perhaps he may find war less pleasingly dramatic and may hastily himself to see that as a means of settling disputes between nations, it is better abandoned." So far as statecraft is concerned, the fear of war is the beginning of wisdom.

Some people may be inclined to doubt the value of Peace Talks, Peace Agreement Conferences, and treaties between nations outlawing war, but the fact is there are all factors in educating people and helping to create sentiment, develop a peace consciousness in all countries. And, let it be repeated and emphasized, the creation of such a consciousness is the strongest of all guarantees for the maintenance of peace.

Due To Irrigation

There are now eight irrigation projects in Southern Alberta covering a total acreage of 400,446, of which 188,930 acres are irrigable. One of the largest projects, the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District, reports having have been doubled its occupied area within the past two years, trebled its production, and increased its population two and a half times.

Medical Aid Caravan

A medical aid caravan will circulate throughout Northern Alberta this year If it has been sent out by the provincial department of health and is in charge of Dr. R. T. Washburn, assistant-professor of the University of Alberta hospital.

Beautifying School Grounds

Because of the co-operation of the forestry farm at Indian Head, splendid progress in beautifying school grounds with trees has been made this spring. A total of 185,000 trees have been bedded in 167 school grounds throughout Saskatchewan. These include 87,700 maples, and 60,850 caragana.

A man who had been asked to make his after-dinner speech as short as possible, arose and said:

"I am asked to propose the toast that the less said about him the better!"

A British scientist predicts that, in time to come, men will be born without ears. We thought, in our ignorant way, that they usually were born that way.

Tribute To British Flag

Union Jack Made Union Flag Possible Says South African Councillor

A great tribute has just been paid to the Union Jack, and satisfactorily enough from that country in which there has been some commotion about it South Africa. A press despatch from there says that native affection for this flag was eloquently demonstrated at a General Council of the Transkeian Territories which might be described as a native Parliament, when the Council unanimously passed a resolution that the Government be requested to permit the Union Jack to be flown with the Union of South Africa flag on all Magistrates' offices in the native territories. A Councillor asked the reason for the request and there old friend the Union Jack, which had freed them from slavery and which was the only flag they knew. His did not object to the Union Flag, but pointed out that were it not for the Union Jack there would be no Union flag. We might also venture to say that were it not for the Union Jack there would be no Canada as there is today.

FIGHTING FOR BABY'S HEALTH

Is the Constant Care Of Every Young Mother

The young mother has a constant care in looking after the welfare of her little ones. Childhood ailments come on so sudden—sometimes without a moment's warning. The mother may have a very sick baby on her hands before she has time to realize it. That is unless she has a remedy in the house which can be relied upon to safely give the baby for any of the many minor troubles of childhood and childhood.

Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. Mothers throughout the country always keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets at hand, for they proclaim them to be without an equal for unvetexing baby's stomach; regulating his bowels and thus preventing out constipation and indigestion, driving away the simple colds and simple troubles, the dreaded teething period easy.

Baby's Own Tablets are also absolutely safe remedy. They are guaranteed not to contain opiate or any other narcotic drug which are so harmful to the little system of the baby. Mothers, if you value the life of your baby, you give him well the Baby's Own Tablets when he is ill, or, better still, give him an occasional dose of the Tablets to keep him well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tractors On the Farm

Western Farmers Investing More Heavily In Motors For Heavy Duty

There are in Canada today 77,192 farmers who have 854,231 horses in use, and 10,325 tractors. In Saskatchewan records show that there are 37,000 with 1,190,566 horses, and 24,367 tractors. Manitoba has 51,390 farmers with 537,000 horses and 2,000 tractors. The survey would indicate that while the horse is yet far from being a back number on Canadian farms, the day of the tractor has definitely arrived.

Spare the children from suffering! Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator Powders, a most effective vermifuge with which to combat these insidious foes of child health, are unsurpassed in an excellent worm destroyer, and when its purpose is accomplished it leaves a household no other will be used. The medicine acts by itself, requiring no purgative to assist it, and so thoroughly that nothing more is desired.

Parachute Lands Plane Safely

Invention Of California Man Proves Possible In Test

A small lightplane has been landed safely from 2,000 feet by means of a huge parachute, without injury to its pilot or damage to the plane, in the first experiment, performed privately at Tracy, Cal., was designed to prove the possibility of using a parachute to shield planes to insure safety of passengers. A Jenny biplane, piloted by E. J. McKeown, was used in the test.

The plane dropped about 2,000 feet with its motor idle, when the huge parachute, more than 100 feet in diameter, opened out. McKeown stayed with the ship all the time, when he hopefully slackened. He said he felt only a slight jar when the plane landed and the folds of the parachute enveloped him. The biplane was not damaged except for a minor bend in the tail assembly.

The parachute is the invention of Charles Roderick, San Francisco who with numerous other airmen, expressed complete satisfaction over the result of the experiment.

Special delivery stamps are manufactured for 16 cents per thousand.

Progress Has Been Made

Sending Messages By Beam System Is Marvel Of Speed

What the human voice has done for long-distance communication was explained by J. H. Thompson, chief engineer of the Marconi Wireless Company, to the members of the Montreal branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, recently. Using slides, the speaker produced a graphic picture showing a telegraph operator in Commodeville, Quebec, using an instrument resembling an ordinary typewriter and sending message at the rate of 100 words to the minute, to be received almost instantly by an operator at Dorchester, England.

Mr. Thompson illustrated the progress made in wireless transmission by showing the crude instruments used in the early days of wireless, the progress having been so rapid that equipment of stations used 15 years ago are not used today. The beam system itself, he said, was the result of experiments by which all the energy available for the sending station was successfully sent in one direction thus establishing a beam of energy.

Seed Growing In B.C.

Industry On Vancouver Island Rapidly Increasing In Importance

Seed growing is one of the latest industries of Vancouver Island of steadily increasing importance. Vancouver Island sweet pea seed sells on the English market from three to four shillings per pound more than the California seed. The largest individual seed farm on the island produces yearly about two tons. From 15 to 20 women are employed each year to pick, clean and pack the seed whose excellence and high quality is becoming world-famous.

When Pain Comes

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali with a neutralizing action acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians for the 80 years since its invention. In the powder or in tablet form (each tablet contains the same quantity of the powder) it is equally effective. Just take a little when you feel sour, gassy, upset. Instantly the acid is neutralized and you are relieved. Don't be satisfied with substitutes. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 80 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions. Buy it today.

OCEAN STEAMSHIP SERVICE

White Star Line Paying Particular Attention To the Canadian Trade

The importance of the Canadian route was a point strongly emphasized by Lord Kylsant at the annual meeting of the White Star Line held in London, Eng., on May 14th, according to cable despatches to the White Star Line in Montreal

Lord Kylsant, chairman of the Board of Directors, and an outstanding figure in world shipping, recalled the days of 1871, when the R.M. Oceanic inaugurated the White Star Line Steamship Service across the Atlantic, and from that date he traced, by progressive steps, the development of the company.

The shareholders in the company now number about 15,000, he said, "and after providing for the depreciation of the fleet, and paying the dividend on the preference shares, we recommend a dividend of six per cent. on ordinary shares and the balance carried forward.

"There was," he said, " a slight increase in the number of passengers travelling to and from the United States of which we secured a fair share," and from this fact he went on to state that "we have, for some time past, been giving our most serious consideration to the very important question of the construction of a new express mail vessel so that we may continue to maintain the proud position and traditions of the White Star Line in the North Atlantic trade.

Lord Kylsant announced that the company has under construction at Belfast a "passenger motor vessel of about 28,000 tons which we expect to put into commission in the 1'all of 1929. She will be not only the largest passenger ship engaged in the New York-Liverpool trade, but also the first motor passenger vessel to be placed in that service.

"We have," he continued, "given particular attention to the requirements of the Canadian trade, in addition to our regular service from Liverpool to Quebec and Montreal, in which we have planned the new Laurentic, we have established a service from London, Havre and Southampton to Quebec and Montreal, and to cater more especially to south of England and continental passengers travelling to and from Canadian ports on this service.

"From Channel ports we have placed the Alberic and the Megantic, the former vessel being the largest ship to Montreal."

After mentioning that the White Star Line have transformed the Adriatic, 24,500 tons, into a cabin class steamer, thereby having the largest cabin steamer in the world, Lord Kylsant dwelt on the importance of the tourist third cabin trade. This trade, he said, that this accommodation has enabled many with the desire to travel, but who previously did not feel sure able to gratify their wishes, to realize their ambitions.

"The White Star Line," he continued, "is using a larger share of this class of travel than any other company. Passengers in this cheaper category are assured comfort and good catering combined with exceptionally low rate passage money for the return voyage."

In dealing with the emigration question, Lord Kylsant said that "shipping companies engaged in trans-Atlantic trade used to carry large numbers of emigrants from Great Britain and Ireland and other countries in Europe, but the United States immigration restrictions have reduced this traffic materially during the year. The crop should begin to move to market about July 1.

ECZEMA IN RASH ON HANDS
Troubled For Three Years. Healed by Cuticura.

"I was troubled with eczema on my hands for three years. The trouble started in a rash and then formed pimples. They would itch and burn and in order so I could hardly put my hands in water. At night the pain in my hands were terribly inflamed and disfigured. I had to wear gloves to keep from scratching.

"I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and sent for a free sample. I got relief from it so I bought more and after I had used them for three months I was healed." (Signed) Miss Gordon Elliott, Highland', Que.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes.

A sample each free by return mail. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. X, Malden, Mass. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c.

Swedish Air Service Safe

No Damage Or Loss In Three Years Of Operation

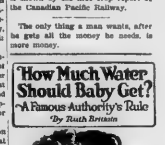
Three years of operation without an injury to a passenger or damage or loss to merchandise or mail is the record of AB Aerotransport, the corporation that carries on all commercial aeronautics in Sweden. The company has just announced that during this year 622 of the 640 planned flights have been made. It is subsidized by the government, and conducts regular air service during the summer months, between Stockholm, Helsingfors, Malmo and Amsterdam, and assists a German concern in operating the latter line from Stockholm to Berlin. The route covered probably will become a stage of the London-Leningrad line.

She Oil For the Athletic.—In rubbing down athletes you will find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil an excellent article. It renders the muscles and sinews pliable, takes the soreness out of them and strengthens them. It strains that may be put upon them It stands pre-eminent for this purpose, and hundreds who for years, have been using it can testify to its value as a lubricant.

Increase In Acreage

Increase in acreage of every grain in the Lethbridge Railway division, with an increase of over half in rye, is shown by the first crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The only thing a man wants, after he gets all the money he needs, is more money.

How Much Water Should Baby Get?
"A Famous Authority's" Rule
"By Ruth Brittain"


Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, baby must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.
Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria, for these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, "cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc. leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable the recipe is on the wrapper and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he incres as in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.
Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package as you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottle contains thirty-five doses.

WOULD AMEND THE DOMINION ELECTIONS ACT

Ottawa. — Parliament will address itself next session to the amending of the Dominion Elections Act on the report of the committee on privileges and elections is adopted by the House of Commons.

The committee, under the chairmanship of J. J. Denis, Liberal-Joliet, considered their report, the fruit of several weeks of investigation into the Athabasca elections of 1926, when an inquiry by Mr. Justice Clarke, of Edmonton, established that corrupt and illegal practices had taken place.

The committee will recommend to the House that since the report of Mr. Justice Clarke discloses that the cause of the corrupt practices in Athabasca was due to the partisanship, ignorance and incompetency of certain election officials, the attorney-general should submit to the Department of Justice a full statement of the payments made to the aforesaid officials with a view to instituting proceedings for the recovery of the amounts so paid to such officials, if the law provides for such action.

It is also recommended that a special parliamentary committee be appointed next session to examine the evidence and deliberations of the privileges and elections committee of 1926, to study the Dominion Elections Act and to give special attention to the advisability or sufficiency of the provisions of voters' lists.

Further, it is urged that the chief electoral officer should reconvened to the proper authorities that prosecutions be instituted against all violators of the Dominion Elections Act.

Civil Aviation In Italy

Development Is Rapid and Country Holds Third Place In World

Rome, Italy.—Italy now ranks as the third country in the world in civil aviation. It comes immediately after Germany and France, in the order given, and is ahead of England, which occupies fourth place.

By the end of 1926 Italian air companies had 2,915 miles over which daily passenger service in either direction will be effected. The whole field of civil aviation, ever since Italo Balbo became Under Secretary for Air, has been developed at such amazing speed that many miles already have been added to the total number of air routes.

Vote Sum For League

Ottawa.—The House passed a vote of $153,000 for Canada's contribution to the League of Nations. Hon. Hugh Guthrie brought up the question of German control of the Saar Valley coalfields, which had been repudiated by the German Government. The Prime Minister pointed out that neither the Government could do anything in such a case it would have to con.ider the whole question of the raising from Canadian sources of an additional $380,000 during the same period.

Rumor Is Denied

Winnipeg.—Rumors in circulation to the effect that the Liberal leader of the presidency of the University of Alberta were denied by Hon. John Bracken, premier of Manitoba. "The rumors are without foundation," he declared.

Complain About Expenses

Ottawa.—Complaints of Canada House were kept in the House when a vote of $10,000 for contingencies and $39,000 for salaries for the high commissioner's office in London were under discussion. After considerable debate, the item carried.

Operate On Cost Basis

Alberta Wheat Pool Elevators Adopt New Policy

Calgary.—Wheat Pool elevators in Alberta will be operated on a cost basis to patrons. This decision was reached by a full attendance of Pool delegates in convention here.

The Pool policy laid down will represent something new in co-operative effort in Canada, if not in the world. It means that the members will be charged only the bare cost of operating the elevator facilities.

When they haul their grain into Pool houses no service or elevator charges will be made. At the end of the fiscal year the actual operating cost will be available and will be deducted from the final Wheat Pool payment.

This change in elevator policy was recommended to the delegates by the directors. The proposal was to eliminate handling and service charges upon delivery of the grain to the Pool elevator and deduct the actual operating cost on a per-bushel basis from the final Wheat Pool payment.

Would Provide Work For Ex-Service Men

Resolution Favors This As Best Memorial To Earl Haig

London.—The ex-service men at the British Legion conference passed a resolution to the effect that the best tribute that could be paid to Earl Haig would be providing work for ex-service men.

Lady Haig was present and said she would have met with the approval of her husband, whose heart would have been, not a statue of himself, but that the men who had fought in the war should be helped.

It is understood that the resolution and Lady Haig's remarks were not intended to be a criticism of the national memorial to the late Field Marshal, which the Government is consolidating.

British ex-service men will attend the conference of ex-service men, including former enemies, to be held at Luxemburg next September.

Inspection Satisfactory

Objection To Examination Of Immigrants By Canadian Doctors Unwarranted

Toronto. — "We have examined every single objection that has been raised against the examination overseas by Canadian doctors of assisted passage immigrants and we have not found one that will hold water," declared Dr. David Clark, Assistant Deputy Minister of the Department of Natural Health, in an interview here.

Articles appearing in certain sections of the British press against the policy of having Canadian doctors conduct examination of immigrants were full of inaccuracies, he said.

"The whole basis of criticism," said Dr. Clark, "is wrong a larger share of this class of travel than any other company. Passengers in this cheaper category are assured comfort and good catering combined with exceptionally low rate passage money for the return voyage."

In dealing with the emigration question, Lord Kylsant said that "shipping companies engaged in trans-Atlantic trade used to carry large numbers of emigrants from Great Britain and Ireland and other countries in Europe, but the United States immigration restrictions have reduced this traffic materially during the year. The crop should begin to move to market about July 1.

"The Dominion of Canada also has imposed regulations upon immigration from the continent. The flow of emigrant traffic across the Atlantic has been thus much curtailed and a valuable source of revenue for vessels adapted to carry large numbers of emigrants has been greatly diminished. We hope that in time, restrictions may be considerably modified, at least in favor of settlers of British stock."

To Aid Mental Hygiene Research

Toronto. — The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, founded by John D. Rockefeller, has announced its intention to assist mental hygiene research in Canada by the grant to the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene of $150,000 to be spent during the next five years. This is conditional upon the raising from Canadian sources of an additional $380,000 during the same period.

Replace Provincial Police

R.C.M.P. Have Taken Over Work Of Saskatchewan Force

Saskatoon, Sask.—The Saskatchewan Provincial police force passes into the pages of history of the northwest, their activities being taken over by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Saskatchewan sub-division being under the direction of Inspector John Ness, who has been in charge of the provincial police in the "scarlet riders." Some other members of the R.P.P will join the R.C.M.P. The following members of the latter force, located at the Saskatoon detachment for some time, will carry on: Sergts. A. Drysdale, Bowman and Sergt. C. E. Hildyard, and Constables T. Thertault and P. W. English The first two have a long service record in the force, dating back to the old Northwest Mounted days.

Inquiry Is Ordered

Ottawa.—The parliamentary immigration inquiry has approved a motion for a return showing all special immigration agents employed by the Department, 1, 1920. The report will show the number of permits, officially termed letters of admittance, or assurance granted to members of parliament and others.

Appoint Conciliation Board

Ottawa.—A conciliation board has been appointed to investigate the carpenters' strike in Calgary. Mr. Justice Clarke will be chairman. James H. Gordon will represent the employers, Robert Hewitt, the man. The men are asking for an increase of 12½ cents an hour.

U.S. Honors War Dead

Thousands Attend Memorial Service At Arlington Cemetery, Washington

Washington. — The White Crossed rolling hills of Arlington beckoned thousands of citizens, soldiers and sailors of the national capital for the annual memorial service, May 30, at the graves of the fallen heroes of all wars.

For the first time since he entered the White House, President Coolidge led the nation in memorial-day exercises outside of Washington. His annual tribute was paid in an address near the spot where Abraham Lincoln made his immortal address in Gettysburg, Penn.

Practically the entire day was set aside for services arranged by patriotic and veterans organizations. A feature was a parade of veterans of all wars through the downtown streets and over to Arlington.

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, and Hon. Vincr st Massey, Canadian minister, took part in the exercises in Arlington cemetery, where they decorated the graves and the Cross of Sacrifice erected by the Canadian Government in memory of Americans who died while serving as members of the Canadian corps.

POOR SALARIES PAID SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURISTS

Ottawa.—A motion to go into supply in the House of Commons provoked Mr. G. Coote, Liberal, Macleod, to protest that salaries paid to men in the scientific and technical positions in the Department of agriculture were inadequate.

Mr. Coote declared that the department of agriculture was losing the professional men because of the low salaries which were paid. He cited the instance of a veterinarian who was paid in the United States service and in the Canadian to illustrate the fact that Canada paid much less than the U.S.

The professional service of Canada said Mr. Coote, stands at the bottom chart of the U.S. for men. As things now stood many Canadians went to the U.S. to take post-graduate university courses. Frequently they remained there because of the fact they could obtain more money in that country.

Mr. Coote compared salaries paid in the United States with those paid in the geological survey. The figures he quoted showed that salaries in the latter service were lower. Canada could not afford to lose her scientific officials and must see that they received what Canada's basic industry and wheat growing was the most important plank in that industry

J. S. Sleedman, Liberal-Progressive, Souris, declared the position of the agricultural engineer in the Dominion service was one of the most important men was one of the most important matters which had come before the house this session. It would be realized that the prosperity of Canada depended largely on her agriculture, and the ravages of disease were spreading in certain quarters of agricultural Canada, and it was of prime importance to the Dominion that a whole that adequate salaries be paid our scientific agricultural officials and their professional efforts could be used for the benefit of agriculture in this country.

Bill Defeated In Senate

Government Measure To Amend Naturalization Act Thrown Out In Upper House

Ottawa.—The Government bill to amend the naturalization act was killed in the Senate.

The bill would have placed authority for the granting of naturalization certificates in the hands of the secretary of state without its being necessary for the applicant to make any application to courts, as now required.

The bill met stormy opposition in the Commons.

It was discussed at some length by the Senate recently in committee of the whole. Eventually Senator Laird moved that the committee rise. This was carried by 33 to 20. The effect was to kill the bill.

Senator Dandurand, Government leader, explained the measure, which he said would simplify procedure and prevent abuses. The state department had a well-trained staff to handle the work. Experience had shown that court inquiries on naturalization were absolutely useless.

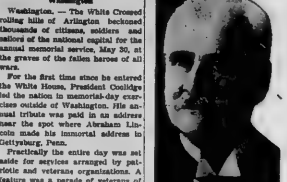
A Martyr To Science

Noted Doctor Is Latest Victim Of Scientific Research

London.—News was received here of the death of Dr. William Alexander Young, director of the Gold Coast Colony, Africa. Dr. Young was a coworker with Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, who died recently at Accra, of yellow fever, resulting from his researches into the origin of that disease.

It is believed here that Dr. Young contracted the disease in the course of his researches. He was 39 years of age.

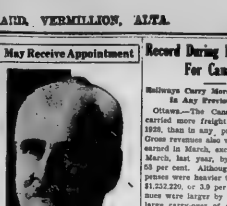
Young was of Scotch descent and had a long experience with tropical diseases. He died after a very short illness by early age of 35 he was appointed to his present position



Plane Service Cuts Two Days

Pilot J. H. St. Martin accepts the first shipments of parcels by the new Canadian Pacific air-express service, Sib-weekly in each direction between Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Rimouski, where the steamers are met, the new service cuts two days off the regular schedule. Domestic traffic between the cities mentioned is also accommodated to time-saving advantage.

May Receive Appointment



The possibility that a Canadian judge will take the place on the permanent court of international Justice of The Hague left vacant by the resignation of John Bassett Moore, of the United States, is now openly acknowledged in international circles at Washington. Already, it appears, the name of Mr. Justice Riddell, of Toronto, Canada's best known almost in the United States as in Canada, is mentioned as a likely successor to the American jurist.

Record During March For Canadian Roads

Railways Carry More Freight Than In Any Previous March

Ottawa.—The Canadian railways carried more freight during March, 1928, than in any previous March. Gross revenues also were the largest earned in March, amounting during March, last year, by $2,183,479, or 53 per cent. Although operating expenses were heavier than in 1927 by $1,232,220, or 3.9 per cent net revenues were larger by $883,259. The large carry-over of grain has been an important factor in the heavy traffic and earnings of the railways during the first quarter of 1928, the movement of grain to the Pacific ports being particularly heavy. The March payroll was heavier than in 1927 by $1,037,133, and the average number of employees increased by 3,072.

The Canadian National Railways' increase in gross revenue, compared with March, 1927, was $756,717, or 4.5 per cent, for an increase in freight of four per cent. and a decrease in passenger traffic of 6.3 per cent.

The Canadian Pacific Railway also had returns larger in March than for like month in 1927 by $1,351,318, or 8.8 per cent. Passenger and express revenues showed decreases but all other accounts were larger, freight by 12.5 per cent.

Has a New Mission

Premier King Requested To Arrange For Necessary Rainfall To Ensure Good Crops

Ottawa.—Premier King has a new mission. The latest request is that he shall appoint Hon. Mr. Rain minister extraordinary to Saskatchewan

"We have had a wonderful seeding time and everything is now in the ground in good shape," runs a letter from Saskatchewan, which Senator Read read in the Senate recently, "but I wish you would draw the attention of the Prime Minister to the desirability of arranging for a certain supply of rain each week for the next three weeks, and we will guarantee to double the greatest crop Western Canada has ever produced"

Ontario Joins Manitoba

In Legal Fight With Federal Government Over Regulation Of Securities

Toronto.—Announcement has been made by Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General for Ontario, that the province is joining with the province of Manitoba in the latter's legal fight with the Dominion Government over the question of certain rights in connection with the regulation of securities

Edwin Hayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General, will take the case for Ontario June 15, and will appear with Hon. W. H. Craig, K.C., counsel for Manitoba, when the case is heard by the Privy Council early in July

COOLIDGE MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR WORLD PEACE

Gettysburg, Pa.—In the first speech to be delivered by a president on the Gettysburg battle field since Lincoln's immortal address, President Coolidge, in memorial day ceremonies here, declared that the United States "has always looked upon for the abolition of war as the noblest tribute it can lead of honor."

At the same time he declared he was indifferent to come in the lead and emphasized what was the attitude of both many of the legislatures to regard to her powers granted to them by the constitution. Defending the Kellogg-Briand pact, he said it would weaken the regime of law and lead turbulent populations to war.

In this age the one thing we must prevent at all costs for ourselves and for all mankind is war," he declared. "Modern scientific research has brought to the state department for the use of war and for defense. Its function is peace.

Did I not feel that the International Court and Pact would signify a treaty to outlaw war as described by the President, I would not have consented to the use of the name of the United States in that connection.

It is my earnest hope that success may crown the negotiations now in progress so that the ideals which have inspired the French minister of foreign affairs and the secretary of state of the U.S. in their joint efforts to find a solution of the problem of peace, may find a solution of the problem of peace."

FLAG QUESTION CAUSE OF RIOTING AT CAPETOWN

Capetown, South Africa.—Reinforcements of police from all parts of the peninsula were drafted into Capetown to cope with the threatening situation which developed when a demonstration, said to have been inspired by unrest among colored workers, ran counter to the celebration of the 18th anniversary of the establishment of the Union of South Africa.

The celebration was historic because for the first time the nautional flag was flown along with the Union Jack, and Premier J. B. M. Hertzog and General Jan Christian Smuts, former premier and present leader of the opposition, appeared on the same platform and delivered patriotic addresses.

Scenes witnessed were reminiscent when excited crowds filled the streets and several scuffles ensued. Counter police were promptly on the scene and order was restored. Several people were injured, while 90 persons were arrested

In his address at the celebration Premier Hertzog said the new flag was a lasting symbol of the independence and of the power and authority of the South African nations.

Referring to the fixing of the new Union flag alongside the Union Jack, General Smuts declared the two emblems established visualized the equality of the races and the Indian-bubble brotherhood which had flowered out of the enmities and struggles of the past

Stops Operations Of Bogus Stock Salesmen

Ontario Government Has Put Many Out Of Business

Toronto. More than one hundred brokers, of doubtful repute, and high pressure security salesmen have been put out of business recently as the result of the clean-up campaign inaugurated by the Ontario Attorney-General's Department when the Security Frauds Prevention Act was put into force recently

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Law and three children left last Friday by auto for Camrose where they spent until Monday day the guests of the Rev. M. S. and Mrs. Kerr. They reached home yesterday shortly after noon, having returned by way of Wetaskiwin and stopped at Tofield. At the Port they visited the Browns'. The trip from Camrose to Wetaskiwin, a distance of 58 miles, Mr. Andrew reports as one of the worst he has ever experienced, taking ten and a half hours and necessitating tire changing mostly in low gear owing to the heavy clay. After Wetaskiwin the remainder of the highway was in good shape.

Mrs. Jas. Common was visiting in Edmonton last week en route to Calgary, where she attended the Grand Chapter meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star held this week.

Caterpillars are a plague again this year and most of the bluffs around the country are stripped of their foliage. Parts of the highways are covered with them and farmers report build lines covered. In the outskirts of the town they are just as bad and seem to be increasing in numbers. This is the third year the district has had the caterpillars and it looks as if another year was ahead at least.

Big Meeting On Monday Night

An important public meeting of ratepayers is announced by posters to be held next Monday night, June 18th at 8 o'clock in the C. N. R. Community Hall. At this meeting problems concerning the future development of public utilities is to be threshed out from every angle. A fair and impartial consideration will be given to the Mid-West proposal and the facts and figures in connection with the plans and policy embodied in the by-laws to be voted upon on Friday, June 22nd are to be thoroughly explained. It is a duty incumbent upon every ratepayer to be present at this meeting. The Standard understands that a representative of the Mid-West Utilities will be in attendance in the interests of their proposition.

Mrs. Hamill, assistant correspondent secretary of the Toronto Presbytery who is on her way from the general council at Vancouver will address a meeting of the W.M.S. workers and their friends in the Presbyterian church hall on Thursday evening, June 21st at 8:15 P. M. Everybody welcome

Acknowledgment Of Generous Gift

For Red Cross Work

The Red Cross Society desire to acknowledge with many thanks the generous gift of the people of Vermilion to the work of Red Cross in Alberta, the sum of $156 being received from the Secretary, Mrs. H. P. Lane as the results of the recent Tag Day in Vermilion. Realizing the amount of hard work that this represents, the Red Cross desire to express to each and all their sincere thanks for their untiring efforts to assist in the great humanitarian service of Red Cross in Alberta. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends in Vermilion when in the city of Edmonton to pay a visit to the new Junior Red Cross Wing at the University Hospital, where under ideal conditions Alberta's little crippled sons and girls are being nursed back to health and strength. To see at a glance the actual work of healing and mercy will be a source of great satisfaction to all who have put their shoulder to the wheel in Vermilion to make the Tag Day the great success that it was

East Is Coming West

The recently announced decision of the General Motors Corporation of Canada to proceed immediately with the erection of a million dollar manufacturing and assembly plant at Regina is gratifying news, not alone to the citizens of the capital city of Saskatchewan, but to all Westerners, because it emphasizes that at long last the leaders of industry in the East have come to a realization of the fact that they cannot continue indefinitely to supply the rapidly growing western market from factories located thousands of miles away, and compelling the western purchaser to pay greatly enhanced prices by reason of freight charges based upon the high classification imposed upon finished articles.

Western people have contended for some time now that the logical industrial development in Canada is the establishment of branch factories in the West. There was a time, not more than a couple of decades ago, when the view prevailed that the western market could be supplied not only from Eastern factories, but from Eastern wholesale houses. Gradually, as western population grew and the volume of business increased, branch wholesale houses were opened in Winnipeg, and since they have gradually spread all over the West, until today wholesale establishments located in all the larger western centres of population very largely supply western needs.

The same development which thus characterized the business of wholesaling and distribution must inevitably follow in the wake of manufacturing itself. Freight charges on the transportation of necessary raw materials into the West will be substantially lower than charges on the finished products, while the growing population of western cities may, and in all probability will, encourage the production for use of certain raw products of the West which today lie undeveloped because of a lack of market.

The decision to locate a branch industries in the West is furthermore pleasing to Western people because it indicates recognition by Eastern industrial leaders of the fact that, if they are to command the support and sympathy of the West, and if past lines of separation between east and west are to be wiped out, and a new national viewpoint developed, the East cannot continue to merely accept the cream of western trade and profits in years of good crops and times of plenty, but must come and throw in their lot more whole-heartedly with the people in poor years, and while benefitting in years of abounding prosperity, also carry their share of the burden in years of slim crops and business depression.

With wonderful activity prevailing in the work of prospecting and developing the immense mineral areas of the northern portions of the three prairie provinces, with large schemes of power development now receiving attention, and with the new, larger, more national viewpoint gaining headway among the financiers and industrial leaders of the East, there is every reason for saying that a new era in the history of Western Canada is opening.

While the West will long continue to excel as an agricultural country, and will steadily expand its annual production from its rich prairie lands, it seems safe to predict that from this time onward industrial development will move along in keeping with the agricultural growth and mineral development of the country.

Such development offers the best and most practical solution of one of the West's big problems, namely, the unemployment difficulty which annually presents itself because of the seasonal nature of the basic industry of this country. In this connection it is pointed out that the "peak" period of production in Regina's new industry will be in the late winter and early spring months before active outdoor building operations, railway construction and road making gets under way, and when under present conditions unemployment is at its maximums.

Viewed from all standpoints, therefore, the whole West can unite in welcoming the momentous decision of one of Canada's greatest industrial concerns to establish a large branch plant in the heart of the prairie west. Its action will be but the forerunner of many similar decisions by other large manufacturers, and a resultant development from which every Western centre, and every Western citizen, will benefit.

Radium Explosive Stronger Than TNT

Discovery Of Ex-Army Officer More Effective Than Commercial

A new explosive, of which radium is an important ingredient, was reported by military professors of the California Institute of Technology as 30 per cent. more powerful than TNT, 20 per cent. more effective than commercial dynamite in official tests.

Tests of the explosive, invented by Captain H. R. Zimmer, of Los Angeles, former army officer, were conducted by Lieutenant-Colonel L. M. Adams, professor of military science. An ounce of each of the three explosives was placed in three separate lead jars and their power determined by measuring expansions created by explosions.

Captain Zimmer refused to allow analysis of the explosive, declaring he believed the United States War Department might wish to keep its formula secret.

Federal Income Tax Collections

Federal income tax collections for the fiscal year 1927-28 totalled $98,-370,972, an increase over the preceding year of $9,960,000, in spite of the reduction in the income tax last year. Montreal's share of the payments was $17,374,963, Toronto's $13,330,-646, and Vancouver's $9,460,289.

A Palace On Wheels

The beautiful train which carried the King of Afghanistan and his suite across parts of India on his homeward journey, has cost one-half million dollars. It is composed of seven coaches, each one elaborately adorned with gold-brocaded hangings, silver fitted and tiled bathrooms, electric fans and stoves. This train, 200 yards long, needed four great engines to haul it over the mountainous section between Quetta and Chaman.

Air Patrol On Hudson Straits

Straits Open For Navigation Much Earlier Than Even Friends Of Route Anticipated

Flying operations have been resumed in Hudson Straits, and reports from the air bases reveal that the ice has already cleared out of the eastern end of the channel and is broken up in the centre and western sections. It is the opinion of the airmen and marine officials stationed in the straits that an ice breaker could open a channel right through the straits at present. No ice breaker is available, but the department announces that a vessel of this type will be available before next spring.

The time when the straits will become easily navigable is an yet undefined, but it is quite clear that ice conditions are not nearly as heavy a handicap as has always been supposed and that the straits will be open much earlier than even the friends of the route anticipated.

AVOID THE PAINS OF RHEUMATISM

This Trouble Comes Through Weak, Watery Blood

Many people suffer rheumatic pains that could be avoided by building up the blood. Rheumatism comes with thin, watery blood, and can only be driven out of the system by enriching and purifying the blood. To make rich, red blood no medicine equals Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new blood, driving out all poisonous matter, and creating a condition of robust health. Thousands of rheumatic sufferers can testify to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among them is Mr. Jos. A. Tully, Bobcaygeon, Ont., who says: "As a worker in the pulp mills I was exposed to all kinds of rough wintry weather. The result was that I finally laid up with rheumatism. I could hardly stir, and was confined to bed. Medicines seemed to have little or no effect and the best encouragement the doctor gave me was that with the coming of warm weather I would be better. But instead of getting better, I grew worse. My joints were badly swollen, and my legs so stiff they would hardly support my body. At this stage I read that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended for rheumatism and decided to try them. The results were beyond my expectations. After a few weeks the swelling had disappeared, and the stiffness gradually went away, and much sooner than I expected all traces of rheumatism had disappeared. The next winter when I went into the woods I took a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with me, and they kept me in the best of condition. My experience should give encouragement to other rheumatic sufferers."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Great West Airways

First Commercial Flying Company On Prairies Is Established At Calgary

Backed by many of Calgary's prominent citizens, managed by Capt. F. H. McCall, D.S.O., M.C., D.F.C., and known as the Great West Airways, Limited, the first commercial flying company on the prairies west of Winnipeg, is expected to be in operation within one month, Calgary so hopes, it is announced. The objects of the company are to carry on a flying aviation in all its branches, including the giving of instruction to pilots and air engineers.

For Sprains and Bruises—There is nothing better for sprains and contusions than Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It will reduce the swelling that follows a sprain, will cool the inflamed tissues and deaden the pain. It will take the ache out of a bruise by counteracting the inflammation. A trial will convince any who doubt its power.

Britain's Air Mail Grows

Air mail activities in Britain are growing rapidly. Letters dispatched from London last year totalled 27,000 pounds, as compared with 17,000 in 1926. Air parcels were 74,000 pounds in 1927, and only 58,000 pounds in 1926. Ten thousand pounds of letter mail were carried to European destinations alone in the past 12 months.

Many people are almost crippled with corns. But it is needless suffering which can be speedily ended with Holloway's Corn Remover.

Minard's will dry up boils. It kills the inflammation and disinfects.

Another New Job

Airplane Dropsiehers Will Use Radio To Keep In Touch With Machines

Radio has paved the way for another new job—the airplane dropsicher.

Much like its predecessor, who is responsible for the operation of trains without conflict in schedules, his task will be to keep airplanes going in the right direction and to give aid in cases of emergency. But the latter will be the principal duty, and not to be part of the System. Radio will be the connecting link between ground and airplane.

The equipment that again will bring radio into practical contact with another of aviation's infant industry accomplishments is being installed in the western sector of the transcontinental air route. Four radiophone stations are being set up, and a despatcher will be in charge of each one.

Most of the direction by radio will be done at night, when the plane's pilot must depend on his compass and light beacons spaced at intervals along his route. These beacons are erected on towers, and contain lights with a candle-power of 4,000,000.

With intermediate fields not further apart than thirty miles, and each equipped for despatching by radio, the new service will remove much of the isolation from air transportation.

New Market For Purebred Hogs

B.C. Branch Of Canadian Swine Breeders' Association Cultivating Market In Antipodes

For the past year the secretary of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Swine Breeders' Association has been engaged in seeking new markets for purebred hogs, paying special attention to Australia and New Zealand As a result many demands have been received, interest being stimulated by New Zealand's removal of the embargo on stock with a clean bill of health.

No Rest With Asthma. Asthma usually attacks at night, the one time when rest is needed most. Hence the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the loss of flesh and other evils which must be corrected before health is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved its merits through years of service. A trial will surely convince you.

Labor Shortage In Dawson

There is a scarcity of labor in the Yukon, particularly in Dawson and White Horse. Fifty to seventy-five laborers are needed during the summer season until the mining camps shut down about the first of October. The work offering is on dredges, hydraulics and around mining camps. Lumberjacks's work is somewhat irregular later in the season, but fairly steady work can be obtained from mays are in progress. Wages on the Dawson dock are from 90 cents per hour to one dollar.

FREE DENTAL SERVICE

Nearly One Thousand Saskatchewan People Given Free Treatment By Travelling Clinic

Nearly one thousand people in scattered sections of Saskatchewan, most of whom were from 40 to 125 miles from a dentist, were given free treatment by a travelling clinic. Most of these, moreover, would have been financially unable to secure it even if dental services had been easily available for them, otherwise.

Approximately 100,000 children throughout Saskatchewan were given a thorough mouth inspection and presented with charts showing the exact state of their oral health and telling them what should be done about it. Hundreds of addresses were delivered in all parts of the province. Moving pictures were shown in theatres and public halls from the U.S. Border to the far north and 86,000 books and pamphlets on dental health distributed free of charge. Over a thousand children wrote essays on mouth health and the foreign as well as the English-speaking population, was supplied with accurate information on the subject.

In brief, in a 60-day period, nearly 20,000 persons were given a course in preventive dentistry.

These are the results of an intensive Mouth Health Programme just completed here under the auspices of the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council. They are given in detail in the report of Dr. Harry B. Thomson, field secretary of the organization. This report, which is to be published shortly, tells the story of one of the most remarkable co-operative efforts in behalf of general health which has ever been successfully attempted in the Dominion.

According to a recent report, the Japanese Government has sanctioned a programme for the purchase of 1,000 birds annually, for five years, for its five experimental farms. "Modernize" Your Farm This Modern Way

Nearly every building on the farm can be greatly improved and "modernized" by Gyproc.

This famous wallboard is recommended by leading contractors for both new and old construction because it gives advantages offered by no other material—fire-safety, rigid strength, economy and cold and heat resistance.

All these vital advantages! And you get them for nothing—because Gyproc costs no more than products that have none of Gyproc's remarkable qualities.

Gyproc makes durable, permanent walls and ceilings in less time and at less cost. Gyproc Joint Filler on the joints assures a smooth, flat surface which takes any decoration—particularly suitable for Alabastine.

POWER OFFER by MID-WEST UTILITIES

LIMITED

TO THE TOWN OF VERMILION:

MID-WEST UTILITIES LIMITED
215 — 6th Avenue W.
Calgary

May 31st, 1928.

The Mayor and Alderman,
Town of Vermilion,
Vermilion, Alberta.

Gentlemen:

As you may know, the Mid-West Utilities Limited purposes this year to construct an electric transmission line connecting its central plants at Vegreville and Lloydminster, and is now negotiating franchises along this proposed line. One line will pass close to Vermilion, and we believe that with such a line served by modern plants at each end, we can give excellent service at Vermilion, steadily decreasing rates as our load is built up in the towns, villages and rural districts through which we pass.

We, therefore, beg to submit for your consideration the following offer:—

1. The Mid-West Utilities Limited to purchase from the Town of Vermilion its Electric distribution system at a price of $15,000, the Town's present power plant building, the land on which it is situated, engines and boilers remaining the property of the Town to be used by the Town or disposed of as it wishes.

2. The Company also agrees to pay to the Town annually the amounts required to meet interest and principal payments necessary to retire the debentures now against the Town's Electric Light & Power system.

3. The Town to grant to the Company a franchise for ten years, which franchise shall contain the usual clauses to safeguard the interests of the Town and the Company.

4. The Company to put into effect the following rate schedule immediately on the granting on the Franchise:

(a) Residence Service (lighting, heating, cooking, and power used in residences)

First 25 Kilowatt hours.....14 cents per K. W. H.
Next 25 Kilowatt hours.....10 cents per K. W. H.
Excess Kilowatt hours.....6 cents per K. W. H.

Minimum $1.25 per month. No motor rent. All bills other than the minimum subject to 10 p.c. discount if paid within 10 days of date of bill.

(b) Commercial Service (used where other rates do not apply)

First 50 Kilowatt Hours.....14 cents per K. W. H.
Next 150 Kilowatt Hours.....12 cents per K. W. H.
Excess Kilowatt Hours.....10 cents per K. W. H.

Minimum $1.25 per month, no motor rent. All bills other than the minimum subject to a 10 p.c. discount if paid within ten days of date of bill.

(c) Power (Motors and heating and cooking apparatus used in Commercial Establishments)

First 300 Kilowatt Hours.....8 cents per K. W. H.
Next 500 Kilowatt Hours.....7 cents per K. W. H.
Next 1000 Kilowatt Hours.....6 cents per K. W. H.
Next 1500 Kilowatt Hours.....5 cents per K. W. H.
Remainder Kilowatt Hours.....4 cents per K. W. H.

Minimum $1.50 per connected horse power or fraction thereof, with a minimum bill of $2.00 per month.
1 K.V.A. or 1 K.W. in heating or cooking devices shall be equal to 1 H.P.

(d) Street Lights:
A rate of 10 cents per K. W. H., which rate shall include the construction and maintenance of the street lighting system, including the replacement of lamps by the company. Minimum $100.00 per month.

5. The Company will agree to immediately make such extensions and improvements to the distribution system as may be necessary to give adequate and continuous service and to meet power requirements.

6. The Company will pay taxes on its property situated in the Town.

If the above tentative proposal meets with your approval we shall be very glad to discuss the matter with you and to present for your approval draft of a proposed franchise.

May we suggest for your consideration that the above offer will give you reliable and continuous service from two central plants at reduced rates to both light and power consumers. That it will remove the necessity of an immediate debenture issue to enlarge your present plant, relieve the Town of further payments on Electric Light and Power debentures now outstanding, leave the present steam plant to be used by the Town as it desires, and give the Town a substantial cash sum for municipal improvements, or to reduce taxation.

Yours truly,
E. W. Bowness.

Some Interesting Facts for your Information:

¶ The Mid-West Utilities Limited and its allied companies now supply, among other places, electric light and power to the following: Vegreville, Innisfree, Kitscoty, Lloydminster, Edgerton, Viking, Irma, Hardisty, Forestburg, Daysland, Sedgewick, Killam, Alliance, Galahad and Forestburg, in Alberta; and Indian Head, Broadview, Wawota, Grenfell, Wolseley and other places in that district. Towns of Rosetown, Kindersley, Watrous, Lloydminster, Yorkton, Frumbtons have been added at Imperial Young and Nokomis and others. In all the Notaline Electric Light & Power Co. and The Dawson Utilities Limited

¶ In the district at Lloydminster and Vegreville, it is operating new modern power plants, and designed for future expansion as load requirements require. For example the plant at Vegreville is now being built to capacity and it is expected that the Lloydminster plant will also be increased at an early date

¶ The Mid-West Utilities Limited, having now satisfactorily completed preliminary negotiations for supplying electric service to all the various points (other than Vermilion) between Vegreville and Lloydminster will build a high voltage transmission line this summer between these two points feeding it from the new plants at either end and supplying the various places through which it passes, and extending it south of the Yorkton and other rural load

¶ This is a development that will enable the load to be built up on both of these plants, making for possibility of service and economy of operation, eventually effecting reduced rates to the consumers

¶ With the power line about to pass right by the door of Vermilion, we are now able to make a very attractive offer, as above to the above-mentioned

¶ The net domestic rates, for example, after deducting the ten per cent prompt payment discount are

First 25 K. W. H. — 12.6 cents per K. W. H. next 25 K W H. — 9 cents per K W H excess — 5.4 cents per K W H

¶ The interests of the citizens would be fully protected in the proposed agreement, the Provincial Government requiring changes whereby they retain complete control of the situation Also any franchise granted to the Company is not exclusive so far as the rights and privileges of the Province are concerned

LOWER RATES — RELIABLE, UNLIMITED SERVICE — TWO PLANTS, EACH WITH RESERVE CAPACITY — WIPE OUT TOWN'S PRESENT DEBENTURE DEBT ON PLANT AND SAVE FURTHER EXPENDITURES — $15,000 CASH FOR OTHER CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS.

No More Idle Boast

Canada Holds Supremacy In Realm Of Poultry

The World's Poultry Congress, at Ottawa, was a manifestation of Canada's supremacy in the realm of poultry. This is no mere idle boast. We have the best egg grading laws in the world. We have a system of record of performance for poultry that is indeed unique and highly beneficial. Canada boasts of the champion laying hen, and what comes nearest to the poultry ruler, perhaps, is that Canadians are almost insatiable in their egg eating habits In less than ten years the consumption per capita has increased by approximately ten dozen eggs. We are now consuming eggs in Canada at the rate of 28½ dozens per capita, and this commendable habit, a result, no doubt, of our efficient egg grading law, is born to the whole poultry industry.

We are marching forward steadily in the matter of poultry husbandry It is being appreciated more and more breeding and selection will boost production. Flock owners are demanding eggs and chicks as human beings, but are known to be good layers, and more than that, known to produce eggs that grade high because of size and quality It is no longer necessary to purchase eggs or day-old chicks that are little more than question marks We have progressed far enough so eggs and chicks of known quality are available that is the kind poultry raisers should demand.—Farmers Advocate.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Canadian National Railways' Tour To Great Britain and Denmark, 1928

Before entertaining us to lunch Mr. Marsh gave a very interesting talk on agricultural conditions in the British Isles, illustrating his remarks with a number of slides of lantern films, many different countries and specially made for the purpose.

From the Marsh and Slater plant we proceeded direct to Birmingham, where we were received by the Lord Mayor, Alderman Sir R. James, C.B.E., J.P., after which we were taken through the magnificent City Hall and shown some of the art treasures therein. In the evening we were entertained at the famous "Up with the Lark," a block of the best seats in the house having been reserved for us.

Sunday was spent quietly in Birmingham, our itinerary including a motor tour of the suburbs of the city and a talk on Denmark by Mr. J. Stewart Hurrish, of London. Mr. Hurrish had lived for some years in Denmark, and has been for that country all through his delightful address which was accompanied by lantern slides. On Monday morning after a brief tour of the Birmingham district we proceeded south to Kenilworth Castle, one of the most historic of the ancient ruins in England Kenilworth dates back to 1120 and was presented in 1563 by Queen Elizabeth to her favorite, Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester. It is certain her there is magnificent style of the early and high Warwick Warwick Castle, described as the "most princely mansion in the Midlands," is occupied by the Warwick family. Warwick is a fine old country town with winding streets and many excellent buildings. The castle, which was visited by some of our party, dates from the town. The earliest building dates from 1068, with restorations although the present castle is 15th century

Shakespeare's country is a few miles from Warwick. The house in which Shakespeare was born remains little altered, and wandering through the rooms we are walks and ceilings the signatures of many famous visitors, amongst them Scott, Carlyle, Thackeray and Browning. The village of Stratford-on-Avon is also about a mile away. It was a delight to visit this beautiful old town and to see the old Guild Chapel, with the Holy Trinity Church, set amid the trees on the bank of the Avon. Here Shakespeare was buried, and here too is the grave of his wife The font at which Shakespeare was christened is still to be seen in this church and the parish registers contain the record of his birth on April 26th, 1564, and of his death on April 25th, 1616, 3 days preserved.

Our stay at Oxford was short, but we were fortunate in being able to stroll through the grounds of some of the colleges and in seeing the memorial to the poet Shelley. This is a beautifully wrought in marble, shown the drowned poet lying exactly as he was found after having been washed up by the sea. When first set up its stark realism created a sensation.

Our next stop was at Windsor Castle, which is still the home of the Royal Family. Here we were privileged in seeing the Queen's apartments, the magnificence of which words fail to describe.

The castle overlooks the River Thames and from the time of the Conqueror residence of English kings for centuries Here James I., of Scotland, King John, of Magna Charta fame, Edward, of Scotland, were held prisoners, and in the Round Tower Elizabeth was sent from his prison Jean Beaufort, his future wife.

A vault in the castle in which repose the remains of Henry VIII., Charles I., and Queen Jane Seymour, by command of the King we were taken to another vault where are buried Edward VII., George V., Edward VIII. and Edward VII. Queen Victoria and her daughter, Princess Alice, are also buried in the park adjoining the castle.

Near Windsor Castle is Eton College, which was founded by Henry VI in 1540.

From Windsor we proceeded to the King's farm, to be shown over the buildings by Mr. Murray Cassidy, the manager. Mr. Cassidy, a native of the King's Prize Hereford, and showed us the examples of Devon and Jersey breeds. The King's farm is 1,200 acres in extent. Before leaving we were entertained to a delightful tea in the Royal Dairy.

This was our last stop before London, and excitement was at fever heat as we proceeded down the magnificent paved road which leads from Windsor to the Metropolis Signs were falling as we threaded our way through the steadily increasing traffic. Double deck buses with which we were to become more familiar in London, began to make their appearance as we reached the outskirts of Greater London. At last after passing through miles and miles of buildings we found ourselves in Oxford Street, then Regent Street, and finally at our hotel the "Regent Palace," just off Piccadilly Circus in the very heart of the West End.

We rose bright and early on our first day in London, for we had several engagements facing us, including the reception by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Our first trip was to Covent Garden, once the garden and burial ground of monks but now London's greatest distributing centre for fruit and vegetables. Here we were given our first inkling of the enormous consuming power of the people of Greater London, for we saw before us one day's supply fruit and vegetables for a population equal to Canada. It was easy to believe that one province of Spain alone sent 6,000,000 cases of oranges to the great market, and a great pleasure to learn that some varieties of Canadian apples had won a leading place in public favor.

Our next engagement was to visit the Cockspur Street offices of the Canadian National Railways, where we were cordially received by Mr. C. J. Smith, the European Vice-President, and other of the department chiefs. The run of this fine building, owned by the C.N.R., was given to us, and we had the pleasure of seeing the Canadian Pacific Railway's palatial interesting feature of the fine offices, which boasts a busy staff of some two hundred people, is a magnificent natural views by Frank Broughton, R.A.

Canada Spends Millions Yearly On Importation Of Nuts

Canada imports something like $5,000,000 worth of nuts annually, but this figure includes peanuts, which are, of course, tubers and not true nuts. In the last calendar year imports of nuts totalled $4,973,000, of which peanuts accounted for $1,600,000, leaving $3,373,000 as the value of other nuts imported. Walnuts, almonds and shelled, valued at $1,457,000, slightly exceeded peanuts in importance. Imports of almonds totalled over 942,000 Filberts, Brazils and pecans were imported in quantity, and these are also among the valuable nut crops which can be grown in Canada.

Travelling Clinic in Alberta

Visiting Sparsely Settled Districts Where Medical Services Are Hard To Obtain

During the month of May, a travelling clinic, with two doctors, a dentist and three nurses, is touring through the northern sections of Alberta. The travelling clinic is a new phase of public health work, developed to cope with conditions in sparsely settled districts where medical and dental services are difficult to obtain. Where there are doctors or dentists, the clinic co-operates with them. It does educational work, examinations and, in special cases, minor operations.

THE CRUCIFIXION

Golden Text: "God commendeth His own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."—Romans 5:8.

Lesson: Mark 15.16-47.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53.7-12.

Explanations and Comments

The Crucifixion, verses 22-37. — They led Jesus away to be crucified, going outside the city, as was the Jewish usage (Acts 7.58), to Golgotha. Golgotha means "the place of a skull." We call this spot Calvary, from the Latin word calvaria, skull. It was customary to give one about to be crucified a stupefying drink, and they offered such to Jesus, wine mixed with myrrh, but he refused it. Matthew says He tasted it and then refused it. Jesus regarded the suffering before Him as part of the cup which the Father had given him to drink, and He would drink it to the dregs.

The garments of the crucified—the headdress, shoes, outer garment, girdle, and seamless inner robe—were the perquisites of the executioners, and the soldiers cast lots to see who each should have.

There have been many like these soldiers, unmoved by the most pitiful tragedy, save by what they could get out of it. In the Great War, when mothers gave their sons, wives their husbands, and men themselves, and the nations poured out its treasure in a passion of service, the profiteer thought only of his own greed. He had no call to service; he saw only a chance to get rich. He got rich, but his wealth is blood money.—Rev. Robert Newton.

It was the third hour, nine o'clock in the morning, when they crucified Him. The accusation was placed over Him on the cross was "The King of the Jews." This was knew of the crime of which Jesus had been guilty, and by this inscription he thought to shame the priests, who, as he expected, considered it an insult to themselves. (John 19.21-22. That all who passed by might read it, the inscription was written in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek (John 19.19, 20), the languages spoken at this time throughout the civilized world.

On either side of Jesus a thief was crucified. "Crucifixion was terrible and disgraceful punishment. That one of Jesus had hung upon His cross with nothing near him to disturb the impression of His calm serenity and innocence, it might have happened that the people who stood and watched would have lost sight of the disgrace and would have felt the majesty of the sacrifice. Already that place of suffering might have seemed as glorious as it has seemed to the world since. That as it was, they went to the prison and dragged out two wretched culprits who were waiting for their doom. That there might be no doubt about the significance of the Saviour's sufferings, they hung Him between two thieves."— Phillips Brooks.

May Race To South Pole

Plans Of Byrd and Wilkins Take On Aspect Of Competition

An air race to the South Pole appears to be in the making. Captain George H. Wilkins, Australian explorer and aviator, who recently flew across the Arctic, has opened headquarters in New York for his Antarctic expedition, which will take half a mile away at another hotel, Commander Richard Byrd is making final preparations for his expedition to the same goal.

Both men hope to fly from the rim of the Southern ice barrier to the pole and back before next Christmas. Meanwhile, their preparations and travelling schedules take on the aspect of a competition for completion of the first air journey.

Byrd will sail from Hampton Roads, Va., in his supply ship, the Sampson, about August 15. Wilkins, with Carl Ben Eielson, pilot, will arrive in New York during July, and after a week's stay, will fly across the country in the same plane in which he recently travelled from Alaska to Spitsbergen. He expects to fly from California to the North Pole.

Where Byrd's expedition will be elaborately outfitted and manned by 55 men, Wilkins plans to make the effort almost single handed. His expedition will include about five or six men.

The Smallest Automobile

That title now auto to the smallest in the world and will attain a speed of 17 miles an hour are the claims of the builder, Jans Schultz, a German mechanic. The machine weighs only 20 pounds, is nine inches high, has water-cooled gasoline engine, clutch, differential, accelerator and brakes. It is controlled by a set of strings because it is too small for even a child to get into.

No Cattle Shipped To Britain

Not a single head of Canadian cattle has gone aboard a cattle boat bound for Great Britain within the last ten months, though 150,000 head went to the United States in the same period. In addition, owing to increased prosperity, more meat has been consumed in Canada within the last ten months than for many time previously.

The Terrors Of Modern Warfare

Enough Poison Gas Stored Up To Destroy Millions Of People

The explosion of poison gas at Hamburg, Germany, the other day, killing eleven persons and sending over three hundred others to hospital, has naturally attracted a good deal of attention. Because this happened by accident during peace it is regarded as quite a tragedy. Yet the poison gas, in killing people, served the purpose for which it was created. It is made and intended for use in the wholesale murder of urban populations, and it is figured that in various countries at the present time enough of it is in stock and stored up to destroy millions of people. The dispatch from Hamburg told how this gas filled human beings, animals, birds, trees, and all vegetation with the exception of moss. They are very thorough. It leaves behind it complete desolation.

Here is food for alarm over this tragedy. But the world will have to get over this tendency to shudder at tragedy, save by what they could get out of it. In the Great War, when mothers gave their sons, wives their husbands, and men themselves, and the nations poured out its treasure in a passion of service, the profiteer thought only of his own greed. He had no call to service; he saw only a chance to get rich. He got rich, but his wealth is blood money.—Rev. Robert Newton.

After a lengthy discussion, a motion moved by Scott—Welch that a vote be granted, was lost on the vote of the chairman. A motion moved by Brimacombe-Cooper that the new school be built on a point to be selected on the west end site carried on the vote of the chairman. In a subsequent meeting Monday night final sketch plans were received from the architects and adopted with instructions that bids would be made. Link wire fencing is being ordered for the east end grounds and that the eastern portion of the grounds is being prepared for grass seed.

The council was equally divided at its meeting on Monday night on the granting of a block of property to the school district. Outgoing the site already owned by the board in the west end His worship Mayor Fallow unhesitatingly cast the deciding vote in favor of transferring this block to the school district.

Weather for the week, while slightly cool, has been conducive to good growth of the crops. Several showers have fallen in different points of the district and the moisture in the land is ample to carry on for some time. Many fields have reached the stage where the land is covered by a heavy green mantle which is conserving the moisture. Hay meadows and prairie grass were never better. To the pres-

ATTFIELD—LINNELL

A quiet wedding took place at the Manse on Saturday, June 9th, when Elizabeth (Betty) elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs Sydney Linnell of Vermilion, was married to Mr. Ernest Arthur Attfield, second son of Mr. George Terry of Amrie Lake. The Rev. Mr. Bergh performed the ceremony The bride was attired in a frock of pale green taffeta fashioned with a longer waist and pendant skirt, and wore a wreath of orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Alberta Johnson and Miss Edith Terry, who wore frocks of periwinkle blue and rose taffeta, respectively.

The groom was attended by Mr. Orvel Johnson. The happy couple will reside in Landonville

TREASURE HUNT CANCELLED

Owing to unfortunate criticism and a request, the committee appointed to carry out the gold Treasure Hunt in the name of the Church of England for the purpose of raising charitable funds for that institution, has decided to withdraw the proposition and have no apology to give to those who have lent in tickets, and we would request that purchasers will kindly return their tickets and ask for a refund if they have not already so done.

Canada's Basic Industry Sound

Agriculture In Canada Prosperous According To Dominion Statistics

Agriculture in Canada's basic industry, and agriculture is prosperous, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the Dominion's gross agricultural revenue was $1,349,314,000 in 1927, and $1,276,000,000 in 1926.

This represents an increase of approximately 25 per cent in the latter, and the percentage is the same in the gross agricultural wealth of the country for the same period is only slightly less. The figures are $5,143,000,000 for 1922 and $5,000,000,000 for 1927.

For all classes, occupied farm lands increased in value by the estimate of $1 an acre in 1927 as compared with 1926 and last year stood at $38 according to the bureau.

Farm lands in British Columbia last year had an average value of $60 an acre, an increase over 1926 of $9 and a figure far beyond that of any other province save Alberta. In Columbia's arable land is found in fertile valleys where it is cultivated extensively for fruit growing, and the art of gardening is carried on the greatest advantage. Land in average of $26, with an increase in the year of $1. Ontario increased its average from $62 to $65, and Quebec from $62 to $57.

The increased value and number of livestock is another evidence of prosperity. Canadian horses, cattle, sheep and poultry in 1927 were valued at $747 million in 1927 the figure had grown to $862,000,000 marked the increase being in cattle.

There are no figures in existence to show the value of farm buildings, but all the acreage is appreciated. It is seen in the Dominion last apparently in most cases mortgages are being carried without embarrassment, and few years ago there were serious in Western Canada where farms freely were being abandoned to the mortgage companies. Today, after a succession of profitable crops and in a healthier atmosphere of optimism the condition no longer exists. It is interesting to note that according to the latest census 59.7 per cent. of the Canadian farms were occupied by their owners, showing the numerical insignificance of the tenant class.

Color Matter Of Preference

Brown Shelled Eggs Laid By Chickens Have Been, While By Others

Color of the shells does not affect the food value of eggs. The statement from the poultry department of the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture may be accepted with certain reservations by housewives who have always insisted on "white eggs" or "brown eggs." Color is entirely a matter of breed of chickens, say the Badger poultry specialists, and as a result eggs of the type most commonly requested in a given market are considered by the buyers in that community to be of superior quality.

Brown-shelled eggs are laid by common breeds. A Barred Rock, Rhode Island Reds and Wyandottes, while white-colored eggs are produced by Leghorns, Minorcas and other Mediterranean breeds.

A Good Insurance Risk

Although he carries a short life liability insurance policy for $100, on any air craft he may be flying, Col. Charles A. This has been announced by the insurance company.

KEEPING CREAM COOL

Putting Cream In Can and Placing In Iced Water

With the arrival of warm weather cream producers who patronize a butter factory are faced with the problem of keeping the cream sweet and clean in flavor until delivery is made. Authorities of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, express the view in pamphlet No. 37, entitled "Care of Cream for Buttermaking." That the cream is cooled as soon as possible after separation and that it is to put the cream in an ordinary shotgun can and place it in a tank of iced water in a similar manner. The tank is lined with galvanized iron.

This tank although regarded as a little expensive, is highly recommended on future where the ice supply is preserved. An ordinary smooth barrel is also suitable. Whether tank or barrel is used it is necessary to have a cover to keep out the dust and dirt.

Instead of insulated type of tank, a cheaper one of great merit can be made by boarding up the inside portion of the water and cream.

This pamphlet which can be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, gives the results of an experiment which shows the great advantage of keeping cream in a proper tank over the usual practice of holding it in the can in the tank cream loss has only been at an average of 1 per cent of 56 degrees Fahrenheit, as compared to 4.6 per cent. when kept in a cellar for the same period. The average temperature of the cellar was 62° which adds to the acidity to reach 0.505 per cent. That not very much cooler in the cellar had there been as much acid as this record of the iced water.

Western Alberta Minerals

American Interests To Develop Limestone Lead and Zinc Deposits

Some initial work is to be done this summer on the development of an immense lead and zinc deposit in the north country just above the Alberta boundary. Mineral rights in this area are held by a syndicate controlled, it is understood, by Boston interests, and the work proposed for the coming season will consist of extensive experimental shafts with a view to determine definitely the extent and character of the deposit.

The area will be developed in the event of the discovery of workable deposits, and as a result eggs of the type most commonly requested in a given market are considered by the buyers in that community to be of superior quality.

Brown-shelled eggs are laid by common breeds. A Barred Rock, Rhode Island Reds and Wyandottes, while white-colored eggs are produced by Leghorns, Minorcas and other Mediterranean breeds.

Will Move More Bellows

Wainwright Herd Has Been Increasing Rapidly

It is expected that some 1,100 head of buffalo, mostly year-olds, will be shipped from the Wainwright Park early in June to the range in the far northern part of Alberta, where, during the past three years several thousand head have been transferred. The former reserves of the plains have increased so rapidly in their sanctuary at Wainwright that their number is said to be a menace to the prosperity of the pasture in the park. Reports from the vicinity of Fort Vermilion, on northern boundary of Alberta, indicate that the animals which have been moved are thriving in their new home.

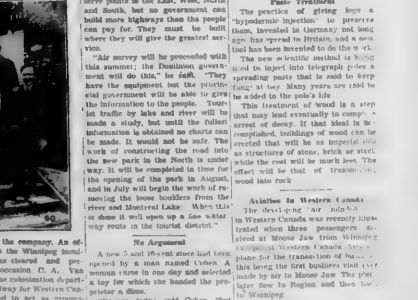
Aged Agricultural Colleges

In England and Wales there are seventeen institutions receiving grants from the ministry of agriculture. Six of the leading universities receive grants, though in no case does it exceed $35,000. There are five colleges classed as agricultural, one as horticultural, a dairy institute, and a veterinary college. Altogether, the grants amount to $726,000.

Hop Growing in B.C.

The John I. Hass Hop Company, of San Francisco, that now has 900 acres of land in hops at Sardis, B.C., recently acquired additional 80 acres to bring the total up to 980 acres, which will be trellised during the coming season. There were approximately 750 tons of hops grown in British Columbia last year, practically all of which have been shipped.

Romance on C.P.R. Route



The Canadian spring had early indications upon Andrew Hansen, 22, and Miss Christina Nelson, 22, Sandon, a young Danish immigrant couple who, on arriving at Winnipeg, decided to marry and with the assistance of the Canadian Pacific Railway Colonization Department officials did so forthwith.

They had known each other in their homeland, Denmark for many years and had crossed the seas on the boards, but on departing for Canada they had harbored no romantic ideas of thoughts of marriage. Travelling as strangers in a strange land, they met and found happiness in each others company during the journey and furthermore discovered their destinations to be close together. On reaching Winnipeg on their westbound trip they decided to marry and the C.P.R. Colonization department officials did the rest.

Rev. N. Damsbier, immigration chaplain, aided the groom in securing a special marriage license. Miss Nelson a member of the colonization staff, hurriedly procured a bouquet from the florists as a gift to the bride from the company. An office adjacent to the Winnipeg immigration hall was cleaned and prepared for the occasion. C. A. Van Scoy, head of the colonization department of the railway for Western Canada, volunteered to act as groomsman, and H. G. McMillie, general passenger agent, to give the bride away. A group of twenty immigrants and company officials gathered, and the rings were in set ceremony, the first among newcomers for the season.

"Will the have Andrew for din ekta?" asked Rev N. Damsbier.

"Ja!" responded Nielsen.

The chaplain pronounced a special prayer of their guidance as strangers in the new land, charged them to continue faithful to one another, repeated the Lord's prayer, gave the benediction, made the sign of the cross, and Andrew and Nelle Christina were declared man and wife.

They continued their journey westward that afternoon, two out of four hundred settlers Danes, Dutch, and English, who were travelling at that time with the Canadian Pacific.

London Has Repair Shop For Lifeboats

Those Put Out Of Commission Around Coast Are Immediately Replaced

In an out-of-the-way corner of the River Thames in the port of London is a lifeboat hospital. The doctors are all sailors, though they have been long been connected with the lifeboat service.

The hospital is the repair and store depot of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution. One enters, from the street, through a small door, and as though going into an ordinary house, but once inside the similarity ceases, writes W. L. Seymour, in Pearson's Weekly. There are busy yards, machine shops, and store rooms where they keep a stock of everything necessary, from spare lifeboats down to metal polish.

Eight or nine lifeboats fully equipped, are always kept "standing by" ready to be rushed off to replace any that may be put out of action around the coast. Day and night someone is always on duty, prepared to summon a boat to dispatch a lifeboat immediately on receipt of an S.O.S. No station to rule be kept waiting.

Meantime the damaged lifeboat is being returned to the yard, and on arrival she is immediately overhauled, put into a thorough state of repair, recaulked, and then put on stock, ready to take her turn again. No new boats are ever built at the depot, for as often from the builders to the station for which they are intended.

Plant Has Peculiar Seed

Goat's-Beard Equipped With Parachute Which Expands and Contracts

Goat's-Beard, a European plant has a seed that could almost be said to walk. It is equipped with a kind of canopy, ribbed parachute, or parachute, by which it drifts for a distance through the air, and by the same means it is able to move along the ground after it lights. The effect of alternate sunshine and dew on the parachute is to cause it to expand and contract, so that unless the seed has landed on soil, where it can take root, the wind will drag it along day after day until a favorable spot is found.

New Homesteads in West

Over a thousand new homesteads were filed for in Saskatchewan lands offices during the months of January and February this year, being 1,036, as compared with 429 for the three months' period last year. In provinces, Manitoba reports 14 homestead entries as against 71 last year, Saskatchewan 430 as against 333, Alberta 562 as against 213, and British Columbia 20 against 8.

Will Not Insure Large Debt

But Highway Building In Saskatchewan Will Be Speeded Up

"No one had ever criticized the highway plan of the Province and the type of earth road is as good as any built anywhere, and they are well designed," says Hon. Jas. Eyre. The Saskatchewan Minister of Highways, Labor and Industry goes on to point out the economical aspect of highway building and gravelling which is being commenced this summer. "The Province is in a splendid financial position today. We are going to speed up but will not go head over heels in debt for highways. We have but commission is a human problem. You can't dump people into the country and not take care of them. Provincial highways had been built to serve points in the East, West, North and South, and we intend to build more highways than the people can pay for. They must be built where they will give the greatest service.

"Air survey will be protected with this summer; the Dominion government will do this," he said. "They have the equipment but the provincial government will be able to give the information to the people. Tourist traffic by lake and river will be made a study, but the road into the new park in the North is under way. It will be completed in time for the opening of the park. Work started in July will begin the work of removing the loose boulders from the river and Montreal lake, so that it will be done as well open up a new water way route in the tourist district."

No Argument

A new 3 and 10 cent store has been opened by a man named Cohen. A woman came in one day and selected a toy for which she handed the proprietor a dime.

"Excuse, lady, said Cohen, "but these toys are 15 cents."

"But I thought this was a 5 and 10 cent store," protested the customer.

"Vell, I leave it to you," came the reply, "how much it is, 5 and 10 cents."

NEW POPULAR BEVERAGE

Four Thousand Gallons Of Tomato Juice Consumed Annually At Health Resort

Tomato juice is a popular beverage at French Lick Springs, a well-known health resort, says The Modern Hospital. According to the manager, H. J. Tumpkins, the guests consume every year thousand gallons of specially prepared tomato juice each year. In commenting on this, Mr. Tumpkins says:

"In late years physicians and dietitians have demonstrated that the juice of the tomato contains many beneficial elements, the chief of which are the three vitamins, A, B and C, and the recent discovered vitamin E, which assists the red blood cells in absorbing from from the blood. There are necessary for building and strengthening the entire human organism.

"Tomato juice may be served plain or with a pungent seasoning to it" says The Modern Hospital. "The method of preparing it is to pour the juice out of the can and press the pulp through a sieve. Chill and season with salt and pepper. Add lemon juice, tabasco, or Worcestershire sauce, if desired or any other seasoning.

"The use of canned tomato juice has been growing ever since the discovery that the remaining pulp can be used as a preservative of vitamin C, which not only prevents scurvy but is necessary for growth and good health. Much of this conservation is due to the acid content of the tomato itself. In addition to this, tomatoes rank with lettuce and green string beans as a source of vitamins A and B.

"Increasing popularity of the tomato as a source of vitamins is due to the fact that it is to be obtained the year around at a comparatively stable price, and because the labor of preparing it for use and serving it at the table is less than many other sources of the vitamins. a matter of importance in the hospital or health resort."

Crop Planning Of The Farm

Keeping a Record Of What Crops Are Grown In Rotation

In order to keep a record of what crops have been grown each year on all the fields of various parts of the farm, it is desirable to draw each year a small plan of the farm. On this plan may be written the crops which have been obtained. If desired, such additional information may be recorded as dates of ploughing, seeding and harvesting. When this plan is made every year, it facilitates the following without error of any rotation which may be desired. It enables one to learn what fields produce the largest yields of certain crops, providing information to enable the improvement of the rotation along the line of adapting certain crops to soils to which they are suited. Observations may be recorded regarding the presence of weeds in various parts of the farm, where soil drifting has occurred, where manure has been applied and any other points of interest. Above all, such a plan provides a definite record of the results of each year's work on the land and over a period of years is very instructive indeed. Keeping a farm business and records are necessary if much improvement is likely to be made.

Each farmer should invest in a book so that many years' records will be kept easily available. It is necessary for the farmer in the book to make a record of all cash receipts and expenditures and to enter in a year end summary the value of all the equipment, livestock, and crops on the farm. These should include both the opening and closing plan of the farm, give accurate information of each years' progress on the farm and enable one to assist in studying how to improve the farm business. No commercial enterprise would consider the conduct of its business without yearly records and neither should any farm enterprise. This method of keeping farm records is perhaps the most simple of any system but it gives, undoubtedly, the most fundamental information and has also the useful advantage of being extremely simple and easy to do. If a more elaborate system is recommended by any it may be adopted later

This advice is offered in Bulletin No. 98, entitled "Crop Rotations on Farms Mixed Farming in the Prairie Provinces," available at the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The planning of the farm might be made a very enjoyable and instructive task for one in a period of days. They are given sufficient instruction in school in mapping to be able to apply this to their own farms

To Preserve Wood

New Tool Invented For Injection Of Plastic Treatment

The practice of injecting logs a "hypodermic injection" to preserve them, invented in Germany not long ago has spread to the British Empire and has been invented to do the work.

The new scientific method is being used to inject into telegraph poles a chemical to prevent that to end to keep rising at bay. Many years are said to be added to the poles life

The treatment of wood is a step that may lend eventually to complete arrest of decay. If that ideal is be reached the reconstruction of wood can be erected that will be no more subject as structures of stone, brick or steel. Possible that in years to have. The effect will be that of transforming wood into rock

Aviation In Western Canada

The developing air mind in Western Canada was recently illustrated when three passengers arrived at Moose Jaw from Winnipeg by regularly Western Canada Airways plane for the transaction of business, this being the first business visit ever made by air to Moose Jaw. The plan later flew to Regina and then back to Winnipeg

PLANS MADE TO BROADEN WORK OF POOL

Regina.—At the final session of the third International Wheat Pool Convention held here, it was decided to broaden out the work of the International Conference. Under the new plan Co-operative Producers and Co-operative Consumers the world over may be brought together in one large co-operative body, but each retaining its identity as an individual co-operative unit. In the connection the following resolution was passed:

"Whereas the values to the various co-operative associations of meeting as conference has been established, be it resolved that national co-operative committees be formed for the purpose of furthering such conference and that such national committees appoint representatives to the International Pool Conference Committee."

Another important conclusion to which the delegates came during the International Conference again next year be left to the discretion of the International Committee which has charge of arranging details of this Conference.

In explanation of the national committees' resolution it was pointed out that the present International Conferences Committee is representative only of wheat pools and not of marketing organizations. The Conference this year had been widened in its scope and 15 different countries representatives of certain other co-operative organizations had been admitted as delegates.

By the formation of national committees, it was further stated during the discussion, a body of information which would include representatives from Canada, the U.S.A., Australia, and possibly Argentine and Russia or any other wheat exporting country, the existing committee was of opinion that a permanent secretariat could be sent to the International Conference. The present International Conference is but a temporary existence and make the first move toward the formation of these national committees. This will be done, it was indicated, by way of a call from the committee to all the co-operative organizations in Canada to meet and form a Canadian national committee. Following this representatives would be appointed who would join hands with those of similar nationals committees in the other countries that might desire to participate and thus the International Conference would be representative of all classes of co-operative producer endeavor.

Not Wanted In England

Harry Thaw Is Refused Permission To Land At Southampton

Southampton, Eng.—Harry Thaw, arriving at Southampton aboard the Aquitania for a visit to England, was refused permission to land by the immigration officials. There had obtained a British visa before sailing but nevertheless was not allowed to land.

He was informed that the home office had issued an order of prohibition and it is supposed that he will be obliged to return to New York on the Aquitania.

Many Natives Represented

Toronto.—It is expected that 65 natives will be represented in Toronto when the Baptist World Alliance holds its foreign congress here, June 23-29. About 7,000 delegates are expected, representing some 12,000,000 baptists throughout the world. The roll call of nations on Saturday, June 23, probably will be the most picturesque session.

Joke Was Costly

Haileybury, Ont.—Touching a match to the gasoline-soaked clothing of his friend, John Burton, Temagami, cost John Hagan $900 and costs Burton spent several weeks in hospital, and nearly lost his life. It was out of work for months as a result of the "joke."

Rupert Cable Conference Report

London. The report of the Imperial Cable Conference, in which Canada's delegation was represented, will be made shortly, the Canadian Press has learned. It is believed the committee will produce no scheme for maintaining cable communications intact.

No Danger Of War

Toronto. Sir John Aird, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, after an extensive trip in Europe, stated in an interview here, that he considered that there was no danger of another outbreak of war

CONSUMERS OF BRITAIN HAVE NO FEAR OF POOL

Regina.—At the International Pool Conference held here, a message of goodwill was brought by the delegates from the British Isles.

Four distinguished visitors from Great Britain attended the final conference of the desires of hundreds of thousands of co-operative consumers in the Old Land to remove the barrier that appears to exist as between the two classes of co-operatives and endeavor to bring about a complete confidence with the one object in view — the creation of a truly co-operative world composed of both producer and consumer.

A. W. Golightly, representing the Co-operative Consumers' Organization, broke the ice on the question and told of the suspicion with which both classes regarded each other.

During the debate, Miss MacPhail of Montreal was compelled to take the cadet training nor were any of the schools under compulsion to do so. He added that the present administration of peace were those who had done their share in military training in the late war.

Included in the votes were $2,215,000 for the non-permanent active militia; $2,000,000 for the permanent force, $2,723,000 for the naval services; $1,609,084 for the Royal Canadian Air Force, and $3,138,000 for civil air operations.

Conducting Another Search For Fliers

Quebec Man Believes Nungesser and Coli Landed in Labrador

Quebec.—That he was morally convinced that the French fliers, Nungesser and Coli had landed with the aeroplane, White Bird, somewhere in the Labrador country and that he had the intention of conducting a new search party this summer in that district were the statements made today by Dr. Louis Coloister. Dr. Coloister has returned from Greenly Island, where he had gone to the rescue of the stranded crew of the Bremen. Dr. Coloister said that the search party would be sent in specially equipped aeroplanes.

Burial Of Hon. C. W. Cross

Edmonton.—With every manifestation of sorrow and respect, the body of the late Charles W. Cross, K.C., first attorney-general of Alberta, and since 1905 prominent in public life in the province, was laid to rest here. The crown, the province, the city, bench and bar, the various other learned professions, and men who in province in many diverse activities united in the last tribute. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. H. McQueen, pioneer Edmonton pastor

Change Is Approved

Toronto.—Resurgence of the Canadian Dental Association with provision of an executive body in which all provinces will have representation, was approved at the annual convention. Dr. J. W. Clay, of Calgary, president, stated the change would make for a strong national body.

Reindeer For Northern Canada

Would Supply Food For Eskimo Bands In Northern Arms

Ottawa.—Importation of herds of reindeer into the Mackenzie basin with a view to supplying food for the Eskimo bands which inhabit this remote part of Canada is being undertaken by the government.

In the House of Commons, when estimates of the department of Indian Affairs were under consideration, Hon. Charles Stewart, minister in charge of the department, told of privations which had been suffered by the Eskimo in the past and the efforts which were being made to eliminate it.

Mr. Stewart also informed the House that the department was having an exhaustive investigation into the conditions existing among the Indians in the Northern territories, and declared something must be done, if necessary, with provincial governments, to provide human' grounds outside the present reserves. He informed the House that as soon the Indian would starve to death.

Agree On Peace Pact

No Difference Of Opinion Between Canada and Britain

Ottawa There is no conflict of opinion between the Prime Minister of Canada and Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary with regard to the proposed Kellogg treaty for outlawing war

This was made clear by Premier Mackenzie King in the House of Commons, when he replied to a question put by E. J. Garland, U.F.A. member from Bow River.

Mr. Garland had drawn the attention of the Prime Minister to his speech in the Old Land to remove the barrier that appears to exist as between the two classes of co-operatives and endeavor to bring about a complete confidence with the one object in view — the creation of a truly co-operative world composed of both producer and consumer.

A. W. Golightly, representing the Co-operative Consumers' Organization, broke the ice on the question and told of the suspicion with which both classes regarded each other.

Pass Estimates For Defence Department

Amendment Presented To House On Cadet Training In-trade

Ottawa.—When estimates of the Department of National Defence were before the House of Commons, Miss Agnes MacPhail, U.F.A. member for Southeast Grey, moved that a vote of $500,000 for cadet service be reduced to $1. Miss MacPhail's amendment was declared lost on the item itself carried.

During the debate, Miss MacPhail of Montreal was compelled to take the cadet training nor were any of the schools under compulsion to do so. He added that the present administration of peace were those who had done their share in military training in the late war.

Included in the votes were $2,215,000 for the non-permanent active militia; $2,000,000 for the permanent force, $2,723,000 for the naval services; $1,609,084 for the Royal Canadian Air Force, and $3,138,000 for civil air operations.

Now Available and Fish Shipments Accumulating At Prince Rupert

Ottawa. A request for railway cars to carry an accumulation of halibut from Prince Rupert, B.C. to the Eastern markets was made in the House of Commons by J. H. Brady, Conservative, Kootenay.

"Within the last few days eleven pounds of halibut have been bought to Prince Rupert ready for market (only three cars were available for them had been secured by Mr. Ship) more. He asked the Minister of Railways to take some action to relieve the Canadian shippers to obtain cars.

Hon. C. A. Pannin, Minister of Railways and Canals, promised assistance

Winnipeg, Man. In honor of the gallant pioneers of the air, who blazed stations in the western regions of the Canadian Northland, Edmonton have named their airport Blatchford Field, after Kenneth Blatchford, Alcock and Blatchford and a fifth will be called Eadon, the name of the plane in which Walter Hinchcliffe and Hon. Elsie Mackay were killed by the Atlantic.

Miss Ruth Draper, the American actress, caused a stir in English society when she was presented at court. In the past the understanding has been that it was useless for any actress to seek presentation while she was still actively engaged in her profession, but court officials have pointed out that the general ban on stage folk has been a dead letter since the days of Queen Victoria.

Plan For Publicity Campaign In Britain Being Discussed

London.—Canadian products should become very well known in Britain if Parmalee's scheme succeeds. Exhibitions of Canadian products are to be held in the near future at Birmingham, Aberdeen, Belfast, Manchester, Glasgow, Dublin, Leeds and Bristol, and a striking publicity campaign will be put into operation. A permanent staff, composed entirely of Canadians, will be created in London so as to be ready at any moment to run exhibition campaigns on behalf of Canadian products. Canadian artists will design the stalling and posters.

Parmalee is staying two months in order to perfect the scheme, which has been welcomed by leading authorities and the British government as a noteworthy enterprise

PROTEIN CONTENT BEST BASIS FOR GRADING WHEAT

Ottawa The proposal that the protein content be made the basis on which wheat be graded was dealt with by the committee on agriculture in its report submitted to the House of Commons.

It came to the conclusion that the nearest approach to an ideal basis for the baking strength of wheat was by determining the variety and quantity of protein, the latter to be ascertained by chemical test. At present the baking strength is determined on the variety and percentage of hard kernels.

The report stated that so far as export trade was concerned there was not sufficient evidence to the effect of the proposed changes from the present system of grading to that of protein test to warrant any recommendation that it be adopted, but did recommend that a full inquiry into that phase of the question be made.

The committee also urged that seed warehouses be maintained to collect and distribute seed of approved varieties; that an experimental flour mill be established and that inspectors be stationed at all transfer points between the Head of the Lakes and the seaboard in order to prevent mixing of wheat.

The changes, if carried out, would necessitate amendments to the Canada Grain Act.

The resolution states that in Canada, probably more than in any other country, the production of high quality spring Canadian wheat, having strength was an important factor in the development of the country, and that upon the decision of the protein content would be based the future of the industry.

Except in the case of Durum wheat, at present graded in a class by itself, and possibly one or two other varieties grown in limited or small quantities, the protein in contract grades could be assumed to be proof quality.

Most of making protein tests should range from 80 to 75 cents, which would not be a serious difficulty, notwithstanding the fact that laboratories would have to be installed at all inspection points. The committee suggested that data be obtained as to the cost of installing and maintaining laboratories. Individual tests would require about two hours. A large number of tests could be conducted annually, and there would be no delay in testing and dispatching cars to terminal points

The chief proposal in the report is that it shall be put into effect immediately but that consideration be given to the question that wheat sold locally in Canadian Mills could take advantage of the protein basis

DEWBERRY BUDGET

On Saturday, June 2nd a few of the residents of Greenhawn and Dewberry districts gathered at the cemetery to take part in the annual clean-up. Brush was cut and burned, and the lawn mower, which was built during the winter, was moved into place. A meeting was held after the clean-up, and the financial statement was laid before the meeting showing a deficit. It was agreed to have the secretary take subscriptions to pay off the debt and pay for plowing and seeding down the grounds. The list is open and all those who care to help this commendable business should see him.

On the same day at 8 p.m., Dewberry Wheat Pool Local held a meeting at which were present representatives from Greenlawn, Landsville, Edenlaw and Riverton. The object of the meeting was to nominate a delegate preparatory to the annual volunteers taken by ballot. Mr. Walter Skinner was chosen. Special meetings will be held to discuss Pool matters as follows: Landsville, Saturday, 16th June at 8 p.m.; Greenlawn U. F. A. Hall on July 14th. Members should attend these meetings.

On Tuesday night, June 5th the Board of Trade held its monthly meeting. The date of the sports day is set for July 1st. Big preparations are being made to make this a real sports day for everyone. A site is chosen west of the town and the local live committee is in charge and a good time is assured to all who attend.

There will be a baseball match on the grounds and a dance at night on an open air platform. The committee have arranged for a first-class orchestra.

Mr. Chas. Weatherup is having a good house built by Mr. Dave Haley of Greenlawn. From the look of the structure in its present stage it will be a credit to the town.

Mrs. Jos. Hughes left last week for Hospital to Mr and Mrs J. R. Robson a daughter.

MR. CLEMENT CANT TO RING AT SUNDAY EVENING BAND CONCERT

The Executive of the Vermilion Citizens' Band regret to announce that, owing to unforeseen circumstances, the party of Vermville artists who were advertised to appear at the concert on Sunday evening next, have been compelled to postpone their visit to a later date.

The Band have been fortunate, however, in securing the services of Mr. Clement Cant and a number of well known local artists, so that a full programme of vocal and instrumental pieces and band selections will be rendered at the Columbia Theatre, commencing at 9:15 p.m.

Sam had been in our love counsels. He had helped to many learned friends disagreeing with other learned friends, and he had become somewhat of a learned himself. He had one rule, "admit nothing—deny everything—remember you were not there when it happened." So, when a well-dressed young man came asking for a Finnish girl with red hair Sam knew nothing. It hasn't been his sphere the relations between men and women were elemental and simple. Maybe the learned wanted his red-haired girl—that might be. Well, Sam did not want to lose her, she was a good girl, honest girl—she rang up the right change. Sam did not usually trust any white girl with change, but he was glad now that he had found one whom he could not catch, for it might be she was honest all the time.

"No," Sam did not know. Sam did not know anything. Sam did not tell Heimi, either, "nice girl, Heimi, if she wants fella she could get plenty no use gettin' nice girl all excite."

Heimi went back to the "Good Eats Cafe" one day to see if it would be possible for her to be given longer hours. The dollar a night was not paying to be satisfied, for Sam was the room rent was fifteen dollars a month, and even at that the suspected the Greeks were paying some of it. She would like to go to work at two o'clock in the afternoon if Sam could arrange it. He had been working for a few days and another Chinaman had been in charge.

When Heimi arrived, old Sam was at his accustomed place behind the desk, very elegant in a new shirt, suit and a white tie. He wore a white flower in his buttonhole, and resembled a church usher on Mother's Day. Heimi remembered how they looked in Miss Abbie's church. He was very friendly with her, and bowed cavalierly over her hand. Heimi had learned to suspect polite men of being drunk, but old Sam was always sober. The cafe, too, was festive in its appearance. Flowers in bloom were on the tables. A drooping fuschia in the window rained its crimson and purple blossoms down like a sprayling fountain, and squares of embroidery hung on the walls. Heimi wondered at the change. It must be some Chinese holiday, she thought.

Sam came around from the desk to greet her, and she noticed further improvement—Sam had fallen heir, with some gold cans. His nails were faintly manicured and his hands were heavily perfumed. "Nice led-haired girl," he said, shaking her hand sideways, "good girl early day. Old Sam got nice Hebbe white girl now all his own. Soon she come, my girl—grand girl—Mrs. Sam Lee—drives big car—my girl."

As he spoke a big gray car with Fifty mannishly drew up to the curb, and a lady in a scarlet suit came out. She came into the "Good Eats Cafe," filling the doorway with color, like some strange tropical bird. Heimi's eyes were so dazzled by the vision that in her admiring survey she had not yet reached the face.

A shout came from under the drooping black hat, and the beaming lady bore down upon Heimi. "Heimi, my love, come to me! I always knew I would find you."

"Rose Lamb!" cried Heimi, breathless with excitement. "Rose, are you not?"

"Hush," cautioned Rose, dimpling and drawing her shoulders up. "I was not to tell. You and I met at a Young Ladies' Seminary—no tradesman's daughters allowed—remember? Not a word, or old Sam minds he's been in jail, and it makes them broad to go to jail; but for the sake of my social position, mum's the word. Sam ten for two please. Sit down Heimi, and let me look at you.

Have you been converted lately? O Lord, do you remember how we were prayed over? I got to be their little pet lamb—pure as the driven snow—but I drifted! Well where have you been?"

Heimi told her.

"Married? That's bad. But I have it. I saw it in you—you were that kind. And your man has sort of been mislaid, temporarily. He is only a miner—let him go—he hasn't got the pay. I hear."

"But I want him to come back," said Heimi, "I love him, Rose."

"Ain't that like you, Heimi? Of course you do, and you have a baby, and I suppose you keep it too."

"I sure do," said Heimi.

Then Lee had gone into the kitchen, and Heimi hearing close to Rose said: "Rose, did you marry old Sam?"

"Sold, you've said it," replied the bride; " sure did—license, ring and all. Sam Lee, widower, Rose Annabel Leach, spinster—Anglican clergyman doing the job."

"Rose, how could you ?He is not only a Chinaman, but old—very old, he must be at least sixty."

"Sixty!" Rose almost shouted. "Don't kid yourself—he's eighty. I wouldn't look at anyone only sixty—he might outlive me. Sam is safe—stuff out like a gentleman. Little Hosie, all alone—think of it!—with some forty thousand bones. Heimi, that!"

"My good," said Heimi, shaking her head; "no good."

"Child, I couldn't work. I hate dishwater and I couldn't scrub—it always made my nose sore. I hate work and what could I do? If I had lots of money I'd run straight. Old Sam is not so bad, and the gray car is a pippin.

Come and see our house, Heimi; it's swell—rugs of blue and rose, with little tea tables for the corners; tapestries in gold blossoms, lamps of hammered brass—oh, come and see it, Heimi, some more singey! Thanks, old top. Lots of room for you, too, Heimi. I'll give you a room to rest and pray with from every every morning. Come Heimi, let's have a little run in the car. I've been pinched once for speeding, but I'm careful now. I want to tell you about what happened after you left."

Heimi went with Rose to the car and stepped in after her. The sudden rush of air, the delightful feeling of motion, the sensation of freedom, mingled with Heimi's fears fell away impulsively she hugged her friend's arm. "Oh, Rose, its good to see you," she said.

Two men on the sidewalk regarded them closely. One watched them with red-rimmed eyes, cynical and bald, the only gleam of gladness in them due to his suspicions being verified. The other man's eyes burned with a great sorrow and a bitter disappointment

"You see what I said," remarked the first, "that woman driving the car is well known in the underworld Lately she has come here as a protectress of a rich Chinaman The Finnish girl is one of the gang, as you can see. Mr. Doran, you are well out of it."

Jack leaned back against the door way, sick at heart.

"Now I want to tell you something," said Major Gossett, for it was he. "that girl has no legal hold on you, Col. Blackwood did not recors the marriage. He knew her history you see. She has therefore no hold on you, so do not worry about that

Jack turned away without speaking.

The home of life went on with its weaving, but from Heimi's life the golden thread had gone For of course, the flying shuttles cannot stop to look for ends. The loom, of life goes on regardless of the weaver.

Its shuttles are able to bring, but it takes no responsibility for the pattern.

THE TEETH TELL

Nature is no bungler; but plans wisely. So it is that she has intended teeth should occlude, or come together, in certain definite relationships, with cups interlocking as "the cogs of two wheels which work in harmony."

But quite frequently her aim is thwarted and there is an abnormal relationship known as mal-occlusion.

Many and varied causes as we have been cited contribute to this condition as, maddlesome extractions developed shedding; early cuspions improper masticating habits; faulty diet; deforming habits of the young child; and general diseases affecting tooth development

But there is a type of mal-occlusion, without the so-called "crooked teeth." The teeth may in fact be exceptionally well formed and placed normally in the arch so that in this type the arch "per se" is at fault, either exhibiting a deformity, or lack in improper relationship to its fellow

Mal-occlusion may be very noticeable, evincing a protruding or retruding jaw, or other facial deformity; but again, the facial contour may not be altered from normal to any appreciable extent

Apart from this relationship to facial expression, however, mal-occlusion may lead to serious disturbances of the teeth themselves.

It may be that due to this condition that one or several teeth are receiving excessive stress, resulting in a diseased condition of the tissues enveloping the tooth, or teeth, and menacing the life of the teeth involved.

Moreover, teeth that are not functioning properly likewise themselves may be weakened structurally, leaving them more prone to decay, and in any event, they are not receiving the benefits of normal tooth contact, one of the mechanical cleansing, through the exercise masticatory movements which, after all, is the best defense against the forces of tooth decay

NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Is What Thousands Of Mothers Say Of Baby's Own Tablets

A medicine for the baby or growing child—one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as effectual is found in Baby's Own Tablets The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hutt, Tancook Island N.S. writes:— "I have two children the baby being just six months old I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them for the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I think of no better medicine for little ones I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Glass Windows In Ancient Times

Art Of Glass Making Was Known To The Early Egyptians

It is believed that the first glass in this country came into common use in Egypt. According to Dr. M. Rostovtzeff, formerly curator of the Museum in ancient Russia, most of the pieces did not exceed 12 inches in size. Though a few larger ones have been found.

Glass-making known to mankind for nearly 3,000 years. In the Middle ages the making of glass was unknown in Europe, and the Venetians monopolized it entirely. Later the art was revived and well-finished glass was made with much success. The famous makers of the 16th century were Italians at Murano and Venice, where they made lovely pieces of glass

Gum-Dipped Tires Save You Money

Gum-Dipping is an exclusive Firestone process. It insulates and impregnates every fibre of every cord with rubber and prevents the cords from chafing against each other.

In ordinary tires these cords are uninsulated. In flexing they chafe against each other, generating internal heat and friction which softens the rubber, causing blowouts and tire failure.

Those better tires cost you no more, yet they give thousands of extra miles. See your nearest Firestone Dealer.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby's Nerves

By RUTH BRITTAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children may be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents and friends. Baby may be played with but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour at a time, being bounced, tickled, coaxed to laugh or even scream until sometimes result in vomiting and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness

Professional crying and sleeplessness in the case can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration. When you pass can't be what is making baby restless, or why he or she has a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it relaxes baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep yet contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable the recipe is on the wrapper Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of childhood Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

Consumption Of Meat in Canada

Figures Go To Prove That Pork Is the Favorite Meat

Pork is the favorite meat of Canadians, according to a recent compilation on the meat and poultry consumption of the people of the Dominion made by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics. The daily consumption of meat and poultry in Canada is about 7 1-3 ounces for every man, woman, and child. This means an annual consumption of 773,150,815 pounds of pork, 634,643,623 pounds of beef; 38,191,717 pounds of mutton and lamb, 63,235,521 pounds fowl and chickens, 14,138,558 pounds turkey; 4,586,890 pounds duck; and 9,883,890 pounds geese. In addition there is an annual per capita consumption of 29.67 dozen eggs, of a total of 252,646,982 dozens. Canada's egg bill alone is valued at over $112,000,000 annually The per capita annual purchase of meats is 87.43 pounds of pork; 65.76 pounds of beef 9.09 pounds of poultry; and 6.11 pounds mutton and lamb. This represents half a hen's hog, a small hind quarter of beef, two chickens and a loin of lamb for every member of every household in Canada, an expenditure at average prices of the differ ent commodities of $42.0 per person, per year For the whole of Canada this would amount to approximately $416,172,710 exclusive of the $113 000 000 egg bill.

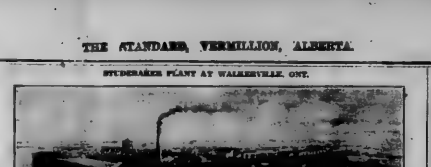
New Oil Fuel Source

The Dominion Fuel Board since its inception has conducted exhaustive studies with a view to making Canada independent in the commercial use of fuel, with the result that Pennsylvania anthracite is being displaced by other fuels in Ontario and Quebec to the extent of 1,500,000 tons a year. Another beneficial feature is that a variety of fuels has established competition in the markets of domestic fuel supplies.

It is estimated that 100,000,000 people speak Russian.

STUDEBAKER PLANT AT WALKERVILLE, ONT.



The Walkerville Plant of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Ltd., where the Studebaker and Erskine Cars are manufactured, is now a purely Canadian concern, employing Canadian labor, and using Canadian material. Studebaker and Erskine cars are becoming increasingly popular throughout the Dominion.

Studebaker To Build Canadian Automobiles For Canadians

Friendly Divorcement Of Canadian Organization From Studebaker Corporation Of America

With the announcement of a far-reaching reorganization of both administrative and manufacturing policies, the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Ltd., has assumed a front rank position among the Dominion's largest independent manufacturers. The announcement, which indicates a friendly divorcement of the Canadian Studebaker Organization from the Studebaker Corporation of America, was issued by A. R. Erskine, president of both industries.

The new Studebaker organization will be directed by D. R. Grossman, formerly sales manager for Studebaker in the Dominion. Mr. Grossman's title will be vice-president and general manager. Having been associated with Studebaker in Canada for the past six years, Mr. Grossman is well known to the Dominion's automotive leaders

The motive behind the reorganization is to be found in our desire to build Canadian Automobiles for Canadians," says the statement. "The Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Ltd., is Canadian, both in name and more of Canada's great supplies of raw materials. Not only will our consumption of these commodities be increased, but new commodities will be added to our purchasing agent's order lists.

"We want to build automobiles for Canada and we want Canadians to approve of them. It is felt that the time has come to go ahead and the time will be lost in increasing the number of cars actually built in Canada. We hope to see greater efficiency than has been possible in the past, which will result in greater automobile values for Canadian purchasers.

"Continuing the precedent already established, the personnel of the Canadian organization will be almost exclusively Canadian. In addition, present plans contemplate that advertising and printing matter shall be prepared in Canada, and, in short, a large percentage of every dollar spent in connection with the Canadian business shall be paid to Canadian individuals and Canadian firms.

"The new arrangement will mean a gradual increase in the numbers of employees at the Walkerville plant. Branches are now maintained at Montreal and Calgary These will also be greatly increased.

"This move is a result of Studebaker's faith in Canada," said Mr. Grossmon recently. "We believe there will be wonderful developments in this country and through this extended program, we will naturally become a part of those developments."

Says Food Affects Eyes

Chicago Specialist Believes Defects Can Be Remedied By Diet

Farsightedness, which comprises 75 per cent. of all defects of vision relieved by proper diet, according to Dr. G. A. Harkness, Chicago eye specialist.

"I have not collected positive data," Dr. Harkness said, "but from numerous observations in private practice and in clinic I believe diet affects the sight.

"A diet of such foods as milk, tomatoes, orange juice and rich livers will diminish the distorted shape of the eyeball 50 per cent. in time.

"All children under 10 whose sight is defective are either under-nourished or underfed. Diet can restore the sight to a better degree of normality."

The Level Head

The peril of the level way is greater than the peril of the hills. There is nothing more exhausting than a dead level stretch, unbroken by changes. More people break down beneath the monotony of life than beneath its changes. There is scarcely a greater achievement than the victory of the man who keeps fresh and vigorous on the level road.

There are a few things that money cannot buy, but not many people want them.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

It was just a step to Canada House and a reception by the Hon Peter Larkin, High Commissioner for Canada. We were all impressed by the appearance of Canada's headquarters in Great Britain. Overlooking Trafalgar Square, Canada House occupies one of the most commanding sites in London, and does honour to our Dominion. There was no formality, no speeches, just a friendly handshake and a few words for all in the private room of the high commissioner.

Now came the event of the day, the reception at St. James's. It was not without awe that we entered this simple stately palace of red brick after passing its sentinels clad in scarlet guarded by sentries wearing the famous busby. This palace which we Canadian farmers were entering had been the home of Charles the First, and is today the scene of Levees and Privy Councils. We mounted the beautiful stairway to the Entree Room. A short wait and the Prince was in the Audience Chamber ready to meet us. The door opened. There was the Royal Highness, not seated but standing at the entrance with a smile of welcome. We were introduced by Mr. Groff who performed a feat of memory by remembering all our names.

The Prince had a handshake, a smile and a few words of greeting for every member of the party, but his friends and neighbors from Alberta were specially honored. Mr. Willis Hope, who once played a set of pipes at a party on the Prince's ranch, was at once recognized by His Royal Highness, who asked Mr. Sharpe if he had brought his kilt. The Prince asked Mr. C. H. Marshall how their mutual friend TU Brown was getting on and Mr. P. J. Tooley, of the Peace River, was questioned about Peace River problems and the probability of railway connection with the Pacific Coast. The interest of the Prince in Canada was spontaneous and real, and we were delighted with his evident regard for our great Dominion.

After the reception we were shown through the Armoury, Queen Anne's Drawing Room, the Tapestry Room, the Throne Room, and the Picture Gallery, with its Royal portraits dominated by the paintings of King George IV, Queen Victoria at the one end, and Queen Victoria at the other.

Our next appointment was at Harrod's great store where we were entertained by Sir Woodman Burbidge, head of this great firm, to lunch. Afterwards visiting the Provision Shop and some of the factories of the great establishment. Harrod's is perhaps the finest department store in London and its provision shop is a model for such establishments Canadian products have a prominent place in it.

Our official day concluded with a visit to the London Headquarters of the Danish Bacon and Co-operative Trading Company through which passes a large part of the Danish bacon supplied to the British market. It is a simple fortnight as many as 600,000 sides have been received and distributed from this one plant. Besides selling as a distributing centre the company operates thirty smokehouses. It was interesting to learn that a thick pitch-like substance which covered the sides, the result of many years' deposit, imparts to the bacon much of its aroma and flavor. The deposit is caused by the wood ash smoke which bacon sides receive while curing.

Non-resinous wood is used in the smoking process. Shrinkage during the curing process is approximately 7 per cent.

Every bacon side bears several stamps which permits the Danish Bacon Co. to trace the origin and date of killing of every piece of meat that reaches its establishment and obviates any possibility of bacon being distributed which may have been held up over long at the producing point, or shipped too soon to take advantage of satisfactory conditions The sides are graded by experienced men who, through long association with the British market, know accurately the requirements of each of the customers of the Trading Company

The Danish Bacon Co-operative Trading Company is an example of a combination of producers' consumer co-operative organization. Half of the capital stock is in the hands of 10,000 retailers, large and small, scattered throughout the British Isles, the other half is owned by 17 Danish Bacon Factories which supply the carcasses. Such an organization, bringing together as it does, a single distributing body, the producers and consumers of a given commodity lends to the Company great internal strength.

The Company in London under taken to accept all suitable bacon as it is shipped from the 17 factories in Denmark, and it is its proud boast that it has never refused to handle all supplies shipped to it regardless of the condition of the market.

GREAT PRAISE FOR BABY'S OWN TABLETS

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. have received the following letter from Mrs. Griffith, of 21 Sherbourne Ave., East Hamilton, Ont., concerning her experience with Baby's Own Tablets:

Dear Sirs,—I wish to thank you for the handy little booklet you sent me on the care of Children. My baby boy was six weeks old when I first used Baby's Own Tablets, and now in time My first baby is now, at the age of four and a half years, a picture of health, and my nine-months-old baby is also well and sturdy. They are both a real good sample of what Baby's Own Tablets can do for I have never yet needed a doctor for either of them."

The booklet to which Mrs. Griffith refers is entitled "Care Of the Baby," and treats with what a mother ought to know for baby's sake. A copy of the booklet will be sent free to anyone requesting same from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE POWER OF THE POOL Lies in Volume Control

The Canadian Wheat Pool Now Handles ONE FOURTH of the World's Exportable Wheat Surplus

The Wheat Pool has given ample evidence of its usefulness to wheat growers since last harvest Faced with the handling of a damaged crop and with a large increase in world production, the Pool has been successful to a considerable degree in preventing disastrous slumps. Every wheat farmer in Western Canada owes a debt of gratitude to the Wheat Pool

The power of the Pool lies in its control of volume. Every bushel placed in the Pool means greater strength. The organization needs YOUR assistance.

The ideal of co-operation is working together for the common good. It is opposed to any system that makes a profit on the result of the labors of the producer. Its operations mean more wealth for all the producers.

Co-operation is not only a sentiment but an economic necessity. Let the hearts and minds of our farmers become imbued with its ideals and there is hope for the economic future of agriculture

You who have not signed the Second Series Wheat Pool Contract gain nothing by delay. You only weaken the strength of an organization that has proven the best friend the farmer has ever had

Band Excels At Sunday Evening Concert

In spite of the inclemency of the weather, the concert held in the Columbia under the auspices of the Vermilion Citizens' Band attracted almost a capacity house on Sunday evening The programme which was rendered a high standard of excellence, and it would be difficult to find a more enthusiastic audience.

Following an opening number by the band, Miss Madelon McLean played Chopin's famous "Waltz in G Flat Major" very acceptably. Her playing of this difficult solo was highly creditable, and was the subject of much favorable comment.

Mr. I. Watts, who is always a favorite with local audiences, sang Stephen Gordon's "When the Evening Flows" in characteristic fashion His singing was much appreciated.

In a splendid rendition of Marner's "Evening Star," Mr. R. Barwick excelled himself as a solo violinist. Always pleasing in his work, Mr. Barwick uses excellent taste in the choice of his items, and on Sunday night the audience showed keen appreciation of his items

One has difficulty in finding sufficient superlatives to do justice to the fine work of Mr Clement Casey, who was the guest soloist of the evening. The audience simply could not be satisfied. Listed on the programme to give two songs, this versatile artist gave no less than seven items, every one of which was received with marked approbation. His reception was a veritable triumph.

Mrs. J. W. Newlove, in a delightful rendering of Godard's "Angels Guard Thee," evoked enthusiastic applause and was compelled to give a second number

One of the most pleasing items on the programme was provided by Mr. F. J. Richardson who played a piano solo solo by Blasi in masterly style To an unusually good technique Mr Richardson adds an artistic sense of interpretation which never fails to please his audience, and he was deservedly encored

The Vermilion Citizens' Band contributed four numbers, all of which were well received

The writer considers their perform ances on Sunday night to be their best effort to date. The playing of the bass and trombone sections has improved remarkably, and the precision of the entire band to the excellent conductorship of Bandmaster W. B. Elford was indeed praiseworthy

Their rendition of the final pot-pourri numbr would be a credit to any band and the writer is proud of the possession of having such a musical organization The band's next concert will be looked forward to with interest and the standard consummated the boys reap the splendid progress they are making

MUST RETAIN OUR PUBLIC UTILITIES.

There is little doubt but that the Great mass of the ingrossers of the town are determined that we shall retain the municipal ownership of electric light and power plant, and that the by-law being voted on this Friday for monies to carry out extensions and additions will receive their endorsation. The Standard believes that both the offers recently received by the town for its electric light and power franchise were fair, and will go further and say that the offer of the Mid-West was exceptionally good. Conditions in Vermilion relative to our power plant are entirely the opposite of the majority of municipal owned plants ,which have found it impossible to operate without an annual deficit. These latter are consequently glad to be released from a non supporting utility and such offers as have been made to our town would be grasped at as their salvation from ultimate disaster. Vermilion, with an inadequate and antiquated plant, has been making money for several years—sufficient surplus over operation to meet the annual debenture payment and, to grant simply after the time free street lighting. Even if that were all it could be expected to do, companies would find it difficult to convince the people to grant them a franchise in this connection. With our modern equipment, with a lowering of operating costs, surplus at present, and vastly increased business as a certainty, Vermilion feels that it will have a utility which ultimately is to be a big factor in the reduction of the taxes in the town Vote for this by-law

THE CENTRAL HEATING BY-LAW.

The Board of Trade met on Monday night and decided to have a sports day on Wednesday July 25th.

The many friends and old-time acquaintances here learned with deep regret of deep regret of the death of Jame E. Pickard, which took place the week-ending at the home of her son Oliver in Edmonton. Mrs. Pickard had reached the advanced age of 77 years. Her husband predeceased her two months ago and she is survived by three sons, Oliver of Edmonton William of Bon Accord, and Charles of Grande Prairie. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock Rev. Dr. Mitchell conducting the service, and interment made in the Edmonton cemetery. Mrs Pickard came to Vermilion from Ontario with her late husband a number of years ago and took to advancing years the people built here two or three years ago to make their home with Mr and Mrs. J. E. Pickard in Edmonton. She was held in the highest esteem in this community and her passing is mourned by all.

ALBERTA FIRE LOSSES IN 1927

Thirty-three deaths and property losses totalling $2,238,792 resulted from fires in Alberta during the year 1927, according to the recently issued report of Henry Bone, provincial fire commissioner. Fire waste from the ravages of dwelling, stores, barns and garages amounted to over $1,500,000 or 66 per cent. of the total fire loss for the year, and it is pointed out in the report that practically all of these fires were due to carelessness in some form or the other.

During 1927 a total of 736 cities, towns and villages in the Province were visited and inspected by officials of the fire commissioner's office and 687 orders were issued for the correction of defects. Inspection charges and Fire Prevention Act during the year totalled 26 or 94.7 per cent. of those brought to trial.

GRADING ON BASIS OF PROTEIN CONTENT

In view of the general dissatisfaction with the present method of grading wheat in Canada farmers will be glad to learn that the commissioners of the House of Commons appointed to inquire into the question of grading wheat by protein content, while not prepared to recommend the adoption of this system has established a non-political laboratory and recommended a full investigation into the proposal.

That this method of determining the rush value of wheat brings far better returns to the farmers in some parts of the world under certain conditions was borne testimony to at the recent International Wheat Pool Conference in Regina, when John Vessey Mann gave of the South West Producers of Canada said the differing in the protein content of wheats in some sections of the state ranged from a few cents to as high as 6c and 7c cents a bushel, based on the present contract of the exchange. Last year the average premium paid to growers for protein content was 3½ cents a bushel, over and above the average paid on grade or the year of $1.18 a bushel.

Evidence again accumulating that the method of grading is worthy of serious consideration.—Tofield Mercury.

NEW RESEARCH BUILDINGS AT THE UNIVERSITY

Increased accommodation is being provided this year in the Department of Field Crops at the University of Alberta by the erection of a new laboratory and greenhouses for the study of plant morphology and plant breeding. This additional space will make possible the carrying on of a co-operative project by the University, the Federal Department of Agriculture and the National Research Council on the problem of cereal diseases.

Dr. A. W. Henry, formerly of the University of Minnesota, on his return from Europe last fall joined the staff of the Department of Field Crops and will lead the plant pathological staff in the new laboratory. Dr. G. S. Sanford of the Federal Division of Botany will have charge of the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology and Dr. O. A. Aamodt of the University of Minnesota has been appointed to take charge of the work in cereal breeding. Dr. Aamodt will spend the summer in Europe, mainly at Cambridge and Svalof, and will take up his work at the University in the fall Professor J. H. Fryer will continue in charge of forage crop breeding. Disease resistance is one of the main qualities being sought in the plant breeding work.

DEPARTMENT OPPOSES INTRODUCTION OF CHESTER WHITE HOGS

Further strife stops have been taken during the past week by the Department of Agriculture to check the activities of salesmen representing the Central United States swine Companies who have been taking orders for Chester White sows and boars in various sections of the Province.

Officials of the Department have been writing to a number of districts advising farmers to have nothing to do with the contract offered them by these companies. The proposition which at first sight appears attractive proves on investigation to be very unsound from the standpoint of the farmer and information secured by the Department shows that farmers in a number of sections of the United States suffered heavy losses by becoming involved in similar schemes. The Bankers' Association has exhausted the warning being issued by the Department by advising local bank managers throughout the Province of the unsoundness of the scheme

General Motors Plant at Regina

To Cost $1,000,000

REGINA, Sask., June 1.—The announcement yesterday that a million dollars will be spent by General Motors of Canada, Limited, on the erection of a manufacturing and assembly plant at Regina is a very practical form of the optimism which one of the country's largest manufacturers has for the future of the Canadian West.

Establishment of the Regina plant is in pursuance of the General Motors policy of placing assembly plants, where ratings of sale warrants, as near as possible to the centre of distribution for the particular territory. Under this system the benefit of increased employment, payroll distribution and local purchases are spread by the General Motors factory through the territory which provides the ruling business throughout Western Canada has made the establishment of the Regina factory a logical move. Chevrolet and Pontiac cars produced here will be marketed throughout the Canadian West.

"It gives me the greatest pleasure to confirm the statement that we are about to establish a large plant in Regina," said R. S. McLaughlin, President of General Motors of Canada, Limited, who with other General Motors executives is in Regina today.

"The West has always supported the General Motors Company and General Motors, its successor, in splendid fashion. We feel doubly happy therefore to be established here by the week in such a fine city as Regina we can put back in payroll and local purchases some of the business which Western Canada has made the establishment of

"My optimism and that of the other directors of General Motors of Canada in the West" he remarked, "has taken the very practical form of a decision to spend a million dollars on a fine Regina plant, in anticipation of an ever increasing market throughout the West for Canadian built automobiles."

The city council of Regina and the ed an agreement for the purchase of General Motors executives have site 22 acres of city property. Construction will be rushed and it is hoped to have the building ready for occupancy and production not later than December 1st of this year

Before deciding on the location of their Western plant, General Motors officials conducted intensive investigations and surveys a period of six months. Since the decision to build in Regina was reached, negotiations have been carried on by the Massey Co. Company and city officials. Final arrangements were completed upon the arrival in Regina of W. S. Knudsen, vice president of General Motors at Canada; H. A. Brown, Vice-President and General Manager; J. H. Deeton, General Sale- Manager, and J. D. Kerrin Regional Manager

The new General Motors factory will be Regina's largest industrial plant in volume of output. Floor space and handling facilities will be arranged so as the first unit in a programme to be developed as conditions warrant. It will be devoted not only to the assembling of Pontiac and Chevrolet automobiles, but to the body building, painting and trimming operations. In this respect it is more comprehensive than the Oshawa plant, which was established by the Company

The plant will be a model of efficiency representing in its layout all the most modern handling methods. Moving conveyors will carry the cars along from the time they begin as mere frames until they come off at the other end in completed form. The plant will be capable of producing a car every fifteen minutes, being designed for a capacity output of 150 cars a day.

Another aid to efficient operation is the fact that the factory will be located on both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, so that outgoing or incoming shipments may be routed over either line.

When the plant opens, the working force will be gradually increased on till it is expected that at peak production 1,000 men will be employed. Its plant and office will be from 650 to 800

Second Instalment of Income Tax Due June 30th.

Those taxpayers who adopted the instalment basis of settlement of their Income Tax liability which was due on March 31st last, are reminded that the last day for payment of the second instalment will be Saturday, the 30th June, on which date one-quarter of the total Tax due, together with interest thereon at the rate of 6 p.c. per annum for two months, is payable at the various district offices of the income Tax, Branch, Department of National Revenue. Any payments made after that date will carry an extra 1 p.c. interest. In other words, the Act provides that the interest rate shall be 7 p.c. instead of 6 p.c. after June 30th.

All those persons who must pay their Income Tax in instalments have no excuse for not knowing the date, as the Income Tax Act requires that a notice to that effect be sent out by the Inspector of Income Tax for this new district in situated in the Post Office Building, Edmonton, to whom all payments for Tax and interest should now be made

Where the forwarding payment of Taxes should be unable to meet the taxpayer's proper name and address be given, also that cheques are first of all made payable to the Receiver General, which they are drawn, otherwise they have to be sent out for acceptance by the Inspector of Taxes until they are returned from the bank.

There are some who simply forward a cheque for the amount of Tax and whose signature cannot be deciphered. Others put cash in an envelope with no name and address to indicate remittance. Both these methods of paying Tax cause a great amount of trouble and delay to themselves. It only takes a moment to make out a slip showing the taxpayer's name and address and identity, and when this is enclosed with the remittance there is no delay in having the credit put to their account on the receipt forwarded by return mail.

The whole hinterland of Northwestern Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan will witness this summer an unprecedented activity in the search and mining for precious minerals. They are flocking in from all directions, old hands and new comers, to try their luck with fickle fortune. New discoveries are of daily occurrence, and the indications are that a new under-development are giving much good promise of big returns that the Mining Industry and its relations has been given an immense impetus. A pilot is coming in from the United States and other countries, both for the development of properties, the operation of mines, and to prospect for new finds. Airships are being used in Northwestern Ontario and Northern Manitoba in connection with three enterprises, and one company is sending a party into Keewatin Valley, on the up of Hudson Bay for the purpose of exploiting the country westward and northward from the Albany river. In Northern and Central Manitoba favourable reports continue to be received from the Flin Flon area in Central Manitoba and other mines. The Central Manitoba mill is working regularly, and the Sherritt-Gordon is in commencement reports. Ore produced in May gave returns of $11.45 per ton. Work on the railway to the mine is being prosecuted with due dispatch, and it is planned to have the big smelter which is being established at that mine in operation by 1930. Diamond drilling at Gold Lake has disclosed an immense body of rich copper-zinc ore of almost tabulous value. In Central British Columbia there is great mining activity in the Portland Canal served by Canadian National Railways from Burns Lake to Prince Rupert. The number of shipping properties is increasing, and in three or four instances arrangements are being made to install mill treatment. Mining in that part of the country is continued that ore production will soon be of sufficient volume to warrant the establishment of a large custom ore mill or smelter which are being talked of and for which, it is said capital will be forthcoming in time. There is an assurance that the supply of ore will be sufficient to keep one or the other running regularly. Big British and American mining companies have representatives in all the fields closely watching developments

Mrs Kalinski looked very smart in her black satin tea-gown and gold embroidery that her landore had brought from the store. She took her neighbour into her confidence. "No matter what I could say, mind you! The woman said she paid seventy dollars for it once, and let it for fifteen. She wanted thirty, but let told her it was the worst thing to sell. Who was wearing tea-gowns now? —they was out of date like leg o' mutton sleeves. And all the time they was thinking over I had a red cashmere one with Waitress pleats when our Harriet was comin', and his pays says Billy Isaac said he served as good, even if it did cost fifteen dollars and could be sold for thirty easy. Not that good a man, and spares no expense in reason."

Mrs Corbett brought the tea from the kitchen and filled the cups. "Cream and me are barky women," she said, "to have two good men like we have. Ain't some of them the easy paid drivin, though? I don't know what to think of Heinie man though she sticks up for him and says he's been lost in a storm or drowned in a river. Poor girl.—It's a shame to see her have to work in a Chinks, but what could the poor girl do? Not one of these dainty ladies would have her, they all had some reason."

"If she were just a Heinie girl, now," said Mrs. Kalinski, "one could go to the Indians Association of Women and they would find a place for her. We would not have any nice white girls of ours workin' in a Chinese shop and havin' to take leavin's talk from every Harry, Tom, Dicken, and maybe worse. Mrs. Hornburg and Mrs. Swarts are grand on that, and good girls they have found for our people."

Mrs. Corbett paused, with her saucer half way to her mouth. "Look at that now! Ain't the Jews wonderful to think of things? We've got grand societies, too, and I never once took thought of them. Sure we've got Societies. They're all up to their eyes in pounds in pockets and nothin' talked bandage nor, and socks for our soldiers, but they're grand societies, too. When I came here first I used to take care of the Club room at the "Y" and I used to see them there talkin' round, very civil spoken, women, too, and tryin' to make the world better, and God knows it needs it; I'll go to Mrs. Bell, the old lady, and I'm glad you spoke of this, Mrs. Kalinski. Maybe we can get a decent place yet for Helmi, though if she takes the baby away I don't know what I'll do with Rose and Dan."

Mrs. Corbett was that proud of her Helmi had gone so work, leaving the baby in the switchful care of Rose, who sat in No. 18 to do her lessons.

Mrs. Bell was at home, and would speak of Helmi's case at the next meeting of the Lloyd George Chapter the next day.

A week later a new place was found for Helmi. Mrs. Bell said it was an ideal place, and while ten dollars a month was very little, still it was not every place she could have the privilege of keeping her baby, and Mrs. Herriott would be very kind to her. Mrs. Herriott was young and inexperienced, and found her baby a great care. Helmi could mind the two babies and Mrs. Herriott would do the work.

Old Sam was sorry to part with Helmi, and gave her a feather fan. "You come back some day—old Sam be glad. Good girl—sally trapcode make many—come back by-by! You come see my girl tea, and have chop suey."

The Herriott house was a six-room house on Fifth Street South, a few blocks from the car line on Fifth Street. It was a little house, lawn, square, with but little room in the roof, and high pillars in front, much too high for the height of the house, which gave the semblance of a mansion to Helmi thought of seeing a cow getting up hind legs first. Rosie and Danny thought the same, but Danny, after carrying the baby and Danney helping Helmi with the heavy valise.

"Gee, mister, we don't like here," said Rosie, "and then you'll come back. I'll bet her baby cries more than ours and you'll have to get little Lil asleep, her kid will wake up whinin'. Well, anyway, Helmi, you can always come back, and we'll manage some way."

Helmi kissed her two good friends at the back door, but Rosie refused to be satisfied with that and kept on, "That girl hasn't been out of the house since she came," he said "ask her to come with you."

Helmi looked at Mrs. Herriott, as well enough alone Come on — I'll take the Bunnings they have no kids to want to come with you."

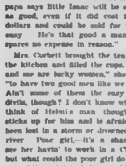
The use of Miller's Worm Powders insures healthy children so far as the stomach and bowels of the child are concerned. A high monthly average of children suffer from worms. These sap the strength, vitality so that they are unable to resist the ravages of fever. This in turn paves the way for other diseases. Miller's Worm Powders are guaranteed to expel the worms. They are tasteless and may be given to children of any age. Price 25c.

Late Threshing in Alberta

Estimates That Nearly Thirty Per Cent Bushels Of Grain Threshed In Spring

Alberta farmers who sowed what was left in the field on March 1 after winter did not fare badly. In most cases, they made good returns. The fact that they could get into the field grain until this spring, some what later than usual, is due to the fact that the season was from 20 to 25 days ahead of normal. A local grain man estimated that nearly 30 per cent of the grain in the province had to be sown during the last part of the winter and this spring.



Indigestion

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The intestinal remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use baking soda. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its measure in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acidity. Each bottle contains full directions—say druggists.

Cancel Grants To Class "B" Fairs

As Federal Aid Withdrawn, Support Should Come From Provinces

Some discussion took place in the House at Ottawa, and elsewhere, over the cancellation of federal grants, under the department, to class "B" fairs. Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, explained that grants had been made to class "B" fairs during the war as a war measure. This aid had been discontinued, as they were not entitled to federal aid. They should get aid from the provinces. During the past few years, Mr. Motherwell said, he had noticed several provincial governments had increased their grants to class "B" fairs in anticipation of cancellation of aid by the federal government.

"Class "A" fairs were receiving federal aid, and while only $50 000 was granted as federal aid before the war, the amount now totalled $285,000 annually.

A large number of the members took part in the discussion, several of them advocating that a certain part the smaller fairs did as much. if not more, for agriculture generally than the big ones.

Alfred Speakman (U.F.A., Red Deer) believed in the encouragement of boys' clubs, and in the good livestock and agricultural exhibits, in place of those fairs specializing in side shows.

M. McLean (Liberal, Melfort) spoke in favor of aid to the smaller fairs in the agricultural districts

Another Reform In China

Ruler Of Honan Province Forbids Binding Of Women's Feet

Women of Honan are to totter no longer on "golden lilies," Field Marshal Feng Yuhsiang, the revolutionary ruler of the province him not only prohibited foot-binding for women and girls, but also has ordered that the feet of their mothers and grandmothers are not to be bandaged any more.

This abolition of "lily feet," which Chinese for generations have considered the acme of feminine charm, but which appear as cruel deformities to most orientals, is to be accomplished by gradual means if possible but by direct official action if necessary. A propaganda against foot-binding is being carried out in conferences, in newspapers and on wall posters

To enforce his edict Marshal Feng has established a "Bureau for the Liberation of the Feet of the Women" whose agents make house to house visits. Women found are to be published. Agents are promised a bounty of $1 for each 100 sets of discarded foot wrappings they turn in, and one month of the campaign brought in more than 25 000 sets.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three —and it's Dangerous—

by Ruth Britain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby. It is also disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it causes crooked teeth and adenoids. The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids, and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand, attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit irregularity in bowel action is responsible for weak digestion and poor nutrition. Babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use at the first colic, stomach, diarrhoea gas on stomach and bowels or constipation has set in, or when baby is cross and feverish its nearly always time for baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels

TOOTH STRAIGHTENING

Your child has "crooked teeth" and wisely, you are thinking of his future, and are not content to let this condition persist.

Irregular teeth are in a sense a deformity, and often mar one's natural attractiveness and indeed in many instances may also lead to general systemic disturbance.

Now, can anything be done by way of correcting this malocclusion?

A great deal, especially if treatment is commenced while the child is still young.

In the case, of course, presents its own problems with their special solutions, but in the main, your dentist, or the orthodontist who specializes in this branch of dentistry will correct this condition by making use of metal bands and bars which your child would not be very conspicuously for some little time the period of wearing being determined by the severity of the case in hand.

However it is only a matter of making use of a certain principle, and a skilful dentist knows in each case what appliance is best adapted to bring about the desired result.

There is of course always treatment to be had if the child still has the temporary teeth, and generally although the child may have several years to wait before the permanent teeth appear, it is well to have the matter taken in hand while

—LIMITED—

TO THE TOWN OF VERMILION:

$15,000 Cash for the Distribution System: Town to retain its present power plant for heating system, or to be disposed of as it wishes.

$10,800 plus the necessary interest (approximately $13,000) to retire present debenture debt against the Town's Electric Light & Power System.

LOWER RATES TO BOTH LIGHT AND POWER CONSUMERS.

NO INCREASE ON STREET LIGHTING CHARGES FOR PRESENT SIZED UNITS: Larger lights at proportional cost.

EXTENSIONS AND IMPROVEMENTS TO THE DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM to give adequate and continuous service and to meet power requirements.

THE COMPANY TO PAY TAXES ON ITS PROPERTY SITUATED IN THE TOWN.

- THE PROPOSED FRANCHISE IS FOR TEN YEARS ONLY.
- RENEWAL AT THE END OF THAT PERIOD IS ENTIRELY AT THE TOWN'S OPTION.
- IF NOT THEN RENEWED, THE TOWN MAY TAKE OVER THE DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM AT ITS BARE PHYSICAL VALUATION AS DECIDED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLIC UTILITY COMMISSIONERS.
- THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT RETAINS COMPLETE CONTROL OF THE SITUATION AND MAY TAKE OVER THE FRANCHISE AT ANY TIME IT DESIRES TO DO SO.
- THE RIGHTS OF THE CITIZENS ARE PROTECTED IN EVERY POSSIBLE WAY.

Why Gamble on the future by borrowing $37,000 [Repayments with interest total approximately $57,000] for a service that can be better supplied by Centralized Power without any expenditure on the part of the Town.

Other needed civic improvements: schools, hospitals, sewer, waterworks, roads, sidewalks, etc., are the proper functions of a municipality, reserve the Town's borrowing power for those improvements and leave the highly technical problems of electric light and power service to a company specifically organized to deal with them.

LLOYDMINSTER — W. J. Murphy, commercial and operating manager of the Mid-West Utilities, was a visitor in Lloydminster recently. This was Mr. Murphy's first visit to the border town and spent several days looking over the town and surrounding district and appeared well pleased with its apparent prosperity and the promise of a bigger future. His chief business on this trip was negotiating franchises with the towns and villages between Lloydminster and Vegreville, interviewing the councils and endeavoring to make the arrangements for his company to serve these places with electric light and power. At the present time the plant at Vegreville is being doubled, making it a 600 h.p. unit and probably the same will be done here for the purpose of supplying all the places in the 100 miles between Lloydminster and Vegreville. It is quite probable that the company will go east, taking in the towns of Lashburn, Maidstone, Marshall and Waseca, and supplying the farmers en route.

High School Students in Midst of Midsummer Exams

Worried brows are the order of the day among the high school students this week and departmental examinations are the most discussed topic of the day; the utilities question, new school, etc. fade into insignificance before the weighty street corner discussions on Latin, Algebra, Trig., etc. as a few of the candidates foregather between long sessions of the time-honored habit of ploughing up to the last minute. The examinations will continue until the 29th of June, having commenced on Monday last.

The public school leaving exams are not due to commence until the 25th.

DERWENT NEWS

Imperial Oil agent Lem Hicks is kept very busy supplying oil and gas as there are several tractors busy day and night breaking.

The Board of Trade banquetted Mr and Mrs. R. B. Gunn at the hotel after Mrs. Gunn's lecture on co-operation to a well-filled house at Angle Lake, on June 12th.

Mr. Jas. Gruscotte also addressed the U. F. A. Sunday meeting on June 17th on co-operation. We should say Jack is the right man for moral co-operation.

ANGLE LAKE NEWS

The U. F. A. Sunday was duly celebrated by the Angle Lake U.F.A. local by inviting members of the Landonville local. The program opened at 11 a.m. with a service jointly conducted by Rev. Geo. Anderson and Rev. Hawkin. Lunches were served at noon and while the crowd awaited the arrival of Mrs. Gunn in the afternoon, Mr. Gruscotte of Derwent obligingly spoke very appropriately on the U.F.A. movement.

In spite of the threatening weather and bad roads, Mrs. Gunn came 50 miles to speak to us. Her address was much enjoyed and appreciated.

Altogether, a very enjoyable and profitable day was spent and this local extends its hearty thanks to those who so kindly helped to make the day a success.

"Safety First" on the Highways

The phenomenal growth in the number of motor driven vehicles on the highways of this continent constitutes one of the most amazing developments of modern times. The motor car has, in fact, completely revolutionized modes of living in the space of a very few years, and, equally so, has submitted to an entirely new era in the history of transportation.

It is not necessary to even enumerate the many changes which the general use of the motor car has brought about. These changes are patent to everyone. The result has been, of course to likewise create entirely new problems which did not exist before and were never dreamed of, by the people of a couple of generations ago.

The motor car has forced governments and municipalities to completely re-organize plans and the work of road building because what was regarded as an excellent road for horse drawn buggies and wagons is quite obsolete in these days of motor traffic. The result has been to compel huge expenditures upon all governmental authorities not only in the construction of a much higher standard of road but in annual maintenance charges in order that such roads shall be kept up to that high standard, and shall be available for use at all times in all weathers.

In large cities the multiplicity of cars has created congestion and traffic problems of the most difficult kind, and the number, power and speed of modern cars not only so hourly danger to each other and their occupants but to all pedestrians. Laws governing rates of speed, issue prohibitive of glaring headlights for night driving, and innumerable rules of the road in an effort to regulate this enormous and ever increasing traffic have been passed. Many of these rules therefore were experimental and found ineffective. Amendments to laws have followed amendments in rapid succession, yet the toll of accidents and violent death mounts steadily higher and higher.

The fast might as well be faced, - it must be faced,—that only through the practice of the principle of Safety First" by the people themselves,—and all the people can the civilization of forty years of the modern type of person which the inventive genius of this generation has brought into being and to such a high state of power and efficiency

Legislative enactments and arrest and fines for violation of those laws will not, and can not meet the existing problems. Public sentiment and the public conscience must be aroused against those who habitually and wilfully disregard the laws and regulations passed in the interests of all people. The speed maniac, the man who persists in flashing blinding headlights in the eyes of all other car drivers, the crank who considers it an insult and a reflection upon himself and his car to allow any other car to pass him on the road, the reckless driver who disregards all safety precautions for himself but who is callously indifferent to the fate of others and the common "rubbing" who ignores everybody's rights and settles everything according to his own ideas, he desires to himself, all these enemies to the welfare, enjoyment, rights, and even lives of others, must become taboo throughout the land and be ostracized by his fellow citizens in the community.

Every driver of a car should keep constantly in mind that it is a powerful machine he has in his control, and that the safe way is the same way. Common sense will prevent accidents. Apply it. There is not only the law but an obligation of the road to protect your person and property—your own and the other fellow's

Two controllable factors enter into accident prevention on the streets and highways, your car, yourself. Always observe, among others, the following simple rules for safety:

1 Keep your car right; see that the brakes, steering gear and headlights are in perfect working order.
2 Keep your eye on the road and your hands on the wheel.
3 In passing traffic look ahead
4 If a road-hog tries to pass you—let him
5 Entering main streets and highways—stop and listen.
6 Don't rush through nor 'loaf' in heavy traffic
7 Pass on before you slow down, stop, or change your course
8 Look before you back up
9 Obey the Stop signal
10 Watch your Step Don't step on the gas the train will win.

Norse Celebration In Winnipeg

Great Interest Being Taken In Reunion To Be Held Shortly

Of its kind, the Norse celebration to be held in Winnipeg this year, is expected to be the largest gathering of the summer. Their kith and kin to the number of twenty-five thousand from the central western States will be come, and an equal number from western Canada.

Men prominent in Norse circles, descendants of pioneers on both sides of the international line are displaying a very active interest in the reunion. Among the prominent speakers will be Governors Christianson, of Minnesota, and Sarle, of North Dakota. For all Norsey is sending a delegation to participate in the Norwegian Sangerfest, and official delegates from that country will comprise representatives of the government, church and various civic bodies. The week of July 8-11 will mark the occasion for the festival. In connection with this festival will be the annual convention of the Norwegian Danish Press, of America. This will bring to Winnipeg some fifty newspaper and magazine editors, prominent in the association.

Hi, there," hollered a policeman to an inebriated citizen, "you can't stand there in the street."

"Yes, I can orfisher" retorted the citizen proudly "Don't you worry 'bout me I been standin' here an hour an' ain' fell off yet."

NEW STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACHS

Indigestion Disappears When the Blood Is Enriched

The most reliable cure of all who suffer from any form of indigestion is to learn to enrich the blood. Pain and distress after eating is the way the stomach tells you it is too weak to perform the work of digesting the food it takes. Make a struggle in this week stomache by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they purify and enrich the blood. This accounts for the speedy relief in stomach disorders that follows the use of this medicine. The value of this medicine in cases of indigestion is shown by the case of Mrs George W. Johnson, Leguille, N.S., who says:—"I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was greatly distressed with indigestion. Always after eating I suffered from pains in the stomach and other distressing symptoms. I tried different remedies, but without getting relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I readily did, and I am feeling very grateful ever since to the friend who gave me the advice. The very first box helped me and before I had taken all of these boxes I was restored to my former good health and all traces of the distressing trouble disappeared. It is now about a year since I took the pills and I have not been troubled with indigestion since. I have taken every occasion to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to those in need of a medicine and shall continue to do so."

A little booklet, "What To Eat and How To Eat," will be sent free to anyone asking for it. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

University Of Alberta

New Laboratory and Greenhouse To Be Erected This Year

Increased accommodation is being provided this year in the department of field crops at the University of Alberta by the erection of a new laboratory and greenhouse for the study of plant pathology and plant breeding. This additional space will make possible the carrying out of a co-operative attack by the university, the federal department of agriculture, and the national research council on the problem of rust-out diseases.

Dr. A. W. Henry, formerly of the University of Minnesota, on his return from Europe last fall, joined the staff of the department of field crops and will lead the plant pathological work at the university. Dr. G. H. Stanford became an official of the U.S. Federal Corporation in whose plant the new Hope jersey wonders are said to have acquired the radium poison.

They recently made a settlement with the company for $10,000 each, a life-time annuity of $400 each and insurance for their relatives when they die

Victim Of the Inventor

Sudden Fatal Accident Is Shortly Dying Of Wounds

The New York Times says that Dr. S. A. von Soschocky, inventor of the radium paint which is said to have doomed five New Jersey women to a slow death, is a victim of his own invention. The paper says that, although the doctor was reticent to talk about himself, marks of the ravages of illness were plainly evident. His front teeth are gone and his figure up to the second knuckle are black, the result of radium necrosis.

The doctor has frequently risked his life in recent years to treat friends with radium.

Dr. Von Soschocky brought to this country with him several years ago the formula of his radium paint. He became an official of the U.S Radium Corporation in whose plant the five New Jersey women are said to have acquired the radium poison.

They recently made a settlement with the company for $10,000 each, a life-time annuity of $400 each and insurance for their relatives when they die

Trained Fire Fighters For British Columbia

Experts Will Combat Fire Menace In Salmon Arm Section

When the fire menace again proves through the forests of the Salmon Arm section of British Columbia this summer, it will be combated by men trained for just that emergency. The fire-fighting will be done by experts called for by service.

The reason for that is that the men who will be employed in fire-fighting this season have literally gone to school again and have studied the most approved methods of reducing the menace to the minimum. Hence when they once get under way, special subjects were taken up each day in the classroom on the style demonstration of approved methods of disposal of slashing.

Ship Mankind To Europe

What is believed to be a record for numbers of shipments of fruit trees has left on board the Canadian Pacific vessel "Benvorlich," bound for Antwerp. PRAYER BOOK REVISION AGAIN MEETS DEFEAT

London.—By a vote of 366 to 220 the House of Commons again rejected the revised prayer book of the Church of England.

The vote, coming after two days' close debate on which the attention of the nation had been focussed, recorded a majority almost identical with that in the previous rejection last December, when the vote was 267 to 205.

The revised prayer book after rejection last December was altered by the bishops, and after the approval by the church assembly, was submitted to parliament.

Again in an appeal issued by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Archbishop of York, supporters of the measure were told that the new responsibility laid upon the bishops is very grave and a plea was made "for quietness, for a little patience and for abstention from any angry or unkindly words."

The speech of Sir Wm. Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, was the highlight of the efforts of the opponents of the revision. The minister, a staunch evangelical, who led the opposition last December, declared the House was being asked to "revoke its own decision" and inferred that the church was resisting parliament's decision. He asserted the book was essentially the same as the one rejected last December.

Lord Hugh Cecil and Premier Baldwin were outstanding among the speakers in favor of the revision.

The premier stated that difficulties must not be any obstacle. He believed those which would face the church if the measure was rejected would be infinitely the more formidable.

Mr. Baldwin said he felt as adverse very one to extension the bonds of all those in authority in the church for a considerable time to come under the immense impulse to the very forces which those present were opposed to the new book desired to curb. It would also, he said, hinder the religious revival in the country.

The House of Commons were in demeanor of gravity as it entered upon the second and final day of the debate.

The aged Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York, and the Bishops of London and Southwark were prominent among the prelates who looked on from the Peers' Gallery, where the ordinary galleries were again crowded.

Conference a Success

First Annual "Farm Women's Week" Held At Saskatoon

Saskatoon.—Close to 150 delegates attended the first annual "Farm Women's Week," held in this province at Saskatchewan. The conference, arranged by the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, in co-operation with the University of Saskatchewan, was a most successful venture, and is the first of its kind held in the province and, so far as is known, in Canada. As much of the business of the conference was conducted by the United Farmers' Organization, some of the sessions were closed to the press and public.

Noted Suffragette Leader Passes Away In London

London.—Mrs. Pankhurst, noted suffragette leader, died here Thursday morning at the age of 69.

Mrs. Pankhurst, in later years, took up the cudgels against Communism, while her daughter Sylvia gave up, more energetically than ever, advocating the teachings of Lenin.

Miss Christabel, the eldest of the two girls, is tremendously interested in religion.

Danish Aviators Rifled

Copenhagen. Three Danish aviators were killed after leaping from a naval seaplane which exploded while they were flying over Copenhagen. The airmen, a pilot and two cadets, leaped from the plane but their parachutes failed to unfold and they fell on the roofs of houses, being killed outright. Their machine crashed in a densely populated area and injured a boy.

A statue of William Shakespeare, cut in glass and over 24 feet high, has been made for a London Park.

Appeal Was Rejected

Privy Council Given Decision On Alberta Coal Case

London.—The decision of the Privy Council judicial committee rejecting Alberta's appeal in the coal mining tax case has the effect of depriving that province of the large revenues which it had hoped to collect on the royalties from coal mines. The Privy Council upholds the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada that Alberta mine owners' tax act of 1923 which placed a tax on every ton of coal mined in Alberta is ultra vires of the provinces.

The province's test case was launched against the Caledonian Collieries, Limited. The judgment of the Privy Council makes clear that it is undisputed that though the tax was called a tax on gross revenue as much gross revenue is really an aggregate of the sums received from the sales of coal and is indistinguishable from a tax on every sum received from the sale of coal.

The judicial committee agreed with the judges of the Supreme Court that the tax was not a direct tax. Counsel attempt had been made in the argument to support the tax on the ground that it was analogous to income tax, but it was pointed out that there were marked distinctions between a tax on gross revenues and a tax on income which for taxation purposes allows deductions and profits. There may be considerable gross revenue but no income available or income tax in the accepted sense.

The appeal was therefore dismissed.

U.S. Farmers Complain

Say Canadian Competition Is Discouraging Factor In Agrarian Development

Seattle. Canadian competition in grain growing has been a "disappointing factor" in the agrarian development of Washington, J. Carl Lacey, secretary of the farm bureau, has testified at the Interstate Commerce Commission farm hearing. Agrarian representatives appeared before the commission recently, urging the necessity of lower export grain rates.

Hay produced by voluntary labor, Lacey gave a comprehensive comparison of farming conditions between the grain districts of Western Canada and Eastern Washington. He asserted that aid given farmers by Canadian railways and the government was attracting growers from Washington to Canada.

With cheap land, low taxes, low grain rates and fertiliser, Alberta ranchers can not only raise grain at a cost of production much lower than those of Washington, Lacey said, but they can reach both their coast and western markets at a much less cost.

Lacey said the average cost to the farmer of producing and harvesting, shipping until the grain was placed at elevators was $14.76 an acre, whereas on the Yakima project the yield per acre was $20.56.

He added that with such a wide spread in their favor the Canadian grain growers were rapidly driving Eastern Washington wheat from the export market.

Searching For Bodies Of Kamloops Victims

Eight Of Twenty-Two Have Already Been Recovered

Port Coquitlam.—A tug and launch have left here for Isle Royale to conduct a further search for bodies of victims of the steamer Cambrian, which was lost off the Island last December.

The search expedition has been organized by Captain H. J. Bryan, of Kingcome, brother of Captain Bryan, of the Kamloops, and is financed by him and relatives of other missing men among the crew of the Kamloops. It is proposed to patrol Island shores along the shore line. Eight bodies of the 22 on the boat have already been recovered.

Ice Delays Seaplanes

Machines Ready For Survey Of Northern Areas At Port Churchill

Ottawa.—Ice on the small lakes in the vicinity of Fort Churchill is holding up the dispatch of the two Canadian Air Force seaplanes which are in readiness to fly to the Hudson's Bay port for the purpose of surveying the break up conditions there.

It was stated at the Department of National Defence that the two planes are at present at Cranberry Lake, North of The Pas, and are awaiting favorable conditions before proceeding to their destination. The duty of their pilots will be similar to that which has occupied the Hudson's Straits air patrol last year, to observe the movement of ice out of Hudson's Straits and through the inlet on the shore of which Canada's Northern port will be constructed.

Should a wireless station will be built at Port Churchill, the wireless equipment and machines for which will be taken there some time next month.

HARVEST HELP FROM BRITAIN IS SUGGESTION MADE

London.—"The Canadian harvest will soon be due. Why not an arrangement between the Dominion and these Governments and all the parties most likely to help for 10,000 Britishers to be provided with work during the coming harvest in Canada."

William Lunn, M.P., of Rothwell makes this suggestion in the Yorkshire Evening Post. He is an ex-chairman of the Overseas Settlement Committee, and still a member of that body.

"In July last year," he proceeds to say, an arrangement was almost arranged for 10,000 men in the Leeds district, of whom 5,000 would be miners. The conditions were to give cheap passage to those unable to afford it and not less than 4 to 5 dollars a day, and to assist in bringing those back who could not find permanent employment.

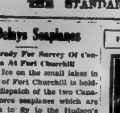
"One lady promised to pay the expenses for 100 South Wales miners, and others were prepared to help with smaller numbers. Just when everything was in order for the project being carried out, it unfortunately fell through.

"We should have out of four would settle permanently in Canada. Those who seriously desired in return would be helped to start of passage home," he said.

These 7,000 or 8,000 who made their homes in Canada would be nominators. Then they would be likely to nominate their wives, sweethearts, sisters, brothers, and in any of cases, their fathers and mothers

That is the most satisfactory way of populating the Dominions. There is the public which, if there is into the pond, will begin the circle which is likely to enlarge and enlarge to enormous dimensions.

Cannot something be done soon?" asks Mr. Lunn in conclusion.



Mrs. John A. Stewart, of Perth, Ont., was elected national president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire at the annual meeting in Toronto the preceding Miss E. L. Church, of Toronto, and sister of T. L. Church, M.P., who is retiring from that office after three years of work in the order.

Report Shows Big Increase

B.C. Department Of Agriculture Announces Gain In Production

Victoria, B.C.—Agricultural production in British Columbia in 1927 is valued at $76,899,269, the highest sum on record, and an increase of $5,637,000 over 1926, the Department of Agriculture announces.

Substantial gains were made in livestock, poultry products, dairy products, fodders, honey, hops and wool, while decreases were noted in fruits, vegetables and grains.

Imports of agricultural products from other countries in Canada were valued at $16,648,703, against $17,437,350 in 1926, while imports from foreign points increased from $3,672,911 to $3,982,084. Exports of agricultural products for the year amounted to $10,035,735, an increase over the previous year of $1,017,005, or 19 23 per cent.

Alberta Pool Making Interest Payments

Farmers Are Receiving Amount Due On Elevator Deduction

Calgary. - The Alberta Wheat Pool is issuing cheques covering the payment of six per cent. interest due on the elevator deductions from the crops of 1924 and 1925. It was stated at the office of the pool.

The total payment amounts to $87,101.83. In instances where the interest due on the total the sum of one dollar, no payment is being made.

The six per cent. interest is paid on a total of $1,525,000 which was the total deduction for elevator purposes from the 1924 and 1925 crops.

Westerners Win Scholarships

Alberta and Saskatchewan Students Will Pursue Technical Studies

Quebec.—Chosen as the most outstanding and valuable member of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists, Prof. H. M. Magant, professor of geology and chemistry at the Olo Agricultural College, of the University of Montreal, was unanimously awarded the fellowship prize at the closing session of the agricultural tourists here.

The $600 scholarship prize, gift of the T. Eaton Company, were awarded to R. H. Bedford, of Alberta, to study soil bacteriology at McGill University, Montreal, and R. C. Russell, of Saskatchewan, to study plant pathology at Toronto University.

It was officially declared that the convention of the agriculturists next year will be held at Winnipeg.

Cattle Shipped To England

Over Three Hundred Head Sent From Calgary Recently

Montreal. — The first shipment of cattle on the hoof to leave Canada for over a year arrived in Montreal at the East End stockyards over the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway on its way to England from 300 head of cattle were in the lot, all of 17 cars, averaging 15 animals to the car, with a stockman aboard for the care of every 25 cattle that made the trip direct from Calgary to Montreal.

The shipment is being accompanied by Francis Burns, of Calgary, and Arthur Hillard, veterinary surgeon, who supervise the loading of the stock from Calgary to Birkenhead, together with a staff of stockmen under Archie McGimpsen, foreman.

Will Form Pool

New Westminster, B.C. —Fraser Valley poultry men and women at a meeting here decided to form an egg and poultry pool in British Columbia. A committee was appointed to nominate a permanent committee to handle poultry sections of the province which will draw up a constitution.

SIR A. CURRIE NEW PRESIDENT CANADIAN LEGION

St. John, N.B.—General Sir Arthur Currie was elected president of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League at the second annual Dominion convention here.

Following the announcement of his unanimous choice a telegram of congratulation was dispatched to the former leader of the Canadian troops in Flanders, coupled with the wish for a speedy recovery to health

Lieut.-Gen Sir Percy Lake was named honorable past president.

The importance of not permitting boys and girls of tender age, unaccompanied by parents or guardians, into Canada was stressed in debate as was also the necessity of settling before foreign immigrants leave their ideals before they could be corrupted by communistic teachings

A E Moore, Manitoba, was re-elected national chairman and presided during the deliberations, when many resolutions were brought in by delegates of the various provincial Senior of the most important of these is the Dominion as a whole will be submitted by the committee on immigration and colonization headed by P. Pinchot, of Quebec.

The recommendation of the committee included a complete Dominion survey of the immigration needs of certain port problems in the barring of undesirals from Canadian shores and the banning of immigrants of a mental and physical standard.

The report of the immigration committee was adopted unanimously. It was adopted to communists that every effort is made by the government to keep out of every evil and to prevent its population from Britain that persons who are not prepared to accept Canadian conditions of life and work may be not encouraged to come to Canada that every effort be made to prevent the formation of "racial blocs" in the Dominion and that the immigration of persons who have attended Communist schools or who have been prominently identified with Communist organizations should be prohibited.

Those who have attended their second year at agricultural colleges in Canada are eligible for the scholarships.

The second of the report recommending that provincial committees of the Legion be formed in each province to survey the farm employment possibilities and settlement in their districts, and for a closer co-operation between the British and Canadian legions for a better selection of men suitable for settlement in Canada were adopted as presented.

BOARD REFUSES APPLICATION OF LIVESTOCK MEN

Ottawa.—The application of the United Grain Growers Limited, of Winnipeg, Man., and other agrarian and livestock organizations in the West for suspension of the Canadian Pacific Railway tariff, effective June 23, 1927, on livestock shipped from Western Canada to Pacific coast points in the U.S., has been rejected by the Board of Railway Commissioners

Commissioners S. J. McLean and C. Lawrence expressed the opinion following a lengthy examination that the tariff should remain, in addition to current rates, be a charge on the actual weight in excess of this maximum

Plan Speaking Tours

Premier Bing and Hon. H. H. Bennett Will Visit West

Ottawa. The speaking appointments for the Prime Minister in Western Canada are not yet fixed though it is known that he will leave Ottawa on July 26. Mr. King will visit Winnipeg, Regina in Saskatchewan and Brandon, and possibly some other place in Manitoba.

On August 10, the Prime Minister will open the Prince Albert National Park and between that date and August 16, he will visit several places in his Prince Albert constituency. Mr. King will then return direct to Ottawa. He will probably be accompanied by a member of his cabinet.

Hon. H. H. Bennett has mapped out an intensive speaking tour that will carry him to both Eastern and Western Canada during the summer months.

After visiting Renfrew, Ont., on the 21, he will leave for La Pocatiere, Que., where he is to speak on June 23. From Monday, June 25, to the following Saturday he will visit a number of points in Quebec's Montreal townships.

The Conservative leader goes West in July to be in Calgary in time for the stampede, and is scheduled to reach Toronto in time for a speaking engagement there July 23. A tour of the Maritimes is planned for later in the summer.

Forke Will Tour West

Minister Of Immigration To Visit Western Canada Shortly

Ottawa. Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, will visit Western Canada shortly, it was announced at the department here.

Mr. Forke's trip will carry him through the Pacific Coast. The itinerary of Mr Forke has not yet been arranged, but the likelihood is that he will return Ottawa within the next three or four weeks, visiting all the important Western cities A definite announcement of his proposed trip will be available shortly

Mr Forke probably will seek personal conversation in immigration work as recommended in the report of the parliamentary immigration inquiry presented during the last session of parliament.

Big Majorities For By-Laws

Burgesses Endorse Policy of the Council for Extensions to Electric Light & Power Plant and Installing of Community Heating System.

CALL FOR DEBENTURE ISSUES OF $57,000.00

The Electric Light and the Central Heating by-laws voted upon by the burgesses of Vermilion last Friday resulted in their carrying by overwhelming majorities. The vote stood as follows:

E. L. & P. Extension
FOR 146 AGAINST 10
General Heating
FOR 142 AGAINST 18

Mayor Fallon expressed his satisfaction with the splendid vote polled in support of the policy of the council in these two vital issues which were placed before the people. More than the ordinary interest centred around the by-laws in face of offers made the town, first by the Calgary Hydro and latterly by the Mid-West Utilities, to supply electric energy. The vote was most emphatically for the retention of our public utilities as an ultimate source of revenue towards reducing taxation.

$57,000.00 Debentures

By-Law 306 authorizes the erection of an extension to the present electric light and power buildings, the purchase and installation of a boiler, stoker, economizer and equip same, and to provide for the borrowing of $37,000 upon debentures to pay for same. The principal is repayable in 15 annual instalments, payments of principal and interest annually being as nearly as possible equal. The annual sum required for this purpose is $3,800.64.

By-Law 306 authorizes the installation of a Community Heating System by laying a pipe line or lines from the electric light and power plant for the use of exhaust steam, the purchase of materials and meters in connection therewith, and to provide for the borrowing of $15,000.00 upon debentures to pay for same. The principal is repayable in a similar manner to By-Law 306 but the debentures run for only five years, the annual amount required being $2,796.24.

Government's Fourth Fortnightly CROP REPORT

Early seeded wheat is now in the shot blade in many sections of the province and all grains are making rapid and vigorous growth according to the fortnightly reports received on Friday by the Department of Agriculture, for the fourth fortnightly crop report of the season. The entire province has been filled by the rains which have been general during the past two weeks, and the setback which crops in some areas received as a result of delayed germination is rapidly being remedied although some fields are somewhat patchy. Warm cloudy weather is now the most urgent requirement for crops to take full advantage of the abundant supply of moisture.

News from the hotter areas in the province has a crop been more definite conditions as far as fresh moisture is concerned and local showers are now reported to have been of sufficient depth to be of benefit to crops. Cultivation is reported generally to be ahead of seeding. Soil moisture conditions, and the opinion is expressed that the acreage now land brought under cultivation this season will at least be retained proportionately.

Some correspondents report that there has been seeded to cereal crops in the area than last of the province, and that the acreage falls somewhat short of the average crop.

Cutting of alfalfa and timothy crops has commenced in the south but has been interrupted to some extent by the rains. Very local hail damage is reported in one or two districts, but crops in the affected areas are making a good recovery. Practically no insect injury to crops has occurred with the exception of the appearance of wireworms in some districts.

Crops in the Peace River country are well advanced and in a state of increased acreage under crop this year in the north, conditions generally are considered promising for bumper crop shipments next fall and winter.

DEWBERRY BUDGET

A successful picnic was held on the 9th of June by the members of the Carnel Church on the sports ground's west of the town site. Thanks are due to Mr Will Anderson who has granted the use of part of his farm for the purpose.

Frank Allen is busy these days mowing the stumps on his land south of the track. The tractor works in the hands of Donald Dow while Frank keeps the bombs from burning and does rid of the brush.

Edwards will, if he finds his cattle at Oldash, lay a protest on the old cattle trail in 1929. It appears that the city has started a new pasturage system, herdsmen, etc. In the N. E. of S. 20 T. 50 R. 5 W. 4th all the cattle from different districts on the north-east side of the town are herded and driven to the pasture.

A league game of baseball took place on the night of the 14th between Dewberry and Vermilion, the latter team being victorious by the score of 11 to 8. Dewberry has a good team and should be able to take a good showing with other teams this year.

Crops are looking good when reports is well advanced and all in all prospects with some sunny weather.

Road work has started and many of the roads are being widened and graded.

Charlie our local blacksmith, keeps busy at the plowshares and the chip hammer as hay days.

Pet Trout in Mountain Lake

Experiment in Fish Culture is Done successfully In Jasper Park

After a journey of at least two thousand miles the largest group of United States immigrants that ever settled in Canada has established its home in Jasper National Park.

During the week-end 200,000 Rossak trout fingerlings, all the way from Creco, Pennsylvania, were placed in the water of Maligne Lake. They came to Canada last winter as eggs and for months they have been carefully nursed in a hatchery especially constructed for them Herbert Davie, one of the park wardens whose charge they were, watched them grow from an egg to fish, kept the cold water running at the proper temperature, and when they were big enough to eat fed them chopped liver They were brought from Pennsylvania to Jasper by Canadian National Express, and were transferred to Maligne Lake by pack horse, waggon and automobile There was no difficulty, he thinks but 35 miles to keep the time in which they floated constantly moving, and they made the journey without mishap The water of the lake was tested before they were lowered into it, and they seemed themselves acclimatized immediately Oliver Bright of the Dominion Hatchery at Port Qu'Appelle superintendent operations and Warden Davie hope watch over his pets until he have them safe in their new home The stocking of Maligne Lake with trout is one of the experiments being made in glacial waters by the Dominion Government.

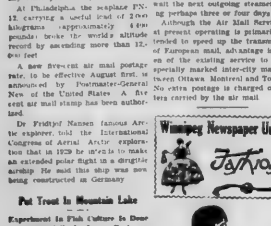
Speeding Up Mail Service

Letters From British Isles, Delivered From One To Four Days Earlier

Letter mail from the British Isles and Europe will be brought from one to four days quicker to Canada through the Canadian Air Mail Service, recently inaugurated.

The Canadian Post Office Department, following successful experiments made last year, has entered into contracts for the conveyance of this extra despatch given to letters which would otherwise have had to wait the next outgoing steamer sailing perhaps three or four days later.

Although the Air Mail Service as at present operating is primarily intended to speed up the transmission of European mail, advantage is taken of the existing service to carry specially marked inter-city mail between Ottawa Montreal and Toronto. No extra postage is charged on letters carried by the air mail



Red Cross Editorial Contest

Congratulations Are Extended To the Winners In Both Daily and Weekly Sections

Congratulations are now being widely offered all over Canada to those who have been successful in the recent editorial contest inaugurated by the Canadian Red Cross Society, for the best editorials published in the daily and weekly press of the Dominion, to celebrate the centenary of Henri Dunant and the founding of Red Cross for the world.

Prizes have been awarded to Stafford Henderson, of the St. Thomas Times-Journal, St. Thomas, Ontario, for the best editorial published in any daily paper; while Miss May Stuart Clendenan, of the Farmers' Advocate, London, Ontario, took the leading place in the weekly paper section in English. The other bright and clever people who won honors and prizes were: Second for daily, H. B. Christie, The Expositor, Brantford, Ontario. Third, Miss Kenneth Leslie, of the Free Press, Winnipeg, Manitoba. It is worthy of note that Miss Clendenan is the leading player in the weekly paper Women's Press Club, while Miss Haig is a past president.

Prizes for the weekly papers in English second, C. J. Allton, The Asquith Record, Asquith, Saskatchewan; third, Miss Ethel Chilcott, Farm and Ranch Review, Calgary, Alberta.

For the French section, prizes were awarded respectively in Adjoint Savard, Le Patrie, Montreal, P.Q.; Ed Estrade, La Liberte, Montreal P.Q.; and to Charles Gautier, Le Droit, Ottawa, Ontario.

The judges for the English section formed into an adjudicating committee headed by Dr. James W. Robertson, chairman of the Central Executive of the Canadian Red Cross Society were: Dr. Lorne Pierce, Editor, The Ryerson Press, Toronto; J. F. B. Livesay, general manager, Canadian Press, Toronto; J. M. Elson, Canadian Author's association, Toronto; Professor G. M. Wrong, History Dept., University of Toronto.

For the French section the adjudicators were: Mr. Leon Lorraine, of the Commercial High Studies School, Montreal; Abbe Lionel Groulx, professor of the University of Montreal, and Dr. Victor Morin, past president of the Canadian Authors' Association.

The contest was entered by sixty-one papers, but dozens more contributed editorials without actually entering the contest. Several million readers were thereby benefited, and it was Henri Dunant who actually originated the idea of Red Cross for the world, whereas, formerly, only a vague idea that Florence Nightingale had done so, existed in many people's minds. Florence Nightingale, however, was publicly acknowledged by Dunant in a speech in London in 1872, as having been his inspiration.

Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League

Movement To Have Free Treatment Of All Patients At the Public Expense

The annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League was held at the Ramsthorne Hotel Qu'Appelle, on Thursday, June 14th. In addition to the routine business Mr. A. B. Cook, the president and managing director, briefly outlined the work of the League to date, and stressed the imperative necessity of extending the activities of the League along preventive lines, such as the examination of known "Contact Cases." He pointed out that at present no funds were available for this work, and that it had been decided this year to proceed with the sale of Anti-Tuberculosis Christmas Seals as was done in the other provinces of the Dominion and in the United States, where funds for both curative and preventive work are largely raised by this means.

Mr. J. J. Lamb, Secretary of the Municipal Hail Insurance Association, and Mr. J. G. Gray, of Sanford, Reeve of the Rural Municipality of Margula No. 191, were elected to the Board of Directors to serve for a period of three years.

Two resolutions passed at the last Annual Convention of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities, dealing with free treatment and examination of school children, were read to the meeting and discussed. In view of the fact that resolutions had also been passed by the United Farmers, Saskatchewan Branch, and by the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, endorsing the principle of free treatment, these resolutions were heartily endorsed by the meeting.

It was resolved that the Legislature be petitioned to amend the Sanatoria Act so that all classes of T.B. patients shall have free treatment available at the public expense. And further that same be paid: (a) By the Government, (b) Partly by all Urban and Rural Municipalities in the Province.

It was further suggested that the share of responsibility be apportioned as follows: The Government to undertake all capital expenditure required in furnishing the necessary sanatoria with their equipment, and also contribute toward the expense of the maintenance of patients. During a pleasant and privileged half hour we were shown the old kitchens with the spits on which used to be roasted barrel of beef, established in the great Egyptian Hall, and accorded a view of the City's gold plate.

Leaving the Mansion House with some regret at the shortness of the stay, we made our way to rub for the Guildhall as guests of the Central Markets Committee.

We entered the Guildhall with a feeling akin to reverence. If London is the heart of the Empire, the Guildhall is the heart of London. It has been the centre of stirring episodes throughout many centuries and the pillars of the Great Hall which were picked by Eames to a height of thirty feet, still bear the marks of the Great Fire of London. Here the great images Gog and Magog still sit on guard, and in this room on July 29th, 1914, the Declaration was accorded the Freedom of the City of London, and tribute was paid to the gallant deeds of the Canadians of the Canadian Force in the Second Battle of Ypres.

Our luncheon table was set in the Banquet Hall, and after the loyal toasts the rescuing of rare historic and rich artistic interest from the ashes of the Alderman W. P. Neil should preside at a luncheon. The reason for his honor for he was foremost in the efforts which terminated in the raising of the embargo on Canadian cattle. With us was the High Commissioner, Mr. Larkin. The principal toast was "The Great Dominion of Canada," in reply to which all were privileged to be opportunities which Canada presents was given by the Hon. George Lapointe, who revealed that as an English workman he had passed and re-passed the Guildhall daily for eight years or more, but never in his wildest dreams had he thought he would one day dine therein. He thanked in very the cordiality, the spirit of hospitality which marked the speeches rendered by the Canadian Press Association. Then he thanked the Corporation's most treasured possessions was brought from the vaults for our inspection This was the scepter which for over 1,000 years has been symbol of the City's dignity and is carried before the newly crowned monarch at every coronation With this we were shown a purse that was the gift of Queen Elizabeth and several souvenir match container ornamented with the City's coat of arms given to us after the luncheon will be treasured by every member of the party, so long that the memory of the great day on which Canadian farmers were guests of the Empire's Capital.

Entertainment gave place in the afternoon to a session with representatives of the Provision and Grain Trades of London, under the auspices of the London Chamber of Commerce. Here we listened to plain talk on both sides which brought forth information of the greatest value. An eventful day concluded with an evening at Drury Lane, the largest and most famous of London's theatres, where we saw "The Desert Song," one of the most successful musicals shown ever presented in London.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

The next morning saw us out even earlier. At 8.30 we were viewing the Snow Hill Police Station adjoining Smithfield Market, the finest police station in Great Britain, yet, notwithstanding its modernity, spaciousness and hygienic advantages and the interesting pictures of lovely ladies which we found in the policemen's recreation room, none of us really wished to stay.

From this last word in police stations we went to the smoke houses of Messrs. George Bowles, Nicholls & Co., Ltd., where we were shown sides of bacon from twelve countries, including Canada. Mr. George J. Nicholls, Managing Director, compared the various qualities. Canadian bacon, he said, was placed fourth in public favor. First English, then Irish, next Danish, and then Canadian. Canadian cure was also made with butter, honey and eggs. Two Chinese ripe six years old were broken and shown to be perfectly "fresh" so far as edibility was concerned. Both had large and well developed stomachs and eggs should be. A good deal was learned from Mr. Nicholls regarding the requirements of the British market and when reserve brought forth many questions from the party.

We were now taken in hand by the Central Markets Committee of the Corporation of the City of London, who showed us Smithfield Meat Market and Spitalfields Fruit and Vegetable Market including the cold storage which are being made to the latter at a cost of $10,000,000. We were scarcely time to reflect upon the bewildering but ever-hundred-years-old market-place, the largest meat mart set in the world, except to recall here, that Wat Tyler was slain by Sir William Walworth in the presence of King Richard II, and that it had been the scene of the burning of Protestant martyrs, for soon we were bustling through aisles of meat which never seemed to end. There were 9,000 tons upon the hooks. All this meat had come into the market that morning and would be out of it by three that afternoon! Such is the meat-consuming power of Greater London. One of the secrets of the epicurean handling of meat is the Great Western Railway's depot which has immediately below the market, obviating the carting of meat through the streets. Across from the depot in the market is by two hydraulic lifts from each of which 100 to 150 sides of beef can be cleared every hour. Every facility was afforded for asking questions of anybody in the markets, both meat and fruit and vegetable, and a mass of information was obtained having a direct bearing on the marketing of Canadian products.

After three hours of tireless investigation we were ready for the Mansion House and the reception of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, Sir Charles and Lady Bathe. In this magnificent home, where since the 18th century, the Lord Mayors of London have received kings, princes, statesmen and other representatives from all lands, we were given a cordial welcome and made to feel at home. During a pleasant and privileged half hour we were shown the old kitchens with the spits on which used to be roasted barrel of beef, established in the great Egyptian Hall, and accorded a view of the City's gold plate.

Leaving the Mansion House with some regret at the shortness of the stay, we made our way to rub for the Guildhall as guests of the Central Markets Committee.

Golden Text: "Remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youth."—Ecclesiastes 12.1.

Explanations and Comments

The Religious Training Of a Jewish Boy. Deuteronomy 6.4-9. Jehovah is the one absolute God; He must be loved with all the heart's real and strength. The commandments must be in the heart, must be taught to children, must be continual subject of thought and conversation everywhere and at all times. At home, and when on the way, in the evening on lying down, and in the morning on rising. They must be bound upon the hand for a sign, and worn as bands (frontlets) between the eyes. This "signs" and "frontlets" were so much the same way as children in these days are showed at Sunday Mass. Strange rings on their fingers, to remind them of something he should not forget.

"Lord God of Israel, there with us yet, Lest we forget—lest we forget."

—Kipling.

This was the teaching of Deuteronomy, and we may be sure that this was the kind of religious faith Paul received while a lad in his father's house at Tarsus.

"Oh, if our children all were brought Heirmes to God and duly taught His law to keep and obey, Pre-eminently blest were they; And bound as with a threefold cord Would be our nation to the Lord."

Indians Make Big Profits

Found Seal-Fishing Good Along West Coast Of Vancouver

Fur seals have been unusually plentiful this season off the coast of Vancouver Island, and the Indian, to whom pelagic sealing is restricted, have made a good catch and brought in a large number of skins for sale. The price is high and some of the hunters have been making big profits.

The weather was stormy at times, and the Ottawa in the Government canoes, had no easy time during the hunt, but are well pleased as the season closed. The catch in no way too good owing to the rough seas

Would Sell the Boy

Old French Manual Advised Against Use Of Tobacco

This is from a French manual for the guidance of youth, first published in 1834, which ran through many editions in the course of the Eighteenth Century. "For the sake of cleanliness we advise you to rub the face every morning with a wolfe towel in order to remove the dirt. It is not advisable to wash with water, for this exposes the face to the chills of winter and the heats of summer." A similar work published in 1667, warns children that "to wash the face in water injures the eyesight, brings on rheumatism and colds, and engenders pallor."

Modern Miracles

On Victoria Day, Premier Mackenzie King gave a broadcast of message of the Empire, which was pull round and assembled in Hyde Park, London, England, and a little later High Commissioner Larkin delivered from the British metropolis to exchange greetings with reference to the incident. The accomplishment may have been regarded as a miracle not so very long ago, yet the two combined scarcely caused a ripple of public attention, so used have we become to modern marvels

The trouble about worshipping ancestors is that people who do it seldom provide the same privileges for posterity.

Who Supports Them?

Did you ever analyze the development of any town or community? Did you ever pause and consider who were most active and energetic in the promotion of the various undertakings which may have meant so much to the community? Did you wonder, at times, why one town seemed to grow and develop while another, just as advantageously situated, did not?

This Is The Reason

There are in practically every town a certain number of active and wide-awake business and professional men. They are ready and willing to devote a considerable amount of time and effort in the promotion of undertakings for the betterment of the community. If these men are supported and encouraged by the community at large—if there is that spirit of good will and co-operation which should obtain—then, and then only, will you see a prosperous and progressive community. If men in similar lines of business will bargain-ize, and if these, then, will co-operate with all others, then nothing can hold such a town back beyond its natural limitations. In the promotion of these matters the local paper can and does take an active and prominent part; and only in the measure of business co-operation which is extended to such paper may it be a power and influence in the community.

All business men need a certain amount of printed matter Show your loyal, home-town, co-operative spirit by having your printing done by Farmers!

IN 1926 THE FARM PRODUCTS EXHIBIT FROM THIS KLONDYKE DISTRICT TOOK FIRST PRIZE AT THE EDMONTON EXHIBITION.

Last year it took second.

This year we are making a direct appeal to every farmer from Dunleree to Vermilion to co-operate and assist in bringing together a collection of farm products that will carry us to the top one more.

A Committee has been appointed to take care of the collecting, forwarding and arranging of the articles to form the exhibit but we must look to you to assist in securing the material.

It is impossible to call on or write to everyone.

If you are one of those that have been missed and have, or know of, a creditable exhibit, we ask that you get in touch at once with one of the Committee.

No expense to contributors, and samples returned if desired.

The more others received will mean a wider choice for quality and a greater variety in display.

All of which means a better exhibit.

AND HERE IS WHAT WE NEED:—

Threshed Red Spring Wheat Grain of 1927, especially about as it is going to be difficult to obtain sufficient varieties to make a good showing.

Wheat Grain and Forage Plants of 1928.

Fresh and Preserved Fruits, etc.

Vegetables and Roots of 1928.

Flour. Apiary Products; Wild Flowers.

This request is to YOU, and we are waiting to hear from YOU.

Annual Plowing Match Centre of Great Interest

Work Done of High Quality

The ninth annual plowing match under the auspices of the Vermilion Agricultural Society, was held on the 20th instant, on the farm of Mr. Geo Moses, west of the Vermilion fair grounds. Judging by the number of contestants and the interest taken by the general public, it is a good question that it was the most successful match held here. The quality of the work turned out gave the judges, Mr. D. Douglas, Farm Director for the province of Alberta, a difficult task before he finally decided. The matter of two-furrow gang plows he decided that he has not seen as good work at any plowing match in the province of Alberta.

Particulars of the awards and the various points gained will appear in next week's issue of the Standard.

In the evening the Directors of the Society entertained to supper at the Brunswick Hotel, the contestants, and allowed a few of the citizens the privilege of purchasing their way in. Mine host Mr. Fred Mayhew, as on all annual custom, provided a splendid meal for which he deserves mention

After supper the Vermilion Bible Society, Mr. Wm. Telford, requested Mr. W. E. Sutton, the secretary, to occupy the chair, and called on a duly acceptable manner. The following gentlemen were called on for speeches and responded to the chairman's invitation: Mr. W. A. Fallon Mayor of Vermilion; Mr. J. F. Andrew, Manager of the Agricultural Supply Farm, Mr. J. McBride, salesman for Massey-Harris Co.; Mr. W. Chello, salesman for Cockshutt Plow Co.; Mr. W. Ebbett; Mr. W. J. Elliott of the Agricultural School, and Mr. J. H. Bell. The evening's entertainment was delivered by Mr. L. G. Carlyle, Principal of Pairs and Institutes, in an interesting manner of problems that all farmers would do well to think about, but in no case attempted a solution. It might be useful to mention a few of the problems he gave.

1—How much land can a farmer handle economically? Some very favorable farmers have failed through too extensive farming.

2—Is it profitable or wise to invest in a tractor for doing plowing and belt work only?

3—Why do poor feeders rarely own a better strain of the grain or seed to the farmer than the better class of cattle? A solution of the problem is to be compared at the Bull Sale, when it is to be held in Winnipeg next month.

Mr Carlisle was of the opinion that it would pay handsomely for every farmer to keep a number of sheep to control the weed problem.

FUNERAL OF ALBA C. DEMERS

The funeral of Alba C. Demers, formerly of Vermilion, who died at Edmonton Thursday, June 21st, aged 72 years, took place Saturday, June 23rd, from Howard & McBride's private chapel to the Edmonton cemetery. Rev. Mr. Jones officiated. The pall bearers were Messrs. Ruail, McCan bel, Moore, Edwards, Chubb and Blacklaw while Mrs. Ruail presided at the organ. The deceased was engaged in the carriage business here till about a year ago when he went to live with his daughter, Mrs. A. G. Moore, 10618 84th Avenue, Edmonton.

The passing of another old-timer of the Vermilion district is generally regretted and the sympathy of numerous friends here goes out to the family in their bereavement.

Bible Society Was Founded In 1804

The Bible Society, known more fully as the British and Foreign Bible Society and in Canada as the Canadian Bible Society, is in the 125th year of its history. WILL USE NEW BOOK

New Service Has Neither Legal Nor Spiritual Authority

LONDON, June 26.—An unprecedented if great combination of bishops rejected by the house of commons of the revised prayer book of the Church of England was done last night by Right Rev. Frank Theodore Woods, bishop of Winchester He officially notified the clergy of his diocese that "the new form of service in confirmation corresponding with the alternative form contained in the revised prayer book will be used at all future confirmation services" in the diocese.

It is pointed out in connection with the announcement that the service which the bishop intends to use has neither been nor received official sanction.

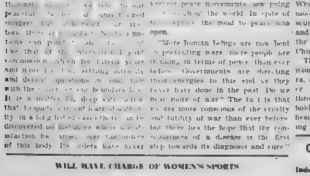
Hon. Vincent Massey Speaks On Peaceful Relations Between Canada And The United States

The peaceful relations between Canada and the United States are not dependent on the powers of police to enforce its edicts but are founded on practical principles, said Hon. Vincent Massey, Canada's minister at present at Washington, in a speech that in all its aspects this commissioner delivered before the American Peace Society. He has never deviated along neutralist lines and only once was it difficult at all. We may well regret the fact that Mr Massey had that happen, but it would be the only representative of Europe as to have two bright spots in America, while he are maintained to weight to be preserved, and that in truth each nation's good is also those of North and, the British West Indies, and all for possession of America which was Canadian-American relations has been established in the policy of both countries since the Jay Treaty, while the Rush-Bagot agreement of 1794, providing disarmament on the Great Lakes, was a measure of settling boundary disputes. Mr Massey pointed out. The Canadian-American relations have been set up had never arisen, and it has observed ever since.

Hon. Mr Massey minister expressed the belief in the practicability of the League of Nations, and that the latter peace movements are going to be successful, to show the world in spite of the present difficulties the road to peace is now open.

"Modern human feelings are now bent on the idea of the universality of peace. Prevailing wars never people are concerned with the fantastic idea of peace, but they are now setting about it before Governments are directing and driving operations in order that campaigns to that end as they do with the conduct of war. Peace is now to be a matter for deep study and research that I suspect many of us are more conscious of the cruelty and folly of war than ever before. We have less the hope that the conclusion be drawn, and that the modern conscience of a decade is the first of this body to others have taken big towards its diagnosis and cure."

WILL HAVE CHARGE OF WOMEN'S SPORTS



Miss Ethel Mackenzie, Toronto, who has been appointed chairman of the women's committee of the Canadian Olympic committee. Miss Mackenzie has been an outstanding figure in girls' athletics in Canada for many years and was manager of the Canadian ladies' team in Paris in 1924, which visited England. Miss Alex. Cumming, Toronto, has been actively associated with women's sport at the Toronto and with the Women's Canadian Club, and is also a member of the executive of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Federation and appointed Miss Marie Paskew chairman and Miss Alex. Cumming secretary. They will have charge of the Canadian ladies' team in Paris in 1925, which visited England. Miss Alex. Cumming secretary. They will have charge of the women track and field athletes on the trip to Amsterdam. There may be another girl prominent in athletics who will be recommended by the Canadian Swimming Association and if so they will join the party.

Adhering strictly to the policy that in the charge of the ladies appointed, women's sports should be handled exclusively by women, the Canadian Olympic committee accepted the recommendation of Women's Amateur Athletic Federation and appointed Miss Marie Paskew chairman and Miss Alex. Cumming secretary. They will have charge of the women track and field athletes on the trip to Amsterdam. There may be another girl prominent in athletics who will be recommended by the Canadian Swimming Association and if so they will join the party.

Want Air Port Chief

First Time Such a Position Has Been Advertised

Probably the first advertisements of their kind are in process of issue by W. Foran, secretary of the civil service commission, as a result of the decision of the Department of National Defence, to hold competitions for the positions of air harbor manager, at the St. Hubert airdrome, near Montreal, and inspectors, civil aviation, at Ottawa. The air harbor manager will have charge under the superintendent of airways, of a public leased air harbor, including the flying field for water craft, hangars, slipways, workshops, etc., at St. Hubert, will collect all operating fees, prepare annual returns and generally administer all at the port.

Qualifications for the post include those of an commercial pilot and air engineer and wide knowledge of the different types of aircraft.

Seeing Sights the World Over

Possibly you have a friend who was a passenger on the round-the-world cruise of the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Australia." If so, you have already heard the stories of ports visited, and the strange sights witnessed. In clubs, homes, and lecture halls you will hear about where the passengers saw the largest Buddha in Japan, how the Wrangoon River China, looks in the moonlight with its queer craft silently carrying with unknown cargoes to and from various ports, while from the cabin comes the wailing of the Chinese flute.

Then there is the spectacle of the mangrove in conflict with a huge cobra, a battle royal in which the fortune is always victor, and the man through his habit of securing a good hold with his mouth and crushing the head of the cobra. Another interesting thing is to see the Hindoo with his flute charm a deadly poisonous snake, finally playing on the musical serpent of the reptile in such an ardent that he gradually sways from side to side in accompaniment to the rhythm of music. There is also a motor of the desert being carefully shaved by his attentive chauffeur, indicidently the owner leans over the camel's teeth to see if any are in the stage where pulling is necessary. Japan gives a silhouette at sunset on the River Nile.

Greatest Aids To Agriculture

Industry In Canada Has Received Most Benefit From Non-Farmers

Agriculture's greatest aids in Canada during the last 50 or 70 years have come from men who have never farmed, H. L. Kings, dairy instructor of agriculture for Manitoba, told the Legislature recently.

"A doctor who had never farmed learned in 1846 that wheat rust had different spores, and if these could be destroyed the fungus would be eliminated," Mr. Evans said. Pathologists had been using that information as a basis for research ever since.

Pasteur, the French chemist and scientist, had brought immeasurable benefits through his "Pasteurization process," evolved in 1857 to aid winemakers whose products were spoiling. William Saunders, a druggist, had hybridized many brands of wheat to select the best and produce the grade known as Marquis wheat.

Mr. Evans asserted that it was not very encouraging to the farmers, after years and months money spent, to grow better seed and better stock, to have to sell these products to a low price "dictated by the businessmen."

Mineral Springs Of Canada

Spring Water With Curative Powers Occur in Many Parts Of Dominion

The production in mineral waters in Canada in 1927 amounted to 302,829 gallons, valued at $14,666, and was derived from mineral springs located in Ontario and Quebec, Spring waters containing minerals in solution, or as they are usually termed, mineral waters, occur in many parts of the Dominion. Many of them are utilized commercially, both as potable waters and for bathing purposes. At several of the springs where the waters have curative properties, hotels and sanitariums are operated. Some of the thermal springs are utilized principally for mineral baths.

Shorthorn Cow With a Record

U. A. Roan Lady, 10181—186317 - a registered Shorthorn cow in the herd of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, recently completed a 365 day test during which she produced 15,723 pounds of milk with an average test of 4.3 per cent., making a total of 676 pounds of butterfat. This record places her sixth highest in Canada in point of butterfat production for Shorthorn cows.

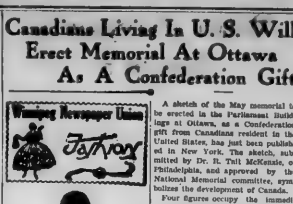
NEW CONFEDERATION BUILDING

Work on the new Confederation Building at Ottawa, of which the foundation stone was laid by Lord Willingdon on Confederation day, 1927, will be started this year. The building which is to house government departments, will be of French-Canadian architecture, which will harmonize with the Chateau Laurier at the other end of Parliament Hill. The plan resembles a broad arrow, with a main wing of 250 feet on Wellington street and a side wing of 200 feet along Bank street, a third wing bisecting the angle. The Dominion has hitherto been paying out $600,000 annually in rents for government departments, many of which are now accommodated in old houses or store buildings.

Canadians Living In U. S. Will Erect Memorial At Ottawa As A Confederation Gift



A sketch of the May memorial to be erected in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, as a Confederation gift from Canadians resident in the United States, has just been published in New York, and Dutch, submitted by Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, of Philadelphia, and approved by the National Memorial committee, symbolizes the development of Canada.

Four figures occupy the immediate foreground. On the left is Canada enthroned, her right hand on shield emblazoned with the arms of United Canada of today, her left outstretched to receive the offerings of her children. She wears a head dress with caribou antlers and the short chiton and sandals of Diana; a pouch for ermine flank, the youngest of the Nations.

The central figure is a small child, the Canadian of the future, staggering under the weight of the wheat sheaf he is bringing. Behind him and partly supporting him is a stalwart youth, the Canadian of the present, relinquishing his rifle and looking forward to Peace and Industry. Behind him a young woman kneels and receives his rifle and his hat with the other pours out from a bucket the fruits of the earth at Canada's feet.

The engraving on the pedestal shows in the foreground with a theodolite on his shoulder. At his heels come, in procession, a lumberman with his axe, and the fisherman with his nets, established on both canoe before the bank was steep, a group: a man, with a hunter's rifle, and a woman and child, standing among the trees in front of the settler's cabin. On the opposite side an Iroquois Indian hurks in the forest watching them.

The upright pine trunks form a background which is seen the figure are in low relief of Jacques Cartier on the deck of his ship, as he sails up the St. Lawrence, kneeling behind him a Jesuit priest upholds the cross, a reference to the religious character of the first settlement of Canada.

The relief of the figures becomes lower as the history recedes but the figures on the foreground stand out boldly, almost in the round.

The panel is about ten feet when a width is supplied on a pedestal about three feet high on which the inscription will be carved.

There are approximately a million and a quarter men and women of Canadian birth resident in the United States. To give expression to their sentiments of pride in and devotion to their native land this memorial at Ottawa was proposed on the 100th anniversary of Confederation, celebrated last year, provided a fitting opportunity to present it. It is to be erected at a cost of $75000 the amount to be raised by popular subscription among Canadians residing in the United States.

Through the courtesy of the Canadian Government the memorial should site within its gift was made available to the Memorial Committee and accepted. This location is a large panel in the main corridor of the Parliament Buildings leading to the Hall of Fame, and opposite to the statue of the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, and a distinguished gathering, including national and formal presentation by Mr. Justice W. F. Colpitts as chairman of the National committee. The Amount of fund subscribed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day, and it is usually calculated for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverishness, constipation and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For babies and other little children, of three, give stomach and bowels, constipation sour stomach, loss of sleep, undersweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It's purely vegetable. The recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it to cover thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right and absorb his food so he gets nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each purchase you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are sometimes irritated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one teaspoonful neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its introduction, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

When they were in the car, Maudie finished the conversation. "Helmi is doing well, but don't fuss her up by taking her out. They get to know too much. Now Mrs. Bell when she spoke to me said I would have to get some one to wash; Helmi would be no use to do the washing, especially the hanging out of the clothes, on account of nursing the baby, she might catch cold. But Bob, she does it and washes beautifully. I just kept quiet. For we're making a dollars a week out there. Now, how's that? Am I a good wife for a poor man? I'll say I am. Those Bell people are strong for the human. Well, she's good to the baby, anyway, but don't spoil her, for Heaven's sake. Helmi will be up to people the more they expect—take it from me!"

To what Mr. Herriott replied: "I bet she'd like a ride, though; she's only a kid She's younger than you are, and I bet she looks pretty pale and tired sometimes."

"Least sure," said his plump little wife, sneering her dignity. "Who is running the house?"

And when she said it she looked so utterly sweet and plump and pink and white, as indeed she was herself, but very pretty child, that her husband kissed her and forgot all about Helmi.

Helmi had a friend in the broad man, who gave her snatches of news from the outside world. This came from out at the Exhibition Grounds where gossip went about with the speed of fire. Helmi was the sensation of the season, and some of the prize-winning cows had named their calves after her. Helmi's own cow, Daisy, was the proud mother of a splendid heifer calf, and Helmi had been allowed to name it. She had called it Lil, as cut out all the fireworks and got them ready."

Plump and pink and white, with a baby smile, was Maudie Herriott, the petted child and wife, but hard and cruel as any toothless old crone.

Both mothers rode in the ambulance to the hospital, and, strangely enough it was Mrs. Herriott who became hysterical when the nurse took her baby from her.

The brown-eyed nurse who had received Lil read the misery in Helmi's white face and patted her shoulder kindly. "I do not think your baby will have it very hard—she is a lovely little thing and looks quite strong. Don't worry over her, because we have splendid success with our babies here. She will have every care, I promise you. No, she will not fret much."

Helmi kissed her hand with a rapt look in her eyes, but she could not speak. Her heart would have broken when she saw Lil carried into the fever ward away from her, with a door shut between them, if the kindly nurse had not put the sunbonnet she had on over eyes with gruesome fascination; to her excited imagination it seemed as if it were painted on.

When returning they were stopped at First Street by the roaring of the Idaho district, has often been told That donkey was pensioned for his services, and several distinct discoveries have been made as the result of hoof found on the dumps and in the bush by miners in the Yreka district for groundhogs. The deepest pocket ran proved to be one of the best producers in the district, and it is also told how his stake was due to a pack-rat stealing his supplies and refusing to budge from the spot a piece of quartz carrying gold which led to discovery of a valuable quartz reef. Both the animal and the donkey are now in the Siskiyou mountains, where they have made their home.

Dog Discovers Valuable Mine

Strange Incidents Recalled In Connection With Mineral Discoveries

One of the richest copper strikes ever made on Vancouver Island was made by a dog, according to Harry Tanner, well-known mining man, who has just returned from a prospecting trip.

Tanner's dog was a companion on many of his trips through the woods with his master in the discovery of the ore. One day on the West coast of Vancouver Island, the animal was seen barking persistently and went to see what it was all about. To his astonishment he found a huge boulder of copper ore. Where "greenstain" is permitted to remain for a considerable time upon these surfaces the enamel will be found to be "etched" or roughened by dissolution due to an acid that is there bacteria produce. Unfortunately this injury to the tooth substance is permanent

Now, you can readily understand that these roughened areas will hold food particles and epithelial matter which are found in a mouth where brushing is neglected and with repellant decay.

The removal of greenstain had better be left to your dentist, who, by employing some abrasant such as pumice would be able also to smooth and polish these areas and thus check further deposits of this nature

So, not only as you see should greenstain be removed for appearance sake, but also as a prophylactic measure in the prevention of decay.

GREENSTAIN

You are anxious that your child should have nice white teeth, and you are endeavoring to get him to form the habit of daily care with perhaps good success.

But you notice a dark greenish stain on his teeth right next to the gum, and which persists in spite of careful brushing

This, then, is "greenstain," and is commonly found on both the temporary and permanent teeth of children, being generally confined to the inferior upper teeth, well up towards the gums

The greenish color is due to bacteria present which find lodgement in those areas afforded by the remnant of a dead cuticle when often perfect after the eruption of the tooth.

Where "greenstain" is permitted to remain for a considerable time upon these surfaces the enamel will be found to be "etched" or roughened by dissolution due to an acid that is there bacteria produce. Unfortunately this injury to the tooth substance is permanent

Now, you can readily understand that these roughened areas will hold food particles and epithelial matter which are found in a mouth where brushing is neglected and with repellant decay

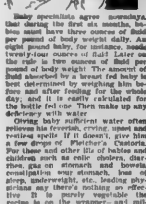
How Much Water Should Baby Get?

"A Famous Authority's Rule

By Ruth Britton



Many specialists agree nowadays that during the first six months, before must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. TOWN HEATING

(Editorial—Edmonton Bulletin)

The energy-saving town of Vermilion is to stage an interesting experiment in the use of a central heating system, exhaust steam from the power plant being used to warm buildings in a considerable section of the town, in some other parts of the world this method of distributing heat from a central station has been adopted, but this is probably the first time an Alberta town has undertaken an enterprise of the kind. Perhaps the most extensive heating plant of this type in Alberta is that at the University, where the buildings, the hospital and residence at a considerable distance are warmed with steam generated in the boilers of the electric light plant. The arrangement is said to work satisfactorily and to be also economical.

The outcome of the Vermilion venture will be watched with considerable interest by people in other Alberta towns. If it is demonstrated that exhaust steam from power plants can be thus used to advantage, there will no doubt be a number of central heating plants built in centres in this province. How far steam can be carried, with economy, is a point which may decide how generally central heating systems will be brought into use. Perhaps in a decade or so town dwellers will pay for their heat as they pay for their electric light, water and telephone service, the warmth being supplied by radiators fed with steam generated in plants located where these can be operated at lowest cost

Car for Every Nine Persons in Alberta

Alberta has 114 passenger automobiles per hundred of population or approximately one car to every nine persons, according to figures issued from Ottawa during the past week in this province Alberta stands fourth among the provinces of the Dominion, Ontario leading with 12.1 cars per hundred of population and Saskatchewan and British Columbia following with 11.1 per hundred. Signs Of A Better Era

The period of prosperity now so generally prevalent throughout Canada and the United States and the marked rise in industrial activity in all lines all over that continent, and which is being felt to a steadily increasing extent in Great Britain and other European countries, seems to present to some ill-informed minds and agitators an opportunity to once again revive the old "strike" weapon. When times are hard, business depressed, with large numbers of men unemployed and anxiously seeking work, the agitator urging men rejecting in employment to "strike" has a hard row to hoe, but when business is brisk, the bulk of the majority of men employed, and an increasing demand for labor, the agitator sees his opportunity to make trouble.

Fortunately both employers and employees have learned from past bitter experience that industrial warfare does not pay, any more than does war between nations, that the victor suffers almost as great damage as does the vanquished; and the general public which after all is the greatest sufferer is now more and more inclined to sternly oppose the calling of a "strike."

Relations between the bosses on the one side and the men on the other have been improved and become more cordial of recent years through a realization of a truth, which ought to have been recognized long ago that, in the final analysis, their interests are common. Employers today do not regard their men as mere machines, but as real and active partners in the business—of the business in which they are jointly engaged, and the average workman today recognizes that his employer has huge problems and difficulties to face in successfully administering and maintaining his business in a highly organized and fiercely competitive world field.

Recently an attempt was made to induce all the employees of the Toronto Street Railway system to go out on strike to enforce a series of demands made by them. To tie up the street railway system in a city like Toronto would be a public calamity, resulting in great inconvenience to everybody and an enormous loss to the street railway company. But the street railway is municipally owned that is, it belongs to all the people. The management pointed out that to meet the men's demands would necessitate an increase in fares. This would mean hardship to every one, and particularly to all classes of workmen in the city who are among the principal users of the cars. Had the system been privately owned, people would probably have felt justified in refusing to meet the men's demands could be met out of profits, and that any increase in fares was unnecessary, but in a municipally-owned system, operated to provide service rather than to accumulate profits, the statement of the management was accepted not as a bluff, and that either increased fares or operating deficits to be made up out of increased taxes, must result.

So, when the matter of calling a "strike" finally came to a vote of the street railway employees, the men themselves rejected it by a ten to one vote in favor of arbitration, a very healthy indication of sane thinking on the part of the men and of the present trend of public sentiment.

Another Toronto labor incident may be cited as indicating the newer and more reasonable point of view now actuating labor men. Structural steel workers on three of the largest buildings in the city went on strike to compel their employers to establish a closed shop and employ only union men, which would be a reversal of the Company's policy during the last forty years of making no distinction between union and non-union men but treating them all frankly and fairly. The steel workers have sought to induce other branches of the building trades to go on strike in sympathy with them, but without success, and even the International Union, it is understood, refuses to endorse the attitude of the strikers.

The fact is becomingly increasingly evident that in this age the bludgeon methods of war are growing more and more distasteful, no matter in what direction or cause they may be employed. People are becoming more insistent all the time that causes of dispute, whether between nations, or in the industrial areas, or between individuals, be settled through the orderly processes of law and arbitration, and not by flying at each other's throats and engaging in combat in which countless thousands of absolutely innocent persons are made to suffer

Alberta's Coal Resources

Official Figures Place Total At Over Four Billion Tons

An estimate of Alberta's coal resources, made recently by the International Geological congress, places the total at 1,408,239 million tons, according to figures received by the provincial government. This is 35 per cent of the world's coal supply, 72 per cent of the British Empire's resources, and 57 per cent of Canada's resources.

The mineral presently operating in Alberta are capable of producing 15,000,000 tons annually, and it has been estimated that if this production were increased 100 times, that the available supply would not be exhausted for 18 centuries.

A Man-Inflatable Fuel

Invention Of Russian Engineer Has Been Successfully Demonstrated

The prevention in the aeroplane is still a problem of the greatest importance One substance has in the production of a non-inflammable fuel which can be utilized in the present rotational type of aircraft engine.

A Russian engineer, Makratzky, is reported to have achieved success in this direction by a secret chemical process he is able to convert heavy mineral and vegetable oils into a light liquid fuel which is non-inflammable outside the engine It can be used in the ordinary carburettor-type internal-combustion engine and will deliver more power for a given weight These claims are said to have been demonstrated by a variety of official tests

RHEUMATIC PAINS DUE TO THIN BLOOD

Relief Comes Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

There is rheumatic suffering can hope for in rubbing something on the swollen, aching joints is a delusion, relief, and all too often while the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted. It is not in the muscles, however, that the trouble is located, and that is the reason why liniments, lotions and the like are of such little use. The trouble is due to poor blood, and until the blood is built up and enriched the rheumatic pains will continue to torment the victim. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved so beneficial in this and many other troubles. They make new, rich blood which expels the poisonous acid and drives rheumatism from the system.

There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada who are well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains of rheumatism. Among them are Mrs. W. F. Tutt, McKellar, Ont., who says:—"I can say that the writer owes to tell you of the great benefit I received from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After lying in bed for seven weeks suffering untold agony with inflammatory rheumatism, relief finally came through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon began to feel as though I could get up. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before I got through I was able to get around and I have not been troubled since. I may add that I recommended the pills to two of my friends who were suffering with rheumatism and the pills were equally effective in both cases."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion or nervousness. Sold by them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get Pink Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RED CROSS AS FAIRY GODMOTHER

A Radio Tale Of the Far North Of Alberta

In the far north of Alberta stands a little house in the woods, looking like Wendy's House in the Never-never Land for Lost Boys. Here lives a Scottish settler, his wife and family, and with them the grandparents and their family. Times had gone hard with the pioneers from the Land o' the Heather. Crops had failed, and the cold of Canada seemed intense, even to their brave Scottish blood.

Food was none too plentiful, clothing was scanty and bedding bare. The young wife, already a mother of several bonny looking babies, was expecting to present to the land of her adoption that greatest gift of all a new Canadian.

Prospects looked bad in this foothill family. Friends were far away over the seas and the hills of their native land. To whom could they turn in their time of trouble?

Neighbors were few and far between, but kindly and considerate as the best of settlers. In one Scottish home there was a Radio, a new toy, that was proving not a plaything but a real practical friend. It gave the latest news of the day to the people of the far northland. Music was rendered by artists from the cities, one day there came a new feature, a voice telling of the great Red Cross and that it was doing a work for winter and healthier Canada.

Suddenly the blue-eyed German mother exclaimed, "Mitigating suffering," and the voice, "wherever found." Other phrases came clearly over, "Helping the feeble, cheering the new - born, sending relief, caring for [redacted] and Babies." Then the smile grew still prouder, for here at their very doors was just such a case as the Red Cross was able to succour.

Very soon relief was put in action at once and through the neighborhood of a German friend a fine new little Canadian was born under the Red Cross flag.

Seventh British Dominion

Palestine In Line For This Position Says Jewish Leader

That Palestine would eventually become a seventh British Dominion was the prediction made by Dr. Richmond Levin, Jewish leader, who addressed the United Palestine Appeal for Western Canada recently.

"Great Britain is in Palestine to stay," declared Dr. Levin. "Her mandate will only be withdrawn when the Jewish nation shall have established itself as an active partner-ommunwealth of British nations. Great Britain needs Palestine as the keystone country in the Near East and as a guardian state of the Suez Canal. In fact, she needs the Jews fully as much as they need her," he asserted.

Dr. Levin reported that the crisis which Palestine had recently undergone was almost over. Jewish settlers were making a striking success in agriculture. Oranges produced on Jewish farms were obtaining 39 per cent. higher prices than those from other countries.

EXPECT RETURN OF RESOURCES TO COME SOON

Ottawa.—There is every prospect that the present year will see important developments in the financial relations between the Dominion and all the provinces as affecting the subsidies which are annually granted. The matter, it is known, has been under consideration already and will be further considered when, during the summer months, negotiations occur with the western provinces respecting the return of their natural resources.

Similarly, the subject was a most important feature of the agenda of the Dominion-wide conference last fall.

It is understood that the Dominion government is anxious to have a specific delimitation of its spheres and those of the provinces and to avoid overlapping even to the extent of federal declarations of local works. The grants for highway improvement are not being renewed while the bill to establish a department of [illegible] is [illegible] Saskatchewan's public lands have been so extensively alienated that it is likely to claim in addition to the return of what remains of its natural resources, a subsidy in lieu of the [illegible] per year to which it was entitled when it has a population of 900,000.

For such a subsidy the Dominion government the outlook is not unfavorable.

Will Aid Canadian Ports

Grain Commissioner Promises Support To Vancouver and Other Ports

Vancouver.—The Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada will exert every effort to aid the port of Vancouver, and keep Canadian grain moving over Canadian railways and through Canadian ports, Vancouver has in its few years of grain experience found the grain handling facilities to a science and has proven capable of handling any quantity turned down.

These sentiments, together with a note of warning that United States ports and transportation interests are looked with eager eyes on the grain crop of Canada, were expressed by Leslie H. Boyd, chairman of the Dominion Board of Grain Commissioners, here. The occasion was the banquet celebration of the 50,000,000th bushel of grain given by the Vancouver merchants' exchange More than a hundred grain and shipping men attended, the guests including Boyd, Commissioner Bawlf, besides Mr. Boyd, James Robinson, Montreal grain man, and Secretary Rathbone of the Board of Grain Commissioners.

Col. H. T. Cambie, president of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange was chairman and in a speech to the 50,000,000th bushel, drew a resume of the history of the local trade.

"I am not given to prediction but I feel quite sure that Vancouver will pass the 120,000,000th bushel mark during the 1926-29 season," declared F. H. McG. Russell, chairman of the Vancouver harbor board.

Tragedy In Belgrade

Two Members Of Serbian Parliament Are Killed By Radical Deputy

Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia.—Interrupted by frequent interruption and the refusal of the opposition to withdraw insulting words, Puniza Raditch, Radical deputy, drew a revolver during a session of the national assembly and fired all six rounds into the group of opposition members.

Paul Raditch, nephew of Stefan Raditch, the peasant leader, was killed; Stefan Raditch himself seriously wounded. The Croat deputy, Dr. Basarichech, was so severely wounded that he died on his way to the hospital.

Dr. Pavlar and two other deputies, Grandja and Jelasitch, also received bullet wounds of a dangerous nature. The wounded were taken to the group, which had been isolated by great heaps of snow which covered the upper regions of the Canadian mountain. Word of their plight was brought here when telegraph communication was restored with the mountain town of Field.

At the height of the angry debate Stefan Raditch, turning to his group, drew several bombs and shaking his anger, shouted: "You are not men; you are swine!"

Privy Council Ruling Important To Dominion

Judgment Rendered In Regard To Writ Of Habeas Corpus

London.—A judgment of grave constitutional importance to His Majesty's subjects in Britain and the Dominions had been delivered by the judicial committee of the Privy Council on an appeal from Nigeria.

In effect, their Lordships decided that although by the Judicature Act, 1925, passed by the Nigerian council into one high court, each judge of that court still has jurisdiction to issue writs of habeas corpus, and that habeas corpus either in term time or vacation, and he is bound to hear and determine such application on its merits, notwithstanding any previous judicial findings.

The principle must apply in the Supreme Court of Nigeria, they said in allowing the appeal of Eshugbayi Eleko, native chief, from a decision of the Nigerian Supreme Court which had found that Mr. Justice Tew, of that court, had appropriately declined to entertain Eshugbayi's motion for a writ of habeas corpus.

EFFORTS MADE TO PUSH WORK ON H. B. ROAD

Ottawa.—Work continues to be pushed on the Hudson Bay Railway with considerable grueling in progress. Whether the road will be finished by the end of 1929 as the Government has announced, is not yet definite, but all efforts are being made during the season to push those parts that can be worked on.

The northward course of the road from Le Pas, Manitoba (The Pas), a few miles northeast of Kettle Rapids. From there the railway line is being surveyed to Port Churchill, avoiding contact with Port Nelson altogether. Churchill is set down as such application as Nelson, notwithstanding any previous judicial findings.

Must Make Restitution

Chicago Mayor and Three Others Owe $1,132,579 To City Treasury

Chicago, Ills.—Mayor William Hale Thompson, Michael J. Flaherty, George F. Harding and Percival E. Gallie, public administrator and three real estate experts, were found in circuit court to have conspired together in hiring the real estate men to do special work under the last Thompson administration at a cost to the city of $1,752,579. Judge Pugh Friend ordered the defendants to make restitution of that sum to the city treasury.

The court, terminating the two year old suit, found the conspiracy had a two-fold purpose, "financing the political activities of the Thompson administration, and for the private benefit of the members of the conspiracy."

BRITISH PRESTIGE AMONG NATIONS IS MAINTAINED

Minneapolis.—England not only has maintained her prestige among nations, but will yet become mightier, Sir Donald MacLean, member of the coalition cabinet and former Liberal whip in the House of Commons, told delegates from the British Empire to the International Rotary Convention here

Speaking before a British Empire dinner, Sir Donald told his countrymen that England in conjunction with the United States and Canada could make the future destiny of the world one worthy of Christian civilization

He maintained England made a remarkable recovery from her ills and he defended the "dole" system.

"It is an entire mistake to suppose that in the dark days of the old country are over," Sir Donald said. "On the contrary, the people who lost only two hundred thousand men in the Great War, who brought the ground sterling to look the dollar square in the face, who restored the gold standard and brought her general credit to a status almost equal to pre-war days are people who are confident and efficient."

NOBILE PARTY RECEIVE RELIEF AFTER LONG WAIT

King's Bay, Spitsbergen.—General Umberto Nobile and five of the crew of the lost dirigible Italia were picked up on ice floe by Major Maddalena, Italian aviator He dropped them provisions and medicine and signalled that while the castaways desperately jotted their desolate encampment Maddalena was unable to make a landing

This first relief for the Italian explorers came twenty-six days after their dirigible, returning from a flight over the North Pole and weighted with ice, suddenly descended, smashed the gondola in which Nobile and eight of his crew were riding and carried them over the ice of the unnavigable balloon northward before a gale

Nobile, a huge aeroplane, was sent from Italy by the Italian Government in the belief that its wide flying radius would be more useful in the search than the smaller seaplanes furnished by the Swedish and Russian governments.

The 8-55 was manned by Maddalena Lieut Cagna as co-pilot with radio operator Ateiti and Mechanic Sergeant Rampini, who had with the plane on its flight from Italy

All Europe, moved for days by the dramatic plight of Nobile in bearing and using relief planes overhead but being unable to give them position though was anxiously waiting for word from Amundsen.

Captain H. Riiser-Larsen returned from his fourth reconnoitering trip over the ice without having come anything of Nobile or the other two parties of the Italia's crew

Larsen said the radius of flight of his machine was too small and suggested an icebreaker be sent to North Cape to rescue the three men of Nobile's crew who left him in an attempt to walk to the mainland.

The rescue ship Braganza is unable to advance further toward the east because of packed ice.

SOME SALESMEN speak of the quality of their flour as if it resulted from secret and highly mysterious milling.

There are no secrets in milling.

The best flour is the result of intelligent selection of the very best wheat, a good mill, skilful milling and constant and never ceasing watchfulness.

That combination insures good flour. Nothing else does.

Where are you going July 4th?
To Quesnie Creek, you say?
Sure 'n so are we, for we've heard it is fine!
They're having a big Sports' Day
The placards say football, baseball and "jazz"
Hurrah, for the winners! Hurrah!
Never leave till to-morrow what needs you right now.
Jot down the date right away
They call it a picnic. Bring a basket of lunch—
There's a dance in the evening to be,
The young and the old may all commingle!
And remain for the "time" after tea

The district exhibit of farm products from Vermilion constituency was awarded first prize in 1926 at the Edmonton Exhibition, last year we took seventh place. It is the ambition of the committee in charge to make a strong bid for first place this year and general co-operation of every farmer is being asked. Full particulars as to what exhibits can do and other particulars regarding the make-up of the display, are contained in the display advertisement in this issue of The Standard. Look it up and put your shoulder to the wheel.

The eastern portion of the Alexandra school grounds, after being thoroughly worked up and cultivated, was seeded Tuesday with a mixture of Kentucky Blue Grass and White Dutch Clover. Conditions were particularly favorable following the heavy rains of Monday night and good results are looked for. The trees put out this season are all growing well.

Mammoth Pageant At Edmonton Exhibition

The mammoth pageant at the Edmonton Exhibition, July 16 to 25, depicting the ever-welcome stories of "Mother Goose and Cinderella" will be staged on a grand and lavish scale by a specially selected cast of 600 people with the support of a children's chorus of 250 voices. The tales of Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary, Red Riding Hood, Old King Cole, Little Bo-Peep, Little Boy Blue, Jack Sprat, Simple Simon, Old Mother Hubbard, Alice in Wonderland, Little Miss Muffet, the Old Woman who Lived in a Shoe and Cinderella will be presented in a truly fascinating manner.

Another stellar attraction on Thursday, July 19th, will be the Alberta Amateur Band Contest. Bands from Coronation, Camrose, Delia, Provost, Lomcar, Wetaskiwin, Cold Lake and Halkirk have entered to date and the contest will be judged by Flight Lt. Aasen, leader of H. M. Royal Air Force Band, which will be leading musical feature of the Exhibition, giving two performances daily in front of the Grand Stand.

The races this year will offer splendid fields of the fastest runners in Western Canada in a 5-day program of races. Platform attractions will include a fine series of vaudeville acts and a scintillating display of fireworks will be given each night, following the conclusion of the Grand Stand performance. Midway attractions will again be in the capable hands of John vy J. Jones.

A Horse Shoe Pitching Tournament, starting Tuesday and concluding Friday, is arousing great enthusiasm and a big team block demonstration on Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, under the capable supervision of E. J. Hallam of Oliver Farm will be of much interest to all farmers.

A special railway rate of a fare and one-third for the round trip will be in force for the period of the Exhibition from all stations in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Free camping space is provided for out-of-town visitors and participants in this regard may be obtained from the Exhibition Office in the Arena, Edmonton.

LARGE NUMBER OF TOURISTS

Quite a common sight for the last two weeks have been tourists from practically every part of the continent passing through town, tourists seem to be in larger numbers and earlier than in earlier year than usual. Licenses from British Columbia and the other prairie provinces are seen practically daily, while a number of Ontario licenses are also reported. Besides some nineteen state cars there have been a few California jams go through town, even one auto bearing a Florida plate stopped in town for a short visit.

Another Step Toward Permanent Peace

Throughout the years of the Great War, the people of the allied nations were repeatedly told that it was a war to make the world safe for democracy, "a war to end war." And when at last the great struggle ended and the League of Nations came into being it was thought that, with the bitter experience of the war fresh in all minds there would be little hesitation on the part of any country to join the League, and that, with 100 per cent. world membership in the League, world disarmament would follow in due course.

The refusal of the United States to have anything to do with the League of Nations—the very country in which the idea originated,—came as a rude shock to all lovers and advocates of peace. It discouraged Europe, revawakened all the old fears, and actually led to renewed activity in the piling up of armaments. Nevertheless, the League struggled on, gaining new adherents, and, with each succeeding success in settling international disputes and preventing open ruptures, the League grew in strength and prestige. Nonetheless, so long as the United States remained aloof it was felt that the structure for world peace was imperfect and insecure.

Because of this fact, the recent action of Mr. Kellogg, United States Secretary of State, in inviting the nations of the world to enter into a multilateral treaty to outlaw war, was enthusiastically welcomed by all lovers of peace, and nowhere quite so heartily as in Canada and other parts of the British Empire.

Already fifteen nations including, with the exception of Russia, all the Great Powers, have signified their willingness to sign such a treaty. The draft of the momentous international document is brief and to the point, and, as it may well prove to be the Magna Charta of world peace, it is worthy of the widest possible reproduction in order that all people, everywhere, may read it. The proposed treaty, in part, is as follows:

"Deeply sensible of their solemn duty to promote the welfare of mankind;

"Persuaded that the time has come when a frank renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy should be made to the end that the peaceful and friendly relations now existing between their peoples may be perpetuated,

"Convinced that all changes in their relations with one another should be sought only by pacific means and be the result of a peaceful and orderly process, and that any signatory power which shall hereafter seek to promote its national interests by resort to war should be denied the benefits furnished by this treaty;

"Hopeful that, encouraged by their example, all the other nations of the world will join in this humane endeavor, and by adhering to the present treaty as soon as it comes into force, bring peoples within the scope of its beneficent provisions, thus uniting the civilized nations of the world in a common renunciation of war as an instrument of their national policy."

Then follows the names of the fifteen nations who have signified their willingness to sign such a treaty, namely Australia, Belgium, Canada, Czecho-Slovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Poland, South Africa, United States of America.

To what do they agree? Having approved the declarations in the preamble quoted above, they bind themselves as follows

"Article I. The high contracting parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

"Article II. The high contracting parties agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means."

"Article III. The present treaty shall be ratified by the high contracting parties named in the preamble in accordance with their respective constitutional requirements and shall take effect as between them as soon as all their several instruments of ratification shall have been deposited at

"This treaty shall, when it has come into effect as prescribed in the preceding paragraph, remain open as long as may be necessary for adherence by all the other powers of the world. Every instrument evidencing the adherence of a power shall be deposited at ——, and the treaty shall immediately upon such deposit become effective as between the power thus adhering and the other powers parties hereto."

That is the whole document in brief and simplicity. Momentous in its sweeping renunciation of war under any and all circumstances. It does not replace the League of Nations, but adds power and strength to it. No loopholes are left, and should any nation signing this treaty ever again resort to war it would become, as never before, an outlaw among the nations.

Substitutes Cards For Pistol

Affair Of Honor In Czecho-Slovakia Settled In New Way

Pistols have given way to cards in the settlement of "affairs of honor" in Czecho-Slovakia, judging by the method adopted by a business man at Brunna, near Prague, to avenge an insult.

An employee in the town is said to have given offense to the business man, who challenged him to a duel

"Why not settle the affair at cards?" another man suggested. The idea was agreed, and sat down at the card table to play for a stake of £1,200. The business man won.

Another Great Possibility

Passengers May Soon Be Transferred From Moving Train To Dirigible

Transfer of passengers to and from moving trains by dirigibles was described at Belleville, Ills., as a "practicable possibility of the near future," by Col. John A. Pasquine, veteran commandant of Scott army base.

Pasquine based his opinion on the successful "dirigible-to-train" transfer of mail, in which a 210-foot navigid blimp synchronized its flying speed of 20 miles per hour with that of a moving Illinois Central train.

The dirigible came to rest on top of a coach for a period of five seconds long enough to effect the transfer of a pouch of mail without difficulty.

The army blimp which made the test carried a crew of six men.

A Wonderful Performance

Recent Flight Over Pacific Was Great Achievement For Fliers.

The great flight over the Pacific Ocean by the Australian, Captain Kingsford-Smith, leader, and his companions, puts British prestige at the peak in this form of endeavor. The "Southern Cross" winged its way to (name under censor) at the first hop, such performing an essential task in making the trip scientifically safe and sane. This feature plus raises the Pacific flight out of the category of regular daredevil stunts and enhances notably the merit of the performance. Regular radio reports received from the Southern Cross during its flight robbed the journey of some sensational features beloved of the crowd, but detracted not a bit from the great work by the fliers. Their accomplishment is the more valuable because they made use of many possible chances to avoid the fury of the elements with man's most powerful weapons.

HOW DELICATE GIRLS ARE MADE STRONG

Rich, Red Blood Needed To Build Up Their Vitality

It should be borne in mind that pale, bloodless girls need plenty of nourishment, fresh air, rest and regular out-of-doors exercise. But a lack of appetite and tired, aching limbs tend to hinder progress. To have the thin, blue-blooded sufferer, she must have new, rich blood, and nothing meets a need of this kind so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make the blood rich and pure, increase the blood supply, they help the appetite and aid digestion, relieve the weak, tired limbs, thus bringing new health and strength to transform miserable girls into women into cheerful, happy people

Mrs. Ernest Wilson, Williams' Pink Pills in the case of anaemic girls is proving itself a real friend. Miss Stoddart, Marguerite, N.B., who says: "Before I was 16 I was far from well. I was in an anaemic condition. I was very thin and weak, and felt tired all the time, and had no desire to take part in the doings of those of my age. My appetite was poor, and I had what was needed to restore my strength. After taking the pills for a time I felt an altogether different girl. I got up in the morning feeling bright and active, and ready for work or play. Since then I have always recommended Pink Pills in the spring as a tonic for girls who are not in the best condition.

Every weak girl should promptly follow the example of Miss Stoddart, and build up her health and vitality by her health. You can get the pink pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Show Canadian Films

Views Of Canada To Be Shown In British and Central Europe

Canadian films, made by the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau, will be shown in more than 300 to 500 British theatres this year as well as in Germany and central Europe, according to Frank Badgley, M.C., director of the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau, upon his return to Great Britain. He expressed a belief that in the near future Canada would become the largest field for the British Empire pictures.

BABY GUMS AND PASSAGES MADE BOTTOMS TENDER

MRS. A. J. Murray, Out Lake, Sask., writes:—"Last summer, my baby girl was cutting teeth and became very weak with the effects of diarrhoea. I didn't know just what to do for her as she would not retain anything. At last one of my neighbors said to me, 'Haven't you any way, I wouldn't be without it when there are children.'

The Sioux Lookout Map Sheet

Where the Miner's Pick Now Displaces the Tomahawk

The Sioux Indians were among the bandsomest as well as the most warlike of the aboriginal inhabitants of North America.

Their memory is perpetuated in the Sioux Lookout map sheet of the National Topographic series, now issued from the press of the Topographical Survey, Ottawa. The new map embraces an area lying 150 miles north from Lake Superior and adjoining the Lac Seul map sheet on the west.

The town of Sioux Lookout gets its name from the prospect which overlooking it. From the top of the hill, in days gone by, the Ojibways whose land it was, kept watch for the canoes on the waterways from raiding Sioux. On one occasion the lookout slept and the Sioux fell upon the camp. They tomahawked the warriors to a man, and destroyed all the canoes. The women and children with age decrepit old man were marooned upon an island near the site of the present town, and there left to starve to death. The island is still called Squaw Island.

This country with its broken lakes and streams, teeming with fish and chained with rapids and waterfalls, is a tourists' paradise. Here are old fur trading posts like Osnaburgh House, founded over a century ago. At historic Lac Seul the chief factor of the Hudson's Bay Company has a four-hole golf course. (Ingrom to the region is by way of the Canadian National Railways and thereafter by innumerable connecting waterways with headquarters at Lac Seul.) This territory is part of the newly discovered mineral hornesbee embellished on the north known as the great Canadian shield.

The Sioux Lookout map sheet of the National Topographical Survey, on the scale of four miles to the inch, may be obtained in sheet form from the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, for the nominal fee of 25 cents. If desired in folder form or linen backed the fee is 50 cents.

Common Housefly Covered With Deadly Disease Germs Says Scientists

The common housefly is literally covered with bacteria and deadly disease germs. Scientists have estimated that many flies carry as many as 6,000,000 germs. This estimate is determined as follows: A fly is placed in a small bottle of water. The bottle of water is then shaken so that the germs will all be washed off the fly, and they will be equally distributed throughout the water. A tiny drop, perhaps a millionth part of the water, is then placed on a glass slide and examined under a powerful microscope. The scientist counts the number of germs in this drop of water. He then multiplies the six by 1,000,000, since there are about 1,000,000 drops in the bottle, and his answer is that the fly carried 6,000,000 bacteria.

France Has Too Much Coal

Production Since Until There Is No Need To Import

France, desperately short of coal for ten years, and always an importer, now has too much of it. For the first time French production equals consumption and imported coal is threatening to break the market.

When the Germans flooded French coal mines in the north during the World War, France lost half of her fuel and it has been a long struggle to get back to normal. Not only was the pre-war figure of 40,000,000 tons annually reached, but last year it went up to 60,000,000 and the Saar Valley has added another 13,000,000 tons.

All European coal mines have been working hard since the war because British miners, the occupation of the Ruhr and the trouble in Upper Silesia created big shortages. Now that all are at work, Europe, according to French figures given to the League of Nations recently, has a surplus of 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 tons a year.

As all countries for generations have considered France as a big importer of coal, they all still try to capture the market there, ignoring the fact that France now mines all she burns. Therefore the French coal operators are puzzling how to reduce costs; curtail production; and restrict imports so coal won't become too cheap.

Railways Arrange New Circle Tour

Convenient Visit To Glacier, Waterton and Jasper Parks Is Made Possible

An arrangement has been completed by the Great Northern and Canadian National Railways to make available to tourists a circle tour of three of the greatest playgrounds in the world. Under it tourists will be able to visit Glacier National Park, Waterton Lakes Park and Jasper Park at a considerable reduction in cost.

The inter-change point between the two companies will be Belton where passengers for Jasper will take the Canadian National Railways and passengers for Glacier will take the Great Northern automobiles. The autos and the trains will make connections and summer tourist fares will apply in both cases. In the past it has only been possible for travellers to combine these places in one visit by making a round-about and expensive trip.

The Glacier and Waterton Parks the Great Northern Railway operates a number of splendid hotels, among which are The Prince of Wales Hotel, the Glacier Park Hotel, and the Many Glaciers Hotel. In Jasper, the Canadian National Railways operate Jasper Park Lodge, a unique and distinctive summer resort.

Develop National Consciousness

No Better Way Of Strengthening the Bonds Of Empire

Nearly a year ago Canadians indulged in the unusual pleasure of celebrating the natal day of the Dominion. Before that there had been civil wolves in celebration although the day, being a holiday, was utilized for purposes of recreation. It might have been supposed that there was a lack of national sentiment, but this was disproved by the tremendous popular response to the appeal for a fitting celebration of the sixtieth anniversary. Unity and devotion lent to the history of their country and found that it was rich in romance and instruction. A great volume of literature illustrated this truth and also revealed the wealth of our natural resources and the opportunities which lie before the rising generation.

What seemed to be indifferent or excuse-making in the past may be better described as nonchalance -- a habit of doing great things and making very little fuss about them as they were all in the day's work. The pioneers who showed such marvelous industry, courage and patience in carving homes and farms out of the forests of old Canada probably seldom thought of themselves as heroic. Hunting achieved so much with little guidance or help from the old governing classes. It was almost that doubt should be cast upon their capacity for self-government. - When that was conceded, the Canadians experienced that the instrument of government was imperfect and led to friction and finally to deadlock. But instead of being discouraged, Canadian statesmen proceeded to work out a new constitution for themselves, and the first result was the new Confederation whose birth we are again about to celebrate.

It would be disheartening to say that Canadians have exhibited a genius for self-government. Formidable geographical difficulties have been overcome. Racial and religious differences which might have led to conflict have been composed. Although there is now a prevailing spirit of co-operation, unity and goodwill in agriculture, commerce, mining, manufacturing, railroading, shipping, forestry, commerce and transportation, enterprise and energy have produced marvellous growth, and in education and other marks of civilization Canada takes a foremost place.

Canadian history and literature do not evaporate with the speeches and ceremonies of last year. It is not a firework that has merely fizzled and steadily growing. It is constructive, not destructive. Certain colonial conditions have passed, but one incapacity to realize the nature and strength of this sentiment. They seem to identify love of country with hatred of the Empire of which Canada is a part; as if a young man could not find in love of his mother without quarrelling with his mother.

In trying to discourage national consciousness and sentiment, certain persons are making a hopeless fight against forces as irresistible as those of physical nature. The young man who are young in heart and mind as well as those who are young in years are fascinated by the prospect of national growth. It may be for them a spring of inspiration, a mighty incentive, providing daily toil, firing the heart of the student and the worker with the consciousness that each one is building up the beautiful work will help to build up the nation.

Those who fear that national sentiment may conflict with Imperial sentiment should reflect that there is no better way of strengthening the Empire than to strengthen its various parts. A week or dissatisfied Canada would be a burden upon the Empire, as would a weak or distrustful Australia. The same is true of the United Kingdom itself. Like so-called domestic problems, such as those of employment and housing, are really Imperial problems. A poor man who was told that he lived in an Empire on which the sun never set, and that he lived in a place on which the sun never rose. Such problems Great Britain must solve her herself without any outside aid. No matter how strong man's Imperial sentiment may be, his life work for the most part is in his own country, in the government of which he shares.—London Advertiser.

Tobacco Quality Depends On Curing

Precautions Are Necessary To Produce Best Results

Tobacco, even of the best varieties, may be ever so well grown, but the value of the crop depends much on the manner in which it is cured. Not only must the tobacco plants be well harvested, but the crop must be carefully handled to avoid injury by bruising, and then it must be so placed in the curing house as to allow a good circulation of air through and among the leaves. These are among other precautions that are necessary to avoid too much sweating during what is termed the "yellowing" stage. The Tobacco Division of the Experimental Farms has issued a bulletin for the guidance of tobacco growers, especially beginners, giving hints on the handling of the crop, particularly after it reaches the curing barns. This bulletin which may be obtained from the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, gives advice as to what to do when the weather is exceptionally dry and also during long wet periods at the time of harvesting. Under the latter conditions it is recommended to raise the temperature of the barn to about 90 degrees by means of charcoal burners, oil burners, or open fires of some smokeless material. If more favorable weather conditions prevail, the barn be operated so as to avoid too rapid drying.

Continuous Wheat Growing

Growing Wheat Without Relation To Poor Practice

The growing of wheat continuously on the same land year after year is not necessarily a wrong or poor practice. To make a test of this system as compared with farming with a crop rotation, wheat was grown on two of the Experimental Farms in the Western Provinces continuously for many years without any application of any manure or fertilizers, on the same land for fifteen years at the Experimental Station, at Scott, Saskatchewan, the average yield during this period was 22.1 bushels to the acre, while at the Lethbridge, Alberta Station, it was 13.1 bushels. While fair yields have been obtained in favorable seasons by this system of cropping, dry seasons have resulted in failures. A very large reduction in continuous wheat growing is that weeds ultimately become so abundant that finally it becomes impossible to produce a profitable crop of wheat. Without a summer-fallow or an intertilled crop to give the opportunity for thorough cultivation, or without a hay crop in the rotation, the weeds steadily increase and smother out the grain. Furthermore, such a system makes no provision for distributing labor throughout the season, the rush coming all in the spring and fall months.

"Why, for, yes, marm," and the cook. "I understand all furrin' messes."

"Really!" cried the lady, whose delight knew no bounds. "What can you do?"

"Well, marm, I can cook French beans, German sausages, Brussels sprouts, Jerusalem artichokes, Spanish onions, Dutch cheese."

Bulbs That Have Bloomed

Tulips May Be Left in the Ground For Several Seasons

Tulips, daffodils and other flowering bulbs that are to be left in the ground year after year, should not be cleanly cut. Whether the blooms be to be cut for bouquet purposes or allowed to die on the stem, a few leaves should remain on the plant until the foliage has died down to a yellowed condition. The flowers or next year must come from new bulbs that are produced by the plant early in the season. If the tops or foliage are cut to the ground the bulbs do not form properly and will not bloom next season Bulletin No. 93, of the Department of Agriculture, At Ottawa, entitled "Some Flowering Bulbs," expresses the view that tulips may remain in the ground several years if the tops are not cut after the leaves mature. The practice may be followed for two or three years when the bulbs should be taken up and be planted out in the nursery row. The Experimental Farms Experimental Station the bulbs were taken up at any time from July 1 to September and stored in a dry, shielded from the direct rays of the sun, there they may be kept at least satisfactorily over winter. They have been be in good condition for planting out in October.

Chinese Commune To War Zone In Motor Cars

Generals in Chinese armies commute from home to work at the front in motor cars, and men in the ranks use trucks for the same purpose, according to George C. Magaffin, general manager of the Fraser-Federal, Inc., auto dealers in Trenton. Mr. Magaffan recently visited his factory in Detroit, after six years in China.

Truck sales in China are exceeding by far those of any other country, Mr. Magaffan says, but prospects for a true in hostilities within a few months are said to reverse the order. The absence of roads appears to make little difference in getting the war materiel or interfering with scheduled battles.

"At present," says Mr. Magaffan, "there are about 25 bus lines operating in China, over routes from 75 to 350 miles in length. They seldom compete with railroads and do not increase rapidly when the revolution is ended. Road building will start after the war lords disband and the armies. Practically all taxes go for military purposes now."

Reindeer Meat Being Transported In Alaska By Airplane.

Alaska has found a new use for aeroplanes and, at the same time, a profitable aid in its growing reindeer industry.

Regular transportation of reindeer meat by aeroplane, this small native village in Northern Alaska now being started by the Arctic Progress and Development Company of Fairbanks.

A company 'plane, the Arctic Prospector, was the first ever seen there and was the first to transport reindeer meat in Alaska. Ily a coincidence, Pilot C. P. Crawford also brought the first meat sold by the Shungnak Co-operative Company, recently organized with the assistance of the Alaska division of the United States bureau of education.

The natives were thrown into great excitement by their first sight of an aeroplane, but experienced their greatest surprise when the chief of the Koyukuk Indians, ancient sons of Nimrods from the upland regions, climbed from the plane for a friendly visit. For years the Eskimos and feared the Koyukuk tribe and as recently as two years ago maintained fierce fighting feuds on the headwaters of the Kobuk.

Much of the meat taken by 'plane from Shungnak will be sent to the Koyukuk district, 150 miles South, where the prospecting company operates mining camps. A fortnightly service is planned for the summer months.

Fire is Greatest Menace To Forest

If Timber Is Cut Nature Looks After Rest

There is an oft-expressed anxiety over the tremendous demands that newspapers and other periodicals are making upon the forests, lest in a short time the earth will be shorn of all its coniferous trees. But from such solicitude certain facts should give relief

With the plan of cutting, followed in the forests supplying pulp wood for newsprint, and the resultant natural reforestation these forests should live for all time. The transmutation into pulp and then to newsprint may go forward even beyond the present demands without impairment of the supply which nature with an amazing industry is continuously manufacturing day and night, through the seasons and through the years

So a tree suitable for newsprint may be said to serve its day and generation of human life and then in its own mortality make way for others of its kind that will serve in the next in like manner. There need be no enormous sum the great annual consumption of pulp wood if such a policy prevails as the governments of Ontario and Quebec, notably are following with regard to their forests

The real menace to the forests is fire. Each timber is destroyed by fire that is cut for the making of paper and probably for any other useful purpose. There is nothing more depressing in nature than great stretches of burned-over land filled with blackened skeletons of a once fine or the decadent growth that follows a fire. The great need, therefore, is to provide against forest fires and to their spread

An Amazing Treasure Hunt

Hundreds Of Prospectors Being Directed In Northwest By Jack Hammell

BACARDIE TRIO

Vermilion Fair, Aug. 2-3-4

In engaging its attractions this season, the management of the Vermilion Fair did not lose sight of the fact that the program should be of sufficient variety to satisfy the amusement appetites of all, and that the big crowds come for a holiday expect to be thrilled, want to laugh, and above all, forget any cares that may be resting too heavily upon them.

The list of features announced gives promise of accomplishing the purpose, as it is varied enough to satisfy the most discriminating audience. The numbers run the gamut from the clever tight rope walking by the Bacardie Trio to the breath-stopping feats of daring performed in the Lawsons aerial contortion, in which Jack Schaller, said to be the world's most reckless aerialist, is featured.

Though the broad comedy and standstill stunts of the Bacardie Trio have always been ample to garner all the laughs in sight, they are following their usual custom this season of adding still more sure-fire ideas. One of these is a funny table-rocking number, showing one of the boys swaying back and forth while sitting in a chair perched at the top of a stack of tables. Each swaying motion brings him closer to a fall, but each time he rights himself, much to the suspense, surprise and amusement of the crowd. This goes on for a few moments, until he finally sways a little too far, then down come tables, chair and funster in one grand crash to the stage. It is a skillful trick and one that no other similar act puts over so laughingly and smoothly as the Bacardie boy

First Aid In Cases Of Poisoning

As with many other emergencies in life, the treatment of a case of poisoning is largely a matter of common sense, of keeping one's head, and seeing that others do so too.

To send for a doctor is, of course, one of the first and most important steps to be taken in a case of poisoning. But a doctor may not be found at once, and meanwhile life may go. It need not do so in many cases if the person in charge knows what to do. It is not expected that all should know the antidote to every poison, but all should know the general principles involved.

If it is a case of attempted suicide, no bottle, half empty or full, should be thrown away. The name applied to vomited matter and anything else the doctor may want to see when he arrives. Do not leave the patient alone.

There are two general rules to follow: Get rid of the poison, administer the antidote. If the poison has been taken by mouth as it usually is, empty the stomach. Induce vomiting by tickling the throat or by giving an emetic of one tablespoonful of mustard to one-half pint of warm water or two tablespoonful of salt to the same quantity. When the stomach is empty give the antidote. Although most antidotes are peculiar to certain poisons, there are some so-called general antidotes. One of these that can be had at a moment's notice is albumin in the form of the white of an egg. Give two or three whites in a glass of warm milk. Another general antidote is soap which may be dissolved in four times its bulk of hot water, the patient being made to swallow the thick suds in large quantities.

Always remember that the patient may be on the verge of collapse and that the treatment must not be so severe as to exhaust him unnecessarily. He should be warmly covered, allowed to drink plenty of barley water and if throat and mouth are inflamed relief can be obtained by sucking flax gum.

Free booklets on first aid may be obtained from the Red Cross Society, 504 Tixle Block Edmonton Alta.

THE NEW COLORS

New names for various tints are found
Each week by salespersons drapers.
These often have a pleasant sound,
I read about them in the papers.
Such words are legion, and they seem,
And yet the cry is still they come.

From Mexico to far Cathay
Are drawn in sequence they are using
And random leaves me to say
I find this jargon most confusing
Who scarce have got upon the tracks
Of "nigger powder blue and mate"
Condition conditions of road and climate . . .
A lower car and a greater value because General
Motors uses so freely and unsparingly its unequalled facilities for testing and research . . .
With lower General Motors cars as the end of the journey, millions of miles is not too far to go.

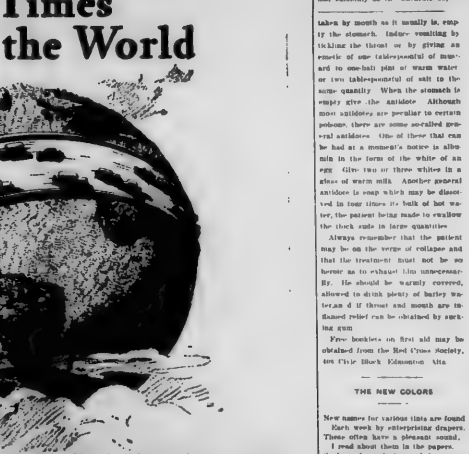
Now I sing of some fair maid.
Recounting all her beauties duly,
And telling of a sweet eye whose shade
I possibly set down as "coolie."
When they are really likely "ching"
Or "mekka"—quite a different thing;

If I describe her "indico" hair
In order to be in the fashion,
Purchasers I drive my love to tear
Her "Maya" locks in sudden passion.
Yet, are we learned this also stuff.
Auburn and blue were good enough

125 Times Around the World



IN pursuing its policy of consistent progress—in its constant search for new ideas . . . in its constant development of better cars . . . General Motors not only maintains its great International Research Laboratories and hundreds of skilled engineers, but also operates the first, largest and most completely equipped automobile proving ground in the world.

Here, on the vast fourteen-hundred-acre tract of the General Motors International Proving Ground, every type of road is duplicated, every condition of driving is reproduced. Here all makes of General Motors cars are constantly being subjected to the most searching tests. Here every principle developed by General Motors engineers is put to proof . . . every detail of each new car's performance carefully and closely checked. Here years of normal use are crowded into a few months of continuous, gruelling operation.

A typical example is offered by Chevrolet. Since the opening of the General Motors Proving Ground, Chevrolet cars alone have piled up over three million miles of testing . . . a distance equal to 125 times around the world.

In the countless millions of miles that General Motors cars have covered on the General Motors Proving Ground, there has been one great purpose kept in view . . . to improve, by constant testing, the quality and worth of every General Motors product.

Every Canadian buyer of a General Motors car gets a car built in Canada by Canadians to meet Canadian conditions of road and climate . . . a better car and a greater value because General Motors uses so freely and unsparingly its unequalled facilities for testing and research . . .

With better General Motors cars at the end of the journey, millions of miles is not too far to go.

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE NOTES.

The new dormitory is progressing favorably. Brickwork has commenced on the second storey and the building is daily taking form. It is expected that the laying of the cornerstone will be the main item on the program at the annual summer reunion to be held on Tuesday, August 7th.

During the latter part of July and the first week in August several excursions to the school have been planned by U.F.A. locals and Boards of Trade in neighboring towns. It is expected that a large number of people will visit the school at this time, when the grounds and plots are at their best.

Principal Elliott left recently for Hamilton, Ont. where he will make a short visit.

August 9th to 16th is the date set for the annual Short Course given to the boy and girl in each school fair centre who received the highest number of points at their 1927 Fair. During this week some 50 to 60 young people will gather at the school for a full program of instruction and recreation. Every preparation has been made to ensure that the week will be long remembered by those who unfortunate enough to attend. During their stay in Vermilion these young people will take up their quarters in the main building of the school where they will be provided for and entertained by members of the staff

Principal Elliott, J. F. Andrew, B.C. Heckbert and W. G. Mainher were in attendance at the Co-operative Institute held in Edmonton last week

Miss F. Edwards is spending her vacation at her home in Calgary

Amongst those who spoke at the Weed Conference, held at the school Tuesday and Wednesday of this week were W. J. Stephen, Field Crops Commissioner; L. A. Parry, Weed Inspector City of Edmonton; A. T. Kemp, Assistant Agronomist, Olds School of Agriculture, J. F. Andrew, Farm Manager, and J. H. Bower. On Tuesday evening Mr. A. W. Foley showed a series of very excellent moving pictures in those assembled. These pictures, which were shown at Wembley Exhibition, portrayed every industry carried on in the province, with especial reference to farming, sugar beet raising, lumbering, mining and bituminous coal. This is the first evidence of its kind to be held at the school and though the attendance was disappointing, another year it is hoped that more will take advantage of this opportunity to discuss with experts the weed problems which confront them on the farm.

W. G. Mainher is leaving this week for a vacation at Banff, Lethbridge and Winnipeg

The annual Summer Re-Union will be held at the school on Tuesday, August 7th. This promises to be the most successful re-union ever held at the school. A large number of executive plan on gathering to renew acquaintances and to witness the laying of the corner stone in the new building. A full program is being planned for the day by the Alumni Association of the School

RIGHT KIND FOR WEST.

At a reception extended to Bishop Gray during the synod of the Anglican diocese of Edmonton in the capital city, his worship Mayor Dury, who proposed the toast to "the bishop," concluded with the following words:

"The bishop is a force for the church in the west, because he is the sort of a bishop that the west wants. We want no theological or political bishops here. The theological kind are only old women and the average man in the street has no time for theology. It may have been that the bishop learned human nature when he was punching cows, but he learned to know men and boys then, and he can meet them as man to man now. He has been over the same route road and he sets high the ideals of the church and the gospel."

Many will say "Amen" to the sentiments expressed.

COME TO THE FAIR

There is one spot at the Edmonton Exhibition, July 16th to 21st, which will be the rendezvous of the many radio friends of the Red Cross Society who have formed the listeners-in over C.K.U.A. the Journal Broadcasting Station — it will be the Radio Lady's booth in the Manufacturers' Building. Here the Red Cross Health literature exhibit will be staged, with models showing the departments of Red Cross service. The Radio Lady will be in attendance each day to greet the many mothers who have listened in during the past season. Teachers will also find the Red Cross Exhibit of interest, showing the various types of Junior Red Cross work, and it is expected that hundreds of young children will find their way to their Junior Red Cross Booth. A cordial invitation is extended to all visitors to call at the Manufacturers' Building, where the Red Cross will be found at the well known sign "STILL SERVING."

There are Two Sides to this Story
MOST people think of their Chevrolet dealer as a NEW CAR dealer . . . partly because of the large number of new Chevrolets which they see on the streets. But, while new car sales are the Chevrolet dealer's biggest concern for being in business, they form only one side of his activities. He must not only sell cars but he must also exchange them.
Every good, successful Chevrolet dealer must also be a good, successful Used Car dealer.
From his experience in selling Chevrolet cars, he knows manufacturer values . . . He knows that it is just as important for him to sell a Used Car as a new car . . . He knows that Used Car buyers have a right to as much for their dollar and are entitled to as complete satisfaction as new car buyers . . . He knows that satisfied Used Car owners will eventually become prospects for new cars . . . He knows the value of good will . . .
In short, our business as Chevrolet dealers depends on our reputation as used car dealers. That is why you are sure of a square deal and a sound dollar-for-dollar value, when you buy a used car here.

Tourist Traffic Helps People Of United States To Become Better Acquainted With Canada

Figures recently issued by the merce indicate that American tourists United States Department of Com- to Canada last year spent four dol- lars for every dollar spent by Cana- dian visitors to the United States. The respective amounts were $206,- 000 000 and $51,000 000. From a per capita standpoint the comparison ap- pears altogether different with Cana- dians spending $5.30 in the United States for every head of the Domin- ion's population against $1.78 spent in Canada for each person in the United States.

However that is aside from the point that Canada officially welcomes the tourists and derives that rich and every one shall have a most pleasant and enjoyable holiday with- in the Dominion's borders, and that they shall go home with pleasant recollections in this latter connec- tion the Natural Resources Section of the end of the tourist season last year reported that its correspondence showed that the visitors were free to express their satisfaction and pleased with Canadian hospitality Allowances were willingly made for roads under re- pair the Dominion of 55 per thousand living births against 109 per thou- sand in the December previous

Quebec among the provinces, had the highest infantile mortality rate for last December, namely 112 1 per thousand; Ontario the lowest with 63 6. Alberta showed the biggest rate of improvement. In December 1926, the Alberta rate was 113.2; last December it was 64 6

Saskatchewan Is the Healthiest Province

Has Lowest Annual Death Rate According To Statistics

Saskatchewan is the healthiest province in the Dominion, if the death rate is any criterion, says a despatch from Ottawa. Returns is- sued by the bureau of statistics give Saskatchewan an annual death rate per thousand population of 6.9, the rate being based on deaths last De- cember

Quebec has the highest death rate with 12.8 New Brunswick comes in close second with 12.3

The rate for Western provinces, with comparisons for 1926, is given

Province	1927	1926
Manitoba	7 6	7 8
Saskatchewan	6 9	8 0
Alberta	8.1	9 3
British Columbia	10 1	12 6
Dominion	10.7	11 5

Infantile mortality continues to take its toll, although the figures are improving Returns for last Decem- ber give an infantile mortality rate for the Dominion of 85 per thousand living births against 109 per thou- sand in the December previous

Lived On Strange Food

Rare Small in British Museum Evidently Ate Glue

The entire force of the British Mu- seum knocked off work recently and devoted itself to searching for one of the rarest snails in its collection, which disappeared suddenly and in- explicably after having remained sedately glued to a piece of card- board for over a year.

After a frantic search, the gastro- pod was discovered admiring the ex- hibits in a far distant wing of the museum The assembled savants put their brains together on the pro- blem, and decided that during his blameless and sedentary existence of two decades, M. Escargot had lived on the glue which held his apparent- ly inert carcase to the cardboard on which he was mounted. The glue fin- ished, there was nothing to keep him at home, either from an alimentary or adhesive point of view, so he went.

The wandering mollusc has been returned to his position, where he is secured this time by enough glue to keep him in food for at least another century.

How Ploughing Has Improved

Method Of Two Hundred Years Ago Was Very Crude

The moldboard plough of 200 years ago required three men and four to six oxen to turn a narrow furrow in stubble, and, as a result of the high friction of the rough wooden mold- board. This type of plough was the most advanced model of the time, and an improvement over the com- mon crooked stick with an iron point in use with rawhide.

In those days, three men ploughed from one to two acres per day with a tremendous amount of physical la- bor. Today, one man sits on a com- fortable tractor seat and ploughs 10 acres easily with a five-share gang plough in the same number of hours and 17 or 18 acres with a modern five-bottom plough.

The man who in 1922 operates a three-bottom plough with a tractor will go-and-turn stitch accurately for 30 times as much as his ancestor did in Colonial days with his oxen and crooked plough. While the latter's crooked furrow of pioneer times was crude indeed compared with the smooth turned earth from the shiny surface of a modern moldboard.

Moscow Has Glass Houses

New Type Of Architecture Becoming Popular In Russia

If new school of Russian architects has its way, the Soviet Union in time will be a place where people literally live in glass houses. Already the work and de business in a number of new buildings in which glass is the predominant material, with a mere framework of steel and concrete to hold the transparent walls together.

Not among the shabby ornate houses of old Moscow these struc- tures in the transparent area is lar- ger than the square. One wonders how these houses, which are all win- dow and no wall, would fare in the event of excitement, such as the cit- izens were in 1917, if well-aimed bricks would leave them in ruins.

The new houses are simplified to the point where they seem built on a child's toy blocks, with wide ribs- bons of glass all round. Straight lines prevail, while the corners are full circles, without any of the decorations and ellipses of the older structures. They seem to be the most extreme—perhaps deliberately so—of the clustered church architec- ture with their spirals and onion- shaped domes characteristic of old Russia.

Reverted To Law

A clergyman who had given up his former position as a magistrate in order to enter the ministry, was con- ducting his first marriage service.

"Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband" he asked the bride

The bride answered eagerly: "I will."

"And you," he continued, address- ing the bridegroom, "what have you to say in your defense?".

National Museum Of Canada Planning Extensive Research Throughout West This Season

USE RADIO FOR PROSPECTING

Radiore System Now Used in Canada Is Not New

Radio has gone prospecting and the past has demonstrated that where radio goes the old order van- ishes. Up in Canada's nickel country, north of Sudbury, Ontario, one may hear the cry "Line!" From out the distance comes the answer "O.K." There is silence for a minute or so. Then come two short blasts on a whistle and the answer "Ok." It is not a traffic cop on vacation practic- ing his calls as he yearns for his busy corner. It is not mere strange national unknown to zoologists. It is the lone wail whistling around the base of some steep cliff. It is the scientific prospector plying his voca- tion.

The equipment consists of a trans- mitter, a big tripod loop with water levelers for working on uneven sur- faces, and a receiver. It is operated by a crew of four men. The trans- mitter is set up on the property and the receiver is taken from place to place. It is pointed at loop and the signals received are checked to zero. The short "line" is to tell the oper- ator at the receiver where to focus on the loop. The "O.K." and two whistles are a check report. When these are received the transmitter is turned on. It works on a wave of about 3,000 meters. The signal is picked up through electrical conduc- tivity underground. Electrical con- phide-bearing ore deposits, which re- radiate the signal to the receiver.

The angle of the plane of the loop and the receiver is moved to another angle. These angles constantly grow smaller and smaller in size. When this point is reached, the receiver operator checks his location by cross- ing on it from the four directions in question. If zero is again proved, the lo- cation is over a sulphide bearing de- posit. The whole job is investi- tained by signal intensity. Should a number of zero spots be located at different places on the property and no angles are shown on the trans- mit, it is due to the fact that there is no electrical conductor under- ground to radiate the signal.

This method of prospecting is called the radiore system. It has been used with success in Arizona, and throughout the Southwest for several years. Canada adopted it last summer and it has been em- ployed extensively and successfully on the Kenya district of Quebec. The apparatus does not give the nature of the ore body located and whether or not it is of commercial value must be proved by drilling.

Increased Employment

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics tabulated reports from 6,504 firms which reported a net increase in employment on May 1st, the payrolls being increased by 0.61% persons to 852,847. The number also showed a gain of over four points at 105.5 compared with 101.1 on April 1st, and 100.8 on April 1st last year.

Prehistoric Indian Pictographs In B.C. Are Valuable Relics

Prehistoric Indian pictographs painted in red on Six-Mile Bluff, near Scamoos, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, have been photographed by Harlan A. Some appear to represent men, one a canoe, with upright lines probably representing other men, and others are difficult of interpretation.

These strange pictures are easily seen from the west side of Lake Mara and at present are undefaced. It is urged by Mr. Smith that they should be placed under the B.C. Pro- vincial Act that protects such anti- quities from vandalism.

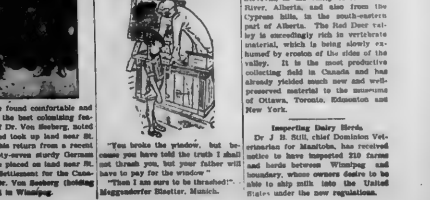
NEW SETTLERS FOR SASKATCHEWAN



The enthusiasm of European settlers who have found comfortable and profitable conditions in Canada, has proved one of the best colonizing fea- tures of the Dominion A recent example is that of Dr. Von Sneberg, noted German, who came to Canada several years ago and took up land near St. Walburg, Sask. His experience was such that on his return from a recent visit to Germany, he brought back with him twenty-seven sturdy German agriculturists of long experience. All of these were placed on land near St. Walburg, by F J. Freer, Superintendent of Land Settlement for the Canadian National Railways The photograph shows Dr. Von Sneberg (holding boy's hand) and some of his party on their arrival in Winnipeg.

Gopher Bloodstone Bands

By means of actual tests in road construction it has been definitely established that the bituminous sands of northern Alberta can be successfully employed for paving purposes. As the present supply of basic road building materials is limited, their presence and use appear to have solved the problem of perma- nent, low-cost road construction in the western provinces.

Tourist Traffic Helps People Of United States To Become Better Acquainted With Canada

Figures recently issued by the merce indicate that American tourists United States Department of Com- to Canada last year spent four dol- lars for every dollar spent by Cana- dian visitors to the United States. The respective amounts were $206,- 000 000 and $51,000 000. From a per capita standpoint the comparison ap- pears altogether different with Cana- dians spending $5.30 in the United States for every head of the Domin- ion's population against $1.78 spent in Canada for each person in the United States

However that is aside from the point that Canada officially welcomes the tourists and derives that rich and every one shall have a most pleasant and enjoyable holiday with- in the Dominion's borders, and that they shall go home with pleasant recollections in this latter connec- tion the Natural Resources Section of the end of the tourist season last year reported that its correspondence showed that the visitors were free to express their satisfaction and pleased with Canadian hospitality Allowances were willingly made for roads under re- pair the Dominion of 55 per thousand living births against 109 per thou- sand in the December previous

Quebec among the provinces, had the highest infantile mortality rate for last December, namely 112 1 per thousand; Ontario the lowest with 63 6. Alberta showed the biggest rate of improvement. In December 1926, the Alberta rate was 113.2; last December it was 64 6

Has Lowest Annual Death Rate According To Statistics

Saskatchewan is the healthiest province in the Dominion, if the death rate is any criterion, says a despatch from Ottawa. Returns is- sued by the bureau of statistics give Saskatchewan an annual death rate per thousand population of 6.9, the rate being based on deaths last De- cember

Quebec has the highest death rate with 12.8 New Brunswick comes in close second with 12.3

The rate for Western provinces, with comparisons for 1926, is given

Province	1927	1926
Manitoba	7 6	7 8
Saskatchewan	6 9	8 0
Alberta	8.1	9 3
British Columbia	10 1	12 6
Dominion	10.7	11 5

Infantile mortality continues to take its toll, although the figures are improving Returns for last Decem- ber give an infantile mortality rate for the Dominion of 85 per thousand living births against 109 per thou- sand in the December previous

Moscow Has Glass Houses

New Type Of Architecture Becoming Popular In Russia

If new school of Russian architects has its way, the Soviet Union in time will be a place where people literally live in glass houses. Already the work and de business in a number of new buildings in which glass is the predominant material, with a mere framework of steel and concrete to hold the transparent walls together.

Not among the shabby ornate houses of old Moscow these struc- tures in the transparent area is lar- ger than the square. One wonders how these houses, which are all win- dow and no wall, would fare in the event of excitement, such as the cit- izens were in 1917, if well-aimed bricks would leave them in ruins.

The new houses are simplified to the point where they seem built on a child's toy blocks, with wide rib- bons of glass all round. Straight lines prevail, while the corners are full circles, without any of the decorations and ellipses of the older structures. They seem to be the most extreme—perhaps deliberately so—of the clustered church architec- ture with their spirals and onion- shaped domes characteristic of old Russia.

URGE WHOLESALE SOCIETY TO COVER ALL OF CANADA

Lloydminster, Sask.—By a unani- mous vote the congress of the Co- operative Union of Canada in ses- sion here, went on record as being of the opinion that the time had ar- rived for the establishment of a wholesale society covering the whole of Canada. This is set out in a resolution passed which further urged co-operative wholesale societ- ies to attach an official to their Mon- treal and Winnipeg depots who will assist in the development of the movement in Canada.

Another resolution was approved, providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate the prac- ticability from the view point of economics, of a Canada-wide whole- sale society, an organization for which three prairie provinces only, as well as other factors having a direct bearing on the whole question of co- operative co-operation.

All co-operative marketing organ- izations throughout the Dominion will be issued a definite invitation to affiliate with the Co-operative Union of Canada. The importance of hav- ing the Wheat Pools affiliated with the Union was especially emphasized.

While the desirability of having all co-operative organizations linked up was stressed by different speak- ers on the subject, it also developed that the Canadian Labor Party was not considered to be a part of the affiliated bodies would help to solve the financial difficulties of the central organ.

The resolution as passed follows:

"That the appeal be made to the societies that they take action here in order to increase the efficiency of the Union, and that the various co-oper- ative marketing organizations be so- vited to affiliate with the Union."

One delegate put a motion suggest- ing that the fee of $50 per annum be placed at one cent per member. This motion however, was never put. One Communist delegate suggested the U.F.C., contended that it ap- peared that the invitation to the pools to affiliate was for the purpose pur- pose of financing the Union.

The only co-operative organization now holding membership in the Union is the United Grain Growers. It was stated by Secretary George Keen as a result of a question asked by J. H. Wesson, a director of Sas- katchewan Wheat Pool, Mr. Wesson in reply to a question asked, said he did not think that the fact that the U.G.G. had membership in the Union could be considered an obstacle to the Pools becoming affiliated. He did not, however, give any indication that the pools would join.

A resolution asking enactment of legislation providing administrative machinery to insure furnishing an- nually, financial and industrial sta- tics of co-operative societies in their respective provinces was approved by the congress.

World's Dairy Congress Opens

Forty-Five Countries Represented At Conference In London

London. — Sixteen hundred dele- gates, representing 45 countries, as- sembled in the Queen Hall for the World's Dairy Congress under the auspices of the International Federation, whose patron is the King.

Lord Desborough, president of the British Imperial Council of Com- merce, presided. Hon. W. R. Mother- well, Canadian Minister of Agricul- ture, is representing the Dominion, while the delegates also include Lord Lascelles.

The program is twofold, comprie- ing presentation of technical and scientific papers, etc., and the visits to the dairying centres of England and Scotland.

Viewworms Damage Saskatchewan Crops

Report Shows Activity Was Unusual- ly Severe This Spring

Regina. — The greatest damage done to Saskatchewan crops this year is by viewworms, according to a recently issued report of the Do- minion Entomological Laboratory, Saskatoon, on insect conditions. Much of the damage attributed to cut- worms is in reality due to view- worms, it is stated. "Viewworm damage appears to have been un- usually severe this spring due to the prevailing dry weather, the use of much unsuitable seed grain and the fact that moisture was sufficient- high to enable the viewworms to keep working on much of the seed and parasitic the lower part of the stem," says the report. "A certain de- gree of recovery has been noted as a result of the recent rains, which, however, may tend to lengthen the period of viewworm activity." The true cutworm, or granulated cutworm, is not abundant in Western Saskatch- ewan.

Wrong Man Executed

Tragic Miscarriage Of Justice Re- ported From Germany

Was Very Crude

The moldboard plough of 200 years ago required three men and four to six oxen to turn a narrow furrow in stubble, and, as a result of the high friction of the rough wooden mold- board. This type of plough was the most advanced model of the time, and an improvement over the com- mon crooked stick with an iron point in use with rawhide.

In those days, three men ploughed from one to two acres per day with a tremendous amount of physical la- bor. Today, one man sits on a com- fortable tractor seat and ploughs 10 acres easily with a five-share gang plough in the same number of hours and 17 or 18 acres with a modern five-bottom plough.

The man who in 1922 operates a three-bottom plough with a tractor will go-and-turn stitch accurately for 30 times as much as his ancestor did in Colonial days with his oxen and crooked plough. While the latter's crooked furrow of pioneer times was crude indeed compared with the smooth turned earth from the shiny surface of a modern moldboard.

Increased Employment

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics tabulated reports from 6,504 firms which reported a net increase in employment on May 1st, the payrolls being increased by 0.61% persons to 852,847. The number also showed a gain of over four points at 105.5 compared with 101.1 on April 1st, and 100.8 on April 1st last year.

Should Be Preserved

Prehistoric Indian Pictographs In B.C. Are Valuable Relics

Prehistoric Indian pictographs painted in red on Six-Mile Bluff, near Scamoos, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, have been photographed by Harlan A. Smith, archeologist of the National Museum of Canada at Ottawa. Some appear to represent men, one a canoe, with upright lines probably representing other men, and others are difficult of interpretation.

These strange pictures are easily seen from the west side of Lake Mara and at present are undefaced. It is urged by Mr. Smith that they should be placed under the B.C. Pro- vincial Act that protects such anti- quities from vandalism.

Lord Plumer Vacating Post In Palestine

Has Held Position As Commissioner For Three Years

London. — Field Marshal Lord Plumer will shortly vacate the high commissionship of Palestine, which he has held since 1925. The Daily Express, in an article from its Jeru- salem correspondent, says that the retirement will be brought about by Lord Plumer's differences with the British colonial office over the divi- sion of the cost of the Trans-Jor- dania force as between the British Exchequer and Palestine. Palestine having already a budget deficiency of $5,000,000.

Lord Plumer commanded the sec- ond Army during some of the most important operations of the Belgian front in the war, in some of which the Canadian forces took part. He was specially mentioned for good work in connection with railway and forestry institutions. Lord Plumer, who is 71 years old, as a matter of fact, had Canadians constantly with him during the war and has also command- ed men from the Dominions in the South African war.

Imitation Strike At Antwerp Made Real

Dock Workers Turned Joke Into Real Thing

Antwerp, Belgium. -An imitation strike turned out to be a real one with 11,000 dock workers idling on the work in the harbor of Antwerp and refusing to listen to the pleas of the employers to return to their job. The affair started out as a joke.

Two Communists bicycled around the harbor, telling the surprised dockers that the union had declared a strike to get a raise of 10 francs (40 cents a day. The union officials immediately decided to make the strike a real thing.

Assailants Use Machine Gun Method To Finish Foe, Leader

Chicago. — "Big Tim" Murphy, Chicago labor leader, was shot and killed at his home at 2543 Morse Avenue, in the exclusive Rogers Park district, by assailants who at- tacked him with machine guns

An automobile parked on a side street a few hundred yards away threw its glare of lamps on the labor leader as he stepped from the base- ment doorway, his silhouette reflect- ed by the basement lights

In response to a call, "Who is there" Big Tim was answered by the rat-a-tat-tat of machine gun

He fell into the area-way, his brother-in-law grabbing his body and dragging it into the bungalow dining room

Mrs. Murphy returned home as the brother-in-law, Harry Dilger, brought her husband's body into the room The former state representative and labor leader apparently was in the direct line of fire from the machine guns, as Diggs escaped injury Diggs said he saw four or five men in a big automobile."

A neighbor said he at first thought the firing was some kind of a fire- cracker Fourth of July celebration until he learned that Big Tim was shot

INFLUENCE OF WHEAT POOL ON WORLD MARKETS

Edmonton.—Tales of the success of producer co-operative livestock as- sociations in the United States are unfolded before the Institute of Co- operation here by C. H. Handell, of the United States Department of Agriculture's division of co-operative marketing, Washington

Bigger and better livestock co- operation" was the topic of Mr. Han- dell. He outlined the progress of farmer co-operatives in the republic, stating that their turnover last year exceeded two and a half millions

Mr Handell gave as the reasons for success, grade pools to new stand- ards of efficiency on the part of co- operatives: capable and efficient managers and employees; able and working board of directors; well in- formed active and supporting mem- bership, proper financing and facili- ties for doing business; volume of business sufficient for economic op- eration working programs, enhanc- ing perhaps a research department.

The greater control of our pro- duct, the greater control of our price was the axiom laid down by George Mc Lean general manager of the Canadian Wheat Pools, in an address on Functions of a "central selling agency" He expressed the belief that every farmer in the West a pool member and was of the opinion that if the pool controlled 75 per cent of the Canadian wheat crop or more, has 75 per cent it would practically be able to control the mar- ket. He gave having regard to world markets

It remarked that the total of who'd traded upon the world mar- kets was unknown bushels and when the Canadian pools had con- trolled 75 bushels it could be read- ily seen what influence it already has on the world market

Some problems of management were dealt with by E B Ramsey, of Winnipeg manager of the Canadian Wheat Pool

There is no trick of management that can make up for a badly in- formed and dissatisfied membership, said Mr Ramsey He added, that when a commercial concern rails, it was soon forgotten, while every co-operative that failed struck a blow at world co-operation.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY OPPOSES LARGE PENSION

London -The customary pension of $20,000 annually for retired speak- ers of the House of Commons was attached to the House by the Labor Party, when Premier Stanley Bald- win moved a resolution granting the annuity to Rt. Hon. J. H. Whitley

The official Labor Party amend- ment moved by Rt. Hon. J. R. Clynes would have made the pension $5,000 but it was defeated by a vote of 421 against 103.

The resolution favoring the cus- tomary pension was then passed.

Mr Clynes emphasized that the Labor amendment was not any at- tempt to minimize the value of Hon. Whitley's services as a speaker. He declared there existed a real case for revision of the emoluments attached to the speakership, in view of the increased duties in connection with the office. He proposed, however, that the pension of $20,000 was un- justifiable.

Rt Hon Ian MacPherson on be- half of the Liberals supported the amount of the pension which he con- sidered might be regarded as "de- ferred salary".

After a few speeches by Labor members the premier intervened and appealed for an early decision with- out further discussion. He fully ac- cepted the fact that reduction was moved on principle, but pointed out that the time for the premier, was absolutely debarred from enter- ing any business or seeking his own profit.

The value of the pension today was much smaller than formerly be- cause

Jack Jones, Labor member from Silvertown promptly offered to re- tire on pension of even $5000 im- mediately

Working For Disarmament

League Of Nations Has Made No Progress This Year

Geneva.—A last effort to accom- plish something tangible toward dis- armament by the League of Na- tions' annual assembly convenes in September has been begun by the League's security and arbitration committee

No secret was made of the com- mittee's belief that 1928, which was to be a banner year in disarmament accomplishment, has developed noth- ing to date.

The committee hoped to draft model security treaties for submis- sion to the assembly as a basis for eventual disarmament treaties.

It had been admitted that a group of 15 nations will not disarm themselves until such security treat- ies have been effected guaranteeing them against possibility of attack.

As a result six model treaties of various sorts were drafted. The committee will ask for present hopes to draft model treaties in their final form and submit them to the League for approval and action.

Again in the open air we boarded a launch en route to the S.S. Minnedosa, where we were due to have as guests of the Port, under the chairmanship of Lord Ritchie of Dundee. The novelty of luncheon on this beautiful ship, surrounded by great liners from almost every country in the world made a deep impression. This was followed by a delightful trip back to London.

In the evening we were the guests of the Empire Marketing Board at dinner in the Hyde Park Hotel and had an opportunity of learning at first hand of the valuable work being done by this organization to encourage the consumption of empire products produced within the Empire. The sum of five million dollars per year has been placed at its disposal by Parliament to further the marketing of Empire products. The Board is a non-party body and includes representatives of the Dominions and Colonies. Agricultural research is also an important phase of its work. The chairman, on the occasion of our visit, was Lord Lovat the Under-Secretary of States for the Dominions, who told us something of the work of the Board, which was further explained by Sir Halford Mackinder, chairman of the Imperial Economic Committee.

The next day's programme provided one of the most interesting mornings of our stay in London. This was a visit to the Tower, a grim fortress which we entered with mixed feelings, for here and on Tower Hill perished some of the most renowned men and women of their day. Here the beautiful Anne Boleyn was beheaded, and here Lady Jane Grey saw the headless body of her husband, Lord Guilford Dudley, carried past her on the morning when she knew that she was to die. Sir Thomas More, Archbishop Cranmer, Sir Walter Raleigh and the Princess Elizabeth met their tragic fate, and though these things happened in the days gone by one feels the Tower to be sinister still. Even in our own time was it not chosen as the place in which the spies in the Great War should meet their doom?

We were admitted by Yeomen of the Guard "Beefeaters" who still wear the quaint uniform which was adopted at the time of Henry VII. Our guide showed the bloody Tower where the bones of the two murdered Princes were found and the room, reconstructed in which Sir Walter Raleigh, when a prisoner wrote his History of the World.

In the White Tower we saw the chamber in which Guy Fawkes and his fellow-conspirators were tortured in 1605. Here too were the spartments so cunningly known Elizabeth when she herself was a prisoner in the Tower. We saw the block and executioner's axe one of which has a nick in the blade where it struck the neck of a victim. And then, how close to our Canadian hearts it came, we saw the room on which Wolfe died on the Heights of Abraham.

Many quaint forms are still retained in the administration of the Tower. The gates are shut at night to the accompaniment of ancient ceremonial and after midnight no one may enter the precincts without giving the password.

In one of the strong rooms of the Tower there repose the Crown Jewels, including the crowns of King George and Queen Mary, a display of treasure which amazed us all.

The Tower of London was built by William the Conqueror, and it is said that the site on which it stands was selected by Julius Caesar as a location for a fortress. One of the most interesting features of the Tower is the portcullis, said to be the oldest one in existence in working order.

On our way to the Tower we stopped at St. Paul's Cathedral, Sir Christopher Wren's masterpiece, but, owing to the trooping operations on the piers which support the dome, it was not possible to see its interior to advantage, most of it being boarded up and inaccessible. Thus, we did not see the crypt or enter the Whispering Gallery.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

New experiences awaited us the following day when as guests of the Port of London Authority, we were taken to see something of what London's handling facilities are. It was not possible to see more than a small part, for the Port of London, in one year, handles merchandise to the value of hundreds of millions of pounds sterling. For example, the imports and exports passed through the port in 1926 totalled in value $2,340,000,000 and included 42,000,000 bushels of wheat. In the same year 50,000,000 tons net register of shipping entered and left the port. Sailing through one set of docks, or rooms, ten acres in extent, we visited the Ivory Room where we were astounded to see a perfect specimen of pre-historic mammoth tusks 11 feet long, weighing 150 pounds, and having an estimated age of 50,000 years. In the State Room $25,000,000 worth of paper was stored, and an interesting item was a 28 lb. weight floating in a bath of mercury. The Wool Room which contained a number of bales of Canadian wool stores in a single year nearly 2,000,000 bales.

Another interesting warehouse was the Iodine Room, holding 25,000 small tins of bonzi kegs of iodine, every one worth $500. The hide covering is for security sake of the rotting effect of iodine which destroys the hides, keeps in a comparatively short space of time.

The last thing of the day came when we explored a portion of the Port's wine vaults. Before descending to the cellars we were handed oil torches fastened to the end of sticks. Torches such as these have been used for 120 years. The temperature of the vaults never varies from 60 degrees, yet the only means of heating it are immense candle lights and the amount of sawdust on the floor. Pegs produced on the roof of the cellars by the fumes of wine is a curious characteristic. In the brandy vaults this fungus is absent. Twenty-two thousand pipes of wine, each worth $500 can be accommodated in these vaults which have twenty-eight miles of metal runways apart from the vast stores of spirits contained in other vaults not included in the day's itinerary.

Again in the open air we boarded a launch en route to the S.S. Minnedosa, where we were due to have as guests of the Port, under the chairmanship of Lord Ritchie of Dundee. The novelty of luncheon on this beautiful ship, surrounded by great liners from almost every country in the world made a deep impression. This was followed by a delightful trip back to London.

In the evening we were the guests of the Empire Marketing Board at dinner in the Hyde Park Hotel and had an opportunity of learning at first hand of the valuable work being done by this organization to encourage the consumption of empire products produced within the Empire. The sum of five million dollars per year has been placed at its disposal by Parliament to further the marketing of Empire products. The Board is a non-party body and includes representatives of the Dominions and Colonies. Agricultural research is also an important phase of its work. The chairman, on the occasion of our visit was Lord Lovat the Under-Secretary of States for the Dominions, who told us something of the work of the Board, which was further explained by Sir Halford Mackinder, chairman of the Imperial Economic Committee.

The next day's programme provided one of the most interesting mornings of our stay in London. This was a visit to the Tower, a grim fortress which we entered with mixed feelings, for here and on Tower Hill perished some of the most renowned men and women of their day. Here the beautiful Anne Boleyn was beheaded, and here Lady Jane Grey saw the headless body of her husband, Lord Guilford Dudley, carried past her on the morning when she knew that she was to die. Sir Thomas More, Archbishop Cranmer, Sir Walter Raleigh and the Princess met their tragic fate, and though these things happened in the days gone by one feels the Tower to be sinister still. Even in our own time was it not chosen as the place in which the spies in the Great War should meet their doom?

We were admitted by Yeomen of the Guard "Beefeaters" who still wear the quaint uniform which was adopted at the time of Henry VII. Our guide showed the bloody Tower where the bones of the two murdered Princes were found and the room, reconstructed, in which Sir Walter Raleigh, when a prisoner wrote his History of the World.

In the White Tower we saw the chamber in which Guy Fawkes and his fellow-conspirators were tortured in 1605. Here too were the apartments so cunningly known Elizabeth when she herself was a prisoner in the Tower. We saw the block and executioner's axe one of which has a nick in the blade where it struck the neck of a victim. And then, how close to our Canadian hearts it came, we saw the room on which Wolfe died on the Heights of Abraham.

Many quaint forms are still retained in the administration of the Tower. The gates are shut at night to the accompaniment of ancient ceremonial and after midnight no one may enter the precincts without giving the password.

In one of the strong rooms of the Tower there repose the Crown Jewels, including the crowns of King George and Queen Mary, a display of treasure which amazed us all.

The Tower of London was built by William the Conqueror, and it is said that the site on which it stands was selected by Julius Caesar as a location for a fortress. One of the most interesting features of the Tow-

STALW LET HERBIEDANS

Three stalwart crofters, all over six feet in height, who left the Hebrides where they "scratch a bare living by tending sheep," to settle in Ontario. They reached Canada last week in high spirits. The picture shows some cabin boys comparing their stature with the settlers aboard the liner Letitia, on which the Hebrideans arrived in Canada.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

FRIZZLED BEEF FOR HOT DAYS

Melt butter in frying pan, add dried beef, and stir until it browns, and curls. Add more butter for cream sauce. Add flour and stir until well blended. Add milk gradually until desired consistency is obtained. Stir to avoid lumps.

Use the proportion of 2 tablespoons of flour to 1 cup of milk. If the dried beef is too salty, soak for 10 or 25 minutes in cold water; drain thoroughly and dry by putting between folds of clean dry cloth. Have dry before adding to melted butter. Serve on toast if you wish.

ORANGE AND RHUBARB SAUCE

2 pounds rhubarb.
6 oranges.
1½ cups sugar.
1 tablespoon granulated gelatine.
1 tablespoon cold water.

Wash rhubarb, cut into inch pieces; peel oranges, removing membrane with peel, and cut in small pieces; put rhubarb, oranges, and sugar in an earthenware or glass baking-dish, and bake about one hour. Dissolve gelatine in cold water, add to rhubarb mixture, and when cool, serve. Or add and combine with whipped cream, forced through pastry bag and rose tube.

Come From Many Lands

Common Vegetables Were Not Used Few Centuries Ago

Vegetables did not form part of a meal a few centuries ago, as they do today. In those days the dishes consisted mainly of flesh, fish or fowl.

Potatoes were introduced into England by Sir Walter Raleigh from Virginia, over 300 years ago. They did not, however, come into general use till the beginning of last century, when they were—very wisely—always cooked in their skins.

The Romans knew the onion, turnip, cauliflower, and cabbage, to which list they added cherry and the quality of preserving them from drunkenness.

Cucumbers are said to have originated in India, and were known to have been introduced into China 200 B.C.

The carrot came from Greece and the English name is derived from a Greek word meaning "root."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 8

SAUL AND STEPHEN

Golden Text: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."—Revelation 2:10.

Lesson: Acts 7,54: 8:2: 22,3, 4, 19, 20; 26:4, 9-11; Galatians 1:13, 14.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 116:15-19.

Explanations and Comments

Stephen's Arrest and Defense, Acts 6,8 to 7,54.—When the Greek speaking Jews who were temporarily or permanently staying in Jerusalem attempted to dispute with one of the leaders among the disciples of Jesus, they found this man, Stephen, more than a match for all their logic and their false witnesses. Their original hatred of him, as a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit (Acts 6:5), and therefore full of grace and power, then turned into deadly enmity. They resorted to calumny, raised up false witnesses, stirred up the multitude and brought him before the Sanhedrin.

From Stephen's defense, 7:48, it is evident he had apparently taught that God could be worshiped not only in the temple, but everywhere As was true with Jesus (John 4:24). Stephen's words were distorted by false witnesses; he was accused of teaching that Jesus of Nazareth would destroy the honored temple, and would change the revered Mosaic laws. Fearlessly, Stephen undertook his defense. Rehearsing the ancient history of Israel, he skillfully showed that God's revelation to His people had been progressive, that there was a spiritual religion, and that God had no need of an earthly temple. At first interrupted, frightened by the clarity and truth of his words, his hearers were silently attentive, but as he caught the drift of his argument they were filled with rage and anger, which Stephen could not fail to see.

If, before the coming of the violent end which he saw approaching, Stephen sought to apply his words to his hearers, he must speak quickly: "Ye do always resist the Holy Ghost." Boldly, "Of the Righteous One ye have become murderers"; "ye have now been cut to the heart"; they "gnashed on him with their teeth." That is, only by "brute-like grinding of their teeth" were they able to restrain their unreasoning rage. But its, still filled with the Holy Spirit, he "looked steadfastly opened" (a familiar Jewish figure of speech signifying one's inspired divine things) "and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God." Such apparently was the disregard of the frenzied fury around him that he took no heed.

Alone a man can stand up for his right; but he must organize to find new rights to stand up for.—Oshawa Times.

Canada's Flying Clubs

Eleven Already Established and Two More Being Organized

Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, has opened the new flying field of the Grassby Light Aeroclub, Oakville, Ont.

Canada now has 11 light aeroplane clubs, extending from Grassby, Que., to Victoria, B.C., with ten others in process of formation. Fourteen Moth 'planes have already been allotted to these organizations by the Government under the conditions governing the issue of these machines. Additional to the Grassby Club, those already formed and with whom agreements have been signed by the Minister of National Defence are:

Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Ont., Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, and Victoria, B.C.

The process of organization are located at:

Halifax, Saint John, Quebec, Kingston, Ottawa, London, Peterboro, St. Catharines and Walkerville, Ont.

Alberta Act Invalid

Privy Council Upholds Ruling Of Supreme Court Of Canada

Both the appeal of the Province of Alberta and the counter Appeal of the Dominion of Canada from a Canada Supreme Court decision respecting the question of whether the right of the Crown upon intestacy in a prosecution for bootlegging right were dismissed without costs by the judicial committee of the Privy Council. The case involved the validity of the Ultimate Heir Act of the legislature of Alberta.

The judgment of the Privy Council upholds a ruling of the Supreme court of Canada that the Ultimate Heir Act of Alberta is invalid. The Act provides that where a person dies without legitimate heirs, certain property goes to the University of Alberta.

Receives Large Salary

Chief Harpooner Earned $20,000 in Whaling Season

Few occupations tax the nerves of man more than whale hunting, but few occupations are better. When the whale-hunting fleet recently returned from the Antarctic after a nine-months' cruise, the chief harpooner had earned a "normal" income of $23,000. In addition to this he had a contract granting him $20 for each whale he killed. During the nine months he killed 300 whales, and his income amounted to $6,000. Hardly one man in a thousand may hope to be a really good harpooner. It is also a fact that the result of the expedition largely depends, and though his profit may seem high, it is modest compared with the profit he brings to the expedition.

Changes Name Again

Peking Will Be Known As Peiping Meaning "Northern Peace"

The nationalist government politburo council has decided to change the name of the historic Manchu capital, Peking, to Peiping, meaning "Northern Peace."

The action is considered at Shanghai as an attempt by the Nanking government to remove the capital of political importance and further that of Nanking, which they insist is now the National capital.

The announcement of the action of the council states "It is hoped Peiping will continue as a centre of art and culture, but as a political centre it is dead."

Should Be Popular

Aerial tea parties every Friday afternoon throughout the summer have been arranged by the Imperial Airways, to enable Londoners and visitors to see the Metropolis from the air. A big 21-seated aeroplane will cruise above London for about 30 or 40 minutes, and tea will be served.

POPULARIZING THE ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE

The fast maiden voyage of the Canadian Pacific liner "Duchess of Bedford," just put into the service of the St. Lawrence route as the finest of a quartette of 20,000 ton Canadian Pacific steamers has called wide attention to the increased popularity of the St. Lawrence route.

In addition to the "Duchess of Bedford" three other "Duchesses" will shortly be commissioned and this fleet of Cabin Class steamers will constitute the largest ships to sail on the St. Lawrence route.

Excellently appointed and furnished, the "Duchesses" open a new era in Cabin Class travel and experienced travelers who have seen the new liner compare her accommodations very favorably with first class ships.

Of 21,500 dead tons, two-funnel, oil-burning and 73 feet wide, the "Duchess of Bedford" is a new departure in marine innovations, all conducive to passenger comfort She is commanded by Captain H. Bailey, R.N.R., whose 21 years in the service of the Canadian Pacific Steamships have taken him through the seven seas. He was formerly III mmmand of the "Minnedosa" and "Montroyal," having been in charge of the latter vessel on several cruises through the West Indies—a fixture to be repeated by the "Duchess of Bedford."

Montreal Their time schedule is no less remarkable. The new passenger and mail service between Montreal and Liverpool on one Friday and in Montreal the following Friday —an unique service for the St. Lawrence.

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomach. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is acid excess. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a teaspoonful in water. It is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 60 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

The next day Helmi went to the Moose Skin Trading House, walking wearily up the stairs to No. 19.

Mrs. Corbett opened the door to her as she had found her before, and again the anguish in the girl's face told its own story.

"My God! Helmi, is she dead?" asked Mrs. Corbett.

Helmi sat down before she answered.

"Is that all? Sure that's nothin'; every child takes scarlet fever. They've gone to the Immigration Hospital. I know big Miss Shaw up there, as grand a girl as ever went on rubber heels. Cheer up, Helmi, the little pet will be all right, please God, though the gypsies had stolen her from me. I'll never rest till I've got her back."

"Why man has gone to the war!" said Helmi brokenly; "I saw him on the train. He did not see me—he does not care about me."

Mrs. Corbett paused. This was a harder complication than the illness of little Lulli, and for a moment even this determined optimist was floored—but only for a moment.

"Well, Helmi, I'm there you know where he is, and it's nobo of him to go, Helmi—remember that. Now here, dear, take a cup of tea. Yes you can; a person can always take a cup of tea, no matter who's gone, and it makes life look a little brighter. Drink it down, dear, and have another. You look better now. Don't get down to mourning, Helmi; there's nothin' depressed in that. I know now. The magic train has turned him against me. I said I would that man, and I will."

"No, dear, no; you mustn't talk of hitin' anyone. God will deal with the wicked in His own good time. You come with me to the Army and you'll find comfort to your heart. Don't cry, Helmi, that's bad. And see, dear, I was forgettin' there's two letters for you just come yesterday."

Helmi took them eagerly and opened one. "It's a mistake," she said, listlessly. "See, there's money in it. No one would send me money. It has been opened too, and sealed up again."

MEDICINE FOR YOUNG GIRLS

Mothers Endorse Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydney, N.S.—"My seventeen year old daughter took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and pains. She could not go about much with the other girls as she was very strong and pale. After taking it and it did her a great turn. She is working out now in a store and feels fine. I recommend your medicine to several friends and have given it to my 17 year-old girl." MRS. ALFRED OUELETTE, Pierrond, Ontario.

Mrs. Corbett took it out of her hand. "It's a for you, right enough," she said; "there's your names on it. It's a reparation allowance for fifteen dollars from Arthur Warner, Eagle Mines."

"I do not know anyone called Arthur Warner," said Helmi.

"Well, he knows you, and that's better anyway, he wants you to have the money, and you're a fool if you don't take it. Read the other one maybe it will tell."

Helmi opened it and read. It was the letter Jack had opened at Eagle Mines. Helmi read it aloud to Mrs. Corbett. "I know now," she said. "He is a good man, that Mr. Engelton. I will take the money—he means good by me."

"Sure he does," agreed Mrs. Corbett; "he seems like a good fellow, and a good Englishman, and there's nothin' finer in the world. Now Helmi, my friend at the Immigration Hospital I know big Miss Shaw up there, as grand a girl as ever went on rubber heels. Cheer up, Helmi, the little pet will be all right, please God, though the gypsies had stolen her from me. I'll never rest till I've got her back."

Eczema Formed Painful Blisters Cuticura Healed

"Eczema started with a few rash on my arms. Then it formed blisters all over about the size of a bean which were full of water and very painful. It burned and was so sore I could not bear to touch it. They dried up and a cap in my hand would fairly make me cry with pain. I had bottles of bands and arms tied up from the wrists to the fingers to my shoulders. Sometimes it kept me awake nights. I was discouraged.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in about three weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Lyndy H. Davis, R. R. 1, Hazlehurst, Ont.

Helmi could not eat. She had only enough money left to keep her and Lulli for a few days, and she must not spend his money, but—

In some ways he had been to blame—he had been too easy, indulgent and foolish. Eva and her friends laughed at him, he knew. The ease with which Eva was able to dress him herself furnished many a good story for the lively company which sat the bridge tables.

It was when his mother came to visit him a year ago that the doctor began to see Eva as she was. Eve had tried to imagine what she would be like when she was as old as his mother, who at sixty-five was as alert and super-minded as ever, doing many of the things she had wanted to do all her life. To Eva she was a fossil, and could answer set such joy from going to the New Year Rally of Sunday School Children? Or why did she waste up early on Sunday morning to go for a walk? Eva's stunted politeness to her his mother irritated him, and it was a relief when his mother went over to Miss Abbie's to finish her visit. So passed another dreary day. She had so often thought of what a pleasure it would be to have his mother visit him. She was such a good sport, his mother.

Another matter was weighing heavily on the doctor's mind. More surgeons were needed at the front. Why should he stay here at ease? Eva's money, he vitalled him, was

VERMILION BALL TEAMS WIN AT MANNVILLE

Vermilion's senior ball team took the first prize money at the Mannville tournament on Monday with the home boys taking second place. Mannville defeated Chatdonald in the first draw, while the Vermilion crew blasted Chelsea's hopes. This brought the two old rivals, Mannville and Vermilion, together in the evening set-to, the latter boys triumphing. The players making the trip were Mackenzie, Mc-Kinnon, Williams, Burns, Mooney, Poole, F. Stephens, C. Williams and Chessick.

The local boys' junior team also carried away top honors in their tourney, having to play two games, the first against Minburn and the final against the Mannville boys. Carson and Wicks were the mound artists for our juniors.

The old plank sidewalk stretching from the Canadian Bank of Commerce corner to the Imperial Block has been taken up preparatory to the laying of a cement walk along this street.

Several bright youngsters were on hand during the tearing up of the old walk in front of the business places on Wednesday morning. They were not disappointed, either, the champion finder gathering up 45 cents in various sized coins, while other sums ran from there down to 10 cents. Keep all money in circulation was the motto of these boys.

The Vermilion Citizens' Band was in attendance at the Mannville sports on Monday, where they played practically continuously all afternoon. They are also billed as one of the attractions for the Claysmore sports this Wednesday afternoon. No celebration in the district feels that it is complete without the inclusion of Bandmaster Kilford's music dispensers. That their music is immensely appreciated was amply shown on Sunday night last when a large crowd completely surrounded the park during the evening concert.

The J. Daw farm, consisting of a section of land, 360 acres improved, located 15 miles north of town, has been purchased by Tait and Son who were formerly farmers in the Swift Current district. The deal was put through by Sanborn & Sprague, of Edmonton. The purchasers are going into residence at once.

Mannville Farm Scene Of Quadruple Murder

High-Powderd .303 Rifle Used By Murderer - Mother, Son And Two Hired Men Dead

With the wife of a prosperous Mannville farmer and her 25-year-old son and two hired men shot to death on their farm home 5 miles north of Mannville and 14 miles west of Vermilion, provincial police are today faced with the unraveling of one of the most horrifying murder tragedies in the history of the province.

The victims are Mrs. Eunice Bosher, her 25-year-old son Fred, a hired man named Gabriel Grumley, and a second hired man known locally as "Bill," who has only been in Canada a short time from Poland.

The first report sent out stated the murder occurred shortly after 7.30 on Monday night, and the tragedy was discovered by another son named Vernon, 20 years of age. Everything was peaceful when this son left the farm house at 7.30 to bring in the cows. While away he heard the fatal shots and rushed across the fields back to the house. On his return he entered the dining room to find his mother sitting slumped across the dining room table, shot from behind and her head split open with the impact of a bullet from a high powered rifle.

Horrified he rushed through the kitchen and found his brother Fred, 25 years, sprawled on the floor there, shot through the mouth and back.

Terrorized, the youth rushed out in the barn for assistance from the hired men, only to find "Bill", one of the two men from the bunkhouse, dead in the barn with a bullet through the back of his head. He then staggered to the bunkhouse and found Grumley, shot through the chin, and also dead, lying on the floor near his bunk.

Daughters at Basketball

The two daughters of the slain woman, Dorothy and Algerta, were at Mannville, practising basketball at the time of the murders. When it became known in Mannville that the tragedy occurred diplomatic efforts were made to keep the girls there, but they want out to their home.

When they arrived they saw their brother Fred lying on the floor, and Algerta, believing that he was asleep, tried to awaken him. It was then that they found that he had been murdered, and then they went into the house to call their mother, found her dead too.

The father, Henry Bosher was working at a farm two miles away at the time, and did not know of the tragedy until he was called from the fields.

Had No Enemies

The murders remain a complete mystery. There have been no suspicious characters in the districts recently and so far is it known the Boshers did not have any enemies.

Investigators have been unable to find the rifle used in the killings which dispels any belief that possibly it may have been a murder and suicide by one of the four.

Detective-sergeant Leslie from A.P.P. headquarters, Edmonton has taken charge of the investigation, while Constable F. A. Olsen of the Vermilion detachment, who was the first officer to be notified of the tragedy, is also on the scene. Dr. Heaslip, coroner for the district is also investigating.

The Bosher family are well known in the district having resided here for a number of years. They came originally from the United States and were considered as among the most prosperous farmers of the Mannville district.

The case is a clear-cut murder as regards to the police with somewhat possible the four victims responsible in this cases the victims were shot down from behind, while in the fourth case the man Grumley was shot through the chin from some little distance apparently as he jumped from his bunk in answer to a call from the door or after hearing the shots which snuffed out the lives of the other three victims.

With barely a clue and unable to find a motive for the killings provincial police are working desperately in an attempt to get a trace of the murderer. Every angle of the case is being considered and with the Bosher family well liked in the neighborhood, and as far as it is known without an enemy, officers are at a loss to explain the killings.

Reconstructing the crimes, police believe that the killer walked into the home after hiding around the farmyard, and Mrs. Bosher sitting at the table, and shot her through the back of the head without giving her any warning. The killer then turned to meet Fred Bosher who rushed into the dining room to see what was wrong. All about him in the mouth. As Fred fell to the floor of the kitchen at the door the slayer pursued another bullet into his back.

Reloading his rifle as he went, the slayer then went to the barn, where other Bill, and then ran to the bunk house where he fired point blank at Grumley as he jumped up.

SON IS HELD AS A WITNESS

Yesterday morning the A.P.P. were still without any definite clue which might lead to the solution of the tragedy. Vernon Bosher, 20 years old, who found his mother, brother and two hired men lying dead around the farm house and barn, was held overnight by police, but was released from custody pending the inquest. Although a .303 rifle shell was found on the floor of the kitchen, in which Fred Bosher was also supposed to have been found on the farm.

The bodies of Mrs. Eunice Bosher, Fred Bosher, Gabriel Grumley and the hired man known only as "Bill" were taken into the morgue at Mannville on the Tuesday afternoon. Detective Sergeant Leslie of the A.P.P., who is conducting the investigation, held a brief inquiry, but did not make public his findings. The date of the inquest proper has not been set.

Mannville district is seething with excitement. Every assistance is being given the police in their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the murders.

Merely Routine

At headquarters of the A.P.P. the arrest of Vernon Bosher by the provincial police officers was looked upon as the first step towards the solution of the sensational killings. Constable Olsen is to remain here for a few days to help in the investigations, and Sergeant Leslie returned from the scene of the murders.

Electric Light Shows Increased Business

The business of the municipal electric light and power plant for the first six months of this year exceeded that of a similar period in 1927 by the substantial sum of $1,000. From the 1st of January 1927 to the 1st of July 1927 the earnings were $4,500. From January 1st 1928 to July 1st 1928 earnings amounted to $11,500.

From the profits of the plant it was found possible to make the required 10 per deposit amounting to $2500, in placing the order for machinery. This enabled the town to make a later saving at the debenture issue which will net them two months' accrued interest over and above the sale price of the bonds.

A. F. McKenzie, who needs no introduction to Vermilion, is in town on a short visit. It was his intention to return to Edmonton, and enjoy his week-end at some near-by lake. He is also due to see the civil engineers some points on signalling this Thursday evening, at 7.30 p.m. Mr. McCracken is also in Edmonton and Saskatchewan on the 5th Edmonton-Prince. The new M is much impressed by the progress this town has made since he last visited here five years ago, and says that the atmosphere here is much more pepp and progressive than the town he has next been in.

Market For Alberta Wool

Samples Sent To Japan Were Found Satisfactory

Japan may become one of Alberta's important wool markets. The agricultural Department, at Edmonton has been advised by K. Miyakoshi, of Kobe, Japan, that samples of Alberta wool sent to Japan on request some time ago had been inspected and tested and that the results are highly satisfactory.

Mr Miyaoshi says that the Japanese Government intend to import wool of the same quality from this province and that it is likely a number of orders will also be given this year by private firms Further information is asked for as to how many hundred tons can be supplied.

The possible establishment of trade connections with the Japanese market is wool follows a series of inquiries covering the past year or so more.

E. Kanda, director of experimental farms for the Manchurian railway, looked somewhat carefully, on his recent visit here, into the possibility of doing some business in this line, and Capt. T Kanekami, who spent a month in Alberta last year, was also greatly interested in the question of wool, among other matters provided for trans-Pacific import.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Before leaving for Denmark it was our privilege to lay upon the base of the Cenotaph, in Whitehall, a wreath of poppies in tribute to the Empires Glorious Dead We marched from Horseguards Avenue to the Cenotaph accorted by mounted and foot police. The wreath bore the arms of every Province, and was carried by William Ould, of Kenmay, Manitoba, and Mr E. F. Augustine, of Alvinston, Ontario, both of whom had lost sons in the war Reverently they laid it at the foot of the stone while we stood bare-headed and in silence. This was our most precious duty. Our proudest task, the memory of which whatever else in this tour may be forgotten, can never fade.

We had time before entraining for Harwich to see the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey One of the most striking features of the beautiful Parliament buildings is the tower. The Victoria Tower where the royal entrance is said to be the hottest square tower in existence. The site of the Houses of Parliament was occupied by an ancient palace which from Edward the Confessor to Henry VIII., was the chief London residence of the reigning sovereigns. The present buildings date from between 1840 and 1870 and cost $15,000,000 They cover eight acres and contain 1,100 rooms and two miles of passages.

We passed through both Houses. The House of Lords is much more ornate than the House of Commons. At one end are the thrones of the King and Queen, and at the other end the chair of the Prince of Wales in the Commons we were shown the Speaker's chair, and the places occupied by Mr Baldwin, Mr. Churchill, Mr Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Lloyd George and other Right Honorables of the present time.

Westminster Hall dating from William Rufus, is particularly memorable as having been the scene of the trials of Sir William Wallace, Charles I, Warren Hastings, and Sir Seven Hudson We saw the brass plates marking the spot where the unfilled monarch sat during his trial, also where the bodies of Edward VII. and William Ewart Gladstone lay in state.

There is no nobler building, nor one that visitors from Overseas could derive more to see than Westminster Abbey It is built in the form of a cross, 513 feet in length and 200 feet wide across the transepts. Every English King since Harold has been crowned in Westminster Abbey. The mortal remains of kings, soldiers, statesmen, poets and illustrious men in every walk of life rest beneath its flagstones, and it contains the graves of the Unknown Warrior. The redfin rests in soil brought from the battlefields.

The beauty of the Abbey, no less than its historical associations filled us with wonder and awe. The chapel of Henry VIII., forming the eastern end, is the finest example in the world of the Tudor Gothic style of architecture. A superb fan tracery vaulting roof of matchless beauty is its crowning glory. Within the grey walls of the Chapter House, an octagonal room of noble proportions, the House of Commons was born more than 500 years ago. Near the Chapter House is the Chapel of the Pyx with the ancient oaken door whence the King's treasure used to be kept, and on the door human skin still adhering after 500 centuries evidence of the days when punishment was not so light as now.

In the Chapel of Edward the Confessor we saw the Coronation Chair and Stone of Scone, said to have been the Coronation Stone of Scottish kings from time immemorial, but carried off by Edward I. in 1297. There the tombs of five kings and consorts in this chapel and the mutilated shrine of Edward the Confessor, erected by Henry III. in 1290, originally a golden shrine decorated with jewels and golden pennant of the saint's Queen Elizabeth and her sister Mary lie side by side in the north aisle of the Henry VII. Chapel.

Little did we think as we gazed at the tombs of the great, that before we returned from Denmark, there would be brought into the Abbey the body of the Empire's best beloved soldier or that in Scotland we should lay our humble tribute on his tomb.

Our four days itinerary in London was crowded, we left in the evening for Harwich to embark on the motor ship "Tjaldur," pronounced mercifully not as it is spelt but as "Tsoland." Again kindness unbounded as on similar occasions at spic and span ships we had a perfect crossing over the sunnily ruffled North Sea. No time was lost at Esbjerg, for before 11 p.m. we were in our pullman berths en route for Copenhagen, most of us too sleepy to hear the train move off and off the rail ferries as we crossed the Great and Little Belts where interrupt the journey by night am, we were settled in our new quarters, the Hotel Cosmopolite, sending that spice of adventure which seems inseparable from a foreign land.

Last we did not feel foreign long in Denmark The keenness and dryness of the air reminded us of Western Canada Here too was a hospitable people who appreciated stoves! Nevertheless we were not prepared for the welcome, the brotherly welcome Mr Hughes Holm, secretary of the General Agricultural Council, tendered us on the Council's behalf, now for the Trade discussion on Danish agriculture which took place followed to our astonishment, by the presentation of a wealth of printed statistics on every department of Danish agriculture. But the friendliness and fanfaronnese of this proceeding were explained "We are today looking forward to a still keener competition on the world market, but today, as we are, descendants of the old Vikings, we are looking for the struggle with joy, and today are glad to shake hands with as able and first class competitor." And we Canadians cheered to a man and woman!

PRINCESS ELIZABETH

Other interesting features of the meeting were a history of co-operation, questions that were answered by the leading agricultural professors in Denmark, and the visit of Mrs Jensen to Danish by Mr. C. Christensen, the only Danish born Canadian in the party.

In the afternoon we had the pleasure of viewing Amalienborg Palace, the residence of the Danish Royal Family. Christianhagen Castle and other interesting buildings which tell the story of Denmark's gallant history. Even then we did not forget the human aspect of our tour, for the afternoon was ended by an inspection of the Milk Distributing Depot, Copenhagen.

(To Be Continued.)

Western Farmers Are Skilled Operators

Modern Machinery Has Reduced Labor to a Minimum

From a review of agricultural conditions in Western Canada, published by Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada, it appears that the western farmer today has developed into a skilled operator, far removed from the older conception of the agriculturist. That idea pictured him as a man slightly of brawn and sinew who wrested riches from the soil by large expenditure of muscular toil. Today, the world is told, in the great prairie expanses actual manual labor has been reduced to a minimum, indeed almost eliminated. The farmer of today is a skilled operative and executive, among other things, directing a series of mechanical appliances that perform all the hard work for him. To this observer and reviewer, no more approving agricultural territory than Western Canada can be found anywhere, and the progress in method and device may seem to have attained, change is constantly in order. Even though the utmost in method and device may seem to have attained, change is constantly in order. Even though the utmost in method and device may seem to have attained, change is constantly in order. Even though the utmost

The Farm As An Industrial Adjunct

Edison Thinks Farm Should Produce Something Besides Food

The common conception of the farm is that it is designed solely to produce those things by the consumption of which we are enabled to live Having fulfilled that purpose, there is no other field or purpose for the farm.

But Thomas A. Edison advances a new thought in this connection. He says the farm should be made an industrial adjunct as well as a food producing medium. We can produce food," says Mr Edison, "and prices are too low to give the farmer a profit. So the extension of new food uses for farm products is a sound, practicable and important idea."

Just now Mr Edison is experimenting with some hundreds of wild plants that will grow in the eastern states without injury by frost. "Golden rod, plain golden rod that grows wild in nearly every state, is one of the best sources of rubber that I have found among native wild plants," he announced.

One does not have to go further to discover the basis of Mr Edison's thought that some of the waste land of the farmer will be turned in the future to the production of things that are needed in the industrial field. Some advance in that direction has been made in utilizing what used to be waste material of the farm. Starch, sugar and cellulose is obtained from corn stalks. And, of course, we do not eat cotton or flax. However, if Mr Edison is going to encourage the farmer to grow golden rod for its rubber, we hope that he will be able to divert it of its propensity to spread hay fever sniffles

A Great National Asset

Holiday Travel Has Increased Canada's Revenue By Millions

Holiday travel is taking a place with the Dominion's greatest industrial assets. According to government returns, revenue from vacationists in the Dominion grew from $43,734,000 in 1920 to $190,463,000 in 1926. It is estimated that in 1925 the favorable balance of tourist traffic, after deducting the expenditures of Canadians in other countries, amounted to $160,430,000, representing the invisible export exceeded only by Canadian wheat and newsprint. In 1927 all these provinces recorded increases in travel over the previous year, and the total revenue accruing for the Dominion from this source is declared by the minister of the interior to have been approximately $200,000,000. It is believed that this total will be doubled within the next ten years Regina Leader

CHINESE ARE NATURALISTS

Have Greater Knowledge Of Insects Than Any Other Country

Chinese folk have many odd ways of enjoying themselves and utilizing many odd creatures and things to contribute to their ideas of pleasure. For instance it seems strange to the occidental mind that crickets should be cultivated and cared for because of their fighting powers and musical ability.

Of the many insects that are capable of producing musical sounds, writes Dr. B. Laufer, Curator of Anthropology at Chicago's field museum of natural history, first and foremost are the crickets who during the latter part of the summer and in the autumn fill the air with a continuous concert. They are well known on account of their abundance, their wide distribution, their characteristic chirping and the habit many of them have of seeking shelter in human houses.

The reliance of the Chinese to crickets and other insects presents one of their most striking characteristics and one of the most curious chapters of socio-historical development In the primitive stages of life man took a keen interest in the animal world First of all, he closely observed and studied large mammals, and next to these, birds and fishes A curious exception to this almost universal rule is presented by the ancient Chinese.

They were merely interested in the class of insects than in all other groups of animals combined; while entomology was the last science that attracted their attention. Their love of insects led them to observations and discoveries which still elicit our admiration. The curious life-history of the cicada was known to them in early times, and only a race which had an innate sympathy with the smallest creatures of nature was able to practise such life preservation habits of the silkworm and present the world with the discovery of silk. The cricket is an emblem of contentment, the praying mantis as a symbol of bravery, and many other insects play a prominent part in early religious and poetical conceptions as well as in art, as shown by their effigies in jade.

In regard to mammals, birds, and fishes Chinese terminology does not show less the ordinary, but their nomenclature of insects is richer and more colorful than that of most languages. Not only do they have a distinct word or even several terms for every species found in their country, but they possess common and local names for the tinsy varieties of each species for which words are lacking in English and other tongues.

Canada's First Aircraft Show

The first aircraft show ever staged in Canada and one of the few ever held on the continent will be staged at the Canadian National Exhibition this fall, it was announced by exhibition officials. Details have not yet been worked out, but it has been decided that the show will differ from the aircraft exhibition recently held in Detroit in that it will be more in the nature of a propaganda to show aircraft are being used and can be used in Canada.

Radium Restores Sanity

Total Of 185 Stations Are Now In Operation

The Illustration Stations Division of the Experimental Farm reports an increase for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1928, of 46 stations, bringing the total up to 195. From these stations last year there was sold to farmers in the vicinity of each 30,942 bushels of seed grain, 11,083 bushels of seed potatoes, 30,000 lbs. of grass and clover seed, 300 purebred bulls and heifers, 106 hogs, 163 sheep, 602 cockerels, 823 pullets, and 1,528 settings of eggs.

These illustration stations are chosen by Experimental Farm officials in districts where it is felt it will be of advantage to introduce to a practical way the work being done by the Experimental Farms. The owner of the farm continues to operate that does so under the supervision of an expert appointed by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. By this system each station becomes a centre for the growing and distribution of high grade seed, purebred live stock, and also as a demonstration station for the best type of animal

One of the outstanding accomplishments of the Illustration Stations is the production of clover seed in British Columbia. The first clover seed grown in the Province of Columbia was harvested last year at the Prince Georgs and Salmon Valley stations

Standardizing Honey

Preparing Grades For the Better Merchandising Of Product

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is co-operating with the handlers of honey are engaged in the preparation of grades for the standardizing of honey. It is intended that such grades apply first to the export trade.

Canada exports honey to the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Spain, Switzerland and the United States. These exports last year amounted to 1,586,712 pounds, which in four years is nearly double the 1923 figure.

Beekeeping on a national commercial footing is practically a new industry in Canada, according to the report, developed to meet the export and bounds. The honey crop in 1927 showed an increase of 77 per cent. over 1926 and a value of 28,567,288 lbs., valued at $3,060,239.

The Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, has issued a number of interesting pamphlets on beekeeping which may be had on application.

Cattle Raising In Northern Alberta

Alberta's far north is coming prominent in cattle raising. Two hundred head recently brought into Edmonton from the Peace country, formerly fetched top prices. All travelled at least one hundred miles before being loaded on the cars at Wembley, and one bill almost 70 miles beyond Dunvegan Creek travelled 130 miles by trail.

Has No Finger Prints

Fifteen years ago Alexander Ross, supplied John Mood, Chinese, for a life of crime John has been sentenced to two months in the county jail. When the police went to take his finger prints for their records they found that the tips of his fingers were washing dirty plates in a local restaurant had totally obliterated all the markings on his finger tips.

Fame Is Waning

Few First Places Left For Trans-Atlantic Flight

Whoever was sitting furthest back in Miss Amelia Earhart's aeroplane "Friendship" when it crossed the Welsh coast, was the 100th person to fly across the Atlantic Ocean.

With the first flight by a woman, only a few secondary records remain to be made besides successive runs for distance, duration and speed.

One is that of being the first woman to fly Westward.

Since Sir Arthur Whitten-Brown and Sir John Alcock made the first non-stop flight in 1919, fifteen persons have made similar air crossings in planes.

Seventy-eight persons have flown across in airships and of these 29—the crew of the British R-34—have made the round trip. Two Italian dirigibles made the round trip in five days.

Of the non-stop aviators, Lindbergh, Byrd, Chamberlin, Brock and Schlee and Miss Earhart followed the trail blazed by Brown and Alcock.

Sir Brenton Sayer writes Phoenix

Six United States navy fliers crossed via the Azores, lasting on the easier non-stop trip. Four United States fliers crossed via Iceland.

Four crews of aviators have made the South Atlantic crossing since Captains Escadura and Coutinho of Portugal showed the way in 1922—a flight listed in few reference books. They used four aeroplanes altogether in the flight from Lisbon to Rio de Janeiro, but they flew all the way.

Fish Of Northern Lakes

Study To Be Made This Year Of Piney Tribes In Waters Of Northern Alberta

The Fort McMurray Board of Trade recently initiated a movement to have an ichthyological and hydrographic survey made of Great Slave Lake and Lake Athabasca and their connecting and tributary waters. It is proposed that this shall include been surveys of nearly every kind in the north country a good deal of ignorance exists at present. This is known that in Legend Lake there are land-locked salmon, and in Lake Athabasca are quantities of trout and ciscoes of whitefish, but a survey is required to reveal accurately the territory's food fish and fish food.

Making Incentive Complete

Unexpected company had turned up just in time for dinner and Little Lucy was told privately that she and her mother would have to have oyster soup without oysters.

The child was very flattered at her share in the splendid sacrifice to hospitality and was apparently disappointed when she found one small oyster in her portion.

Holding it up in her spoon she turned to her mother and in a stage whisper exclaimed:

"Mother, shouldn't Mrs. Mop have this oyster, too?"

Cyrano's Island Fruitful

A recent survey of Jamaica Fernandez Island, on which Alexander Selkirk, the reputed original of Robinson Crusoe, lived for four years, showed the island to be one of the most fruitful spots in South America. Every vegetable plant seems to grow on the island. One Frenchman was ship-wrecked on the island forty years ago. He likes it so much that he refuses to leave.

Upkeep Of Mental Hospitals Is Costly

Reaches Nine Million Dollars Yearly In Canada, Says Dr. Hicks

"In Canada there are more people in mental hospitals than there are in all the general hospitals put together" declared Dr. C. M. Hicks, medical director of the Canadian National committee for mental hygiene, during an address at Edmonton recently.

Continuing to quote from figures which he has compiled during ten years of experience with mental hygiene work, Dr. Hicks stated that there are 24,000 people in mental hospitals in Canada, and an equal number suffering from severe mental disorders are scattered among the various communities. Between fifty and seventy-five million dollars is invested in mental hospitals in Canada, making the annual upkeep of these institutions about nine millions dollars a year, or a dollar a head for each Canadian. In addition to the 50,000 insane, falsely classified as such, Dominion mental detectives in Canada, and many thousands more are suffering from less serious disorders.

The speaker strongly condemned the general attitude of normal people toward the insane, declaring that insanity or mental disease was no more of a disgrace than any other kind of disease. Thousands are now hopelessly insane because their parents, fearing the disgrace of insanity, delayed taking them to mental experts when treatment might have been successful.

The insane have not a single symptom that the average person has not experienced, in a milder form. Delusions are merely false prejudices which many tenaciously retain in the face of the most convincing proof that they are wrong, Dr. Hicksman, doing exactly the opposite of what they are told is stubbornness intensified to the highest possible degree.

Stone Sack Is Interesting Curio At Oxford Museum

Among the interesting curios to be found in the museum at Oxford, England, is a huge stone sack. It is carved as though fresh from a man's back; it has the mark of a rope which once encircled it in two places, and has the usual puckers at the mouth where the opening once secured the opening. All over the stone can be seen the marks of the coarse netting which once covered it. Its history is curious Some years ago it was fished up in the Thames below London Bridge. Since it must have lain for centuries. Some workmen in the time of the Romans was carrying this sack of cement from a boat to the shore, when the burden slipped from his shoulders into the water. Probably after the fall of the water, it became solid, and as years passed away, the sack at last rotted off, leaving only the hardened cement within.

Rubber Trees Vary In Yield

Experiments with rubber trees in Haiti show a wide variance in the yields of trees. The experiments, which were conducted under Government direction, revealed a difference that ranged from less than a thousand cubic centimeters of milk for a single tree in a given period to more than 10,000 for another tree in the same period.

Queer Effects Of The Flower Garden

Knowledge Is Necessary To Successfully Combat These Pests

While the lure in field crops annually from the depredations of insects is estimated to run into hundreds of millions of dollars, damage to garden crops is relatively no less serious. While the damage done to the fields and orchards may not be as apparent to the observer it is perhaps even more annoying when it is happening to roses, irises, dahlias, and many others of the beautiful crops of the flower garden that are unceasingly under observation.

In combatting the insect hordes that work in garden crops, it is necessary to have some knowledge of their life history and habits. An observation of how the insects feed will help materially in deciding the proper treatment to apply. Several gardeners to understand these matters the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, has issued Bulletin No 30, entitled "Insects of the Flower Garden and Their Control," by Miss Arthur Gibson, Dominion Entomologist. The author points out that injurious insects may be divided roughly into two classes by the nature of their mouth parts which indicate whether they destroy by eating the leaf substance, or by sucking the juices from within the leaves or stocks. Insects are further divided into beneficial and injurious, each of scores of the destructive ones is pictured and described and definite instructions given for their control. The bulletin, which is obtainable from the Publications Branch, of the Department, will be found particularly useful to rosarians who, at this season of the year, will find it recommended to them by the use that when a great damage not only to roses, but to delphiniums, the snapdragon, and the chrysanthemum, by various sprays and powders, and the aphides or plant lice that yield readily to sprays of dilute nicotine.

Many Unknown Heroes

Scientists Are Seldom Given Credit For Being Outstanding

The men who have given themselves in the cause of science would make a noble roll. Their names are of many of them the world at large has never heard but vaguely. Their services are not spectacular and, as a rule, set in picturesque surroundings. The imagination of all of us responds to the picture of the airman precariously poised in his frail machine over merciless waters, or to the explorer isolated among the wild snows, fighting for his life in a blizzard. The scientist in his laboratory overall just off one of our busy city streets is not at first sight so romantic a figure. He has left his commonplace home that morning and gone by the bus or the train, which will carry him back to his commonplace home again at night. We do not stop to realize that in the interval he may have been facing wild adventure with the courage of a Livingstone or a Scott. London Evening Standard.

Encourage Flower Growing

Flower exhibits of all kinds merit encouragement. They have an important part in the life of the community, because they stimulate the development of lovely lawns and gardens and when you have hundreds of citizens working along these lines, the general improvement of the appearance of your community must be marked.

CHAPTER XXVII.—Continued

Dr. St. John would not have been critical of his wife if she had chosen for fellow some profession. He could have liked that. He did not believe that every woman had to be run in the domestic mould, subject to the fee and ironing shirts—anyone could do that! But the companionship—the good fellowship of a wife—that he craved hi! And now that craving was slowly turning to resentment. Other men had wives—he had a queen of chatter, a hoarder of trinkets, a bridge player, a tea drinker!

The telephone rang.

"Yes, it is Dr. St. John. Who is speaking?"

"Jack—Jack Doran."

"Eva's brother? On your way through? Come along, you are at home—I'll drive down for you — only thirty minutes. Grand Trunk? I'll be there—yes. Eva will come, too."

The Doctor hurried into the living-room and spoke to Eva. "Jack is at the station. Get on your things," he said, "my car is at the door Leave the crowd here."

"We will go," cried one girl, with very bare shoulders; "I want to see Eva's good-looking brother. Let's give him a regular send-off."

The crowd arose flutteringly, all chattering. There was something particularly irritating to the doctor in their likeness, their gaiety, their lack of seriousness. "Stay here," he said curtly; "Jack Doran is not accustomed to be met by a crowd of strangers whom he cares nothing He wants to see his sister."

Eva turned on him indignantly. "Well, I like that," she said "Remember, a doctor is a public person—anyone can go Come on, kids, every one of you."

The Doctor took his wife's arm with a suddenness that surprised her and said, "Hurry Eva—have you no pride?"

"You have no right to be rude to my friends," said Eva, peevishly, when they were in the way to the station: "you acted abominably just now!"

"Oh forget it!" the Doctor said, "and try to get a serious thought in your head for once. Your only brother is going to war, and the chances are against your ever seeing him again. Have you nothing to say to him? Forget that cackling gang for half an hour. Their feelings are not hurt."

Eva looked at him in speechless amazement.

Jack had hoped that he might see his sister and the doctor alone. He wanted to tell his sister about Helmi. The boy's infatuation for the clergyman's daughter, and the sacrifice that he was making. But Eva's self-absorption was so complete that he could not bring himself to speak of it. He would write to her.

The Doctor took Jack's hand at the last as they stood at the steps of the train. "I am going over too, Jack," he said; "it is going to be a long fight, and we will all be needed. I cannot stand back and see other men go. I am proud of you, Jack. Can I do anything for you?"

A great impulse to tell the Doctor came to Jack but the moment for confiding and the train bell was ringing.

"I wish I could have had a good talk with you," Jack said, as the train began to move.

That night when her company had gone, Eva came into the Doctor's room. His light was still burning, and she knew he was not asleep. She was anxious and graceful, in a light gown of cream satin, was determined to check what was the first sign of real subordination in her husband. Her married friends assured her that if a man is "let savvy" with an exhibition of temper or crossness he will be worse the next time; so Eva had her mind made up to be very sweet and coldly proud. She would forgive him, but only after a distinct understanding.

"Well, what have you to say?" she asked him, with the queenly manner that she thought fitting.

"Nothing," he answered, "only that it is time you were in bed."

And almost as much in anger as in hate. The red tassels of the puppets were paling into feathery grey, and shadows were lengthening, littering the woodland paths. their work was done, they could take their rest.

Of all the spring birds that had come back to gladden the land the crows were most in evidence as they had come in thousands from the south, filling the air with their clamorous cawing. Nothing in nature so noisy minority seemed to dominate, sometimes dividing from the company to hold a parley of their own. And during their following not so great as they had expected, returning nobler than the demand. But much work was to be taken because the first one had not been constitutionally vicious and unexpected this. Although you make he taken because the first one had not been constitutionally vicious and unexpected this. Although you make he taken because the first one had not been constitutionally vicious and unexpected this. Although you make he

MELBERTA MINUTES

Regular meeting of M. D. of Melberta No. 185 was held in the municipal office, Mannville, on Tuesday, July 3rd. All the councillors present with W. E. Scott, Reeve, in the chair.

Minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

Mr. D. Scott's application for a hay permit on the N.W. 26-52-9-4 at $25.50 was accepted.

In connection with an application of Mrs. Wm. Bowcott for admission to the Central Alberta Sanatorium the council resolved to guarantee payment and disclaimed any liability.

An allowance of $40.00 per month was recommended for Mrs. Thomas Wilson, under the Mothers' Allowance Act.

It was decided to build a highway from the provincial highway into the Mannville cemetery, cost not to exceed $15.00.

A by-law giving authority to the council to survey and construct roads on said surveys was passed.

A letter was received from the Mannville Hospital Board suggesting that the requisition be paid to the Board in installments quarterly instead annually the council to keep all penalties. The request was of the opinion that it was necessary to have the money to do this, they had not the power to do so.

The secretary was given three weeks holidays, during which time the office will be closed. Anyone wishing to put on municipal bail bonds please see Mr Beattie, Bank of Montreal Mannville.

FORMER NORTHERN VALLEY RESIDENT DIES AT SHELTON

SHELTON, Wash., July 1.—Albert Heyd, formerly a resident of Northern Valley, Alberta, passed away at the general hospital here on June 27th. He was an employee of the Simpson Logging company for the past three years. He was brought to the hospital two weeks ago, from Camp One, where he had received a very bad fracture of the leg and amputation was used as a last resort to head off the dread infection, gangrene.

Mr. Heyd was born October 2, 1894, at Trempeleau, Wisconsin, and had farmed in Alberta, Canada for fifteen years. For he past four years he had been employed as a logger. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Orville Heyd of Camp One; five brothers, Harry of Camp One, Henry of Lake-shaw, Vancouver Island, Robert and Willem of Northern Valley Alberta; and George of Winona, Minnesota; also two sisters, Mrs. C. O. Lindbergh of Lake Lake, Alta., and Mrs. A. E. Robinson of Centralia, Washington.

The funeral services were held at 2 p.m., June 30th and interment made in the Odd Fellows cemetery.

Another Way to Say the Finest of Low Priced Sixes

JUST as the "sterling" imprint on silver identifies the best, so the mark of Fisher on its bodies distinguishes it from others in its field. When you speak of Pontiac as the lowest-priced six with bodies by Fisher, you are merely finding another way to say—"the finest of low-priced sizes."

For no other six of such low price offers the score of advantages which make the Pontiac Six the value leader of its entire class. Certainly none other offers any major feature comparable to the staunch, smart coachwork that the Fisher emblem represents.

Not only in style and color—not only in roominess and luxury of interiors—but also in sturdiness and quality of construction, Pontiac-Fisher bodies establish a standard never before attained in a six at Pontiac price. Like Pontiac itself, they are noted for ruggedness and long life. Like Pontiac itself they provide every element required for complete satisfaction and for justifiable owner pride.

ALBERTA HIGHWAYS TO BE SURFACED WITH OIL

With a view to still further improving the condition of Alberta's main highways and reducing the cost of maintenance, a series of experiments will be conducted on a number of graveled roads in the province during the next few weeks to test the efficiency of a covering of oil. It is announced by Hon. G. L. McPherson, Minister of Public Works, that a heavy asphaltic oil will be used in surfacing the road bed for several miles on the principal highways. Satisfactory results are anticipated from this treatment which has proved highly satisfactory in a number of eastern provinces.

TWO ALBERTANS ON CANADIAN OLYMPIC TEAM

Two Alberta athletes have been named on the track and field team which will represent Canada in the 1928 Olympic games being held this month at Amsterdam, Holland. Dorval Pilling of Calgary will compete for Canada in the javelin throw and Stan Glover of Edmonton has been chosen as a substitute on the relay team. Alberta, as well, will be interested in the performance of the Commercial Grads ladies' basketball team of Edmonton, international champions who will take part in a number of important games at the Olympic, and in other centres on the continent.

NEW HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS ANNOUNCED

The number of homesteads entries at the various land offices in the province is showing a very marked increase as a result of new regulations announced during the past week from Ottawa. Under the new arrangement persons who had proved up on their homesteads prior to January 1, 1925 are entitled to file on a second homestead. It is necessary, however, to make application to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, Ottawa, specifying the land previously homesteaded and to secure authority to enter for a second claim.

WESTMINSTER GLEE SINGERS WILL PRESENT EXCEPTIONAL PROGRAM OF ENGLISH MUSIC

Many years ago Edward Bennett, at that time one of the leading tenor soloists of Westminster Abbey choir, conceived the idea of taking out to the various parts of the Empire a combination of Cathedral boys and men, for the purpose of exemplifying the grand, natural value of unaccompanied part-singing. It was the idea of a man who loved the old music of his country and wanted to carry its inspiration and beauty to the far places of the Empire.

The first tour was in Canada—twenty years ago—and so great was the success of the venture that in later years every part of the English-speaking world was visited, and leave of Java, Manila, Portuguese East Africa, German West Africa, China and Japan were undertaken. They were all successful. Now Mr. Branscom re-comes back again to Canada, and presents the Westminster Glee Singers here at the Columbia Theatre, Vermilion, on Monday, July 23rd.

The present combination consists of nine of England's most famous soprano boy soloists, and of adults two grade A'ists, three tenors and two basses, all vocalists of standing and pre-eminently experienced in the difficult art of part-singing.

They rely on no attractions of secular part-music, consisting of many of the choral gems which have been provided in early days by the leading British composers. They programmes will be found to contain a great diversity of styles, embodied a considerable amount of light numbers, solos with vocal accompaniment, sailors' chanteys, humorous quaintries, and many novelties of all descriptions.

The unique nature of their entertainment is further enhanced by its delightful method of presentation. The stiff formality of the ordinary concert platform has been discarded, and many of the items are sung with the added charm of effective and novel grouping of the singers.

Canadian Resources Exhibit Edmonton Fair July 16-21

The Natural Resources Department of the Canadian Pacific Railways have arranged for space for an exhibit of Canadian resources at the Edmonton Exhibition July 16 to 21. This will consist of all kinds of garden and field crops, flowers, etc., all of which have been grown and matured out of doors not under glass, also a large variety of fresh vegetables and fruits. This is only one of the many interesting and educational exhibits which will be seen at this year's summer Fair.

The Exhibition management have made a change in the regulations and Experimental and Government Institutions are forbidden to take part in the District Exhibits competition. A special class is arranged for such institutions and as a result both the Vermilion and Olds schools of agriculture have arranged for space for their exhibits. The Department of Agriculture Ottawa, co-operating with the Canadian National Railways are sending a very fine new exhibit.

The Provincial Department of seeds and weeds are preparing an exhibit which will be very interesting in view of the present energetic campaign against the new thistle and other weeds which help to keep the farmers busy down their farms. This exhibit is in charge of the demonstration which will be put on by the local office of the Canadian Live Stock Branch showing our cattle and a number of competitive exhibits in the matter of an eggs-consumption campaign.

Nine district exhibits have been entered to date which are being shown in the Agriculture Building. This display will be wonderfully attractive and truly representative of the possibilities of agricultural production in Northern Alberta.

The Edmonton Horticultural Society have also made arrangements for a display which will be changed daily. The threshed grain exhibit will be shown under a new system of small boxes instead with glass.

New show cases for the women's exhibits have been installed and more space provided for exhibits of commercial manufactured goods than ever before in the history of the Exhibition.

Co-operation Rather Than Discord

It has been one of Canada's greatest misfortunes that periodically throughout its history campaigns have been inaugurated having for their object the division of the people into rival camps divided by lines of racial and creed difference. Probably no one thing has in the past operated quite so disastrously to retard the growth and national development of Canada. Time and time again when some large national question was up for decision the issue turned, not on the merits of the question and the national policy involved, but upon mere petty race and creed cry. One of the outstanding signs which is shed fresh in the public mind was the Reciprocity election of 1911, when for the last time in Canada in the campaign Ontario was swept by one of those mis-fires cries and tens of thousands of voters were stampeded by the slogan of "Down with the U.S.A." into favor of freer trade and against it.

Though at this moment there is a private and public line Sir Wilfrid Laurier has stood as the champion of the principle of national unity as against all classes of the Canadian people. Hon. Mackenzie King is working along the same lines and it is gratifying to note that Hon. R. B. Bennett, as leader of the Conservative party, is following in the wake of his illustrious predecessors and influence in the same direction. Speaking at Maggie, in the Eastern Townships, September last month, Mr. Bennett said "He who sows seeds of discord and distrust in racial and religious matters is a greater enemy to Canada than one who came with an armed force. You cannot develop a nation with a will barred or opposed." A few days later at Chatham, Mr. Bennett used these words: "The application of the Golden Rule in the life of the individual is quite as important as it is in the life of an individual" and added that anyone who in the heat of an election sought to raise old racial issues was sowing seeds of discord which must not forget his responsibility for such a situation.

Here is where Canada at this absolutely vital to the welfare of the country at large, namely the co-operation of the people of the East with those of the West in looking to and relying upon co-operative movements and governments to solve the economic problems of the country. To date these movements have been largely confined to the West. Co-operation in the East has been accomplished in a measure with creeds people of all racial origins and all political views working together. There has been no lines of cleavage in the co-operative movement of governments and legislation in the West. People of the West for many years could never have attained their present prosperity and power had any such foolishness as so often enters into party campaigns been allowed.

The unfortunate fact remains that if the people of a Province or Community are stirred up and divided upon racial or religious lines for partisan political purposes or for any other reason, the inevitable result is to create suspicions and animosities in the community or throughout the Province, which makes it extremely difficult if not impossible to get all classes together or hold them together in a true spirit of co-operation if the people of the West are divided into Catholic groups and anti-Catholic groups, English-speaking groups and non-English-speaking groups, it naturally becomes impossible for them to come together in the right spirit of friendliness and co-operation which is so essential to the maintenance and development of such organizations as the United Farmers the Wheat Pools and other co-operative organizations.

These racial and religious campaigns have never got their proponents anywhere have never accomplished good but have always resulted in harm. They are in no sense constructive but are destructive. Despite any and all claims that may be made for them they are the reverse of British and open denial of that liberty and freedom which, it is our proud boast, is to be found and is guaranteed to all under the British flag.

Not only are these unscrupulous campaigns destructive of a real national spirit, not only do they retard national growth, development and prosperity, they render the task of successful government in the Provinces, or in municipal councils and school boards, difficult and sometimes impossible, and in all cases more expensive and less efficient.

What every Canadian interested in the welfare of his country needs is to be interested and committed to the policy of co-operation for the common good of all minds must emphatically set their heel upon the ugly head of the serpent of racial and religious ill-will wherever and wherever it may raise itself.

Learning From Canada and United States

Nations Realizing Usefulness Of Farming Against Each Other

The idea of renouncing war is not unfamiliar to us. War is renounced between England and Scotland, between Britain and the Dominions between Madras and Bombay between Bengal and Behar. The idea of war within the Empire is remote from our thoughts. The apprehension of the thing does not add a sixpence to the estimates. And we may say the same of the relations between Canada and the United States. It is true that war has never been formally renounced by those two neighboring Powers; but in practice it is renounced, and neither country arms against the other. To those conceptions familiar within the British Empire and characterizing for years the relations between Canada and the United States, there is now proposed to give a wider existence.

Insulin Distributed Free

Ontario Government Supplying More Than a Million Units a Month

Insulin is being distributed free to diabetes sufferers by the Ontario Government at the rate of more than a million units a month, on the average.

Hon Dr Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, has announced that the April distribution totalled 1,020,000 units.

Altogether 624 patients are receiving the treatment in Ontario and the total cost of manufacture and distribution per patient was $5.90 during April.

New Quarters For Wheat Pool

Central Office Building To Be Constructed In Winnipeg

The Canadian Wheat Pool, a farmer's organization, which handles more export grain than any other organization in the world, is to be housed in a new central office building to be constructed in Winnipeg immediately. The building will be 60 feet by 120 feet, of thoroughly modern construction, three and a-half stories stone and will cost $600,000.

The turnover of the Canadian Wheat Pools which will be directed from this office exceeds an average of a million dollars a day.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble That Usually Attacks Young Children

St. Vitus dance is the name generally given to a disease described by medical men as chorea. This trouble usually attacks young children, though older people may be afflicted with it. As the disease progresses the twitching takes the form of spasms, in which the jerking motion may be confined to the face or all the limbs may be affected. Frequently the patient is unable to speak clearly in this trouble. Personally, in severe cases the speech is entirely lost. The cause is due to debility of the nerves and relief comes through an enriched blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been most successful in reaching this condition, which they do by action on the blood, which it enriches and purifies in natural fashion and proves the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in this trouble. Mrs. Thomas Howell, Bath, Ont., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been in use in my family for years and whenever my children have been ailing they saved the life of my only son. At ten years of age he grew very nervous and his condition became worse. He began to twitch and jerk, then his speech was affected, and his condition was pitiful. I was told that it came to me a little book telling of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to give them to him. By the time I had used seven boxes there was an improvement in his condition and by the time seven boxes were in all the trouble had disappeared and he was well and strong. I have used them in the family ever since and I know of no medicine so good for children. I have always kept one in the house and add that the same applies to grown-ups."

You can get these pills though any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Kills Off Noxious Weeds

Alberta Farmer Has Invention Which May Prove Valuable

A machine to dig and destroy weeds has been invented by D. W. Warner, ex-M.P., Edmonton farmer.

A large rotary (horizontal) cylinder, with a spiral blade, forms the digger. Into the cylinder are inserted hundreds of large spikes As the cylinder revolves, each spike in turn teeth mulch the soil, lifting deep into the subsoil. Clouds of earth are thrown forward over the top of the machine. The dirt settles quickly while the weeds float through the air, finally coming down like a spindrift over the newly-turned earth

Weeds with extensive root systems, such as dandelions and thistles, will fall an easy victim to the digger. Experiments carried out recently revealed that a field being left cross-cut will finely minced twitch grass roots, like chaff, which piles up behind the threshing machine.

SUMMER COMPLAINT Nearly Lost Her Little Girl

Mrs. Theodore Rivet, Anthony, Que., writes:—"Last Fall I nearly lost my little girl as she was suffering terribly from summer complaint. She became very thin and weak; had no appetite and could hardly walk across the room without falling. At last I got her another medicine for a dollar and after she had taken a few doses she was relieved.

I also found it a grand remedy for croup, and would not be without a bottle of it in the house for anything."

Memorial For Atlantic Flier

Parents Of Hon. Elsie Mackay Give $2,500,000 Toward National Debt

In memory of their daughter, the Hon Elsie Mackay, who perished in a trans-Atlantic flight, Viscount and Lady Inchcape have given $2,500,000 (£500,000) to reduce the national debt. This announcement was made by Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, in the House of Commons. The money will be placed in trust and will be known as the Elsie Mackay fund. The sum given to the nation is the residue of the Hon. Elsie Mackay's estate. The donations will be left to accumulate for fifty years.

The Hon. Elsie Mackay, third daughter of Lord Inchcape, British shipping magnate, made the attempt to cross the Atlantic by air with Captain Walter Hinchcliffe. The take-off was from Cranwell aerodrome, Eng., on all the limbs. The ill-fated attempt was made by Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, in the House of Commons. The money will be placed in trust and will be known as the Elsie Mackay fund. The sum given to the nation is the residue of the Hon. Elsie Mackay's estate. Victims Of Diseased Milk

97 Per Cent. Of Population In Affected By Tuberculosis

Three out of every four cripples, excluding war and accident cases, are victims of diseased milk, Dr. R. A. Ellery told an audience at the Health and Hygiene Exhibit in Winnipeg recently.

He declared that 97 per cent. of the entire population was affected by tuberculosis and that milk was officially known as a social as well as a medical problem. Out of every ten, seven would not be infected; three, he could break down and one would not recover

The disease, according to Dr. Allsop, came principally from infected milk and could readily be overcome by pasteurization, he emphasized.

Many Chances Yet For Immigrants Coming To America

Holvaag, professor at the University of St Olaf in Northfield, Minn., came to this country in 1896, an immigrant without money. Today, as the author of a great book, "Giants in the Earth," O. E. Rolvaag is living on the deck of a steamer on the way home from a visit to Norway. He said that the chances for the immigrant coming to America today were as great as when he first came. That is significant, for the people, native born and alien, feel that pioneering is done They think the best opportunity has been ordered by. They underestimate the resources and the constantly changing conditions of this world

Plane Loses Its Engine

When the engine fell from his airplane while the craft was in the middle of a loop at a 1,500 foot altitude, Walter Brooks, of Allentown, Pa., righted the plane and landed to an easy landing. Neither he nor his passenger, Walter Harkman were injured. The plane had just started into a loop when the heavy engine broke from the supports and dropped. It fell half a mile from where the plane landed.

Honey Production

Honey production in Canada in 1927 was 22,647,360 pounds valued at $3,620,650, according to a crop report issued at Ottawa, this being an increase of 77 per cent. over the previous year, due mostly to a favorable season but also to the greater number of colonies.

"Ho, Canadians" Celebrate

Picturesque and Colorful Folksong and Handicraft Festival

"Now Canadians" from fifteen countries of Northern Europe joined in a celebration at Winnipeg recently to illustrate the national arts and culture which they are contributing to Canadian life. The celebration which took the form of a picturesque and colorful folk song and handicraft festival, was opened by Sir James Aikins, former Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba. In the rotunda of the Royal Alexandra Hotel, where handicraft exhibits were shown representing typical European market centres.

Settlers in Western Canada from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland, Germany, France, Belgium, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, Finland, Hungary, Ukraine, Poland and Russia were represented in the display of artistic handicraft. Programs of folk songs and dances were given every afternoon and evening with 400 performers appearing in national costumes and attracting large audiences.

The festival is regarded as a unique demonstration of the contribution of the nations of Northern Europe to Canadian life and the part which they are taking in the rapid development of Western Canada.

Dressed Poultry Exports

Minister Of Agriculture To Investigate Market in England

Before sailing for England the Honorable W. R. Motherwell spent some time in Montreal discussing the situation with reference to exports to England of dressed poultry. Latest mines have been made on the basis of 32 to 36 cents per pound for 3 pound chickens, and for 4 pound capons 4½ pound chickens. The total export of chicken this year from Jan. 1st to May 31st, was valued at $111,673. It is the intention of Mr. Motherwell to devote some time to trade export matters and information regarding dressed poultry while in Great Britain along with other agricultural products exported, such as butter, eggs, cheese, beans, beef cattle, etc.

Goes Over Niagara Falls'

Some Lumber Commodity Performed Daring Stunt

Niagara Falls, N.Y.—On the third time in history man conquered the mighty Niagara when Jean A. Lussier, 26-year-old French-Canadian now living at Springfield, Mass., went over the Horseshoe Falls in a specially constructed rubber ball while a crowd of 150,000 people lining the river banks on either side, cheered and applauded him.

The start was made from Cayuga Island, about three miles above the falls, at 2.30 o'clock and Lussier was rescued from the bridge only below the falls at 3.30 o'clock by William Hill, daring riverman, alone in a rowboat. At first it was feared the giant ball might be carried down stream into the rapids. Lussier emerged over the brink at three o'clock.

When Hill reached the ball it was found that Lussier, who had only been only a few minutes until it was towed to shore and opened.

The first to greet Lussier with a resounding smack on his cheek was his sister, Madame J. P. Castiere, of Shelbourne, Que.

The only bruises Lussier suffered in his perilous journey were of minor nature. There was a small scratch on his right temple, another on his left shoulder, and a spot on his right forearm where the skin could be said, in the terrific bouncing while his strange conveyance was passing through the rapids above the falls.

Asked concerning his sensations while going over the precipice, Lussier replied:

"I didn't even think. It happened too fast."

An Interesting Exhibit

Improved Methods of Marketing to be Demonstrated at Winnipeg Fair

Winnipeg—With the object of bringing directly before the producers some of the lessons learned during the Canadian National Railways marketing tour of the British Isles last winter, the Canadian Department of Agriculture is preparing an exhibit to be shown at the fairs at Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Regina during July.

The exhibit will be conducted in a car which the Canadian National Railways are providing and lecturers and demonstrators will be in attendance throughout. The exhibit will be in Brandon for the period of the fair. From there it will go to Calgary, July 9 to 14, Edmonton, July 17-21; Saskatoon, July 23-28 and Regina, July 30 to August 4.

Lecturers and leaders in the exhibit will stress will be the importance of marketing only the highest quality products in the British Isles and all the standardizing of grades and improving methods of marketing. Canadian agricultural products so that they can meet more efficiently the intense competition of the Old Country markets. In addition to the lectures and demonstrators provided by the Government, there will be in attendance at the exhibit at each point visited two or more of the farmers from that district who made the trip last year.

Interested In Wireless Merger

Beatty Makes Important Submission to British Government in Report

London, England.—The Daily Mail says that President F. W Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has made important submissions to the British Government embodying Canadian views concerning the rumored merger of wireless and cable companies to operate imperial communications Until these recommendations are ready, delay in publishing the terms of the settlement is inevitable, says the newspaper. No confirmation of these statements is obtainable but Canadian Press understands that any modification of terms now under consideration in London might be made would likely be of small importance.

ITALIAN AIRMEN ESTABLISH NEW DISTANCE RECORD

Rio Janeiro, Brazil.—A new distance record for sustained flight was completed when Captain Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo P. Delpezzo, Italian airmen, landed on a little beach six miles north of Natal, Brazil, some 4,800 miles from their take-off at Montecelle Field, Italy.

They made their flight in the seaplane Savoia-64, in which they had previously established a world record for duration flight, to the island of the Mediterranean, through the Strait of Gibraltar and then southward over the Atlantic via the Cape Verde Islands.

An hour and twenty minutes after landing the fliers resumed their flight, bending for the city, but were later forced to descend again at Senitatu.

Stormy weather with heavy clouds put the fliers off their course in the course of their effort and radio reports received here indicated that they had difficulty in maintaining their bearings after they reached the coast of Brazil.

They had sighted over Port Natal at 4.08 p.m. and were then believed to b banding for Pernambuco. But three hours and 40 minutes later they came down ten miles north of Natal at Point Genipabu. Poor visibility is believed to have caused their indecision.

The failure of the two intrepid Italians to find any better flight to Rio Janeiro brought disappointment to a huge crowd of spectators in this city. When the fliers had passed beyond Natal, flying to the south, coupled with absence of any report of their progress, a feeling of anxiety spread rapidly through the capital and brought throngs to the water front.

Asks Help For Children

Widow of Captain Hinchcliffe Buys Two Cots in Memory of Her Son

London, England.—The Daily Mail published a complaint from the widow of Captain Walter Hinchcliffe, pilot for the Hon. Elsie Mackay on her ill-fated trans-Atlantic flight, and herself that the children were unprovided for. The establishment of a trust fund to reduce the British national debt in memory of Miss Mackay, by her parents, Lord and Lady Inchcape, could be better.

Mrs. Hinchcliffe argued that while there was no legal obligation on Lord Inchcape there was a moral one, because the whole scheme of the flight came from Miss Mackay who hired Hinchcliffe to fly her and had written four times to Lord Inchcape telling him of her position and need. He replied that he would look to the first letter, but she received no response to the others.

The government has already accepted the trust fund of $2,500,000, which will be left to accumulate for 50 years and then be applied to the debt.

Regrets Appointment Of Viscount Byng

Has Been a Mistake Says London Daily Express

London, England.—In a leading editorial The Daily Express indicates it greatly regrets the appointment of Viscount Byng, former Governor-General of Canada, as Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police to succeed Sir William Horwood, who is retiring.

"Nobody questions his splendid war record," The Express says, "but one man can lead only one life."

"We feel very strongly there has been a mistake on both sides and only Viscount Byng's voluntary resignation of his office can rectify it. That magnificent soldier, the Metropolitan police, should have at its head a young man of enthusiasm, initiative and vision combined with driving force."

The impression is growing here that Viscount Byng will withdraw his acceptance of the commissionership of the Metropolitan Police if the present criticism in the press and the political circles of his appointment continues. The objections to his assumption of the post are that he is too advanced in years for an arduous position in which he has had no experience, and on these grounds members of the House of Commons, particularly the Labor, members, and a number of newspapers are criticizing his appointment.

Fraudulent Currency

Fake American Bills Being Circulated in Winnipeg

Winnipeg.—United States wires a few days ago started warnings of the currency of fraudulent $20 bills. Some of them have turned up, here. Several merchants have been victimized in the last few days by the fake bills.

Bills used here are valid one dollar bills cleverly changed to give the appearance of the note of larger denomination.

Police fear an influx of the fraudulent notes during the next week when the Nonex convention will draw hundreds of United States visitors. Merchants have been warned.

Serious Drought In Mexico

Some Sections Have Had No Rain For a Year

Mexico City.—Cattle are dying, crops burning up and farmers are facing heavy losses and some of them ruin, in many parts of Mexico as the result of one of the worst droughts the country has ever known.

Conditions are worse in the central states, the granary of Mexico, where the corn crop is almost ruined, and in the cotton and grazing regions to the north between Mexico City and the border. Some of this territory has had no rain to speak of for a year.

USE CASH FROM GRAIN OVERAGES FOR RESEARCH

Ottawa.—The Federal Government has decided to devote the entire net amount of money resulting from the overages in Canadian terminal elevators to the interests in connection with grain problems. In making this announcement, Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, stated that the decision had been made in view of the ever increasing number of problems respecting the production and marketing of Canadian grain.

The present acceptance of monies resulting from overages will be under the direction of the National Research Council and the order-in-council relative to the disposal of such monies among these lines has been passed. Expenditures will be made not only to subsidize and extend the various researches now under way in connection with grain problems, but also to undertake such work, but will make possible research on many pressing problems for which money heretofore has not been available.

In the opinion of the government, such research activity in the grain trade should, as far as possible, go toward the solving of the problems of the producer. And the most important problems in connection with which research has been going on for some time past is that of overlasting rust. The amount of money from overages in Canadian terminal elevators at the disposal of the government for the purposes mentioned is $219,000.

Food Shortage In Russia

Soviets Buying Huge Amount of Grain in Baltic

London, England. — Huge purchases of wheat on the Baltic Exchange by Soviet Russia are reported in London, traders here expressing the opinion that the movement indicates a severe scarcity of food in Russia.

The quantity in Liverpool for spot cash amounts to between 150,000 to 200,000 tons, and Baltic London brokers expect Russia to buy almost as large a quantity again.

The prices agreed to the almost negotiations thus far have been uniformly as much as 90 cents per quarter above the market rate, which is felt to indicate a tremendous immediate demand for grain.

London brokers say they have received reports of local queues and a painful shortage of food in Russia which before the war, was one of the world's largest exporters of grain.

Russia has not bought such supplies of wheat since the winter of 1919-1920

LOEWENSTEIN MEETS DEATH IN FALL FROM PLANE

London Captain Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian multi-millionaire capitalist, one of the world's richest and most picturesque financial figures in finance, went to his death when, as it appears, he inadvertently stepped overboard from his private aeroplane when it was flying over the English Channel, and fell into the sea.

The British Air Ministry announced that the Belgian Cresens had been picked up.

Loewenstein, according to the Air Ministry statement, set out from Amsterdam late Tuesday night for Brussels in his pantial machine one of the most luxurious ever built. At the time of the strange mishap he is believed to have been moving from one compartment to another and in doing so opened the door, which was stepping outward, he plunged into space

Another passenger on the plane followed Loewenstein after he had shifted from his position to speak to him. This passenger, whose name was not learned, found the door in the fuselage of the machine open and the financier missing

He immediately notified the pilot and the plane landed on the Dunkirk sands in France Later the plane proceeded to the aerodrome at Silingalvert, near Dunkirk

Captain Loewenstein, who visited Canada and the United States in April, perhaps was best known for his $50,000,000 loan offer to the Belgium Government in order that the Belgian franc might be stabilized

Loewenstein's school offer was refused shortly after a meteor across the horizon of European finance a few years after the World War. Returning Brussels for London he built a modest fortune into one of the largest financial empires in the world, but stunned positively with consistent success until 1928

Then the newspapers found out about his success and he became an other Clarence whose fortune itself and that of Hugo Stinnes, and whose affairs reached into every corner of the world.

The reporters in and many colorful stories in his life and many unpleasant in his early days later. It detailed letters while shaving, his profits were enormous for the amount of business with such powerful in his place, from cabling midnight until often times far into the night he had secretaries and stenographers at his office while he carried on his huge business.

Loewenstein was one of the greatest buyers and if accurate reports of his activities' business assets.

Insect Menace Slight

Winnipeg. There has not been a year when the west was more free from insects of all kinds in the present, declared Arthur Gibson, Ottawa, Dominion entomologist on arrival here en route home from a tour of inspection of the west. There was no sign anywhere of any insects harmful to crops he stated.

H. B. ROAD TO BE COMPLETED FOR SEASON 1930

Ottawa That the Hudson's Bay Railway will be completed to Churchill for the season of 1930 is the official belief of the engineers. It is unlikely, however, that the line itself will be completed so early as the railway time and a real test of the new northern route to the sea will be possible for three or four years.

Some 1,500,000 cubic yards of sand, gravel and boulders must be dredged from the bay before vessels can be established along the success or failure of the Bay route as a fact is considered that the dredging will not be completed early in 1930.

When the terminal of the railway is established at Port Nelson to Port Churchill an additional 154 miles of trackage was involved the Port Churchill terminal is that much greater. The engineer enthusiasts that eighty miles of the will be put into operation by December of the year, while by December, 1929 steel will be laid right to Port Churchill and the whistle of the locomotive will be heard across the Bay. This will enable the government to complete the road for the development of the harbor

In connection with the excavation of the locks and navigation channels one dredge was launched in Montreal a week ago and another will be launched next week. These dredges will be towed to Churchill in August and should reach there in September or they will not be operated until next year. In addition, a self-propelled hopper dredge will be added to Churchill recently and it will go north with the dredges in time for operations next year.

The department has purchased one tug and leased a second tug although it is understood from the Irish Free State for towing purposes in connection with the barges The government has also purchased a temporary dock out of local timber and the permanent docks will be constructed when the boulders at present have been dredged out. In the meantime supplies will be unloaded by lighter, and the Hudson's Bay route across the bay except at the site of the docks

The range-finding stations are being established by the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Hamilton Island and Cape Hope Advance, Nottingham Island, giving directions to incoming vessels entering the Hudson Strait.

Planning Farm Credits System

Legislation Passed Two Years Ago Soon to Become Effective

Ottawa.—It is announced at the Finance Department that within a very short time effect will be given to the legislation passed two years ago to establish a contingent provincial adherence establishing a system of farm credits Fly the legislation then passed the way was paved for Federal financing of the system in the province which went in the plan. Quebec, with a scheme of its own will not do so nor will Saskatchewan which is in the same position, while Quebec has not decided as yet

Four provinces, however Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia and Nova Scotia subscribe to it. In consequence, the project will go ahead. A Loan Commissioner will be appointed, and a central organization but not a large one, will be established at Ottawa.

The greater part of the administration, however, will be in the hands of the provinces

THE OBJECTS OF SERVICE CLUBS

In practically all towns and communities there are now Service Clubs of various kinds, which, while perhaps devoting a great part of their energies to specific lines of endeavor, nevertheless have one outstanding characteristic common to all. That is the establishing between man and man, whether competitor or not, whether rich or poor, whether of high or low degree in the community, a spirit of co-operation, good-will and mutual helpfulness. It is becoming daily more evident that much good can be accomplished and much better conditions established, if men will work in harmony; if they will help and support each other; if they will so conduct their affairs as to be reasonably fair to all with whom they may have business dealings.

The principle can best be exemplified, so far as business and professional men are concerned, by extending to each other in any community such business patronage as we may have to hand out, rather than extend such favors to those from distant towns or cities. Give to your home business houses all the patronage you possibly can.

Vernon Booher Is Placed Under Arrest

Taken into custody by Detective Sergeant F. Lesley of the Provincial police a few minutes after the inquest was concluded at Manville Tuesday evening, Vernon Booher, 30, was arrested on a charge of murdering his mother, Mrs. Elmire Booher, his 23 year old brother Fred, and Gabriel Gormoby and Wasyl Rosyk, on Monday, July 9th. The inquest was heard at the Orange Hall, with Chief Coroner Dr. Braithwaite of Edmonton, and Dr. Hendry, of Manville, coroner, conducting the hearing. The jury returned a verdict of murder by persons unknown.

Still sticking to the original story which he first told to the police on the morning following the murder, Vernon Booher denied all knowledge of the crime at the inquest. He was the first witness called and a stranger sitt went through the crowded room when he was called to the stand. Given the statutory warning, Booher was told that he would not be forced to give evidence unless he desired. Booher answered that he wanted to give evidence and was sworn in as a witness.

Vernon Booher's evidence was marked by the fact that he took long pauses before his responses and was continually prompted to continue after he had been given considerable time to start the next sentence.

He took the notes of his arrest calmly and asked that the statutory warning be explained more fully. He was taken to the hall a small one-room building, where he spent the night under guard with Constables Bayne and Standen in charge.

During the time the 24 year old axe brandy murderer was on the stand he spoke in a calm tone but kept his eyes averted from the crowd which stared at him

Constable F. A. Olsen, Vermilion who was the first police man to arrive on the scene of the murder described the conversation from the time

W. E. Scott, secretary of the local school district, who delivered the 1st receipt on the evening of the tragedy, said that he was at the Booher home between 7 and 7.15 p.m. He talked with Vernon for about three minutes in front of the house. When he arrived Vernon was pacing back and forth nervously and was tossing a pebble in his hand. While he was there Vernon told Wasyl Rosyk to feed the pigs.

Mr. Scott said that he met the Booher girls about half a mile from Manville when they were going into town to get the post office.

Robert Ross, Jr., who lives one mile from the Booher farm, said that he was working on the farm until late in the afternoon. He met Fred Booher driving between the two houses. They talked for awhile and then went over, to look at some cattle that Fred had been doing. They parted and Jack Ross proceeded home for supper and he definitely fixes the time at around 6 o'clock and believes that Fred arrived home about the same time. Mr. Ross did not think anything of the shooting and tended to his own furtheres until he heard two more shots at 8 p.m. They came from the same direction as the first, which was the Booher farm. Still Mr. Ross did not think anything was wrong until Vernon arrived at about 9 o'clock and said "Somebody has shot Fred and mother." Vernon was very excited, he said

Gabriel was hit by three bullets. Fred by two, Wasyl by two and Mrs. Booher by one. Dr. Bell of Vermilion testified. Fred was shot at a third time, the bullet piercing part of his hat but not touching his head

Henry Booher, husband of the murdered woman, and father of Fred and Vernon, described a quarrel which the boys had about a month before the murder. Vernon left home and returned about two weeks before the slayings. The quarrel was not referred to so far as he knew. At the time of the murder he was on his farm about five miles away from the Booher home which is situated on the farm occupied by Fred. Henry Booher said that he had offered to patch up the quarrel by inviting Fred to the place by himself. The boys did not agree with the proposition.

Charles E. Stevenson who lives a few miles from the Booher home, said that his 303 British Army rifle was missing when he made a search for it, it being gone from its usual hiding place while a box of shells for it, kept on a shelf, was also gone. He had loaned the rifle to Fred last fall for hunting and to kill a horse but it had been returned

Alfrida Booher the sister of Vernon, said that she left home in company with Dorothy at about 6 p. m. July 9, and had heard a shot when she was not more than 200 yards from the house. She did not think anything of it, and denied Vernon's statement that he was at the house at the time she left

Detective sergeant Lesley, head of the criminal investigation department of the Provincial Police was the last witness to be called before the jury retired and was on the stand for quite a long time.

The final verdict of the coroner's jury is as follows: Taking into consideration the position of the bodies when discovered, the corpse of the bullets as described by Dr. Bell, and the evidence given by Constable Olsen, Gabriel Gormoby and Wasyl Rosyk were killed instantly and not later than 8:30 p.m. on the same evening by bullets fired by some person unknown on July 9th on the Booher farm."

The jury was comprised of John Hawley, foreman, H. T. Taylor, Jack Cook, H. F. Towle, D. N. McFarlane and Stewart Ewing

Was President Of Alberta University

Dr. Wallace Of Manitoba Has Exceptional Attainments

Dr. R. C. Wallace, whose appointment to the presidency of the University of Alberta was officially announced recently, is at present head of the department of mineralogy and geology of Manitoba University and commissioner of mines for the province.

A man of exceptional erudition, Dr. Wallace came to Canada in 1910 from Scotland. In that year he became lecturer in geology and mineralogy and was appointed professor in that department.

He was born in Orkney, Scotland, and educated in Deerness Public School, Kirkwall Burgh Academy, Edinburgh University, where he obtained his first three degrees in 1901, 1907 and 1913, respectively, and Goettingen University, where he graduated with a Ph.D. degree in 1907.

In 1918 he was appointed commissioner for Northern Manitoba, with headquarters at The Pas, Man., a position he held until 1921 when he was appointed a member of the board of trustees of the provincial library and museum.

Dr. Wallace was elected vice-president of the Canadian institute of mining and metallurgy and a fellow of the Mineralogical Society of America. He is also a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and of the Geological Society, London.

In the midst of his arduous teaching, exploration and field work Dr. Wallace has found time to write copiously on the subjects to which he has earned fame.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Canadian National Railways' Tour To Great Britain and Denmark, 1928

The culmination of this eventful day in Denmark's capital was a reception and high tea at the house of Mr. E. Millington Eyres, who is in charge d'Affaires, where, as co-hosts with him, we entertained Mr. Madsen Mygdal, the Danish Prime Minister, and other representatives of Danes. Sickness prevented the expected appearance of Prince Axel, foreign sec'l with the official representative of the British Empire and never did we feel more proud of that Empire and Canada's share in it.

On our second morning we were away by 8.30 to visit the 132-acre farm of Mr. Carl Larsen en route to the Langager Co-operative Dairy, a typical small dairy serving about 150 farmers, where we found a warm welcome and a friend in Canada, the manager, Mr. Larsen, having a son, Mr. Axel Larsen in Winnipeg. At Mr. Jensen's farm we were introduced to Danish pigs and saw a splendid example of the better class of Danish farm houses, more than a few of which we entered, and never did we feel more proud of that Empire and Canada's share in it.

On our second morning we were away by 8.30 to visit the 132-acre farm of Mr. Carl Larsen en route to the Langager Co-operative Dairy, a typical small dairy serving about 150 farmers, where we found a warm welcome and a friend in Canada, the manager, Mr. Larsen, having a son, Mr. Axel Larsen in Winnipeg. At Mr. Jensen's farm we were introduced to Danish pigs and saw a splendid example of the better class of Danish farm houses, more than a few of which we entered, and never did we feel more proud of that Empire and Canada's share in it.

Our next stop was Frederiksaund Bacon Factory, a co-operative concern formed thirty-three years ago with a supply of 300 pigs a week. It is now a weekly supply of 2,500 pigs, handles eggs from 8,000 poultry farmers and does a business of 12,000,000 crowns. We were fortunate in meeting the director of the factory, Mr. F. Hiech, who has been in charge since its inception. He is probably the best informed man in Denmark in the cure bacon. He is secretary of the committee which meets weekly to fix the price to be paid for pigs and the bacon factories throughout the country, and chairman of the committee which fixes the prices to be paid for eggs by those bacon factories handling them. It is worth noting that Mr. Larsen perefers the Yorkshire, accounts it a poor a year when he fails to win the blue ribbon at the show from his own farm. His worst year was about 40 out of 42 shows.

This informative visit was followed by a tour of Frederiksborg Castle, founded by King Frederik II., and now a national museum of historical portraits and paintings and period rooms furnished in keeping with the period. Some perfect, huge, open fireset relief ceiling in Europe, but tastefully furnished throughout which we all brought away with us was of two pictures of many rooms, the one which portrayed the burial of the Danish King by the inhabitants of Schleswig-Holstein at the end of the war with Germany in 1865, and the other the welcome by the restored people to the Danish King when, after the Great War, he visited his reclaimed subjects and the buried flag, now brought forth in the light of day was presented to him. Passing through the province the King picked up a child and placed her on the pommel of his saddle. In this position he carried her with him through the acres of rejoicing, tears of joy in his cold, courtesy down the royal cheeks.

From the castle we passed to what was perhaps the strangest feature of our tour in Denmark. This was the People's High School at Frederiksborg. What, we had been asking ourselves, was the secret that the Danes possessed that went to make all Danes brothers, in a sense, not to be observed perhaps in any other nation. How did they co-operate so whole-heartedly and yet preserve their individuality. We believe we found it that afternoon, when Dr. Hyrup Hansen, principal of the Danish Folk High School. Here was a school attended, in winter, by pupils, and in summer by women in the following year, but it is more than an institution, where examinations are unknown, a type of school which is the owning of the public mind, but where supported in part by State funds, is nevertheless in no way answerable to the State as to its curriculum. What object could there be in such a school? Here is the answer: Schools like these do not exist for the imparting of knowledge, but for the development of understanding. The fare at schools such as these is plain, like Spartan. The cost per day, Fee at 6.45. The masters are fired by high patriotism and high ideals. The pupils are fired by the same passion and woman, says the Folk High School, and there will result a generation of the deeper values of life which will live pupils in good stead in all the crises of life. The practical value need not often be stressed, but will be understood and appreciated in their natural relation. If then co-operation has arisen among the Danish people, it has grown of itself, not because it was stressed but because it seemed natural and right to the people that existed. Whatever may be found to be the remainder of the trip of the teacher who is born, whose heart and soul are in his work, and whose work will live when he and his are gone.

Urge Early Adoption Of New Calendar

Treaty Will Be Drafted and Nations Asked To Sign

Universal adoption of a 13-month calendar—each month with 28 days—was tentatively set for 1933 by the international committee of the league of nations which met at Washington.

The committee, headed by George Eastman, Rochester, millionaire, Rochester, N.Y., is unofficial, but was created by Secretary Kellogg at the suggestion of the League of Nations.

The recommendations of the American committee will be considered with others, by the league. A treaty will be drafted and the leading powers of the world asked to sign.

Ten sub-committees were named by Eastman to investigate the details of industry, commerce, finance, transportation, science, labor, agriculture, journalism, social and educational organizations to change worldwide acceptance of the 28-day, 13-month calendar.

Hasheesh so far as he has studied the situation no objections have been registered against the recommendations. There is a general belief that it would take at least five years to put it into effect.

The Eastman committee was originated by Moses Cotsworth. The 13-months would account for 364 days in the calendar, and the day would follow after December 28th and would be called Year Day.

The first month, January 13, would be inserted as June 29 every fourth year. The new calendar all national holidays would be celebrated on Monday.

Dummy Battleship Commanded By Oldest Naval Officer On Active Service

How the oldest naval officer on active service commanded dummy battleships while the real ships were actively engaged in hostilities and tricked the enemy by the device of Captain W. H. Forbes, R.N., of Quemington, Gloucestershire.

When the war broke out Captain Forbes, who was 60, was living in retirement in Cheltenham. He volunteered for active service and was given command of a dummy ship called "K," stationed in Loch Ewe.

In 1915, when in his 70th year, he was given command of a fleet of dummy battleships in the Humber. He sailed in a reproduction of H.M.S. Tiger, called "No. 14," with three other elderly commanders.

These queer craft appeared off Gallipoli in the early months of 1915, dodging and deceiving enemy submarines.

Eventually the imitation Tiger was torpedoed, and most of her guns sinking they rose to the surface and floated away with their tremendous turrets of wood.

Her commander so admirably handled the situation that the only man had ever four killed by the explosion.

SAUL'S EARLY MINISTRY

Golden Text: "Straightway in the synagogues he proclaimed Jesus, that He is the Son of God."—Acts 9 20.

Lesson: Acts 9.19b-30; 11 19-30; 12.25; Galatians 1.15-18.

Devotional Reading: Romans 12. 1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Paul's Preparation in Arabia For His Ministry. Galatians 1.15-18. Luke says nothing about Paul's stay in Arabia, but Paul writes in the Epistle to the Galatians: "When it was the good pleasure of God to reveal His Son in me, that I might preach Him among the Gentiles, straightway I conferred not with flesh and blood, neither went I up to Jerusalem to them that were apostles before me; but I went away into Arabia, and again I returned unto Damascus." Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem." It was a voluntary portrate, a period of reflection and restraint, during which the truth which he had been so abruptly called to preach might be assimilated and clarified." Paul may have gone as far as Mount Sinai, yet it is possible that he went no farther than the desert region near Damascus, which might somewhat narrowly. It was into the solitude of Arabia that Mohammed retired for meditation on the Damascus road, and there he received the great revelation of new character was made, and the new understanding of his life in God.—Robert E. Speer.

THE WONDERS OF RADIUM

Although Widely Used It Is Still Something Of a Mystery

When medical men first used radium in surgery, our knowledge of that uncanny element was of the slightest. Even now, when so much can be achieved by its aid, this radio-active substance is called because of the radiations it is perpetually throwing off), is something of a mystery.

It is continually flying off the atoms of which it is composed—a kind of neon-stop high explosive in miniature. It does not explode and be finished, however narrowly. It was into the solitude of Arabia that Mohammed retired for meditation on the Damascus road, and there he received the great revelation of new character was made, and the new understanding of his life in God.—Robert E. CHAPTER XXVIII.—Continued

The willows that grew beside the river were shading to a misty green, yellow or red according to their kind—and the reeds began to whiten with the fuzz from the aspens.

But, on this twenty-fifth day of April there arose out of the west a sheer blue wall, the sort of a day boundless blue—a thick, deep cloud, in which silent lightnings played, and which was the herald of a huge storm that came. Whatever may be found to be the remainder of the trip of the teacher who is born, whose heart and soul are in his work, and whose work will live when he and his are gone.

Teeth and Health

Issued By The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council and Published By The Canadian Dental Society

TOOTH IS LONGER

Your child had tooth-ache one night and you were able to relieve his suffering by applications of oil of cloves in the cavity, and when the pain had subsided, you congratulated yourself that the trouble was ended for the time being. Imagine your surprise to find that the tooth was sore to bite upon, and broader than the others, so he said.

Then he was right; for in a sense the tooth was longer than its fellows. Just what happened?

Each tooth is suspended in a soft tissue sac which acts as a cushion between the tooth and its bone socket, breaking the jar when the tooth is in use.

And the inflammation which caused the tooth to ache, has spread from the pulp to this sac (or periodontium), which is richly supplied with blood vessels; thus, with the accompanying rush of blood, the sac has become swollen and so thickened.

Actually then, it is the base of the tooth in the socket a little, permitting it to lift the opposing teeth before others come together.

Now, of course, this needs attention, and because of the changes one acquires from the inflamed conditions it is advised to progress further but also for the reason that Sonny will do all in his power to "favor the side," in his endeavor to avoid using the sore tooth.

This continued long enough will form a habit making for a one-sided muscle development and leaving the tooth in the "sick side," because of this disuse more prone to decay.

Suddenly at the mouth of the cave, black and terrible, the dog stopped and pulled her by the hand. Helmi felt herself drawn into the mouth of blackness into which even the lightning could not penetrate. She found something soft and smooth to touch, and, stooping down, found a bed of hay, dry and comfortable, and in it the child, grateful to be out of the lashing fury of the storm.

The storm still roared in her ears, and the fear of the dark led to a vision of a wound like a roaring cataract

The Perennial Flower Border

Can Be Made to Add Beauty to Western Homes

The perennial flower border can be made the pride of the home in the west. The season of 1927 is reported by the superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Farm as to have been almost an ideal season for herbaceous plants. A bountiful supply of moisture in the soil proved an effective protection and the plants came through the winter's cold and dry weather in good shape, no losses being sustained. In seasons of good rainfall such perennials as have proved true to colour and habit, Trollius, do particularly well. Delphinium and Paeonies thrived abundantly, and showed profusion of bloom. The conspicuous June-flowering Eremurus Robustus produced blooms eight feet high. The Shasta Daisy continued introduction, did splendidly. It produces large flowers continuing to bloom over a long period. It particularly fine effect was produced in the border by a combination of Delphinium and the old Yellow Mullein. Some effective lilies such as Willmottiae, Henryi, Batemaniae and Hansonis, produced very lovely results

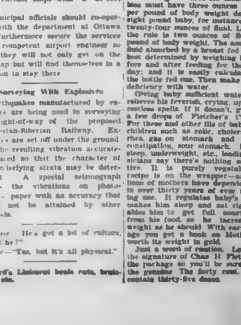
"How Much Should Baby Get?"
A Famous Authority's Rule
By Ruth Bryan



Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An authority on infant nutrition, feeds twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, sea on stomach and bowels, sour stomach, loss of appetite, sleep, underweight, etc., feeding physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable (the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of every increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine The forty cent bottle contain thirty-five doses.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its introduction.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier antacid acts. Prove let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

DO'T suffer headaches, or any of those pains a tablet of Aspirin can end in a few minutes. Genuine Aspirin prescribed by Physicians for 24 years. Proved safe by millions. Now made in Canada. Bayer Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer will be stamped with the Bayer Cross.

Fred Miller who has been attending college at Iowa found summer has returned to Vermilion for the summer vacation.

Ben Jacklin is redecorating for an open air Pelican Lake school and it is reported his efforts will meet with the approval of the parents.

G. H. Whitson passed through town Tuesday on his way home to Manville, after an absence of a week in the Saskatchewan river country where he was making an official inspection into the condition of roads and bridges.

J. Law was declared elected by acclamation on the Alexandra school board Saturday, succeeding C. V. Cooper, lately removed to Edmonton.

While burning brush during the past month Arthur Newark Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Caroline Sayers of the fourth side, was suddenly overcome with heart failure, opposite the residence of Mrs. W. P. Pithie expiring almost immediately.

Jas. Kennedy prominent young Vermilion business man, passed away suddenly Sunday morning at the Royal Alexandra Hospital, Edmonton at the age of 25 years. The deceased had been associated with the business life of the town since six years ago, being now on the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and later with the Hay Ward Lumber company. About two years ago he accepted the manager-ship of a lumber yard at Leduc. In the early part of last year he returned to Vermilion opening in the lumber line as before. He is survived by a widow and infant child.

Permits for seven two-story frame houses on concrete foundations have been taken out by the Northern & Vermilion Development Co. Ltd.

Tenders are being called for a new school house at Sparrow Creek to replace the one destroyed a few weeks ago by lightning.

"The Three Falcons" Vermilion Fair, Aug. 2-3-4

The Three Falcons, who will present their snappy comedy aerial ring act on one of the highest in the excellent program of open-air attractions arranged by the management of the Vermilion Fair for next year's patrons, have a number replete with fun and clean entertainment.

In writing about his act, Fred Pelham says: "To produce a combination of thrills and laughs in one act is no easy thing, but I believe the Falcons' ring surpass all other kinds of apparatus for this purpose. We have tried the trapeze and found it lacking. While it gives the boys a chance to rest up on the bar and a solid place to aid and stand on, it doesn't permit of enough opportunity for comedy, daring stunts and fast work. Performers as a rule prefer the trapeze as it gives them a breathing spell, if their act is fast. As we are always anxious to put our number over with dashing speed, we are willing to forego the short rest periods and so use the rings."

The trio furnish eight to ten minutes of rapid fire work and in this seemingly short time, do more difficult tricks than it would seem possible to accomplish if they were done more deliberately over a greater length of time.

To show that they are versatile, the three men do another act later in the show. It is a high class exhibition of tumbling and hand to hand balancing, posing and a series of hand-stops atop of a high pole that rests on a table supported by a tabli. This pole has but one support, that of a rope held in the teeth of one of the performers.

The white pine is one of Canada's most important trees. It prevents waste lands, and thousands of young trees have been set out in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, by private owners with planting stock provided by the provincial governments.

Something New in Concert Programs

What may be claimed as an entire musical novelty will be given with the appearance at the Columbia Theatre, Vermilion, on Monday, July 23rd of Edward Deane-Bowe's most famous Westminster Glee Singers, who are known so well all over the English-speaking world. To these gifted performers the usual conventionalities of the customary concert programme are anathema. They have discarded them all and present their delightful music in fitting stage surroundings, with a charm and intimacy which are beyond all praise. The Glee Singers are a unique combination of boy sopranos and adults who specialise in Old British music, without instrumental accompaniment, and sang with that perfection of blend and ensemble which has for centuries been the outstanding acquirement of English Cathedral Choirs. They are drawn from such famous places as Westminster Abbey, Worcester Cathedral, St. George's, Windsor, and St. Paul's Cathedral. Their repertoire of 150 pieces of part-music embraces all styles, and many of the delightful old Folk Songs, Sea Chanties, Glees and Part Songs so well-known the world over, will be found in their programme. In these days of musical change the Quartette is emphatically necessary, and to this end a large selection of humorous quartets, plantation songs, vocal dances, solos with an accompaniment of voices, and many other novelties have been included in the repertoire.

Lord Rodney, who farms a thousand acres of land in the Edmonton district has signed a Wheat Pool contract. The Duke of Sutherland's 7,000 acre farm at Brooks has also been placed under a Second Series contract

Identifying the "Finest of Low Priced Sixes"

THE Pontiac emblem, now a familiar sight on every highway, is the distinguishing mark of the world's finest low-priced six.

It identifies the smoothness of Pontiac's Six-cylinder engine, with its new improved G-M-R cylinder-head . . the enduring qualities of Pontiac's sturdy chassis . . the easy-riding comfort of Pontiac's Lovejoy Shock-Absorbers . . the countless refinements of engineering and construction that spell "quality" in a motor-car.

And, just beside the hood of the New Series Pontiac Six is another symbol of a fine automobile . . the "Body by Fisher" emblem, with all that it implies of luxury, craftsmanship and stylish beauty. Pontiac is the lowest-priced six which can claim this distinction of "Body by Fisher".

Whenever you see the familiar "Indian Head" emblem, and say "There goes the New Pontiac Six", you are identifying, beyond doubt, the world's finest of low-priced sixes. P-10-7-28C

Canadian Arctic Explorer Heads Expedition For Purpose Of Locating the Magnetic Pole

In quest of treasure relics and to conduct important Arctic research work, Major L. T. Burwash, war veteran, Arctic explorer, author and Canadian government official, will leave shortly on a 5,000 mile jaunt to end of the magnetic pole.

Travelling by rail, boat and dog team, Major Burwash will traverse nearly 900 miles of icy Arctic waters, with only native Eskimos, a stray trapper or fur trader, to assist him to navigate a forty foot government launch. His destination at the magnetic pole cannot be reached until late in December or October. His task will not be completed before the autumn of 1929.

At "the top of the world," Major Burwash will make a scientific examination to determine the extent to which the magnetic pole has shifted since Amundsen made his investigation about 1908. Each year the magnetic pole varies in a westerly direction; and its present position, once secured, will be noted on the charts of mariners who ply the seven seas.

Records of the ill-fated expedition of Sir John Franklin—central figure in the chapter of Arctic exploration of the nineteenth century—will also be sought by Major Burwash. The two ships "Erebus" and "Terror", carrying the Franklin party, met disaster near the magnetic pole in 1845. Some of the records were found on Boothia peninsula; and it is said that one of these ships may be seen in the Arctic ocean somewhere between the Mackenzie River and Point Barrow. If this theory is found to be correct, the ship may be lifted to obtain for Canada the invaluable records and relics believed to be aboard her.

Conditions among the Eskimos north of the districts of Mackenzie and Keewatin will be examined by Major Burwash, and his survey in that district will be the first since one of the Eskimos was transported from the Indian Department of the North West Territories and Yukon branch early this year. An examination of navigation conditions in Franklin Strait and Peel Sound will be made; and, in addition, Major Burwash will investigate the proposed tractor-train route from Wager Bay on the west coast of Hudson Bay to Canadian Bay south of King William Island.

The Modern Midas

Birds Ride On Airplanes and Horses On Motor Trucks.

Airmen declare that birds are not afraid of airplanes as they used to be. Now the birds make use of them to help them in their long flights. It is not uncommon, airmen say, to find ten or twenty birds hooking a ride on machines attached on the machine and being relieved of much effort and fatigue on a long flight.

Not long ago we saw two horses being hauled to market on a motor truck at a swifter pace than any horse ever travelled before. They seemed interested in the scenery. — Calgary Herald.

To Preserve Children

Take one large greasy field, one half dozen children, two or three small dogs, a pinch of brook and some pebbles to taste. Combine and dodge well together and put them in the field, stirring constantly. Pour the brook over the pebbles and sprinkle the field with flowers. Spread over all a deep blue sky and bake in the sun. When brown remove and place in a bath tub to cool. Health Bulletin.

ALL FOODS CONTAIN WATER

Body Gets Sufficient Even If People Drink Little

Water is absolutely essential if the body is to keep its active parts. It is necessary not only to aid in building up the tissue, but in order to permit the carrying on of all of the chemical and physical functions that take place.

Most of us get more water than we drink as much through the fact that practically every food substance contains some water and most of the beverages are practically entirely water. Milk contains 86 per cent. water, wines anywhere from 85 to 95 per cent., and even distilled alcoholic drinks are usually more than one-half water.

If both food and water are withheld, life cannot be prolonged for more than eight or ten days. With air and water life can be prolonged for a considerable time, even though food is not given. Professional fasters always drink water during the starvation period. Some of them carry on from three to five weeks without food.

Milk is probably the best of all beverages, particularly when it is taken from properly inspected cows under sanitary conditions, transported and clean conditioning to the place where it is used, and pasteurized in most instances before use.

Lemonade and other drinks made from citrus fruits are excellent because they counteract acidity in the body and serve as a valuable source of vitamin C.

Tea and coffee are good beverages if taken in moderation; if taken in excess, overstimulation may result due to an overdose of the drug called caffein, which has the power of stimulating the higher centres of the brain. Tea varies in its qualities according to the manner in which it is prepared.

One expert recommends that the proper way to make tea is to pour it off the leaves after five minutes, putting it in another warmed teapot.

Soda water, pops and similar beverages have a certain value; due to the amount of carbonated they contain.—By Dr. Morris Fishbein.

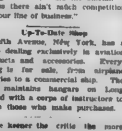
Here To Be Successful

It is yearly becoming more difficult for persuading young doctors to practice in this country. Young doctors who have plenty of courage and are determined to succeed and who go to settle in the country and practice their calling there in an intelligent manner make a quicker and bigger success than three-fourths of their colleagues who have settled in the cities. If they do not actually attain great fame, which is reserved for the public life often takes hold of them, bringing them with it.

Must Have Been Some Clock

The Provost of the little Scottish town was noted for his unhappy choice of phrases, but he excelled himself on the occasion of the presentation of a clock and a purse to a local resident who was leaving the town.

"The contents of the purse," said the Provost, "will in time inevitably disappear, but," he added, placing his hands on the clock, "here is something which will never go



Footprints, taken on the lines of our fingerprint system, are now being used for identifying criminals in Ceylon

Getting Over the Difficulty

A man who had great difficulty in spelling words that had "ei" and "ie" in them mentioned the matter to a friend.

"Oh," said the friend, "I have a splendid remedy for that. It's infallible, too. I've used it for years and never been let down yet."

The first man expressed his delight and interest, then waited for enlightenment.

"The rule is this," the friend declared: "Write your 'i' and 'e' exactly alike, and be sure and put your dot exactly between the pair of them."

Not Much Competition

The immigration official was examining an Englishman on his arrival in New York. "And what do you propose to do now you are in the United States?" he inquired.

"Oh, I don't care," replied the Englishman hopefully. "Anything to earn an honest living." "Well, come along in, then," said the official. "I guess there ain't much competition in your line of business."

Up-To-Date Shop

Fifth Avenue, New York, has a shop dealing exclusively in aviation products and accessories. Everything is for sale, from airplane goggles to a commercial ship. The shop maintains hangars on Long Island with a corps of instructors to teach those who make purchases.

The keener the critic the more cutting the criticism.

Turning the Tables

Automobilist Receives Bill For Damage Done To Locomotive

Tony Straber's warning to automobile owners is this: When driving your car into a railroad train be careful not to damage the locomotive.

Tony's car and a Grand Trunk train were involved in an argument over the right-of-way at Western Avenue near 104th Street Chicago, last November. The automobile wound up in a ditch in a status described by Tony's writers as "twisted wreckage."

Recently Tony got a letter from the Grand Trunk Railroad. It made no mention of his automobile, confining itself to the following succinct sentence:

"Inclosed please find bill for $29.18 for damage to our locomotive No. 6038."

Asphalt Highway Across Canada

Union of Canadian Municipalities Has An Ambitious Program

Immediate construction of an asphalt highway right across Canada was urged at the 20th Annual Convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities at Winnipeg. Dominion and Provincial Governments will be memorialised as to the necessity for such a road. It is estimated that the cost would be $50,000,000 and construction would occupy five years. It would afford to motorists across to much of the most beautiful scenery on the continent, and in view of the vast number from the United States who are now touring in Canada each summer the expenditure would not be without direct financial returns.

The fact that Nero was a fiddler instead of a saxophone player must have been some satisfaction to the Romans

Great political reforms are set in motion by the hand that rocks the cradle

Partial knowledge and assumptions based on insufficient data have been responsible for many mistaken judgments and belief in obstacles that had no real existence. Evidence of this abounds in the pages of history, and the process of revising and rectifying long-established opinions continues with little sign of abatement. Until recently belief persisted that the interior of the island continent of Australia was a rocky and barren desert, where explorers ran grave risk of perishing miserably for lack of water. Now, with more extensive and accurate knowledge, the vast central region of Australia has assumed a widely different aspect, with many districts well adapted for productive use and with ample water resources, that only need to be tapped to make the wilderness blossom as the rose

Canada is now undergoing a similar process, with the result that many obstacles to unification of interest once deemed insuperable, are now disappearing in the light of better knowledge. Not so long ago men whose views were regarded as authoritative gave to the clay belt of North Ontario and in the so-called barren lands of the great Northwest Territories that descend Eastern and Western Canada to perpetual isolation, one from the other. Those imaginary barren and infertile tracts occupied an area amounting approximately to one-sixth of the total area of the Dominion. Until recently these ideas remained fixed convictions in the minds of most Canadians, accepted as hardships imposed by nature and incapable of more than alleviation to a limited degree. Gradually, through the penetration of these regions by the surveyors and prospectors of the topographical survey, it has increasingly become evident that the older conception is due for radical revision

Officials and travellers, in the days when Canada and Western North America were unknown quantities, often registered judgments for themselves that seem ridiculous. A British official is said to have condemned the territory, now occupied by the states of Oregon and Washington, as worthless because the fish of one of its numerous streams would not rise to a favorite artificial fly. How the name "Barren Grounds" came to be applied to what has been proved to rank among the most fertile areas in the world, is contained in the account of the exploratory journeys of Henry Kelsey in the last quarter of the seventeenth century. Among that traveller's longest journeys one came between 1690 and 1692, when he journeyed from Port Nelson on Hudson's Bay westward by way of the Nepre and Saskatchewan rivers. Undertaken primarily to investigate the fur trade possibilities of the country, its agricultural potentialities never seem to have occurred on him

A thousand miles north of Mcleay's route, beyond the forested lands of the Canadian west and stretching to the Arctic Ocean and Hudson's Bay, are the Great Northern plains to which his descriptive epithet has been mistakenly transferred. The picture drawn by the explorers of today, remarks the Brandon Sun, reveals a treed and gently undulating country with lichens and mosses on the hills, and shrubs, flowers and grasses flourishing in the valleys. True, no trees grow north of the timber line, and certain areas lack vegetation. But the greater part of the region is so far from being barren that it actually supports at the present time, in addition to the fur-bearers and musk-oxen hundreds of thousands of caribou

Wheat Pool Members

Whereas climatic and other conditions over which the Farmer had no control, have prevented a number of Pool Members from delivering their wheat prior to the date set for cut-off, July 16th, 1928, the Board of Directors by resolution passed this 17th day of July, 1928, have authorized that any street wheat delivered at, or carload lots billed out of country house on or before July 31st, 1928, be settled for on a basis of the 1927-28 Pool prices.

Members delivering wheat between the dates July 16 and August 1, will receive the initial payment on the 1928-29 initial payment schedule, but an adjustment will be made by the Pool Head Office which will bring the payment up to the 1927-28 Pool average price.

The Vermilion Turf Club will provide a big three day racing program for the Vermilion Fair on August 2, 3 and 4. This is one of the features of the annual meeting held last week. The money offered will amount to $1500, the sum above the largest offering made by the club in its history. On the first day the card will include a 2-17 class and an open run. For the first event $150 is being provided and $100 for the second. On the second day the items will be an open run, a green harness and a local running race for which purses of $100, $75, and $50 respectively are allocated.

On the last day there will be the free for all, carrying a purse of $177, a pony race with $50 as the offer and a one mile novelty race with $100 as the attraction. This last is open.

The club inaugurated a new departure this year in that the green harness, local running and pony races are confined to owners of horses residing within 20 miles of Vermilion. The idea of this is to create a local interest and develop the horse flesh in the district tributary to the Fair.

The officers elected for the year were: President, Wm. Telford, Vice-President, J.A.M. Craig; Sec.-Treas., C. W. Robinson, and an executive of thirteen members.

From the number of inquiries already on hand the club are confident the programme arranged for this season's races will eclipse any that have been caused over the Fair track in many years. Steps will be taken to have the track put into perfect condition at once.

DR. R. C. WALLACE NAMED AS UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

The appointment of Dr. R. C. Wallace, professor of geology at the University of Manitoba, to the presidency of the University of Alberta to succeed Dr. H. M. Tory who recently resigned to become chairman of the National Research Council of Canada, has been announced during the past week by Hon. Perrye Baker, Minister of Education, in the absence of Premier Brownlee. Dr. Wallace brings to the position of president not only a high degree of scholarship, but also a wide experience in administrative work outside the usual field of university activities. During the past few years he has held the post of Commissioner of Mines for the province of Manitoba, and he is also a past president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. It is felt that Dr. Wallace's training and experience along geological lines will be of considerable value in connection with many of the problems relating to the development of Alberta mineral and other resources.

Mrs. J. W. Hobbis is enjoying a month's holidays at Calgary, visiting her daughter, Mrs. Nash. It is just 20 years ago since the last Mrs. left town on a train. On the 8th of June, 1908, Mr. and Mrs. Hobbis came from England with eight children, two boys being already over here neither of them had been on a train since that time and "Dad's" turn is yet to come. The family have gone through the pioneering stage of the ox team, then horses and now son Norman has bought an auto so that mother will be able to enjoy some pleasant outings on her return home. "J. W." has also been busy and is building a new frame kitchen to the house—and as a further surprise. It will be remembered that Mrs. Hobbis suffered a severe accident early in the summer by walking into an open trap door and falling into the cellar. There is still truth in the old proverb that "Everything comes to those who wait."

Performance Style Luxury Quality at Low Cost

If you could have exactly the kind of car you wanted, what are the features you would demand?

You would want Performance . . . response to speed long, trying trips.

Then you would want Style, of course,—the latest word in body design, lines, hue, rainy luxury—and Comfort and long, restful riding. You would want the distinction of Body by Fisher.

And you would like a Luxurious car . . . one with wide, deep, cushions that invited rest . . . with rich and beautiful upholsteries and fine interior appointments . . . one with every protection against the weather with ease and smoothness of riding.

Last, but by no means least, you would demand Quality . . . substantial construction . . . refinements such as Four-Wheel Brakes, Air-Cleaner, Oil Filter, Shock Absorbers, Ventilating Windshield, Fisher Ventilating Cowl, Fisher Genuine Tools in rear and so forth . . . Quality in all things and Quality of outstanding distinction!

These are the things everyone would like to have in a car . . . and they everyone CAN have, for the first time in automobile history, at the low cost of the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet.

ANGLE LAKE NEWS

A fine assortment of apple pies and ice cream will draw a crowd to the lake-side July 19th. Both young and older folks participated in the sports which consisted of racing swimming, base ball and last but not least a tennis court. The days activities ended with an old time dance in Mr Algots furnished room which had been cleared up for that occasion.

So successful was the day that it was decided by the U F A. local to hold another picnic of similar nature July 28 to which all are welcome.

CLANDONALD WINS MARWAYNE BALL TOURNEY

The Clandonald ball team walked away with first prize in the premier event of the Marwayne sports a week ago Wed. defeating the strong Lloydminster bunch in the first encounter and then routing the Marwayne boys to cop the baton. All the games were of the nip and tuck variety, the score of the final being 5 - 4

The Islay girls were the successful contestants in the basketball struggle winning from Kitscoty 11-2 in the final encounter and then subduing the lilac-time amazons in a tight game 8 - 5.

The sports as a whole were a huge success every 12th people paying admission to the grounds.

KINSHELLA — ALLEN

St. Joseph's Church, Duaine, Ontario was the scene of a very pretty wedding on June 12th, wh n Rev. Fr. M. McCabe united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Mary Myrtle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H Allen, and Henry Kinshella, son of Mr and Mrs. Michael Kinshella of Dewberry, Alta

The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin and Venetian lace, trimmed with pearls. She wore silver brocaded slippers, white hose and an embroidered silk net veil with coronet of pearls and rhinestones and carried a bouquet of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley

The bride was attended by her sister, Florence, who wore a beautiful coral georgette dress silver shoes and hose and a large picture hat to match She carried a bouquet of deep pink roses. Burt, brother of the bride, assisted the groom.

The wedding march was played by Miss Mabel Allen as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Mrs. Helen Tooke sang at the bride and "Ave Maria" after which she was escorted by Miss Mary Quinlan and Mr Jos n Shenbath

The groom's gift to the bride was a white gold bar pin set with sapphires and brilliants, to the bridesmaid a white gold bar pin set with emeralds, and to the groomsman a white gold scarf pin with onyx setting After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents where a wedding dinner was served to about sixty-five guests The young couple received many beautiful and useful gifts showing the high esteem in which they were held

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. John Smith and daughter Kathryn, of Berwyn, Illinois; Miss Nancy Anderson of Mohawk, and Mrs Chas Foster of Warsaw. Mr and Mrs T Cavanagh of Edmonton and Mrs Mary Kyllo, Mrs. Gertrude Tobin, Mr. Bridget Sullivan Mr and Mrs Edward O'Toole, and daughter Helen, and son Jack, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Allen, Miss Irene McMurray and Mr and Mrs P Zahn all of Pierceton

After a time spent in visit among friends and relatives, Mr and Mrs Kinshella left for District Michigan, where they will make their home The bride travelled in a sand georgette dress, fur-trimmed coat, large picture hat and blonde shoes with hose, gloves and purse to match

PERENNIAL SOW THISTLE

Perennial sow Thistle often referred to as dandelion, blue lettuce and annual sow thistle, is the most dangerous of all noxious weeds. It is moving westward and is well established at present in most railway parts of western Saskatchewan and Alberta, but has not as yet spread to any extent in the adjoining fields. The roots of this weed extend along about four inches below the surface of the ground and some plants grow from such roots more than the same season grows and make their first appearance in late May and June in the form of a rosette of leaves often mistaken for dandelion as mentioned above. They differ however, in that the leaves are thicker, stiffer and more green. This weed is very hard to eradicate and spreads very rapidly It is valued by railway land, and right of ways in most western provinces we have the best way available to fight this pest, and we must act now with decision. In case this weed spreads onto fields we are bound later to have the same experience as the farmers of the Red River valley in Manitoba where a well known professor of agriculture has stated that if the weed had been exterminated a few years ago at the cost of $5 per acre, the money would have well expended. Everyone should exercise vigilance and action promptly your councilor and send specimens for identification. The noxious weed pest is a mutual problem and call for close co-operation between all others for their own well being.

R J Bowe, Weed Inspector.

EVERY TWO MINUTES
OF EVERY BUSINESS DAY · · · SOMEONE IN CANADA BUYS A NEW GENERAL MOTORS CAR

SINCE the days of Confederation, General Motors of Canada Limited has been supplying Canada with transportation. Each year as requirements have multiplied, the scope of General Motors service has widened . . the quality of General Motors cars has steadily improved. Each year more Canadians have looked to General Motors for better automobiles, until now, every two minutes of every business day, someone in Canada buys a new General Motors car.

These cars are bought by people you know . . by people like yourself . . for the very reasons which would guide you in the choice of a car.

They are bought because they are the product of the most progressive organization in the world's most progressive industry . . because they reflect the General Motors policy of constant advancement . . because they are better cars. . .

They represent the latest developments of the world's leading automotive research laboratory, offering these developments to the public as soon as they become available. They are proved in advance, at the expense of General Motors, not the public. They are better cars because they are Canadian cars.

And they embody greater value because of General Motors money-saving methods of quantity buying and volume production.

This popularity of General Motors cars holds more than a passing interest for the Canadian car buyer . . for General Motors utilizes increased demand to reduce production costs and so offer still more outstanding automobile value.

The Immigration Problem

Probably no single question affecting the national life of Canada has called for and received greater attention within recent months than the subject of immigration. It has been debated in church assemblies, Labor Unions, war veteran bodies, in Parliament and Legislatures, in the press and upon the public platform. Committees have spent weeks and months studying the problem and have issued reports. The net result is that the Government is advised and urged to adopt this policy and that policy, each one mutually destructive of the other.

On the one hand there are those who contend that only those immigrants who will engage in agriculture should be allowed to enter the Dominion, and that artisans, laborers, and those who naturally locate in cities and large centres of population should be excluded. Others would throw the doors wide open to all classes providing only that they must be healthy both morally and physically, able and willing to work, and content to abide by and uphold the laws of the Dominion.

Then there are those who would draw a purely racial line of demarkation. They would entirely exclude the so-called "yellow" races; they would bar the negro, they would put a stop to the admission of immigrants from the countries of southern and central Europe; in a word, they would rigidly restrict all immigration except that of people born and bred in the British Isles and speaking the English language.

Still another group places the chief emphasis upon the religion of immigrants. They are opposed to those of other religions than their own. Even if the immigrant be from the British Isles, they have slight welcome for him unless he also be of their religious faith.

So the Government is told that only agriculturists should be admitted into the Dominion, and then only provided they are of the white race, and of certain religious faiths, hail from British Isles, and speak the English language. Provided they are of British descent, such immigrants might also be admitted to Canada from the United States.

To begin with, no Government under the British flag, and having the slightest regard for that cardinal British principle, liberty of conscience, will recognize or enforce any bar to immigration based on the religious convictions of the intending immigrant. To do so would be abhorrent to the great mass of the Canadian people and would be equivalent to declaring to the world that Canada was no longer British.

It is equally true that an overwhelming majority of the people of Canada, and the includes all Governments, would like to see a large increase in immigration from the British Isles, but every possible effort is put forth to accomplish this result. Why is it, then, that the annual influx of British immigrants is not much larger?

There are many reasons, but a few may be cited. The number of the British agricultural class is not large, and the surplus available for emigration is practically negligible British agriculturists can be well employed at home.

In the British Isles, the women largely outnumber the men. Some millions of British women are condemned to spinsterhood. For this and other reasons they are invading many employment fields formerly occupied by men, and the necessities of the war gave a great impetus to this movement.

The effect is seen in the rapidly declining birth-rate In England and Wales the birth-rate fell last year to 16.7 per thousand of the population, as compared with 24.1 in 1913, the last year before the war. In other words, the birth-rate has declined one-third in the short space of fifteen years. There is not, therefore, the same tremendous urge to emigrate as was the case in years gone by

As a matter of cold fact, the birth-rate is declining among all the white nations. It has long been declining in France; it is declining in Italy, Germany the United States, Canada. Observers and students in Great Britain, while some in Canada, do not appear to be worried over the inter-mingling of the white people of different nationalities, but they do entertain some fear that, with declining birth-rates almost universal among the peoples of the white nations, the white race will lose its supremacy and world leadership. Whether or not forsooth the day when the "quota" law of the United States will be unnecessary so far as Europe is concerned, because there will be a shortage of "whites" to send, is a matter of some surprise to emigrate.

Notwithstanding the difficulties in the way, and the many conflicting views that prevail it is agreed by most Canadians that this Dominion is in need of a much larger population, and that it is not being provided for by natural increase as a result of the prevailing low birth-rate. If immigration to Canada is to be increased, then there must be some compromise effected between those who favor agriculturists only, and those who would admit other alsb bodied workers; also compromise between those who would admit only those who would serve to swell the ranks of their particular religious denomination, and some compromise on the basis of ability to speak English is the hallmark of good citizenship and the only guarantee of success

The Minister Of Agriculture

Hon. Mr. Motherwell Signally Honored By the Province Of Quebec

The honor conferred upon Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, by the Quebec provincial government, must surely be a particularly gratifying mark of distinction. At the recent convention of the Society of Canadian Technical Agriculturists, the province of Quebec bestowed the order of Commander of Agricultural Merit upon Mr. Motherwell.

Many statesmen in the past have been honored for having achieved great things in war and in diplomacy. Mr. Motherwell's distinction has been won in the realm of the plough-share rather than of the sword. Millions of blades are annually unsheathed in Canada under the energetic spur of the minister, but they are blades of wheat instead of the rattle of machine guns, the roar of tanks, the concussing of Mr. Motherwell's army is heralded by rappers, tractors and threshing machines, and his triumphs are to honor such generalships of peace.—Ottawa Citizen

WAS VERY DELICATE

New Health Came Through Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Mrs. Caspar Miller, Lourdes, N.S., says that I have to thank her illness as his reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. She says:—"I was a very delicate girl going into womanhood, when I first found benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was a sufferer with nervous trouble for months and was hardly able to move around at all. I was no longer fit company for a friend came in to see me, and she said to her, 'Why, my dear, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I know they will do her a world of good.' The result was my mother got six boxes and I began their use, and I found benefit from the very first. By the time I had taken them all I felt an entirely different girl. My new health was hardly able to move around at all. I was no longer fit company for a friend came in to see me, and she said to her, 'Why, my dear, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I know they will do her a world of good.' The result was my mother got six boxes and I began their use, and I found benefit from the very first. By the time I had taken them all I felt an entirely different girl. My new health and strength were due entirely to these pills through my dealer in medicine, or by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canada's Mining Industry

The investment in the operating mineral enterprises of Canada is now over 700 million dollars, and the net income annually from sales of products of the mines exceeds one-third of the value mentioned. During the past five years $136,000,000 has gone into the mining industries of Canada.

Miller's Worm Powders are sweet and palatable to children, who show no hesitancy in taking them. They are a scientifically high worm destroying and expelling medicine, yet very mild in their action. Mothers should not hesitate to give them to their children at any time that the worms cause the slightest trouble. They are harmless and impairing in no way the health of the system most beneficial to development.

Linen Aeroplanes

Metalized linen, a new fabric, may bring about a complete change in the construction of aircraft It has the tensile strength of over 100 lbs. per foot width, and is very light. As aeroplane half the present weight, and consequently over-powering can be constructed from such a fabric, it is said, while petrol tins for the Atlantic flight could be made of metalized material lighter than the cloth of aluminium.

Brings Trophy To Canada

Joe Wright, Toronto, Wins Diamond Sculls At Henley

For the second time in history the Diamond Sculls, premier event for the supremacy of amateur scullers in the world, was won by a Canadian, when Joe Wright, of the Argonaut Rowing Club, Toronto, defeated R. T. Lee, of Worcester College, Oxford, in the final heat by a full length. In avenging his unlucky defeat of 1927, the 21-year-old Argonaut sculler will take the premier amateur singles diadem to Canada for the first time since 1904 when Lou Scholes, of Toronto, won the honor.

The Torontonian from whom victory was snatched by a misfortune in last year's final against Lee, accomplished his revenge 42 seconds faster than Lee's time last year, when the Canadian craft met disaster 10 feet from the finishing point.

Ever since Wright's defeat in 1927, when he showed his superiority over Lee only to lose the race when his oar became entangled in a punt rope and he fell out of his boat, he has set his triumph. The Argo sculler had expressed his determination to vindicate himself, but in his hope that the draw would keep Lee and himself in different halves so that they would be matched in the semi-finals against each other in the final race.

Captain Lou Scholes, of Toronto, was the only other Canadian to win the Henley singles classic, winning the event in 1904. Wright is the son of Joe Wright, Sr., who acted as his son's coach, and who was a famous sculler in his younger days. Joe Wright, Sr., now a stockbroker in Toronto, was formerly a rowing coach at several universities in the U.S.

Canadian Government Watches Over People in Desolate Regions

North America, one must assume, has got its affairs into very good order when, as a matter of interest to administration, the Canadian Government imports reindeer to supply food for Eskimos in places far removed from its distant and desolate regions, along the Mackenzie River. Not the extremest part of the Dominion, territories outside the attention of authorities. Very little time has passed since Eskimos of the Western Arctic islands of the great plains starved on occasion or died of disease without notice, but now word is forthcoming about the Arctic Ocean are under observation.

A Labor Saving Machine

New Device Polishes Glasses At Rate Of Ten a Minute

A device which washes, sterilizes, dries and polishes drinking glasses and says nine at the rate of ten a minute, has been invented by a young Englishman.

A lumber placed on a spindle, is embraced both inside and outside by revolving rubber squeegees. As the spindle is made to rotate by an electric motor, a flow of fresh sterilized water is ejected over the entire surface of the glass. The glass is then transferred to a second spindle, on which it is dried and polished by a similar pair of squeegees. In addition to saving labor, the machine is said to reduce breakage to a minimum.

Most Unique

Most unique are pretty much akin to the savage person, but those persons from South-western Texas, say that is only one real orange that is the variety that grows in the sandy dirt of that State. To give an idea of the fondness Texans living near the Rio Grande have for their native onions a woman recently arrived in New York with a trunkful which she turned over to the chef of the hotel where she stayed. She did so dare that the Texas onions were to be served with dinner each evening. She told friends she would have been glad to have made the trip North without them.

Safety First

Old Mrs. Brown was about to make her first aeroplane trip, and naturally made a bit timid.

"Now before we start, young man," she cautioned the pilot, "I want it distinctly understood that we're not to go out of sight of land."

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Bartlay)

TREASURE TRIAL

1 can peas drained or
2 cups fresh peas
2 cups milk.
1 tablespoonful flour.
4 tablespoons butter.
1 teaspoon salt. Pepper.

Make cream sauce by melting the butter, add the flour to make a smooth paste. Add the milk, one-third at a time, stir to avoid lumps. Add seasoning and peas. Heat in double boiler until the peas are thoroughly warmed.

ORANGE PINWHEELS

1 cup flour.
2 teaspoonsful baking-powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons butter.
1-2 cup milk.
2 tablespoons sugar.
½ tablespoon orange juice.
Grated orange rind.

Mix and sift flour, baking-powder and salt, rub in one tablespoon butter, or other shortening, and moisten to a dough with milk. Roll thin; spread with remaining butter, sprinkle with sugar mixed with orange juice and rind, and roll up like a jelly-roll. Cut in slices, and place, cut side up, in buttered muffin-pans. Sprinkle with remaining sugar, and bake in a hot oven. When small and dainty, these are good for afternoon tea.

Liquor Problem In Australia

New South Wales Will Vote On Referendum September 1st

New South Wales will come to grips with the liquor problem when it votes September 1 on a referendum offering the option of continued open sale of liquor and prohibition.

If prohibition is defeated the Government will review the whole position with a view to adopting a course which will effectively minimize the liquor traffic now, according to Hon. T. J. Ley, minister of justice

Meanwhile the Government is being waited upon by delegations demanding everything from drastic bone dry legislation to a moderate form of Government control, such as prevails in some provinces in Canada.

Train Searches For Bumps

English Railway's Method of Knowing Where Tracks Need Attention

A mysterious train travels on the main lines of the Great Western Railway, England, and yet it does not appear in any time-tables, and never stops to pick up passengers.

Its duty is to search for bumps on the permanent way, and runs are made from Paddington and Newport. The coaches consist of rolling stock of various kinds, fitted with different bogies

An observer stands over each bogie, and when he feels the slightest motion he releases a splash of white-wash on the track as a guide that the spot needs attention. Various colored washes are used, such as green red, white, blue and yellow, each signifying different kind of trouble.

A machine in the back of the train makes a graph of all the jolts, and on the return journey steps are made to examine the line where wash has been dropped. Experts then take measurements and notes for future repairs.

PIMPLES LASTED OVER 2 YEARS

Very Large and Painful. Healed by Cuticura.

"My daughter's face was covered with pimples that were hard, very large and red. She could not wash and soon so thick that you could not get a pin into between them. She also broke out on her shoulders and neck. They lasted over two years. I used an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment, so got some and at the end of three months she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Hezekiah Reynolds, New Hamburg, Ont., March 23, 1927.

RESCUE EFFECTED OF MEMBERS OF THE ITALIA CREW

London.—Dispatches received here from Virgo Bay and from Rome indicated that the members of the Italia crew, former companions of General Nobile, who have been in desperate straits, have been rescued by the Russian relief ship Krassin and that three other men, apparently members of a dog sled expedition to rescue the Italia crew, have been sighted.

This news, coupled with the news from Moscow, that two Italians, Mariano and Zappi, had been rescued after 42 days of wandering on Arctic ice and the body of Dr. Malmgren had been recovered, constituted the most successful day of rescue operations since the dirigible Italia crashed May 25, after a flight over the North Pole.

Hailing her wly through a desert of broken ice cakes, the Krassin pushed her nose to the point far off Northeast Land where a tiny tent painted red marked the camp of four members of the crew of the wrecked polar dirigible Italia.

The starved, frantic men who had battled starvation and freezing temperatures since May 25 were taken aboard, it was announced in advices from Rome.

The second group sighted was believed to be the daring men who set out by dog sled to aid the stranded Italians, according to a belief believed this latter party was that commanded by Captain Sora, an explorer, who set out with two companions.

The Krassin ploughed her way in the Virgohamn group for the dramatic climax to the day's work. Five hilometres from he rgeai she noticed in Virgo Bay a ship flying the flag of Sweden. Then she saw a group of men standing excitedly. (Probably the Sora group.)

The Krassin in making the time was passing nearby the exact spot where the Italia crashed on May 25, hilling one of her crew, injuring several others by, and drifting away in a stiff wind with six men aboard.

The search in the Viglieri group for who were rescued, were believed to be Lieut. Viglieri, Italian navy navigator, Giuseppe Biagi, radio operator, who had kept the group in touch with the world; Filippo Trolani, engineer; and Professor F. Behounck, meteorologist.

The group had been sending radio messages to the Krassin reporting their every movement. Contact with it was believed the four men were in such serious condition that only speedy medical attention would save their lives.

The successful climber is Dr. J. Monroe Thorington, Philadelphia, noted alpinist and author of "The Glittering Mountains of Canada." With him were Dr. Max Strunz, also of Philadelphia, a member of both the American and the Italian Alpine Clubs; William Hain-peroth, of Newhaven, Conn., and Julian Hillhouse, of Newton, Conn. The altitude of Scott is 10,836 feet.

Lord Byng's Appointment

Is Government Measure To Restore Confidence In Police Force

London.—The appointment of Viscount Byng, of Vimy, as commissioner of Metropolitan police, announced by the government to have been a measure to restore confidence in the police force, was sustained in Parliament when a Labor motion of disapproval was defeated, 221 to 108.

Sir William Jeyanon-Hicks, the Home Secretary, in making the announcement, declared that so shaken was the public faith in the police department that he had reluctantly called upon Lord Byng because the right man, not re-organization, but re-inspiration.

Labor's opposition to the appointment of Lord Byng was based on the ground that it might tend to militarize the force. This Sir William denied.

Viscountess Astor and Miss Ellen Wilkinson, the woman Labor member for Middlesbrough, were the prosperity of Lord Byng's appointment found themselves in unison in expressing disapproval of the resignation of Sir William Horwood, the retiring commissioner, who, they said, had tried to improve conditions in the force and whose policy where women were concerned had been reactionary.

Lord Byng's appointment was announced a few weeks after the dismissal of Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux, against Miss Irene Savidge and Sir Leo Money, who were arrested in Hyde Park. In connection with Lord Savidge's examination the accusation was made that the police had used the third degree methods.

Cruiser Dauntless Refloated

Will Be Placed In Halifax Drydock For Repairs

Halifax, N.S.—The British flight cruiser "Dauntless," which hung up on Sambro Island Ledge at the entrance to Halifax harbor on July 2, has been floated off, after a week's strenuous endeavor by the salvage crew of the Halifax shipyards.

The Dauntless was at once towed into the Halifax shipyards, where, it is estimated, the repair work will keep 500 men busy for months. It has been ascertained definitely that the rocks had torn a 30-foot hole in the cruiser's bottom.

The Dauntless was observed along the shore; on Citadel Hill and on harbor craft to witness the floating of the Dauntless from its precarious position.

Toronto Mail Robbery

Five Men Under Arrest Charged With Complicity

Toronto.—Five men are under arrest here charged with complicity in the robbery of the Canadian National Railways mail car at the Union station in the early hours of June 20, it was announced by General D. C. Draper, chief of police. One woman is held on a charge of vagrancy and another as a material witness.

Although it has been generally known for several days that some arrests had been made confirmation had not been obtainable from the police.

Finlay McLeod, Pr., 68, of Toronto; Everett McKibbon, 28, barber of Detroit, and John Brown, alias Frank Brown, 28, Toronto cigar store clerk, are charged with robbery. Finlay McLeod, Jr., 24, Toronto newspaperman, and Alex. McLeod, 42, of Toronto, son and brother respectively of Finlay McLeod, Sr., face charges of receiving stolen goods

Marketing Surplus Wheat

Carry-Over Of 1927 Crop May Be 60,000,000 Bushels

Fort William, Ont. A welcome revival in the movement of western grains and favorable for the coming harvest were main features of the June report of E. A. Ursell, statistician to the board of railway commissioners A marked improvement developed toward the end of June in the marketing of the exportable surplus of Canadian wheat with the result that lake shipments increased substantially

The increase in lake shipments was most welcome as providing storage space for most of the grain in transit from western points

Lake shipments during July are expected to be quite heavy and will make room for the stocks at present in country elevators at interior points which must be shipped out in readiness for the new crop.

At the end of June there were 70,000,000 bushels of wheat in store in the west with elevator capacity for 100,000,000 bushels. In addition there were in transit to terminals approximately 42,000,000 bushels, of which 10 million odd used for seed and about 307 2 million bushels had been shipped out of the division. Allowing for what was on hand on June 21, 1927, it would thus appear the net total of the 1927 wheat crop already accounted for is more than 420,000,000 bushels

It looks as if the carry-over at the close of the present crop year would be very close to 60,000,000 bushels unless exports during the present month far exceed expectations

The Manville Tragedy

Vernon Boulter Is Held As a Material Witness

Edmonton Developments in the Manville tragedy in which four people on the Boulter farm were shot to death from the home of C. H. Boulter, and the discovery that a British army rifle of .303 calibre was found from the home of C. H. Stevenson, honored resident of the district, and whose farm is about a mile away from the Boulter residence

Vernon Boulter, 20 years old, who found his mother, brother and two sisters lying dead around the house and barn, shot through the heads, when he returned from the pasture at the scene of the shooting, is being held as a material witness.

Police investigators state that the finding of young Boulter is merely routine since he was the first to find the scene of the tragedy.

BRITAIN WILL REPLY TO U. S. ANTI-WAR NOTE

London.—The British reply to the American anti-war proposals is the opinion of Sir Austen Chamberlain secretary of foreign affairs, will be forwarded to Washington before the end of the parliamentary session The secretary made this announcement in the House of Commons in reply to questions and he took the responsibility for what some of the opposition critics termed a delay in answering the American note

The only delay however, said Chamberlain was the time which was being taken for careful consideration of such an important matter and the decisions had to be speedily for this

He added he still hoped Washington would be able to arrive in London in time to sign the treaty on the date originally declared

Lieutenant-Colonel Wedgwood, Labor member, then asked whether the British government had received any communication from the Soviet government suggesting that the reply should be delayed

Chamberlain replied that the reply would be delayed Russia's views would be considered in the negotiations and the approximate date of signature

Hinchcliffe Case Discussed By Press

Several Outspoken Articles Have Appeared In British Papers

London.—The legacy of the state bestowing to the extent of $2 500 00 by the gift of Lord Inchcape in memory of his son, Captain Hon. Elsa MacKay, who lost her life in company with Captain Walter Hinchcliffe, in an attempt to fly the Atlantic, while the family of Captain Hinchcliffe is not provided for has been the subject of several outspoken newspaper articles lately and was brought up in the House of Commons by Major F. B. Maloco, Conservative, Tottenham South

Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for air, said he understood Captain Hinchcliffe had received a wound pension and disability retirement pay in connection with his war service. Major Malone then suggested that Sir Samuel should make representations to the proper authorities that adequate provision should be made for the aviator's family

Sir Samuel Hoare replied that as Hinchcliffe did not belong to the Royal Air Force reserve the matter was not in the hands of the air ministry and he advised that the question be put to the ministry of pensions

Tells Police Terrible Story Of Shootings

(Edmonton Bulletin)

Confronted with the .303 Ross sporting rifle with which the fatal shots were fired, and convinced from the close questioning of police officers engaged in the investigation that further evidence linking him up with the crime was being uncovered, Vernon Booher, 20-year-old track amateur hockey player, sudden broke the stolid silence which has followed his committal for trial on the murder charge, and on Sunday morning confessed to the cold-blooded murder of his mother, his 24-year-old brother, and Wanji Kanyk and Gabriel Gurunsky, hired men, employed on the Booher farm.

The murder, the most cold-blooded and spectacular in the crime annals of Alberta, has shocked the entire West, but the calm-eyed, slow-speaking youth made his confession without a tremor, and finished with a show of bravado

"Ready for Rope" is His Statement

"I'm making this confession because I want to get it all over with and I don't want my father and sisters brought into court. I want to save my sister Dorothy and I'd have confessed anyway, whether the rifle was found or not. I'm ready for the rope," he said to Detective Sergeant Frank Lebey, when he had asked the youth to make up his mind to confess.

Previous to this he had invited the police officers to the family cabin. "My father and Fred were always nagging at me about a girl I was crazy about. They objected to her and that caused the whole thing. They kept at me till I couldn't stand it any longer, and I made up my mind to kill them both," he said.

Thinking over the best method of carrying out his plan to kill his mother and brother, Booher said he rose to the Steveston house early on Sunday and, finding no one about the place, entered and stole the rifle, taking also a box of shells from a shelf in the kitchen. Hiding back in his own room he disconcerted to cache the rifle in the bush, and it was then that his horse got away and arrived in the stable yard ahead of him as related by one of his sisters when she was being questioned about her brother's movements on the Sunday preceding the murder

Choice Arrived

The chance to actually carry out the crime which he had contemplated for some days and planned for no carefully, came shortly after 5.30 on Monday afternoon. His mother was sitting at the table, preparing fruit for a pie she was making for the evening meal and, going to the room where he had concealed the rifle, Booher loaded it and strolled back to the house, stealing quietly up to the door and without giving an instant's warning, he shot his mother down from behind and, as he heard his brother Fred rushing up to find out what the shooting was about he calmly drew back the bolt of the rifle, ejected the empty shell and pumped another into the breech. As Fred came to the door and recognized, he raised the rebuilt rifle and shot him squarely through the mouth. Despite the hideousness of the crime he had just committed, the 20-year-old youth did not lose his nerve. According to his own story, he mopped his brother's body clear of the door, and then strolled outside to see if anyone had heard the shooting. It was while he was still there that Constable Scott of the municipal district came along with a tax receipt for Fred Booher, which was accepted by Vernon.

"The two bodies were lying in the house then. I don't know what I would have done if he had tried to enter, but I guess I would have done something. I had to protect myself, you see," was the cold-blooded comment on this visit

Fatal Arrival

While the slayer was talking to Constable Scott, Wasyl Kosuyk, known to the Booher family as "Bill," came in from his work in the fields.

I sent him to the barn on that he would not see the bodies, but he had to walk to the side of the house, and afterwards I thought he knew too much about it so when Constable Scott had gone I went back to the barn and shot him. Then when Gabriel came back from his work I shot him in the bunk house."

Good Type Of Settlers

C.N.R. Placing Many Families Through Their Land Settlement Department

During the first six months of this year, Canadian National Railways have, through their land settlement association, placed 1,536 farming families on 243,372 acres of land along the lines of the company between the Great Lakes and the Pacific Coast, according to J. S. McGowan, Western Manager of the Colonization Department, and F. J. Freer Superintendent of Land Settlement for the company. The figures represent a substantial increase over the corresponding period for 1927.

The type of farmer placed is described by British, American and Northern European stock. Under the land settlement plan of the Canadian National Railways, it has been necessary for them to bring sufficient capital to enable them to make a start on farms of their own, and the amount of such capital brought in by these settlers during the year is estimated to be approximately a million dollars. Settlement has taken place principally in the best developed districts in the southern parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta where the land can either be bought or leased on where partially improved farms can be had on easy terms.

Prospects for the present year show an increase of more than 2,000,000 acres sown to field crops. This increase will be in the large amount of new land placed under cultivation last year, and to the stimulus supplied by new land settlers.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Canadian National Railways' Tour To Great Britain and Denmark, 1928

Continued.

In the evening, as guests of the Danish Government at a performance of Faust, in the Royal Opera House, we renewed our acquaintance with Mr. Millington Drake, whom we shall remember, and only as the worthy representative of the British Foreign Office in Denmark, but as a friend of Canada and the Canadian Farmers' Party. Sitting with us Mr. Millington Drake entertained us with a resume of the opera for those who were not familiar with the great work. During the evening we were honored by the appearance in the Royal Box of King Christian, a gracious courtesy which was acknowledged by representatives of the party calling at the palace to sign the Royal book, which is the Danish equivalent of our Canadian custom of leaving cards. The next day the Prince Minister, Mr. Millington Drake, as follows: "Please thank the Canadians for their visit to the Queen and me. We hope they will keep a pleasant remembrance of their stay in Denmark."

Before leaving Copenhagen on our return to Esbjerg, we had two important calls to make at the Kolle Kolle Red Danish Cattle breeding farm and the Dantrug Landrace pig breeding station.

The Kolle Kolle farm, owned by Jens Ewland Jensen, has been responsible for many interesting and successful breeding experiments. The herd of 70 pure bred Danish Milch cows, which we inspected was of remarkable uniformity of type and possessed worthy for their high butter fat test and their generous middle and spring of rib.

On leaving the farm the party received a surprise invitation from Baron von der Recke to visit his home and farm, an experience which was much enjoyed. The Baron, who is fluent in English, was very glad to show the party a beautiful estate and a particularly fine herd of cattle.

The visit to the Landrace pig breeding establishment revealed something of the secret of the remarkable uniformity and quality characterize the Danish hog. Here it was found that the Landrace hog was originally obtained by crossing the pure Yorkshire type with the Danish native. Two hardy native breed which is in Hasle rather coarse and lacks the length so desirable in bacon hogs. The breeding centres are maintained in different parts of Denmark, Landrace and Yorkshires, and others for the Landrace from which the Danish Government is able to buy pure breds of both breeds for crossing purposes. The object to show the party a beautiful estate and a particularly fine herd of cattle.

The object is to show the land as was not seen during our journey and was covered with snow and heather.

The Danes have made progress in the latter course, with the result that today there are 850,000 acres in this region of which 600,000 are owned by two-thirds of the total original heath land, have been brought under planting.

This did not permit us to visit the older plantations, but a trip to one of the two in Esbjerg, which are locations outside Esbjerg, filled us with amazement. In addition to extensive barren, sour plain there had been planted a forest of young trees. By careful county, thousands of acres of which are pasture land, capable of supporting a large head of cattle to the acre.

A trip to Ribe, the oldest town in Denmark, with quaint and narrow streets, and a fine old cathedral, and the citizens of Esbjerg, completed the day's entertainment given by the country which we left with regret. Our departure was marked by a telegram sent to the Prince Minister of Denmark by him to the people of Denmark.

We also telegraphed our thanks to the British Foreign Office which had had proved himself not only a worthy representative of the British Empire, but had become almost a comrade.

The voyage from Esbjerg to the voyage across the North Sea except that for the last time, the Danish had reduced attendance at the dining saloon.

London again! No place like London after all. It was good to be back around us one mother tongue, even if spoken with a Cockney accent. Our first morning was spent at leisure but in the afternoon we were invited to the home of Lord and Lady Beaverbrook, where we met Lord King and Queen, and tea at Buckingham Palace. If we had felt some trepidation, it would have been soon dispelled, for the lovely lady Queen was indisposed for some days, and Lord King, who had only arrived from Canada only a few hours previous to the meeting the Canadian farmers' party, her dress ornamented by a maple leaf brooch which had been presented to her twenty-seven years ago when she visited Canada as the Duchess of York. His Majesty was thoroughly interested in the Danish tour and asked many questions about it. This was the crowning honor in a tour already rich in privileges accorded.

Our next engagement brought us to a luncheon in which we came the only guests. This was our visit to our

Brandon, Sefton, to the Ministry of Labor's Training Farm for Overseas Settlement, when we were naked frankly to give our impressions of what was being done to transform groups of unemployed young men into farm workers for Canada. Here on the beautiful Wanting Hall Estate was the most interesting and the most hopeful experiment we had seen. One of the biggest problems which are Britain's legacy of the war and of post-war conditions, is that of knowing what to do with the able-bodied, willing young men for whom there is no employment and for whom there is at present no avenue but the "dole" which it should be explained is not a charity, as it is often believed in Canada, but is available under the national scheme of unemployment insurance. The Ministry of Labor has been studying for some of the ways out. Young men desiring to go to the Dominions, are given a preliminary training suited to the particular Dominion to which they hope to go. Others are given training which will fit them for new occupations in the Old Country. The group which we visited was being trained for Canada. Under Wild Canadian implements, they were being taught by men with Canadian experience, hitching, harnessing, ploughing, milking the cow and all of such tools as are employed in general husbandry.

Canada Colonization Association

Hope To Place 5,000 Families On Land This Year

The Canada Colonization Association hopes to record this year the largest number of settlers on privately owned farm lands in Canada. It is now within about 300 of this figure, according to T. O. H. Illsley, manager of this subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific's Department of Colonization. Since Mr. Illsley's appointment to the end of May, being 325 families settled on 64,114 acres. Ontario is leading immediately in the circuit of the Association's activities, the placements for the present year, as at the end of the list, to Ontario. 71 families placed on 2 611 acres; Manitoba, 54 families on 14,340 acres; Saskatchewan, 67 families on 20,122 acres; Alberta, 84 families on 23,053 acres; and British Columbia, 29 families on 3,338 acres.

Homestead Entries

906 Homesteads Taken Up In Four Western Provinces During May

Homestead entries on privately owned farm lands granted in the four western provinces during May, totalled 906, according to figures issued for the month last year. By provinces, Manitoba recorded 44, as against 71 for May 1927; Saskatchewan, 351, as against 287; Alberta, 517, as against 365; and British Columbia, 79, as against 17. For the first two months of the current year entries totalled 2 983, as compared with 2,146 for the corresponding period in 1927.

Homestead entries in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, 906, as against 27.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 29

THE FIRST FOREIGN MISSIONARIES

Golden Text: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you. and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—Matthew 28.19.

Lesson: Acts 13.1-52.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 67.

Explanations and Comments

The First Foreign Missionaries Chosen and Ordained, verses 1-3. In the flourishing Christian church at Antioch there were numerous prophets and teachers, men of special inspiration. Among these was Barnabas, a Levite and Jewish Christian of Cyprus (the province in North Africa being sent to Egypt) and Saul, perhaps one of the Cyrenian Christians who had come to found a church at Antioch (Acts 11.20); Manaen—and Greek form of the Hebrew Menahem (2 Kings 15.14) — whom the "foster-brother" of Herod the Tetrarch (Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great), and who probably a person of some social importance, and, finally, Paul of Tarsus, apparently the last mentioned in Paul's place, at the end of the list, to emphasize just as was Barnabas at the beginning of the roll. These five leaders of the Antioch church were evidently Grecian Jews.

"We know nothing of Symeon and Lucius and Manaen, and yet it is good to have their names, for they remind us of the host of faithful witnesses of the truth, the stout foes of the Christian movement, and encouraged its leaders to carry on. George Eliot, in her "Scenes of Clerical Life" tells of a faithful who are not famous: What should we do without them? All great causes demand great leaders. Without Paul and Peter and Barnabas the early Church would have been as an undisciplined army without officers, or as a rope of sand; but Niger and Lucius and Manaen were needed as surely as Barnabas and Paul." The New Outlook.

While the church at Antioch, under the leadership of these five men, was carrying on its service of worship, prayer and fasting, an advance movement was initiated under the direction of God. It is probable that the prayer of the church was for wisdom upon God for special guidance on a matter already pressing upon their thought; this matter was surely the question of forward movement into the Roman Empire" Paul and Barnabas, indeed, may have been thinking of the collection which they had brought with them from Jerusalem. John Mark (Acts 12.25).

Extending Air Service Westward

Contracts As Far As Winnipeg Planned For Next Year

A gradual extension of the air mail services now successfully operating in the east to the west is contemplated by the Post Office Department.

Flyers have started out to day to examine the best route for a service between Montreal and Winnipeg and further acceptance of an hydroplane are the best adapted to the service.

Contracts as far as Winnipeg are planned for next year and the department has in view later an extension of this service across the prairies although to that end no definite steps will be taken for a while.

To Honor War Heroes

Hungary is to honor its war dead with a monument which will be erected to the fallen heroes, and at the same time to commemorate the fact that Hungary is to be reunited some day. The 1,000-year-old country will be typified by a single, huge, unadorned stone. On the stone will be chiseled the figures 1914-1918 and 658,000 — the number of Hungary's war dead. There will be no other inscription. The monument will be erected in Budapest before the Millenium memorial mound.

One Hundred Years Hence

British Scientist Has Ideas About Conditions In Next Century

Dr. E. M. Fournier D'Albe, the British scientist, has created a mild sensation with his lectures on the future of women and their dress. Dress materials will be made exclusively of cotton in the future years hence, he said, but it will be cotton glorified beyond recognition by chemical treatment. Silk will be already supplied us with artificial silk.

Linens will have disappeared, killed by the advent of nitrocellulose paints and the disappearance of linseed oil. Materials will be made to combine the strength of calico with the transparency of chiffon and the softness of tulle. For swimming and other sports costumes will be made of paper or wit, perhaps, be sprayed on the skin to make a perfect fit. "Perhaps the method of doing so are already known to chemistry.

Already lawyers hence the servant-problem will be solved because the servant will be no more. Wireless will be compulsory in every household and universal. The dictaphone will be of the same nature as that which forces every citizen to read a newspaper three days. Letters will be typed at first, but of glass, or else of some other transparent material so that when occasion arises it will be easy to light up the house with all the daylight available. The garden of the next century will be a kitchen garden and the vocabulary of man over the vegetable kingdom will be so advanced that it will be open to everyone to pick prize specimens and new kinds of fruit.

Has Many Valued Coins

Coins and Books Make Collection Of Edmonton Woman Valuable

The collecting of old coins is a hobby that perhaps not many women indulge in, but Mrs. Chas. Jones, of Edmonton, has a varied and valuable collection, as well as some very interesting coins and bills. Among these coins are included two Roman coppers of the reign of Augustus, Constantine the Great and Valentinian, halfpenny of 1613; United States copper of 1642; and copper of George IV.

Mrs. Chase also has a copy of the London Times, November 7, 1805, which was received at the battle of Trafalgar and the death of Lord Nelson.

Another possession of Mrs. Chase is a complete history of England from the time of William the Conqueror to the coronation of Edward VII., in one book. It is only one inch square and printed on very fine paper. "The Chimes," by Charles Dickens, printed in a book small enough to go one and one-half, is also a valued possession. A frontispiece shows the new House of Parliament at that time.

The man who never has any trials and tribulations is unable to appreciate happiness.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby's "Babies Have Nerves"

By RUTH BRITTAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children is due to their early stimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a mass of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with ,but not for more than a few minutes and it cannot prime daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, coaxed to laugh or cry on arrears, will sometimes result in vomiting and invariably causes irritability crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause may easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, and by knowing that you can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's a pleasant tasting remedy, it raises baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep. Yet it contains no opium or opiate. It is purely vegetable the recipe is on every bottle. Many physicians prescribe it for colic, chronic diarrhea, constipation, pain on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With such bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

FARMER'S WIFE GETS STRENGTH

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wilton, Ont.—"I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would have put me in my grave. Instead of Life, it helps me to live. I can't praise it too highly. I was troubled with weakness and my nerves were all run down. I could hardly do my housework and farm work. I was all tired out and could not sleep. I could hardly stand on my feet. Now I do my housework and farm work and sleep well. I recommend your ad about the Vegetable Compound and thought I would write you to give it a trial. The first bottle gave me relief and I have told others what it does for me. I am willing for you to use my letter if you desire."—Mrs. E. R. Preuss, Wilton, Ontario.

Helmi slept the sleep of utter exhaustion, for when she awakened the gray dawn was filtering in at the mouth of the cave. She looked around in terror, for she was alone. The pain in her head was like a thousand knives twisting and torturing her, and a cry of utter anguish broke from her lips.

Then she remembered the horrors of the night before and the terrible deed she had done. She cast again that face of fright and heard the screams.

She went to the mouth of the cave and saw below her the river, running so fair and peaceful and serene. The early morning light, plaintive gray, was lying gently on the river's bosom, from which soft little veils of mist were ascending. Helmi shrank back from it in fright, remembering the man who had buried his head trouble in its treacherous depths. Also rising to the side of the cave stood the tall pine that had called to her. Watching its current she seemed to see Jacko face again sinking away from her. Then came little Life's face, so cool and peaceful and smiling, with no sense of pain, and the irresistible impulse to cool her burning, tortured breasts. In the quiet green waters of the river drove her forward.

For one brittle moment she swayed toward the stream, then something hounded against her, throwing her backward to the grass, and her little dog was upon her. The gauge. She crawled back in the cave, wide awake now, but writhing in her misery. Then came Gloo, the dog with something in her mouth which she laid in Helmi's arms—a little bird, very stiff and cold, with soft, pearl and cool, soft, eager, questing lips

When Helmi awakened with a bird in her arms, her midnight terrors and a body eased of its pain, she noticed the revolver, which through all her misery and flight she had held in her hand. Horribly it recalled to her the smokiness of the terrible night and the loathsome deed she had done. And yet—and yet—now that her brain was clearer, she could not believe that she had fired the weapon. Her hand had been on the trigger when the lightning came.

She put the revolver carefully, for it could tell her what she wished to know. Opening the chamber with trembling hand, she found every cartridge was in its place!

Then the soul of Helmi was born anew in thankfulness to God, and in love with life. Her weakness and pain wavered, for God had saved her from sin. God had intervened to save her when her own will had been cast from Him. God was her friend. He loved her —He would not let her sin! With his own arm He had saved her.

Helmi went to the opening of the cave and drank in the beauty of the morning. The sun had just come over the edge of the earth, sending a sheen of gold and silver along the top of the mist that filled the valley below. As she watched, enraptured in her new-found gladness, the mist began to form into wisps and threads that curled and rose over the surface of the river, their upper ends twisting and thinning into the air

A song burst from Helmi's heart, a song of gladness and love and faith—a song that the Blue Bush had taught her

"When the mists have rolled in splendour from the beauty of the hills,
And the sunshine falls in gladness on the rivers and the rills."

There was a whimper beside her. Cleo had come out of the cave. Helmi put her knees beside her, and laid her honest forehead against Cleo's" chief, "the dog God sent"

CHAPTER XXIX.

Helmi reached her own house that morning before the people of Eagle, who were astir early in the cool of the morning, without a trace of the storm of the night before, only that the air was more invigorating and cool in the mouth like a drink of spring water. She walked with her old sprightliness and without a single trace of fatigue.

Cleo followed her with one pup in her mouth, and Helmi carried the other two. The door of the house was not locked, and Helmi soon had a fire burning and a pot of porridge cooking for herself and the dog.

The house showed the traces of the hunting parties that had made it their abode, and from the fact that they had left the house dirty and filthy and knew that they were not real hunters, but only city men out looking for game. The true hunter will leave everything as he found it; this is the law of the wilderness. But in Helmi's heart this morning there was no resentment as she swept and scrubbed. She had received so much from God that she could easily forgive any of His children, and as she worked she sang.

When the porridge was cooked and Helmi had poured some of it, she called Cleo, who had stayed outside until she was invited to enter. "Come in, Cleo," she said, "my house is yours. You and I will never part, and your bones are welcome, too. Come on!" Cleo came in, with a pup in her mouth, sniffing as tenderly as she could without altogether dropping the pup.

The dog's hunger was pathetic. All the more because it tried so hard not to appear ravenous. This was evidently her first good meal for several days. The puppies, tired out by their adventurous night, were soon fast asleep to a ten in which Helmi had placed an old coat of Jack's, and in which they curled up into an indistinguishable mass of sable and white wool, with only one little nose showing.

When Cleo had eaten her breakfast she gave all attention, her eyes fixed on Helmi's face, as if she were trying to read her mind.

Helmi patted the dog's head. "Take a sleep, Cleo," she said, kindly; "when I get my house cleaned up and my clothes dried I will tell you my plans. I do not know where we are going to live, you and I and our families, but I know we are going to live together. I heard many times in the city that no one wanted a girl with a baby and a dog and three pups is not wanted either. But still I have faith in God, Cleo, and I am happy. Now lie down and be happy we have enough here for a few days."

Life had changed for Helmi. The demon of revenge which had embittered her heart had been laid to rest by the hand of God, and with it the simple theology God had actually reached down His hand through the green island to become the friend of the magistrate dead because he had brought such evil upon her, and to whom the consequence of being under a paper thin sheet of water moving slowly upward across the surface. She was innocent, and her love can be eliminated.

Discouraging Swarming

Method That Has Proven To Be Very Satisfactory

A method of controlling the discouragement swarming has been tried with success at the Charlottetown Experimental Farm, according to the Dominion department of Agriculture. The plan is to add a shallow super or drawn comb immediately there is evidence of swarming. Being given increased room the bees were found usually to settle down and start building queen cells in this new and less crowded area of the hive. In due time it was found possible to remove the old hive and to watch for and destroy any new queen cells discovered The supers in this manner have been in use since 1927 report states that this method has proved very satisfactory over several seasons.

Fresh Supplies In Demand.

Wherever Dr. Pierce's Golden Oil has been introduced increased supplies have been demanded. Everybody wherever it goes this excellent Oil impresses itself upon the people. Families in what latitude it may be found its potency is never questioned. It is a most portable shape in bottles and can be carried without fear of breakage.

Another Television Test

Demonstration In New York Shows Big Advance Made

The day when radio owners can tune in on sporting events and other happenings of interest and see them instead of merely hearing an accompanying description, has moved one step closer.

The Bell Telephone laboratories demonstrated their improved runlight television apparatus which showed several full length figures as they moved about on the stage during a play of a boxing ring. Previously television had been restricted to receiving on more than a head and shoulders

At the demonstration a man moved tennis balls, drove a golf ball, boxed with a companion and went through other motions. The action was shown in perfect detail on a screen about two feet square.

The television images were as clear as the average movie and were marred only by a slight appearance of being under a paper thin sheet of water moving slowly upward across the picture. The new television can be eliminated.

A TIRED-OUT FEELING

Is a Sure Sign That the Blood Is Thin and Watery

"I am glad to have an opportunity of testifying to the benefits I derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," writes Mrs. Lawrence Connolly, St. Joseph, N.B. She further says: "Some years ago I was troubled by a stenographic and became badly run-down. I always had a tired-out feeling, had no appetite and suffered terribly from backache. Almost every month I had to remain from the office for a day or two. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have reason to be glad that I followed this advice. Before I had been taking the pills very long I began to feel much better. Continuing their use my strength became back, I regained my appetite and the terrible backache from which I had suffered disappeared. I have been married some years now and have two fine healthy children, a girl and a boy, and am in the best of health. All this I owe to Dr. Williams' famous Pink Pills, and I feel that these few lines may help some other weak, run-down person. All weak, run-down people who will give this blood-building tonic a fair trial will find through its use new health and strength. You can get the pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

What Could Be Cleaner

Naughty little Jimmy had been eating green apples so his mother had to call in the doctor

"Now my little man," said the kind doctor "tell me what you think is the matter with you."

It's like this, doctor," answered Jimmy from his bed of sickness, "you know how you feel when you don't know how you feel" Well, that's how I feel"

"I see you've given up teaching your wife to drive."

Yes we had an accident. I told her to release the clutch and she let go of the steering wheel."

Teeth and Health

Issued By The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council and Published By The Saskatchewan Dental Society

THE "GUM BOIL"

Your child has come running to you one day suffering pain and has pushed aside his toys to let you see an angry lump on his little jaw.

And, since it was just as sore as a boil to touch, you called it a "gum boil"

It probably he had not complained of any soreness then, but one day when you scrubbed his teeth you noticed this lump with a little opening in the centre, reminding you for all the world of a miniature volcano.

And from the "crater" there was rising a thick yellowish substance, which you knew to be pus.

Now what had caused this? Just one thing a dead pulp

Perhaps you have to seek for the offender since usually you will find that the tooth just over this sore is badly decayed or broken down with perhaps just the stump remaining

Then what should be done? For, of course, this condition should receive prompt attention.

Should the tooth be not too badly decayed your dentist may think it best to try to save it; but more often it should be extracted after the inflammation has been thoroughly subsided

Following this treatment, the gum heals over and you congratulate yourself that the tooth has gone.

But remember; already serious disturbances have resulted, in the disease process may have destroyed the permanent germs beneath, leading to say nothing of the train of evils that may follow the extraction of the offending tooth. and from the drainage of the pus into the system during the progress of the disease.

Now much better, then, had the child received attention during the early stages of tooth decay.

People From Various Countries Contributing To Our Culture

"It is up to us to see to it, that the constituents of the different peoples coming to this country is melted into a composite whole, and we will build up a people that will be equal to the ancestry from which we came," declared Hon. Sam. J. Latta, speaking before a huge gathering of Nonconformists in convention at Saskatoon. The gathering took the form of a pastor's social meeting. Latta explained that people from the various countries each constituted culture of their country and these contributions were all blended together here.

When Pain Comes

What many people call indigestion is very often merely excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has for decades the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize many times as much acid in the stomach as the strongest mineral acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting common acids. Each bottle contains full directions any druggists.

Sixteen Years Ago Today

Interesting Items gleaned from the Files of The Vermilion Standard
JULY 26th, 1912.

The Rev. H. L. Day was down from north of the Saskatchewan for a few days this week and reports everything flourishing in the north country.

J. W. Hobbis dug new potatoes on the 19th inst. They are a very fine sample five to six inches in length and are known as the Burton No. 1.

A team of oxen, wagon and engine repairs went to the bottom of the Saskatchewan river last week at the Hospital's Ferry. The driver escaped.

John Selkirk of Mary Lake, who is engaged on the Government road running to the river, is pushing the work along and making a first class job for the money allotted.

A very pretty wedding took place on July 18th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tovell, Mountain View Ranch, when her daughter Isabella became the wife of Mr. Lowell Mason Hunt.

Wetaskin and district footballers succeeded in putting it over the Innisfree Vermilion team by a score of 4 to 0 Saturday night before a large crowd of spectators. The game was played for a purse or side. The winning goal was not scored until within a few minutes before the expiration of the second half.

People of the town say it was some rain that fell Monday afternoon. Pavements have been active ever since. Boating on the main thoroughfare was quite in order. Five inches of rain in twenty minutes was bound to make a flood and a sewerage system would have been appreciated. Basements of the Stephens Brothers and Crain Brothers stores were badly flooded and much damage to goods resulted. Several other business were more or less soaked. Raging torrents poured into the valley for several hours. Many roads washed. Lost, but not least, millions of microbes innocuing the lake refuse pilles were swept into the river.

Edmonton's business men's special train was at Vermilion on Monday when they were the guests of the Board of Trade. The visitors were unanimous in their expressions of a splendid future ahead of Alberta's bright soon.

A regulation half-mile track is being laid out on the new agricultural grounds. The 24 acres will also be fenced.

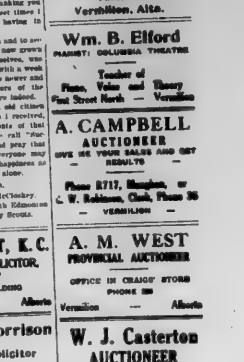
Lorenzo Aerial Sensation

Vermilion Fair, Aug. 2-3-4

Two years ago when Jack Scheller, renowned performer and high class aerial specialist, announced that he was about to launch the most thrilling outdoor attraction the world had ever known, using the highest rigging ever built, many thought his idea the limit. His friends knew better, however, as they had watched his progress in the open-air attraction field and knew that he would come through with something different than the rest and supply the thrill-seeking crowds with a new kind of sensation. Many thought the specialty used in his appearance would not stand the strain caused by the weight of four grown people.

All obstacles were overcome by Scheller. He built the towering rigging, had it thoroughly tested for strength, engaged a company of the country's most intrepid aerialists and then presented many important engagements. Everywhere the act appeared it made a solid hit and is now much in demand. It has been secured by the outstanding feature of its grandstand show and will, they confidently believe, prove the best thriller they have offered their patrons.

One of the astonishing things about the performance is the fact that the performers use no safety nets to catch them should they fall. The slightest mistake would hurt them to the ground, resulting in serious injury—perhaps death



Passing Of Islay Old - Timers

Two of our oldest and most respected citizens were buried on Tuesday, July 24th. Mr Wm. Stone at 11 o'clock and Mrs Wm. Waterfield at 2.30. Mr. Stone came here with his family of three boys and three girls from Woodville, Victor County, Ont., about six years ago. He bought a farm 4 miles south-east of Islay and two of the boys homesteaded at least one they could get land. Mr. Stone was born in New York state 76 years ago. He and his family have been zealous workers and generous supporters of Knox church from the beginning and was in heartily for the union. Mrs. Stone and family have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their bereavement. The funeral was a private one but a large number of friends of the family came and brought their cars and also sent in floral offerings. The services at the home and grave were conducted by Rev. T. A. Bowen, minister of the United Church. The family were at home except Mr. H. R. Stone, who with his wife and daughter, is on an auto trip to Ontario. The family at home were Mrs. Stone, Misses Thea and Gladys, Miss Muriel, teacher at Vermilion, Roy and family, north of town, and Frank of Gainers' staff, Edmonton.

Mrs Wm Waterfield came here with her husband and small children from the province of Quebec in 1906. Her husband was station agent at Vermilion for a short time and was one of the twenty years' agent ah this point. There were three boys and three girls in the family. A few years ago Mr. Waterfield was transferred to Yawn Station, Sask., and Mrs Waterfield spent most of her time with the family on the farm. They bought a nice home in Islay which was occupied by their daughter Mrs. John McNeilly. Mrs. Waterfield had severe trouble with her heart about six months ago and came into the municipal hospital for treatment where she was also being removed to Mrs McNeilly's home. As she had been suffering a great deal Mr. Waterfield got the services of a doctor and came to Islay She passed away Saturday evening. Deceased was a loyal member of Church of England and the Rev R. H. Goudge conducted the funeral service A great many came to console the bereaved and sprays for which relieving the family were exceedingly grateful. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in Islay

CO-OPERATION ASKED

Owing to the rapidly increasing load on our electric light and power plant it is going to be a difficult matter for us to continue to operate as far midway at our Exhibition on Saturday night, August 4th. The business men have promised to co-operate as far as possible and I would like to ask for the co-operation of every citizen for that evening. If you will use only what energy is absolutely necessary —turn off every light that is not needed and especially, do not use power machines unless absolutely necessary. This is the last time there will be any necessity for this, and your co-operation will be greatly appreciated by the Agricultural Society and the Town Council.

W. A. FALLOW, Mayor.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. W. Waterfield and Family desire to convey their heartfelt thanks for the many kindnesses rendered to Mrs. Waterfield during her long and trying illness, and for the sympathy and help given us in our bereavement. The gifts of flowers and fruit from so many kind friends, both individually and collectively, are gratefully acknowledged; they helped so much to brighten and cheer the last months of our loved one. We also wish specially to thank Mr. Brown for the use of the United Church

TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION

The old adage that truth is stranger than fiction, or that the heavy hand of fate runs into his own or merely unreliability of the automobile was clearly demonstrated on Monday morning. When a Ford car traveled eastward on Main Street with a full grown and fully harnessed horse in the back seat. Dobbin's head and neck were protruding over the door in one side while his tail was blowing cheerily in the wind on the other. Was he the least bit disturbed by his unusual position? Not the least—in fact, quite otherwise he was viewing the scenery and passing people with an equine air, just as if he had been used to the back seat all his life.

HOW ABOUT YOUR SUB.?

Thanks Vermilion Friends For Kindness

9923—111th Street,
Edmonton, Alta.

Dear Vermilion Friends:

I just feel that I cannot justify the kindness and open-hearted generosity of the Citizens of Vermilion which I enjoyed a week ago, unless I take this opportunity of thanking you all for one of the pleasantest times I have had the fortune of having in many a day.

To see so many old faces and to see the Scenes of yonder days, now grown up and fending for themselves, was inspiring, and to finish up with a week end camp with some of the newer and some of the older members of the Scout Troop was a pleasure indeed.

A town which gives an old citizen such a hearty welcome as I received, I feel has all the elements of that special quality which we call "Progress," and I say hope and pray that in the days to come, everyone may see such prosperity and happiness as to theirs, I feel by merit alone.

Minister Consents To Amalgamation

Bank of Commerce To Absorb Standard

$700,000,000 United Assets

Mr. R. H. Logan, General Manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, announces the decision of that bank and The Standard Bank of Canada to amalgamate as soon as the approval of shareholders can be obtained and other necessary arrangements completed. The consent of the Minister of Finance has already been given. The stock of the smaller institution will be exchanged for that of the latter on a share for share basis. Sir John Aird will be the president of the united institution, Mr. Arthur P. White now president of The Standard Bank of Canada, is to be vice-president, while Mr. R. H. Logan will be the general manager, and Mr. N. L. McLeod of The Standard Bank of Canada will become an assistant general manager.

This event will unite two of the oldest banks in Canada, The Canadian Bank of Commerce having been established on the consummation of Confederation in 1867 and The Standard Bank of Canada in1873. The careers of both banks therefore, commenced in the early days of commercial development of Central Canada and bona before extensive Western colonization or the extension of the Dominion as a power in international trade. With the development of the country these institutions expanded their activities. The Canadian Bank of Commerce in particular being noted for a progressive policy that led to a rapid increase in the number of its branches both in Canada and abroad The chief strength of The Standard Bank of Canada has always been in the province of Ontario, where it built up a long and valuable connection through a chain of 171 branches, for the most part at points where The Canadian Bank of Commerce is not represented, but it has 49 branches in the prairie provinces and it is also established in the cities of Montreal, Vancouver and St. John N B

The financial structure resulting from this union will be an imposing one The Standard Bank of Canada has a paid up capital at 4 23 100 and a reserve and undivided profits fund of over $3,000,000, which when added to the Commerce figures under same head, will constitute a combined paid-up capital and reserve of nearly $50,000,000 The assets of The Canadian Bank of Commerce were shown at the end of May as $538,102,279, and those of the Standard Bank as $161,088,521 The combined institutions would, therefore, have total assets of about $700,000,000. The Canadian Bank of Commerce will thus occupy an even more important place than formerly in a list of the world's leading banks.

The branch representation will consist of 581 offices of The Canadian Bank of Commerce in Canada and other countries and perhaps 200 of The Standard Bank of Canada allowing for duplication, or about 750 branches in all

Vermilion Alumni Meets August 2

The date for Alumni Association of the Vermilion School of Agriculture which was set for August 7th has been moved forward to August 2nd.

This will be the opening date of the Vermilion Agricultural Fair and as both Hon. George Hunsley and Hon. R. G. Reid are expected to be present to open the fair it was felt that this would be an opportune time to have them perform the ceremony of the laying of the Corner Stone of the magnificent new dormitory, which is being provided for the School of Agriculture at this point. The laying of the corner stone is a function of peculiar interest to all present and past students of the institution, although the general public is cordially invited to be present.

This interesting feature in connection with the new $150,000 dormitory will take place at 1 o'clock when it is expected that there will be subscribed to the fund Mr. Hunsley and Mr. Reid. The dormitory will be well under way at that time as work is now beginning on the third floor. It is a handsome fireproof brick structure that will provide accommodation for 150 students. A model apartment is being included in the Domestic Science Department and many other new features are being added. There will also be additional classroom and library space facilities for both boys and girls. The building also includes a large gymnasium 50 feet by 100 feet which will be much appreciated.

After the laying of the Corner Stone the Alumni will hold its annual meeting at 2 p.m. The balance of the afternoon will be spent in looking over the experimental plots and farm. At 6.30 the Alumni supper will be provided on the lawn and at 8:30 the big Alumni dance will open. It is expected that there will be a very large number of students as many have written in that they expect to be present.

It is interesting to note that applications are being received nearly every day for the classes in Agriculture and Domestic Science which start on October 25th next and it is expected that the dormitory will be filled to capacity during the winter term

"Safety First" on the Highways

At the risk of being somewhat tiresome, the writer of this column feels impelled to once again direct attention to the subject appearing as the title to this article. Justification for such action, if, indeed, any justification is needed, is to be found in certain well established facts

In the three prairie provinces last year the number of motor cars registered exceeded half a million.

In all three provinces, Governments and municipalities are straining their resources in the construction and maintenance of good market roads and provincial highways, and every mile so constructed or improved results in an increase in motor vehicular traffic and an increase in the speed at which most of the cars will travel.

In the improvement of highways, advances are being constantly made in the direction of making them as nearly as possible "safe" through increases in width, reduction in grades and curves, ground rails at curves and danger spots, and a standardized system of marking the highways, indicating routes, turns curves, railway crossings, danger spots, etc

On the other hand, year by year, manufacturers of cars are increasing the power and speed of cars, with gradual price reductions their use is becoming almost universal. It is true, of course that four-wheel brakes and other safety devices, are being added, and manufacturers are interested and active in making their cars as nearly "fool proof" as they can be made.

The fact to emphasize, and which it is important should be drilled into the minds of every motorist, is that no matter what Governments and municipalities may do in the matter of road construction, and no matter how strongly and carefully motor cars may be built and equipped from the prevention of accident standpoint, the human element remains. Neither roads nor cars can be made "fool proof," and the unfortunate fact is that the reckless driver is just as great a danger to others as he is to himself. If the highways of the country are to be made safe, it is evident that there must be a decided change in the attitude and conduct of many thousands of motor car drivers, and the public generally

In an address before the annual convention of the Union of Saskatchewan municipalities, Hon. S. J. Latta, commencing the early inauguration of a "Safety First" campaign throughout the Province, stated that he had recently read in a newspaper that someone was either killed or seriously injured every seconds in an automobile accident in the United States. And that during 1927 approximately 26 618 persons were killed and 785,700 injured in such accidents. He further referred to the fact that at a conference held in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa it was revealed that 1927 automobile accidents cost 472 lives in Ontario, an increase of 124 over 1926, while 4,976 others were injured. It was further reported that fatalities were in the proportion of eight in each one thousand car licenses

These are appalling figures and certainly indicate the need of somehow controlling the great modern conveniences. What was the cause of these accidents? Were they preventable? The results of investigations in the United States show that 11,765 highway accident fatalities in 1927 were caused principally by motorists, of which 3,765 were caused by inattention, 2,706 as the result of speeding, 2,353 through traffic violation, 1,059 from intoxication, and

About an equal number of fatalities, 11,267 to be exact, were caused principally by pedestrians, of which number 2,638 occurred through children playing in the street or crossing in violation of traffic regulations, 2,069 from adult jay-walking, 1,819 through inattention, 1,261 as a result of confusion, and 1,200 from other causes.

As compared with these more than 23 000 fatalities caused by the human element, there were only 1,280 resulting from fog, snow or rain, 667 from motor defect in the vehicle, 558 from skidding, 383 from road defects, 341 from strong lights, 344 from poor street lighting, and 108 from confusion in dimming lights. In other words, physical conditions were responsible for 3,440 fatalities as contrasted with over 23,000 for which people themselves were responsible.

Surely such a record provides ample justification for repeatedly urging people to exercise care, to realize that Common Sense will prevent accidents and should be applied, that the best way to the Safe way.

Third Wrigley Marathon

Great Vierhouter a Sure Entry in This Outstanding Event

While much dissatisfaction has been expressed by Vierhouter and his manager regarding the shortening of the distance for the Third Wrigley Marathon, which is to be conducted by the Canadian National Exhibition this year, there can be no question about the fact that he will be in daily training in Lake Ontario.

He seems to be carrying more enthusiasm than he did last year, and experts say that he is a little sluggish. This, of course, at this stage of the game, means little. What Vierhouter is the size of a young elephant and swims more or less sluggishly in consequence. Both of them will undoubtedly take this off in the course of their intensive training, so that comparisons are more or less impossible at this time.

Vierhouter is a great swimmer and has the stamina to do full time. Witness his feat of last year when he covered the first five miles under 60 minutes each. There will be no fast enough to win this year's Marathon.

From a spectacular standpoint the Third Marathon will surpass the Second. The course will be along the water front, and the "Pull Away" of the tens of thousands of spectators who will again flock to see the great event.

The entries are now coming in thick and fast and it is estimated that they will exceed those of last year

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most critical for babies. Then the disturbances of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and vomiting, come on in a day, and that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes it or can get to it. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of equal aid to mothers during hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They sweeten the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. You can get them from druggists or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New Settlement Area

District Near Edmonton Made Available By Building Of Branch Line

The penetration of branch lines of railway into large areas of country north and east of St. Paul de Metis has opened up a fertile district 50 miles square.

The district has taken on new life. In 1927 the railway was extended from St. Paul to Elk Point, and this year is being pushed on from Elk Point to Hiesaburg, a distance of 20 miles. It is expected that the line will be laid from the junction of the St. Paul-Edmonton branch near Ashmont, to Smoky Lake, 30 miles east of St. Paul. This line passes through a country containing many fine farms and large blocks of high-class agricultural land. Close to this area is the Saddle Lake Indian Reserve, which was taken over from the Indians by the Land Settlement Branch of the Department of Immigration and Colonization, and over 80 families settled thereon. This settlement has proved a most successful one.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Bentley)

LEMON ALE LEMONADE

4 lemons.
1 pint ginger ale.
1½ pints water.
1 cup sugar.

Place a small block of ice in a pitcher. With the juice of four lemons mix one cup of sugar, one and one-half pints of water, and one pint of ginger ale. Pour into pitcher and stir thoroughly. Allow to stand few minutes before serving. (Serves 6 persons.)

A REAL MEAL SALAD

½ cup plain gelatine.
1 cup cold cooked meat, cut in cubes.

2 tablespoons granulated gelatine.
½ cup cold water.
1 cup boiling water.
1 tablespoon vinegar.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon pepper.
Spirit paprika.
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
1 cup diced celery.

Plump dried gelatine. Soften gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve in boiling water. Add vinegar, salt, pepper, paprika and Worcestershire sauce. Cool. When mixture starts to thicken stir in the chopped raisins and the meat cubes. Turn into a cold, wet, square pan. When firm cut in cubes. Arrange on lettuce. Sprinkle diced celery over and add a spoonful of mayonnaise and a dash of paprika.

Swiss Wizardry Sends Pens Can Broadcast Through His Lead Pencils

The genius of Earl W. Davidson, a railway telegraph operator, who likes to tinker around with radio sets in his off hours, has made it possible for the long suffering radio fan to shut his sentiments right into his loud speaker with the assurance that people for miles around will hear his protest.

The workings of the phantom radio, invented by Davidson, are very simple. The effect is to transform any loud speaker into a broadcasting microphone whose waves will ride out into the air on the wave length of the station into which the set is tuned.

At his home at Terre Hill, Penn., Davidson has talked through his receiving loud speaker to his neighbors as far as fourteen miles, getting his words in edgeways during the lulls of broadcasting programmes from Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York.

He says the secret of his invention is in the arrangement of the circuit, to which he uses a crystal and three ordinary tubes.

Davidson came to New York last week to demonstrate his "Phantom Radio." He has gone back home to continue his experiments.

The memory of a failer of Confederation and the foundation of one of the most important communities and coal mining areas in the West, was recalled by the celebration at Lethbridge on July 5. The Canadian Historical Association has erected a cairn in the town to commemorate the opening of the first coal mine in Alberta, in 1872, a period truly remote in the history of the West, before the Canadian Pacific Railway had appeared to open up the country to settlement. To the ceremonies, the Lethbridge and District Society, the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian Pacific Board of Trade of Lethbridge, and finally the City Council and others took an

Summer Care of the Chickens

Valuable Advice is Given in Proper Care and Feeding

Crowded breast misery in chickens is believed to be due more to improper nutrition than to early roosting. This view is supported in a bulletin written by G. R. Wilson, the Dominion District Poultry Promoter in New Brunswick, and by P. Leslie Wood, the Poultry Superintendent for the province, and issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. These authorities recommend the providing of low brand roosts for the chickens when they are transferred from the brooder house to the colony house. This, they claim, will encourage early roosting and in this way offset a tendency for the birds to crowd together during the night. It is well also at this season to separate the sexes when the chicks reach broiler age. While less need exists for watching and may be given both grain and mash hopper feed with cracked corn of larger size and heavier grades than for younger chicks, the authors claim, should not be expected to eat heavy chick size feeds. The small birds are more expensive and the chick at that age will relish the hen size scratch feeds. The careful attention which will see to it that both the hoppers and drinking vessels are kept clean and well filled. If the chickens become lame for any considerable distance around the colony house, it is well to examine the ground upon which they walk, as a tendency to start them into laying as young as 16 weeks, thereby preventing them from ever reaching the standard weight for the breed, and more than this the eggs are too small for standard weight. Another danger of over-stimulation pointed out in the pamphlet is the tendency to early moulting, another indication that of profit, observing the balance sheets of farms and farmers

The drift of men and women from the farm may be viewed with equanimity so long as it is accompanied by a drift of capital and industry to the farms.—From the Financial Post.

Cherries in Manitoba

Very Encouraging Results Have Been Obtained at Morden

Cherries are being produced in the province of Manitoba. At the Morden Experimental Station cherries from seedlings more than three-quarters of an inch in diameter have grown in 1926. Last year the fruit was smaller, but on many of the trees there were many plentiful. The superintendent of the station, in his report for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture at Winnipeg, says that some of the seedlings bear very sour fruit while the fruit of others is very well flavored for cooking and making pies. Cherry trees are being used at the station as fillers between the standard apple trees. Early Richmond, Dyehouse, Montmorency and some other varieties are being used in this work. Trees of these varieties come through the winter without injury, but only small crops have yet been produced on these young trees.

There's a Difference

The difference between a monarchy and democracy, seems to be this: When King George gets a holiday he has to stay home and receive the congratulations of a number of people. When Sir Henry Thornton, president of a big railway, gets a holiday the world is told the size of his shirts, the length of his fishing rod, the number of hours he sleeps, what he eats at breakfast, what hymns he sang loudest in church, and a thousand and one details of equally vital importance.

Seems To Be A Failure

Latest Disaster In Series Of Dirigible Airship Is Unexplained

It is no reduction upon the Italian General Nobile's courage or intelligence to ask what was hoped to be gained by his flight to the North Pole. Nations have been put to anxiety and tribute treasure, while Arctic solitudes have swallowed several valuable lives, men have suffered incredible hardships, and explorers have lost and may be dead. To what end? If the Italia had reached and returned from its goal, we know what would have been the gainer? What, really, would have been the contribution to science? How would the world have been helped?

It was reasonable, in past days, that much should have resulted to mankind from the Pole. There were many questions to be answered. But since men have been there, and settled the question of earth's solid land or water at the earth's top, what is justification for further risk of lives and terrible suffering merely to go back there?

Since Alone Nobile seems to have settled. It is the impracticability of the dirigible airship. Nobile, according to the journalists who have companied him, took every precaution against just such a disaster as overtook the Italia. On the basis of the old contrivance, built and flown in the days of Count Zeppelin, Nobile had provided a gas-bag, in which he was to go, and which he could empty instantly by opening valves and so bring the airship down. But, regardless of all the precautions that Nobile took, students of flying are in the belief that the Italia the working out of the law of impenetrability of the dirigible airship. Where is the Italia, now? It is in company of all the great dirigibles that have been tried and lost in Germany and the United States. Out of eighty-five giant ships of this type built and tried by Germany, not more than twenty survive.

The chances of a good aeroplane, favored by good weather, and skilfully piloted, are infinitely more toward, have been shown to be fair. Not one has yet successfully crossed the Atlantic westward in the direction notwithstanding. The recent seems clear. It is that long strides have yet to be taken before safe passage over the oceans can be made by any lighter than air ship; but that the chances of advance by the type are infinitely greater than by the once much-vaunted dirigible From the Ottawa Journal.

The Art Of Whiney

The art of whiney is one in which the majority of people are not proficient, indeed, it is a rare achievement. We find the man of genuine versatility everywhere; on the steamer, in the smoking compartment of a railway train, in the business office, in the wood and furry of the hunting, and our parliament recently found it necessary to set up a committee to look to the interest of time, patience, expense and efficiency.

Farmers Prosperous

United States agriculturists who are raising a hullabaloo about farm relief might do worse than send over an emissary to study conditions at Cabri, Sask. The farmers of that district, according to the Leader Post, have since the first of the year purchased 53 tractors, eight carloads of automobiles and one carload of trucks

Better Equipped Farms

Modern Machinery Is Doing Away With Much Manual Labor

Despite all the gloomy reports of rural depopulation, production of agricultural commodities continues to increase. Can it be then that after all, the mechanizings of the farm is more than offsetting the loss of manual labor in the fields.

Give the average large farmer a selection of milking machines, tractors, cultivators, gasoline engines and other agricultural automatons and he will cultivate a much larger area with fewer hired hands. He requires merely a higher type of employee; which in turn is much a mechanic as a tiller of the soil. If his farm unit is large enough he becomes as much an industrial executive and scientific manager as the farmer.

The nearer farm life's gate to mechanical perfection the further it gets away from its original peasantry.

The consolidation movement in industry is likewise operative in the consolidation movement in agriculture. Larger farms, better equipped and managed by better executives, are the assurance of the future.

The farmer has always been a capitalist by nature. He will be more and more of a capitalist as time goes on. This will bring him gradually into the realm of higher finance. It is no idle speculation that farming will eventually interest the investment banker and investor to a degree that it cannot now interest these elements in finance. We may even see farms distributed to the public and many of the largest stock exchanges.

The interest of business and finance in farming in the past has been largely a speculative based upon production—the total purchasing power of the farm populations, which is in itself a degree a factor in the total prosperity of the country. The interest of business and finance in the future will assume another interest; that of profit, observing the balance sheets of farms and farmers

The drift of men and women from the farm may be viewed with equanimity so long as it is accompanied by a drift of capital and industry to the farms.—From the Financial Post.

Receives New Appointment

The appointment of Dr. R. C. Wallace, of the University of Manitoba, to the position of president of the University of Alberta, in succession to Dr. H. M. Tory, has been announced by the Alberta Minister of Education. Percy Baker, in the absence of Premier Brownlee. Dr. Wallace expects to be able to actively take up his duties by the first of September.

Prairie Farmers Prosperous

According to a recent census of the farms of the Prairie Provinces, 60.5 per cent. of the populations of the provinces are rural. Of these 25.5 per cent. had gasoline engines 21 per cent had tractors, 2.2 per cent. had auto trucks and 2.1 had electric light

Queer Law In China

In certain districts of China each village or town is responsible for the behaviour of his fellow citizens. Should one indulge in the cardinal crime of any kind he is court and share the punishment equally with the original offender

The marvellous beauties of the country north of Lake Superior, the haunt of the Canadian Pacific Rockies, are described in a booklet recently in a letter received by Lord Byng from Dr. O. "Lord Byng," he says, "would enjoy this lake as much as many varied attractions, as north from Lake Superior, writes Mr. and enough portaging interspersed Woodridge "There are no motors to give plenty of exercise for all animals nor reptiles, and almost all muscles."

Grain Crops For May

Seasonal Delay Reported As Having Been Beneficial

The crops to grow in the prairie provinces for forage is yet an unsettled question. At the Indian Head experimental farm the grain crops both singly and in combination did not appear to increase the yield or quality of the hay crop in comparison with others. Barley, sowing the hooded leaf variety, occupied the intermediate position when sown alone or in combination with oats The addition of peas added to this appearance and accordingly produced high green weights, but the position of such mixtures was not changed when compared as hays cured hay. The possibilities of Marquis wheat for this purpose were tested, but its use is not recommended. Among the grain varieties Banner oats is reported by the superintendent of the station as having given the best results as an annual hay

Net Cruel Expense

Upkeep Of Canada House In London Comparatively Low

The following figures concerning the respective costs of Canada and Australia house in London have been supplied to the Canadian Press:

Australia house, for 1927, £3,400,000, number of staff, 3411; Canada house, for 1927, $350,000, number of staff 148.

The costs mentioned for Canada's London office comprise high commissioner's office, department of immigration, department of trade and commerce, office of soldiers' pensions and pensions, department of health and upkeep of Canada house. Atlantic Fliers Return

Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic, stepped from her plane back on American soil after a return journey from Europe by boat. With her were Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon, pilot and mechanic, on her Atlantic hop. Acting Mayor McRee presented the three aviators with keys and documents, and should prove of great value, not only to Canadian producers, but to farmers throughout the Empire. Australia and South Africa and India no doubt have something to teach Canada's agriculturists. Just as Canadian agriculturists have something they can profitably study, in connection with the cultivation of the land, a system of mutual exchange of data, statistics and the results of experiments and research work cannot fail to result in benefits to a million and a half days. New Device For Camera

Pictures Of Flower's Growth Taken Through a Microscope

A device which automatically filming the growth of various organisms has been perfected by Carl D. Clarke, chemical physicist of the Johns Hopkins Hospital Baltimore

Mr Clarke has taken pictures through a microscope of a flower's growth, the beating of a turtle's heart and the movement of organisms in Bacteria. These films are taken without continuous running of the camera and consequent waste of film and power.

If the development of a rose is photographed at a fly shown every thousandth part of an inch into the shutter of the camera must be controlled to avoid reflining the same picture

Mr Clarke has devised an eight-case electric clock which can be set at any desired interval from seconds to half hours The clock controls an electric motor that cranks the camera

Asbestos Industry

Asbestos is Only Material That Can Be Woven Into Fireproof Garments

Asbestos is the only material that can be woven into fireproof garments and insulated into instruments impervious to flame.

With asbestos armor and tools men can fight even a blazing oil well. The messenger dogs of forest rangers in California are clad in asbestos coats to defy timber fires. The material, fibrous and crystalline, elastic and brittle, heavy as rock in its crude state, yet as light as thistle-down when treated mechanically, has withstood the heat and enormous pressure of volcanic fire and earth adjustment, apparently without alteration.

Changes in temperature cannot make it expand or contract. Since the earth was in its infancy these veins of silky fibres have survived when the hardest rock has worn or melted away.

Some believe that those who survived Nebuchadnezzar's fiery furnace were clad in asbestos, while ancient writers tell of a Roman cardinal who was given handkerchiefs of the fabrics "cleansed by casting them into fire."

Gas burners, iron holders, mats and stands, and asbestos composition floors are but a few of the modern conveniences made from this mineral curiosity.

Farm Research Work Should Prove Valuable To Agriculturists

There is considerable to commend the suggestion that Canada should join in the scheme for the carrying on of farm research bureaux throughout the British Empire Canada is a main wealth could and the wheat fields and the farms. The application of scientific methods in both directions has already resulted in greatly increased production. As science makes still further progress, there will be all the greater need to utilize the discoveries of the experts in stimulating the yield of the land. Research work carried on in the various Dominions and Colonies that comprise the Empire, properly correlated and disseminated, should prove of great value, not only to Canadian producers, but to farmers throughout the Empire. Australia and South Africa and India no doubt have something to teach Canada's agriculturists. Old Indian Carving

Stone Near Guelph, Ontario, Bears Date To Prove Antiquity

Geologists before Columbus discovered America, an artist was at work in the Grand Valley at Ohsweken, Ontario, on a huge slab of stone. Far from the completion of the stone and time it took, the result of his handiwork has been discovered by a party of Guelph citizens.

The new record among the ages of the world's carvings is the date 1122 beside the bird's head which dots the back of the stone. The date is plainly visible even to the casual observer, there that at 1122 the Grand River Valley knew nothing about coal and iron.

The exact figure are worn smooth by the action of water through centuries. But the outline, the bird's head, the date, the tail, the feet, the wings, are clear. They have been protected by the mud and sand that covered the stone for centuries. Only a few years ago the stone was unearthed.

Experts say that the carving was done with a sharp instrument, probably a knife. The stone is a soft limestone, which is easily cut when first quarried, but which hardens with exposure to the air.

Any Old Time

Father, what time is it? asks Alice. "Any time you ask me my child," answered her father, "but please don't ask me in half hours. I never talk in that time."

Why Not?

Not Dangerous Occupation

New Devices Have Made Flying Safer

With the march of science, new manufactures are bound to make their appearance, and it is significant that a new publication, "Canadian Aviation," is now issued monthly in Canada. As it is sponsored by the Aviation League of Canada, which is doing much to establish flying clubs throughout the Dominion, it can be regarded as an authentic source of news which will be eagerly read by a large number of young Canada, and as an agency in the development of flying in this country it is welcome.

Aviation is still a young science, and most people remember the first time they saw an airplane in flight. The path to progress has been strewn with accidents which have taken toll of many brave lives, and it is hard for those who remember all these pioneering fatalities to get rid of the feeling that it is a dangerous occupation.

But as the June issue of "Canadian Aviation" says:

"During 1927, British air transport lines' machines travelled 972,000 miles and carried a total of 30,344 passengers, and for the third successive year had no accidents involving death or serious injury to a passenger During 1926 Deutsch Lufthansa Company machines flew 1,816,130 miles and transported 32,362 passengers without a single fatality.

These facts speak for themselves. Parents have no need to be backward about letting their boys take up aviation as a profession. There are new safety devices which, Sir Alan Cobham says, have made flying safer than motoring, and truly a perusal of the newspapers every week bears out that claim

Has Accurate Memory

Englishman Has Trained His Mind To Remember Dates

"On what day did July the First fall -Anno Domini One? This was the rather strange question I put to Mr. James C. Gillies," writes a Daily Herald Mitcham correspondent.

"Without the slightest hesitation, he replied, 'On Friday.'

"And on what day will December 25 fall -Anno Domini 4000?'

"Again the answer came pat—'On a Tuesday'"

Such is the power of Mr. Gillies, who claims that, through sheer memorizing and nothing else, he can give the day of any day between A.D. 1 and A.D. 4000 in a minute and a half days. Astrologists, students of the calendar and students who delve into the relation between the celestial bodies and the world's time, can easily check the accuracy of Mr. Gillies' method. Girl Was Nurse

The girl in the case is said to be named McDonald, and formerly a nurse at the Mansville hospital. Afterwards she went to Jamieh hospital, but is now said to be in San Francisco. She has questioned there as to any knowledge she may have of events leading up to the tragedy.

Booher, with the case against Booher practically perfect, and the signed confession which he has been given an opportunity to retract, but which he has adhered to in their possession, police believe that their part in bringing of the murderer to justice has ended, and he will be held at Fort Saskatchewan to await trial at the September assizes.

Mrs. Ethel Jensen, sister of the dead woman, and aunt of Vernon Booher, who came from Wichita, Kansas to see on the behalf of the crime, is still in the city, having been joined by her husband. The other members of the Booher family have also been here, and the farm where the travesty took place is practically deserted.

Of all the people connected with the tragedy Vernon Booher, self-confessed slayer, is the most light-hearted. Henry Booher, father of the tragic family, is still going about his ordinary homely duties but apparently in a half daze. The girls, Aletha and Dorothy, have themselves had a narrow escape from being shot down from the bush while on their way to Manville are also apparently unable as yet to realize the full significance of their brother's confession. The grief-stricken sister of the dead woman is badly broken up, [illegible] and sleeps well in his cell at Fort Saskatchewan and is apparently carefree, able to laugh and joke with those with whom he comes in contact.

"Booher is one of the most cold blooded murderers ever to be dealt by the A.P.P. say police force," stated Commissioner Bryan. "There is no doubt about it but that the boy deliberately planned the murders, and since he has failed to completely cover his tracks and has been found out, it does not appear to worry him much."

U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. Picnic at School of Agriculture

On Wednesday, July 25th, the Manasville U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. came in force for a picnic on the lawn at the School of Agriculture. Secretary Thomas had arranged for the day and before noon cars began to arrive. By two o'clock well on to one hundred men, women and children were present, many coming from within a few miles of Irma. Hot coffee and tea was provided by the staff at the School and all seemed to have a very enjoyable time. About two o'clock the whole group started for an inspection of the experimental plots, which many varieties of wheat, oats and barley are grown under similar conditions. The wheat plots were the centre of interest and here Mr Bednell, director of the wheat pool, gave his usual boys many valuable tips when judging the grains from the wheat pool exhibit. From the plots the group went to the permanent hay and pasture fields where various combinations of grass and legume seed had been sown. All were struck with the stand of alfalfa which was about ready for the second cutting. These hay and fodder crops were of great interest.

The daily shorthorn herd was visited as well as the hogs and sheep. Then the record went for an inspection of the new $150,000 dormitory which is being provided for the agricultural and household science students at the School of Agriculture. All were delighted with the thought and care that is being put into the building. Many of the parents were especially interested, as Manasville sent a considerable number of boys and girls to the school last winter. It is expected, however, that the number will be doubled when the doors of the dormitory open on October 30th next fall.

All went home expressing their appreciation for the day and feeling that it had been well spent. Secretary Thomas suggested that he would bring the matter before their Association with a view to making the picnic an Annual Affair.

Booher Confesses Slaying Mrs. Bruce

Dead Woman's Purchase

Only one thing the 20-year-old mayor blunder himself for. In his carrying out of an almost "perfect" crime he did not consider long enough how to cover up his tracks. Since he has been sitting in the cells he has had ample opportunity to reflect.

"I could have covered up," he said to Sergeant Lesley, "I could have put Gabriel Gowenby's body on my horse and taken it down to where the river is 75 feet deep, weighted it, and thrown him and the rifle in, and you'd have been looking for him still. It would have been easy enough."

Police believe that the cold-blooded slayer did in fact have some such idea in his mind, but that something happened to disturb him, and he left the house to give the alarm. On his way to the home of the neighbor Rose, he threw away the rifle, and it was in the bush, between 200 and 300 yards from the scene of the shooting, that rifle was found.

Quick Detection?

The finding of the rifle which led to the confession is itself a triumph of modern detective methods, and it was through the raising in of Dr. Mastin-ian A. Langmuir, M.L.C., noted Vienese criminologist, by Commissioner W. C. Bryan of the Alberta provincial police, that the rifle was found. Dr. Langmuir, whose work in Vancouver and Victoria while on a world trip has been personally commended by Commissioner Bryan, who has been following the Langmuir courses for several years went to Manasville on Wednesday. On Thursday it was arranged that Dr. Langmuir and Sergeant Lesley were to go to the Booher farm and start a search for the rifle in the bush. But as Vernon Booher was to be questioned about the gun by an officer in the jail at Fort Saskatchewan. The experiment in mental telepathy was carried out, with the officer in the jail and the one in Manasville connecting him on the whereabouts of the missing rifle and by the questions put to Booher forcing the idea on the mind of it. In a short time Dr. Langmuir located the rifle, pointing out its location in the bush to Sergeant Lesley.

Slayer Was Calm

No information regarding the finding of the missing gun was given out but on Saturday it was shown to Vernon Booher in his cell at Fort Saskatchewan. Even then his iron nerve did not desert him and he refused to talk. Other questions were put to him indicating that still further evidence had been found, weakened his resolution, however, and on Sunday he sent for Sergeant Lesley and made his self-confessed confession. No sign of emotion of any kind followed the easing of his conscience of its burden of guilt, and Booher went through the routine of his days in the cells as calmly as before, eating and sleeping regularly and shaving in preparation for his terrible act.

Although only 20 years of age, police declare him to be absolutely cold blooded and iron nerved. During the original investigation he was taken to the farmhouse where the body of [illegible] was still left at the bush where it had been found. Booher was seated beside the body, asked to touch it, and with the ghastly blood stains and bespattered brain matter plainly visible, and asked to smile before his story, which he did without a tremor, even laughing and joking at times.

"How did you know she was shot?" he was asked when he told of running in and finding his mother "shot through the head."

"Oh, I saw the brains on the floor so I knew she must have been shot," he replied with a short laugh.

Sat With Bodies

For over an hour he sat there, with the bodies of his mother and brother almost touching him, but not once did he waver or show emotion. At times, when requested, he glanced at the bodies to tell how he found them but neither by voice or change of facial expression did he give any indication of guilty knowledge, although it was this unnatural stoicism and bearing, the laughing and joking while the bodies of his four victims were all around him, that led to his being "suspect" in some extent.

That further knowledge of the trouble between the murderer and his mother and brother over the girl will now be available from other members of the family is the belief now that Vernon Booher himself has paved the way for the full story to be told.

CORNER STONE OF NEW $150,000 DORMITORY TO BE LAID AUGUST 2ND

A function of unusual interest to the district will take place at the School of Agriculture on Thursday afternoon, August 2nd at one o'clock. This will be the laying of the corner stone of the magnificent dormitory that is being provided for the students of the School of Agriculture.

Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture and Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer, will be present to perform this ceremony. Numerous things will be placed in the stone before it is laid some of these will be a complete list of the students who have attended the school since it opened which will include the Wounded Soldiers, British Boys and School Fall children. There will likely be a list of the members of the Legislature, a copy of the School Calendar and magazine, a copy of the Vermilion Standard and other papers, etc.

The whole district surrounding Vermilion, as far as cars may reach, are invited to this function, which will be at 1 o'clock. The hour is perhaps a little early but the Ministers are to open the Vermilion Fair at 2 P. M. so that we will need to be prompt.

The Alumni Association of the School of Agriculture will be present at the function. They will hold their annual meeting at 2 p.m. to be followed by an inspection of the experimental plots and farm. At 5:30 the Alumni supper will be served on the lawn.

Everyone is invited to the function in connection with the laying of the corner stone and it is expected that there will be a very large turn-out to visitors. Remember the time—one o'clock Thursday afternoon, Aug. 2nd.

DEATH OF MRS. FRANK DEFORD

The community of Island Hill was saddened Saturday evening, July 21st when it learned of the sudden death from heart failure at Amelia, wife of Frank DeFord, at the Vermilion hospital. The deceased was in comparatively good health the news of her death came as a shock to her family and many friends.

Her maiden name was Metson, and she was born in Hiscocks, U.S.A. on May 15th, 1893, where she spent her early childhood days, removing to Edmonton at the early age of eleven years. During the winter of 1917 she was married to Frank DeFord, after which her family removed to Calf Farm where they now reside. Before coming to Island Hill a good wife and mother, her husband and five children, Dorris, Aleata, Frankie, Yvonne and a baby boy a few days old; also her mother, four brothers, Charles, Frank, Herman and Henry and three sisters, Catherine, Mary and Rose.

The floral tributes were varied and many, and were as follows: By Mr and Mrs George Mead. Pillow, Allandale community. Wreath, Allendale Ladies' Aid. Wreath, Island Hill community; Spray, Mr and Mrs Norman Bedford and boys. Spray, Mr and Mrs Duncan. Wreath from Mother. Spray, Mr and Mrs W. Telford. Spray, Mr and Mrs H. Spencer and Dorothy. Wreath, Anna and Karl Mann and George, Henry and Alma. Spray, Mr and Mrs M. Werner. Spray, Mr and Mrs Nelson.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. K. F. Iwew from the United Church, Vermilion on Wednesday afternoon, July 25th. The pall-bearers were Messrs McBride W. M. Myers, Hoffmeyer, John Arnold, Fred Gould and Rufus Timmons. Interment was made in the Vermilion cemetery.

BATTLE RIVER U. F. A. CONVENTION, WAINWRIGHT

The Battle River Federal Association held its annual convention at Wainwright on July 16 and 17, 1928. The usual routine business was transacted, resolutions discussed and several speeches were delivered.

Mr. Aldous, the chairman and president, gave his address of the year's work and also a report of the executive recently held in Calgary of the Federal members, the U.F.A. executive and representatives of the Federal constituencies, and the Provincial executive.

Mr. Russell Love, M.L.A. of Wainwright, gave a most interesting report of the recent Alberta Co-operative Institute held in Edmonton. He then gave a short talk on the progress of the Dairy Pool and its recent activities. He showed that we must make haste slowly as the conditions here for marketing the cream are very different from many of the countries where cream is produced in quantities for butter making. They have, however, organized a dairy in Edmonton and forced the services of one of the best butter makers in Canada, and he can appreciate the benefits that will accrue for only about two months but are greatly encouraged with the result of their experiment.

A most timely and stirring address was given by Mr. P. Ensminger, M.L.A. of Alexander. He deplored the fact that more farmers did not see the necessity of gathering together at these conventions where the farmers were trying to work out their own salvation. He was pleased to be present to report others to look after the farmer's problems and he felt they were not getting a square deal they were getting. He showed all they deserved consideration for only about two months but are greatly encouraged with the result of their experiment.

BATTLE RIVER U. F. A. CONVENTION, WAINWRIGHT

The Battle River Federal Association held its annual convention at Wainwright on July 16 and 17, 1928. The usual routine business was transacted, resolutions discussed and several speeches were delivered.

Mr. Aldous, the chairman and president, gave his address of the year's work and also a report of the executive recently held in Calgary of the Federal members, the U.F.A. executive and representatives of the Federal constituencies, and the Provincial executive.

Mr. Russell Love, M.L.A. of Wainwright, gave a most interesting report of the recent Alberta Co-operative Institute held in Edmonton. He then gave a short talk on the progress of the Dairy Pool and its recent activities. He showed that we must make haste slowly as the conditions here for marketing the cream are very different from many of the countries where cream is produced in quantities for butter making. They have, however, organized a dairy in Edmonton and forced the services of one of the best butter makers in Canada, and he can appreciate the benefits that will accrue for only about two months but are greatly encouraged with the result of their experiment.

A most timely and stirring address was given by Mr. P. Ensminger, M.L.A. of Alexander. He deplored the fact that more farmers did not see the necessity of gathering together at these conventions where the farmers were trying to work out their own salvation. He was pleased to be present to report others to look after the farmer's problems and he felt they were not getting a square deal they were getting. He showed all they deserved consideration for only about two months but are greatly encouraged with the result of their experiment.

Everyone is invited to the function in connection with the laying of the corner stone and it is expected that there will be a very large turn-out to visitors. Remember the time—one o'clock Thursday afternoon, Aug. 2nd.

DEATH OF MRS. FRANK DEFORD

The community of Island Hill was saddened Saturday evening, July 21st when it learned of the sudden death from heart failure at Amelia, wife of Frank DeFord, at the Vermilion hospital. The deceased was in comparatively good health the news of her death came as a shock to her family and many friends.

Her maiden name was Metson, and she was born in Hiscocks, U.S.A. on May 15th, 1893, where she spent her early childhood days, removing to Edmonton at the early age of eleven years. During the winter of 1917 she was married to Frank DeFord, after which her family removed to Calf Farm where they now reside. Before coming to Island Hill a good wife and mother, her husband and five children, Dorris, Aleata, Frankie, Yvonne and a baby boy a few days old; also her mother, four brothers, Charles, Frank, Herman and Henry and three sisters, Catherine, Mary and Rose.

The floral tributes were varied and many, and were as follows: By Mr and Mrs George Mead. Pillow, Allandale community. Wreath, Allendale Ladies' Aid. Wreath, Island Hill community; Spray, Mr and Mrs Norman Bedford and boys. Spray, Mr and Mrs Duncan. Wreath from Mother. Spray, Mr and Mrs W. Telford. Spray, Mr and Mrs H. Spencer and Dorothy. Wreath, Anna and Karl Mann and George, Henry and Alma. Spray, Mr and Mrs M. Werner. Spray, Mr and Mrs Nelson.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. K. F. Iwew from the United Church, Vermilion on Wednesday afternoon, July 25th. The pall-bearers were Messrs McBride W. M. Myers, Hoffmeyer, John Arnold, Fred Gould and Rufus Timmons. Interment was made in the Vermilion cemetery.

railways in the first six months of $2,842,000. This had been met by the Govt. from general revenue.

7. $20,000,000 was written off for loss under the Soldier Settlement Board.

8. Returning to the tariff, he pointed out that if a comparision was made on all goods entering the country since 1891 to the present time, the average tariff under the Conservative rule would be 17.2 while under the Liberal administration it was 16.4 or .8 of 1 p.c. in favor of latter.

In opening of the estimates of expenditure he gave 19 of the largest a months which created considerable in

The aggregate of the main estimates was $272,796,456 which with supplementary and mature bills, reached a grand total of $450,000,000.

In referring to the debate on road unions, he particularly drew attention to the following subjects: Rabbit Reform. Protein content in wheat. Description of Wealth in Time of War. New Methods of using Coal. Scientific Research, and Athabasca Election scandal. Mr Spencer mentioned that one of the worth while measures established this session was the freight rate of $6.75 on Alberta coal going to Ontario, from the developing of which much good should issue.

Requests were made to the Government for extensive grants to the Provinces for technical education and highway construction, but without much success. He gave out the reasons why such as the Sun Life and Bell Telephone Co were not accepted as taxable companies. Other legislative cases in for very favorable consideration when he explained that one of the most valuable work of Parliament was done by Private Bill Committees. These particularly named were agriculture and colonization, Railway, Telegraph, Telephone, privileges and elections, railways and that of International and Industrial relations.

Since January the House has sat on 92 days and passed in that time 24 public bills, 29 private bills and 279 Orders made. The list of the recorded votes was also referred to. At the end of his report, questions were invited from the audience.

The session held a short session during the first afternoon which was then encouraging as several locals reported as being only recently organized but the membership and interest were in creasing. Reports of the various activities were listened to with interest. Mrs Pickle, the director, Mr Atkins, Mrs. Fontaine the past director, and Mrs H. E. Spencer all addressed the meeting.

The musical numbers contributed to the programme by the various members added much to the enjoyment of the convention.

Many Investigations Carried On By National Research Council Connected With Crop Problems

Handicaps to research work in agricultural problems, resulting from lack of funds for the purpose are likely to be overcome through the decision to hand over to the National Research Council $210,000 of accumulated "revenue," from the government terminal elevators.

It is to be specially ear-marked for plant pathology, grain diseases, and the like. Surpluses accruing from the elevator trade will thus go indirectly to assist the problems of grain growing.

The research council and the department of agriculture, in co-operation with the universities, have been engaged in combatting mainly grain rust and root rots. Recently an associated committee on field crop insurance has been appointed by the council jointly with the Federal department of agriculture for the purpose of undertaking research work into field crops diseases.

The importance of such a research will be appreciated when it is stated that the estimated cost annually to the North American continent through such diseases ranks from 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. of the total crop values.

At the present time, agricultural research work is going on in the University of Alberta summer building laboratory where representatives of the Research Council, the Biology Department of Agriculture and the University are working together. The same arrangement is in effect in the University of Saskatchewan and in the University of Manitoba the laboratories were provided by the Federal Department of Agriculture and are being run in co-operation with the University of Manitoba.

At the present time Professor Robert Newton is undertaking an investigation of the factors governing the soaking and baking quality of wheat with the purpose of ascertaining why the quality of wheat, varies so widely from place to place, and the possibilities for improvement by the use of better adapted varieties and better cultural practices. Professor Newton is also endeavoring to obtain a better knowledge of the possibilities and limitations of methods for grading wheat on a quality basis

A further investigation has been conducted by Professor E. H. Strickland into the life story and control of prairie inhabiting wire-worms and false wire-worms with the purpose of reducing the present annual losses to farmers which now amounts to many thousands of dollars annually

Professor F. H Roberts is conducting an investigation for the purpose of determining the exact factors concerned in the inheritance of sugar and starch in the endosperm in Indian corn, while a further investigation is being conducted by Professor A. H. R. Buller with respect to the size of spores in fungi, and Professor A. T. Cameron is engaged in research into the phenolder of plants indigenous to, Western Canada and adjacent territory

Technical researches with respect to the effect of light upon oxyamma are being conducted by Professor A. G. Kluge, who hopes to secure results which will have important application in respect to the fisheries, the forests and the human life, while other researches are being carried on by E. A. Lloyd in connection with poultry

A further research is being conducted by Professor Robert Newton for the purpose of discovering the fundamental nature of frost resistance in crop plants and the different reliable methods by which the plant breeder may estimate accurately the hardiness of a new strain the first season rather than be forced to look it in field plots for several winters

Researches are also being conducted by Professor A. E. Cameron into the economic significance of the horse-fly to stock breeders; by Professor F. J. Lewis into the reserve food materials in evergreens leaves during winter seasons; by Professor J. R. Fryer, into the biological origin of false wild oats; by Professor W. P. Thompson into the inheritance of earliness and lateness of wheat and the making of early hybrids direct breeding; by E. S. Hopkins the subject of determining the water requirements of crops; by Professor W. Sadler, on the subject of the correlation of the grading of cream and butter with the bacterial content of the milk or cream used in the preparation of these products; by Dr. J. F. Snell, on the subject of acidity and lime requirements of Quebec soils; by Dr. F. C. Harrison, on a variety of subjects regarding soil conditions and by Professor G. W. Search, on the effects on plant growth of the electro-positive elements as ions and the more fundamental causes of these effects.

By no means the least important of the co-ordinative and co-operative researches which have been going on for some time past and from which results are being secured is that in connection with tuberculosis, a full report of which will be forthcoming at next autumn.

Rolling Likely To Stay

Cancellation Of Duty On Publications Is Not Looked For

It is considered unlikely that the Privy Council of Canada will upset the ruling of the Board of Customs, which imposed a duty of 25 per cent. on periodical publications consisting almost wholly of fiction and not containing a reasonable amount of critical and descriptive articles, news items or articles relative thereto or current topics.

The Wholesale News Dealers Association of Canada recently appealed to the Privy Council from the ruling of the Board of Customs to the effect that high speed fiction novelettes, detective stories, thrillers and magazines exploiting sex questions, the underworld, love mysteries, the eternal triangle and the like, must pay duty upon entering Canada. The majority of these periodicals come from the United States.

The Customs Board has adequate authority under the statute to place them on the dutiable list and the only body which can over-rule the board now is Parliament itself, as the Privy Council already has established the ruling of the Board. The Privy Council in this case is the Federal Government.

Hog Pastures

Wheat Pasture Compared With Rape Pasture In Experiment

Wheat pasture compared with rape pasture fo. hogs in an experiment conducted at the Rosthern, Saskatchewan, Experimental Station, showed wheat pasture gave the better results. With two lots of hogs otherwise fed alike, those on wheat pasture made a higher daily average gain of .17 pounds at a cost of .3 cents less per pound than the lot on the rape pasture. The gain from the wheat pasture made very little difference in the type of the hogs, although, according to the report of the station for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, the hogs fed on the wheat pasture showed a better finish.

SO LONG CHAPS

Stung to protest by the slur that they are "department store cowboys," the guides of the Rocky Mountains are reported to be discarding their picturesque "chaps" in favor of the comfortable old-time trousers. The guides in the neighborhood of the Banff Springs Hotel are the delight of visitors, with their broad brimmed hats and shaggy sheep skin chaps, worn primarily in the early days to protect the riders from big injury when herding long-horned steers on the prairie. The fact that the chaps interfere with the breeching are so serviceable and can give no cause for criticism as cowleg as effect, is apparently resulting about a change in fashion, and soon the leisure-hunter's costume as seen in movies conceived it may be only a memory piece.

The Rocky Mountain guides in handling parties of tourists, many experimenting with trial riding for the first time, have an amusing and exciting time, and succeed in not only making and breaking camp and catering to the needs of their patrons, but in safeguarding the most timid tenderfoot and bringing all through happy and unharmed.

Canada Awaits In Building Up Forests

Seed Collecting In B.C. Has Become Big Industry

One of the largest seed extraction plants in North America is maintained at New Westminster, British Columbia, by the Forest Service of the Canadian Government Department of the Interior. Here, in good seed years, thousands of sacks of cones of Sitka spruce, western yellow pine, Douglas fir, western red cedar, western hemlock and other trees, are brought in by steamer, rail, motor truck and wagon. The cones are dried and the seed threshed, cleaned, bagged and boxed or otherwise containered for shipment to various parts of the world.

The motive prompting the establishment of this plant in 1921 was the desire of the Canadian Government to assist the Imperial Forestry Commission to reforest certain areas in the British Isles denuded during the war years. Experience has shown that many Canadian trees, particularly the Douglas fir and Sitka spruce of the British Columbia coast, do well in Great Britain.

The work of seed collecting, from a small beginning in 1917, has grown to large proportions and today is assisting in building up forests in several countries. New Zealand, in particular, is supplied each year with large quantities of Canadian tree seed and smaller quantities are shipped to other countries.

Seeking To Preserve Big Grazing Tracts

Removal Of Alberta Prairie Grass Crops Object Of Experiment

To save the three million acres of Alberta land for ranchers who find their cattle dwindling unfed on the sparse prairie grass, the dominion seed husbandman, E. S Hopkins, has instituted important experimental work at Lacombe, in the heart of the affected district. Not hopeful of making two blades of grass grow where one grows today, the agricultural experts of the dominion will be satisfied if they can bring back the one that has gone. The disappearing years the grass gradually has been disappearing from the plains at the foothills of the Rockies.

Land that formerly would support great droves of cattle now barely sustains a few, and the ranchers have had to give up in some cases, or curtail their operations in others.

The first problem will be to make the native grass grow again, and secondly, to find such grasses as will grow when seeded.

A deferred and rotated system of grazing will be started.

Many Building Contracts

Building contracts awarded in Canada, in June of this year, totalled in value $59,936,100, the second highest total ever recorded for any month, the record being in May of this year. Last months total exceeded that for June, 1927, by 14.7 per cent. From January 1 to June 30, 1928, the value of building contracts awarded in the Dominion amounted to $276,257,300, which is 28.9 per cent. higher than the value for the first six months of last year

There were eight Crusades conducted into the Holy Land.

Education Is Building Up Canada

Representing 50,000 Canadian teachers, Dr. E. A. Sheedy, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, brought greetings from Canada to the National Education Association, of the United States, in annual convention at Minneapolis, under Miss Cornelia Adair, of Richmond, Va., national president. Dr. Hardy stressed the achievements of Canada and the important part played by the teaching profession, which in the dominion maintained a uniformly high and broad and liberal rigid supervision of the provincial education departments.

"Speaking as a Canadian, it seemed to me fitting that I should try to express to you, though in the briefest way, the outstanding features of Canada and Canadian life and the relations of the Canadian teachers to that national life," Dr. Hardy said.

"There are certain characteristics of Canada which I would avoid. First, the high standards of life, material and spiritual. Thanks to our natural resources, our industrial and national, rich beyond the dreams of the wildest imagination, and to the marvelous fertility of our soil, our economic position is a general comfort and prosperity, unequalled anywhere except in the United States. On the spiritual side we have a creditable achievement in literature, painting, architecture, music, drama, science, and the power of religion in our life is deep and vital. In her general standard of life, both material and spiritual, Canada is second to no other country in the world.

"Canada, too, is a land of democracy. In Canada not only must every administration, federal and provincial, go to the people for election every four or five years, but they may go at any time, if public dissatisfaction is felt. We have opportunity, through our federal, provincial and municipal bodies, for many citizens of our state to be chosen to represent their fellow citizens. Possibly no other country elects a larger percentage of its citizens to public office. As to public ownership, Canada occupies a front rank.

"A third characteristic is co-operation. Our area is so vast, our resources so enormous, our population so small as yet, and so scattered that we have been learning that in co-operation lies our hope of success. Two striking examples will be given. The English and the French races are united in the Government and the development of Canada with marked success. The Religious Education Council of Canada is a nation-wide union of the great Protestant denominations, and the Y.W.C.A. for a systematic undertaking of the great task of the religious culture of our young people. So far as I know this is the only nation-wide movement of the kind in the world."

Dr Hardy explained the dominion's position in the British Empire of which it was a part, to be a member, and continued: "Internationally we are taking our place. One of our most striking evidences is the success of the small group who made the League of Nations and gave it its constitution. Canada was the dominion of the League of Nations from the first. A Canadian has been President of the League. In imperial and international affairs Canada is assuming her place and her people are developing as an imperial and a world outlook."

MYSTERY ENDS BY FINDING BODY OF LOEWENSTEIN

Boulogne-Sur-Mer, France. — The finding of the body of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, millionaire of Belgium and Senaire, has cleared up most of the grim mystery surrounding his disappearance from a cross-channel aeroplane on July 4.

French and Belgian authorities will still have to determine whether Loewenstein accidentally fell from the plane as it flew 4,000 feet over the English Channel, or deliberately wrenched open the exit door and plunged to his death.

But the ugly rumors that the financier had perpetrated a gigantic hoax and was still alive were definitely set at rest by the finding of the body.

The battered body was found floating four downwind in mine of Cap Gris Nez, by the Boulogne fishing smack 550, Capt. Jean Marie Rearbaut. It was readily identified by a wrist watch engraved "Capt. Loewenstein, 35 Fine de la Science, Bruxelles."

Otherwise the body was unrecognizable, as it was in an advanced stage of decomposition.

The body was clothed only in under-drawers, socks and shoes, the latter bearing the name of an English maker. The fish had eaten away the lips on the abdomen and both feet were bruised.

At the Boulogne morgue Dr. Boulfroy made a formal post-mortem examination, and the mayor of Calais, Leon Vasseur, issued an official statement recounting the circumstances of finding the body and the result of the examination of the remains. No official conclusion was made public.

It is believed here that now that the mystery of the financier's disappearance has been solved, the French government will abandon its inquiry to establish whether death was accidental or a suicide, and if any of Captain Loewenstein's friends were responsible for his death.

Bavarian Town Was Damaged By Floods

Oberammergau, Famous For Its Passion Play, Was Submerged

Berlin.—Oberammergau, the Bavarian town, famous for its Passion Play, has been partly demolished by flood.

The town was submerged when cloudbursts caused the river Laind to overflow. Bridges were swept away.

Torches had to be used in the streets work until dawn, because the local power plant was flooded.

As flood menaced the Oberammergau district the neighboring Tolzberg forest, near Fuessen, was fired.

Considering Air Insurance

Canadian Companies Believe Proper Will Want This Protection

Ottawa.—Canadian insurance companies are considering special forms of insurance for civilians interesting themselves in aviation, it is learned. Recently a conference of actuaries and insurance heads of Canada, it is said to have discussed the matter, realizing that soon the man who drives his own car will be in the same category as the man who drives his own car, so far as the demand for insurance is concerned.

Motor Boat Beats Train

German Expert Drives Craft Nearly

Cologne, Germany. Fritz Von Opel, German sportsman and motor boat expert, beat an express train with his 560 horsepower motor boat in a race over a distance of 10 kilometres (6.21 miles on the Rhine

Von Opel drove his boat over the distance in six minutes and 12 seconds, 2½ minutes faster than the train running along the river bank. The average speed of the boat was 62.88 miles an hour.

Federal Government To Raise Figures

Ottawa.—The Dominion Government is going in for pigeon-breeding. The object is not, however, to increase the food supply of the country It is to breed and train pigeons for purposes of communication. The department of national defence is to have charge of the work.

Glasgow, Scotland, was recently fined because some of its municipal street cars exceeded the speed limit.

Receives New Appointment

Dr. Delury Of Saskatchewan Leaving With Wife For Manitoba

Winnipeg, Man.—Dr. T. G. Delury, of the University of Saskatchewan, will succeed Dr. R. C. Wallace as commissioner of mines and as professor of geology and mineralogy at the University of Manitoba. The appointment was announced by the government.

Prof. Delury expects to make the necessary arrangements with the University of Saskatchewan in order it possible to take up his work here September 1, when Dr. R. C. Wallace leaves to take over the position of president of the University of Alberta.

Dr. Delury is well known in Winnipeg and Manitoba. He was for years the right hand man of Dr. Wallace in the department of geology and mineralogy at the University of Manitoba, in that capacity he rendered valuable service to the province. One of his latest contributions was a voluminous report which he prepared two or three years ago for the industrial development board.

It is said he was rapidly destined by a wrist watch engraved "Capt. Loewenstein, 35 Fine de la Science, Bruxelles."

Would Export Alberta Gas

Plan To Pipe Waste Gas To Saskatchewan And Manitoba Considered

Lethbridge, Alta.—Alberta's problem of waste gas seems closer to solution than in the past from the piping of the surplus gas to Saskatchewan and Manitoba cities, and the cities of Montana.

In an interview here, Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, gave it as his opinion that the supply of gas 800 miles to Winnipeg, and intermediate cities, including Moose Jaw and Regina, was feasible.

Again exportation of gas from the Rogers' field, southeast of this city, is now possible under federal permit. The Rauge Oil and Gas company has spudded in another well on the Rogers dome just south and east of the 40,000,000 foot producer, and the plans of this company and the Hardrock Coal Company, of Crowfoot, who will drill the wells, are to have gas flowing through their pipe line into Montana by winter. A pipe line will be built to the Montana boundary, it is announced, either to link up with the present pipe line to Great Falls or as a separate line into that city.

Libel Action Settled

Action Was Brought By Cardinal Hayes Against London News-Standard

London.—Settlement of a libel action brought by Cardinal Hayes, of New York, against the Sunday Express was announced in the King's Bench division.

Counsel stated that a paragraph appearing in the newspaper had said that the cardinal was a man who excused murder of Kevin O'Higgins, Irish Free State minister of justice, on the ground that he was "an English hireling."

Counsel said that the defendants never suggested for one moment that the statement, which had been made, was untrue, but could be justified, and promptly did the honorable thing by apologizing for having published it.

Receive Royal Pictures For National Gallery

Gift Of King George Replaces Portrait Destroyed By Fire

Ottawa.—Pictures of King George, Queen Mary, Prince of Wales, King Edward and Queen Alexandra, were received by Eric Brown, director of the National Art Gallery, on behalf of the Canadian Government. These portraits are the gift of King George and will replace the pictures of these distinguished members of the royal family which were in the old parliament buildings but were destroyed when the buildings were burned in 1916.

Quebec.—Fifty members of the National Chamber of Commerce, of Great Britain, headed by Counsellor James Robertson, president of the Chamber, arrived here and immediately proceeded to Montreal by train. The party will tour Canada, staying in Montreal two days before going to Ottawa.

Russia Buys Canadian Wheat

Further Sales Of Canadian Wheat To Russia Are Announced

Winnipeg.—Further sales of Canadian wheat to Russia were announced at the grain exchange here. That country has taken another 1,000,000 bushels, bringing her total purchases during the past fortnight to 9,500,000 bushels.

A good portion of the grain was No. 3 Northern Manitoba. Italy is credited with the purchase of one million bushels of Durum wheat recently, mostly from the local market.

Demand from other European countries remains indifferent partly because of increased native supplies and partly on account of prospects for large crops on the North American continent this year.

Feeling Against Nobile

Leader Of Italia Expedition Under Criticism In Norway

Oslo, Norway.—Feeling against General Umberto Nobile, leader of the Italia expedition, is making itself felt in Oslo.

The newspaper Aftenposten removed a picture of the general from a show case during the day as threats had been made to destroy it. Nobile's wife and daughter have proposed Fridtjof Hansen as chairman of a court of honor to investigate Nobile's handling of the expedition. Hansen declined this but said that he thought there were several events in Nobile's expedition that need clearing up investigation.

CONSERVATIVES WIN IN B. C. BY LARGE MAJORITY

Vancouver.—The Liberal Government which has held power in British Columbia for the past nineteen years, and which has been led by Premier J. D. MacLean for the past year, was defeated in the provincial elections, and the Conservative party under the leadership of Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, was elected to power

The Premier and at least two of his ministers were defeated. Dr Tolmie was elected in Saanich.

Premier MacLean was defeated in Victoria; Hon. Dugald Donaghy, minister of finance, in Vancouver; Hon. R. D. Harrow, minister of agriculture, in Chilliwack.

Liberals have been elected in New Westminster, Cranbrook, and Nanaimo.

Conservatives have been returned in Vancouver six, Victoria four, Saanich, Burnaby, South Vancouver, North Okanagan, Chilliwack, Cowichan-Newcastle, Comox and The Islands.

Four Liberals gained Cranbrook from the Conservatives, while the Conservatives have gained all six Vancouver seats, five from Liberals and one from the new defunct Provincial party; Chilliwack from Liberals; Saanich from Independent; Burnaby from Labor, South Vancouver from Labor.

Mary Ellen Smith was defeated by R. H. Pooley, in Esquimalt

Of the 48 seats contested in the provincial election of 1924, in the Legislature, the Liberals carried 23 in the last contest; the Conservatives 17; Labor 3, Provincial, 3, Independents, 1; and Independent Liberals, 1.

Clark's Status Discussed

Duties Of British Ambassador to Canada Debated In House

London.—The British Government's newly appointed high commissioner in Canada, Sir William Clark, who is sailing for Ottawa shortly, and the duties of the newly created position were discussed in the House of Commons when P. J. Hannon, (conservative, Moseley, asked whether the High Commissioner would take precedence over the representative of all foreign powers at Ottawa, and if in submitting proposals respecting British commercial interests to the Government of Canada, he would have full diplomatic support of His Majesty's government in Britain.

Right Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, Dominion Secretary, in replying reminded the questioner of the similar case of the Dominion high commissioners in Britain, who ranked immediately after cabinet ministers, but not before ambassadors.

It was of course contemplated that the high commissioner of Great Britain in Canada, would be entitled to make representations on commercial questions to the Canadian government when directed to do so by His Majesty's government in Great Britain, the minister said.

Statistics Show Crime Increase In Canada

Convictions Recorded In 1927 Higher Than Previous Year

Ottawa.—Crime is increasing in Canada, statistics of criminal statistics available show that for the year ended September 30, 1927, the number of convictions recorded reached a total of 212,975 as compared with 187,561 for the preceding period ended September 30, 1926.

The number of homicide cases returned for the year under review according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was 232.—Montreal Gazette.

Canadian Militia Promotions

A Number Of Transfers and Promotions Announced

Ottawa.—The rank of "Brigadier" recently introduced in the British Army has been adopted in the Canadian Militia, with effect from July 1 The temporary rank of "brigadier" is in substitution for the temporary ranks of colonel commandant and colonel-on-the-staff

Orders promulgated from defence headquarters announce a number of important promotions in the Canadian Militia. Among them are the following:

Major E. H. Cope has been promoted to the rank of lieut.-colonel and to command the Vancouver Regiment with regimental headquarters at Vancouver, B.C., vice lieut.-colonel E. G Wolfe Merton, M.C., who has been transferred to the reserve of officers.

Major W. W. Henderson has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel and to command the 2nd regiment the Alberta Mounted Rifles with regimental headquarters at Pincher Creek, Alta., vice lieutenant-colonel J. H. Jackson, transferred to the reserve of officers

May Establish Trade Treaty With Germany

Flour Would Lead Canada's Export List, Says N. E. Palmer

St. John, N.B. Canada export trade with Germany will be greatly facilitated under favorable treaty arrangements which the Dominion is now endeavoring to establish with that country said Max H. Palmer of Calgary, newly appointed assistant Canadian Trade Commissioner to Hamburg, who was here in connection with a tour of the Maritime Provinces with a view to developing Maritime export trade with Germany In speaking of Canada's trade possibilities with Germany, Mr. Palmer stated that at the present time Canada is discriminated against as a result of existing agreements which particularly affected the export of flour as will as other commodities. Should the trade treaties being advanced by the Canadian Government go through successfully, Mr. Palmer is of the opinion that flour would lead Canada's export list to Germany.

ASSASSIN OF GEN. OBREGON IS IDENTIFIED

Mexico City.—Police headquarters semi-officially announced that the assassin of General Obregon had been identified as Jose de Leon Toral, a student, aged 23, a native of Lagos, in the State of Jalisco

He is said to have lived at Guadalajara, but to have come to Mexico City six months ago seeking work. Police said they found upon him a picture of the Catholic priest, Miguel Augustin Prophares, who was executed in connection with the attempt to assassinate Obregon with bombs last November

It was said that de Leon Toral refused to admit accomplices and repeated throughout his grilling that he acted alone.

Federal district police arrested and held for investigation Emilio Rumbill, proprietor of the restaurant where Obregon was killed at San Angel, and all twelve employees of the place.

Government ownership of drug-stores was still in force

El Universal Grafico says that the murder and wife of the assassin have been arrested and are being held.

In a signed statement Presidente Plutarco Elias Calles declared that the assassin of General Obregon had committed the murder of his crime unaided and alone.

There were innumerable rumors in the capital of uprisings and other killings but all proved to be untrue. Intense excitement prevailed everywhere but neither the newspapers nor the government had any information of trouble breaking out anywhere in the republic. The war department issued an official statement saying that the army would guarantee the public peace

Provincial Cafes was surrounded by a strong guard. All saloons were closed, as were theatres and other places of amusement.

Many of those known to be opposed to Obregon fled from Mexico City before the fury of his friends and supporters, which were kept in bounds only by police precautions. The headquarters of Luis Morones, Secretary of Labor, and Obregon's greatest political opponent, were surrounded by a guard at the instance of President Calles, who feared that there might some attempts at violence.

Hail Damages Crop Of Wheat King

Experimental Plots Of J. C. Mitchell, Dahinda, Are Badly Hit

Dahinda. — Prospects of J. C. Mitchell, Saskatchewan Wheat King, regaining the international crown, were seriously jeopardized by the disastrous hail storm which visited this district, which rained many crops Mr. Mitchell had 240 acres of wheat under cultivated and on 50 acres, a 30 per cent. loss Fortunately the hail did not damage 130 acres of first and second generation of experimental grains

The damage to the Mitchell crop will be a big one, owing consequences to the wheat producers of the West, for included in the damaged crop were experimental plots from which the Wheat King had been carefully tending this summer His plot of 50 acres comprised wheat, Durum, was also a complete loss.

No Claims Paid This Year

Government Does Not Intend To Pay Reparations Now

Ottawa, Ont. —Although the War Claims Commission continues to receive his report which was made public last season, the government does not intend to pay the claims for some time. Part of the money for this purpose was included in Hon. James A. Robb's budget for the 1928-29 year, but the 3,000 small claimants will have to be satisfied with what Hansard calls "promises." Not a dollar of this amount will be distributed before the 1929 session.

GENERAL NOBILE TO RETURN HOME IN QUIET MANNER

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen. — The man who came from Italy in a giant airship and circled the North Pole to the applause of a world which loves brave gestures and deeds of daring—General Umberto Nobile, commander of the dirigible Italia, will return home on a coal freighter, avoiding all possible ports of call, it was announced by one of his associates

The general will travel over an unknown route to an unannounced destination where he will be picked up by a motor-driven schooner and taken to Germany or France. It was said he would leave in a few days.

Nobile will not travel with the men who went into the Arctic with him—fifteen men, of whom two were left behind on the ice and six others blown away in the wreckage of the Italia to probable death.

The men who were rescued by the steamship Krassin, after Nobile had been brought out by the Swedish aviator, Captain Ecker-Thaal Lundberg will return at least a part of the way aboard the Italia's base ship, Citta De Milano.

Nobile will avoid touching at any port in Norway An unfriendly sentiment has been manifest in Norway toward the Italian polar expedition since two of Nobile's companions, Captain Adalberto Mariano and Filippo Zappi were picked up on the ice to tell how Dr Malmgren, Finnish member of the party left behind at his own insistence to die by a grave scooped out of the ice

Mariano and Zappi arrived with five other rescued Italians on the Krassin recently

The Citta Di Milano probably will proceed to Narvik as soon as possible with the survivors. then travel to Italy to continue the search for twelve lost men—six with the Italia, and six, including Roald Amundsen, with a French seaplane, which left Tromsoe, Norway, June 18, to search for Nobile.

Reports from Stockholm indicated the government would order the rescue expedition under command of Captain Malmberg to return immediately to Sweden.

DANGEROUS POTATO PEST FOUND IN VERMILION

Yesterday Mr. John Wiebe discovered two bills on potatoes in his garden in Pikeville, badly infested with the larvae of the Colorado potato beetle (Darryphora 1ndecimla).

This is the first time that this pest has been found in Northern Alberta, so that it is advisable for all potato growers to inspect their crop. The larva or fury-grown beetle is a rather long bump-backed soft bodied creature about the size of a large pea, with a black head and red body. Anyone finding these larvae, orange red eggs on potato leaves, or an oval cream colored beetle with 10 longitudinal black lines should immediately destroy same, for unless this pest is completely stamped out local potato growers will have something quite serious to deal with

FAIR OPENED TODAY

FINE LIST OF ENTRIES NUMEROUS ATTRACTIONS

Horses From "A" Circuit Here For Races

The twenty first annual exhibition of the Vermilion Agricultural Society opened today under adverse weather conditions. Hopes up to the last that the opening day would be favored with bright unbidden were dissipated as heavy clouds set in the forenoon and rain fell steadily until noon. It is to be hoped for better weather for Tuesday and Saturday, as indeed for as prospects are our fair is coming up at any time.

All the classes have a heavy entry list—stock being most prominent. Extra facilities for horses were provided this year and a new stable erected.

The attractions in front of the grand stand are a catchpenny and exciting array, outstanding and the most ambitious the directors have yet engaged. Miss Dahlia, the diver performance is being provided by the Acro Bill Circus. Dahl The horse racing card is going to be a good one, entries from A circuit as Saskatoon being entered as well as some of the horses and other people in the racing circuit.

A list of entry, carrying no plate is expected on the grounds

The business places of the town are closing on account of the fair at 12 noon and town people will be on the exhibition grounds en masse this afternoon and the races are coming at 2 o'clock.

WEST ON VERGE OF HARVESTING SPLENDID CROP

General Situation Has Never Been Better, According to Experts

WINNIPEG, July 26 — Present reports from districts served by the Canadian National lines would indicate that western Canada is about to commence harvesting one of the greatest crops in the history of the country. While a few local districts report showers during the past week the weather has generally been safe and warm with the result that all grain fields made excellent progress. Some of the early Man district's the prior of the west report no appreciable deterioration, a number of districts in the north central Manitoba will commence cutting barley the first week in August.

With the exception of some small areas in the South Battleford district where moisture is needed, reports from all districts have been favorable and now that the past week's sunshine and warm weather has brought the crops to the point where harvesting operations will be in full swing in many districts next week, indications are that the yield will eliminate the local failure problem to some extent.

Industrial Development In Canada

Possibilities in the future development of industries in Canada, and the utilizing of the natural resources of the Dominion as the essential raw material in such development, and the manner in which all the people can assist in such development and expansion of manufacturing in Canada, formed the subject matter of a recent address by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, before the Young Men's Section of the Winnipeg Board of Trade which is worthy of the most serious consideration, and especially so because it is so simple so thoroughly sound, and so applicable to all parts of the country.

Mr. Stewart did not consider a future Canada with a limited number of great manufacturing centres, and with the great basic plants located in certain sections of the country with people supporting the home manufacturing, and agriculture itself being confined to a few centres, but he wanted to see a well-distributed Canada had already created a number of such large industries, and will continue to do so as the population and wealth of the Dominion grows. The data submitted by Mr. Stewart for economic consideration was most interesting at this time.

Mr. Stewart dealt in figures east, central and west in the north as well as in the southern portions, on the country's vast resources, and of varied character. Many of these natural resources are lying idle, or are not being developed in widely separated sections, and he feels the development should be undertaken and this should be supported mainly from points rather than attempting to supply the requirements of the people from one or two places located far away from the mass of consumers.

In other words, Mr. Stewart advocates study of a plan which would favor the establishment of industries reasonably near to utilize those natural resources which must be found adjacent to such communities and thus supply the local and regional demand instead of transporting such goods long distances from other parts of Canada in many cases unnecessarily, because the same thing could be made on the ground. The possibilities of manufacturing locally had been brought home to many towns and cities largely through the initiative of enterprising public bodies like the board of trade, assisted by the facts on file in the department at Ottawa. Raw material, as far as possible, should, he contended, be prevented from leaving Canada so that the country's resources to the greatest extent might be utilized for these living therein.

In all such endeavors, boards of trade everywhere, Mr. Stewart stated, would have the assistance of the government in a whole-hearted way. His department was always willing to co-operate with any public body in placing at the disposal of interested persons locations of the country's natural resources. Experts of the department would be available always, and would be sent to any localities where their services would be of assistance.

The policy suggested by Mr Stewart should make a particularly strong appeal to hundreds of trade throughout the three prairie provinces, which, up to the present time, have been so largely dependent upon the other provinces and foreign countries for the manufactured goods which our people consume in such large quantities, and for which we have been obliged to pay a high prices because of the enormous distances these goods have had to be transported from the point of manufacture.

That Mr. Stewart's idea is sound, is borne out by the experience of many towns and many industries. Some of the most flourishing industrial towns and cities secured their start through the establishment of a comparatively small local plant utilizing some raw material found in the locality, and history is filled with instances where these small local industries have, under careful but progressive management, grown into what are now classed as among the great industries of the country. Hundreds of such instances both in Canada and the United States could be given.

In the past, western board of trade, and western people generally, have possibly made the mistake of handing their energies to secure the location of branch factories, warehouses or distributing agencies of outside concerns. A branch factory of some big and well known concern looked larger on their horizons than a small locally-owned and operated factory. In the long run the latter offers greater things for the community than does the former. All its interests are at home and it is there its growth and development will count for most.

All Western Canada would gain through widespread action on Mr. Stewart's suggestion. Economically and politically the country will be stronger and more prosperous if, instead of possessing a few very large industrial cities, these prairie provinces are dotted over with numerous allied medium sized, industries utilizing local raw materials and creating thriving communities about them.

Special Cameras For South Polar Flight

One Will Automatically Develop and Deliver Strips Of Film

Photography is to play an important part in the South Polar flight to be made by Commander Byrd Two special automatic cameras are being constructed, one to take pictures of the sun as an aid to navigation, and the other to record each mile of the flight.

While the flight is in progress the first camera will automatically develop and deliver strips of film. The second camera will be attached to the bottom of the plane and will follow the path to the Pole, recording from a height of 5 000 feet a strip of the Polar plateau right miles in width.

No Restrictions On British Immigrants

Propaganda Calculated To Impair Prestige Of Canada In Chevalier

"Apart from the common sense requirements concerning health and character, there are no restrictions on Britishers coming to Canada to live," Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of labor, said, when asked about complaints published in British papers that Canada was too strict in its provisions for admitting people from Great Britain into this country.

For some time, the minister added, both here and in England, Canada's immigration regulations have been subjected to severe criticism insofar as the admission of Britishers is concerned. It is claimed in England that people are not being encouraged to emigrate to Canada while in this country it is said that immigrants are being induced to come when no employment is available for them.

It is difficult to see what the propagandists have in mind, but the result can only be to impair the prestige of Canada in the eyes of residents of the mother country."

Symptoms That the Blood Is Thin Should Not Be Neglected

Weak, run-down, lacking strength, energy and ambition, nervous, sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed. These are the symptoms caused by a great majority of people who have been benefited by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These tonic pills act on the condition described and if you have any of these symptoms you should give these pills a trial. They are a splendid remedy for this and is shown by the statement of Mrs. Daniel J. Chisholm, Antigonish, N.S. who says:—"I was completely run down and suffered from blood thin and watery, and my nerves so bad I was not able to get about. My appetite was poor and the best exertion left me in condition described. When I went out I would have to lie down soon as I got back home. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon found they did me good and after using the fifth box I felt like a new woman, and have enjoyed good health ever since. For this reason I can fully recommend Pink Pills to anyone run-down or troubled with their nerves."

Not only do Dr. Williams' Pink Pills help the nerves. Their main function is to enrich and increase the blood, and as this blood supplies the whole body, new life is given to the entire system. Better sleep, steady nerves, improved appetite, increased vigor—all these can be yours by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Get them today. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail post paid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Number Of Fatalities In Aviation Accidents Is Decreasing

In contrast to the rising death rate from automobile accidents is the decreasing number of fatalities in aviation accidents. For 1928 there were 170 deaths in airplane and balloon accidents; in 1926, when the number of those flying had increased enormously, there were 170 deaths. The ratio of deaths to miles flown was in the first year one to 1,287; in 1912, it was one to 1,307,964.

Miller's Worm Powders are a pleasant medicine for worm-infected children, and they will take it without objection. When directions are followed it will not injure the most delicate child, being nothing of an injurious nature in its composition. They will speedily rid a child of worms and restore the health of the little sufferer whose vitality has been impaired by the attacks of these internal pests.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

ORANGE SHORTCAKE

2 cups flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
4 tearspoons baking powder.
4 tablespoons sugar.
4 tablespoons shortening
½ to ¾ cup of milk

Sift the dry materials until well blended. Rub in the shortening with a fork. Cut in just enough milk to make a soft dough. Put in greased bake pan, press with back of hand in shape of pan, and bake twelve to fifteen minutes in hot oven

Filling

6 oranges.
½ cup sugar.

Wash oranges, remove the skin, cutting off all white membrane. Cut orange in half and cut in cubes of uniform size. Sprinkle with sugar, then spread between the prepared cakes. Serve with a sauce made with the juice of two oranges and three fourths cup sugar.

MEDIUM CREAM SAUCE FOR VEGETABLES

2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons flour.
1 cup milk.
½ teaspoon salt.

Few grains pepper.

Put butter in saucepan, stir until melted; add flour mixed with seasoning. Stir until thoroughly blended. Pour on milk, one-third at a time, while stirring. Bring to the boiling point. A double boiler is preferable in order to prevent burning. Use 1 cup cream sauce to 1 cup cooked vegetable.

Asthma Can Be Cured. Its suffering is as needless as it is terrible to endure. After Hs many years of relief of the most stubborn cases no sufferer can doubt the perfect effectiveness of Dr. J. D. Pool To Pay Dividends

Saskatchewan Wheat Pool Members To Benefit Through Dividends On Pool Elevator System

Members of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool will receive approximately $350,000 in September as a result of the 1½ per cent. dividend that the Pool is paying on the money invested in the Pool elevator system. The principal for this system has been obtained from members by deducting two cents per bushel from all cheques paid to them.

The Pool members will also receive a dividend of 5 per cent. on the reserve fund. C. W. Ring, manager of the Pool here, was unable to say what amount this would involve

It was stated recently by A. J. Mitchell, president of the Wheat Pool, that as soon as the Pool centralized shipping facilities at every point the two cents per bushel deduction would be returned to members and that the ownership of the system would be kept fresh, by the "revolving door system" which means that two cents per bushel would still be deducted from annual payments by members, but a corresponding amount would be returned each year. Thus members of the Pool were saving an amount annually, which in many cases was as high as $300

Albert Cloes, eminent Canadian cartographist, whose charts of the British Isles proved invaluable to British fishermen and to the admiralty during the great war, has returned for a visit to his old home, at Nanpanee, Ont. A great achievement of his during the war was the inventing of an electric net to snare submarines! He has recently prepared a detailed plan of the battle of Jutland, for which he was congratulated by Lord Jellicoe. Before returning to England, Mr. Cloes will interview the department of marine and fisheries and fishing skippers of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, and the Atlantic coast to obtain information of assistance in preparing new charts of Atlantic coast waters.

Acted As Wireless Apparatus

Shovel Hanging In Swedish Fire Station Reproduced Radio Programme

A few days ago a coal shovel hanging on the wall of the Fire Brigade station at Gothenburg, Sweden, suddenly assumed the role of a local entertainer, and began to speak, sing and play!

The firemen were puzzled, and after a closer investigation it appeared that the shovel's performance synchronised with the sending of the local wireless broadcasting station.

In some peculiar manner the shovel acted as an ordinary wireless apparatus it was found that it was suspended on the wall in such a position that it touched the power line of the Kalmar wireless station, and that it reproduced clearly and distinctly everything sent out from that station. Wireless experts, however, have been unable so far to give a satisfactory explanation of the occurrence

Anything But Peaceful

Doves Are Very Quarrelsome, Says Professor Of Zoology

The dove, for centuries the olive branch symbol and emblem of peace, is found to lead a very quarrelsome family life. There may be some billing and cooing in public, but in privacy the dove mates quarrel.

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, professor of zoology, in the University of Kentucky, makes the true facts known. It is his opinion that the crow and bluejay are the most intelligent birds and that the yellow-billed cuckoo and the catbird are the "best all-round friends of man."—Capper's Weekly

NOTABLE OCCASION.

The corner stone of the new one hundred and fifty thousand dollar dormitory at the agricultural school was fittingly laid at one o'clock today by the Hon. Hon. Headley, minister of agriculture. The ceremonies in connection with this notable event were largely attended. The alumni reunion took place at the same time. The weather had cleared by noon and the bright rays of old Sol gladdened the hearts of all. Under such favorable conditions, the Hon. R. G. Reid, provincial treasurer, officially opened the (twenty-third) annual exhibition of the local agricultural society.

HORSE OF ANOTHER COLOR.

(Port Saskatchewan Record)

There was a dashed into the river at the ferry landing this place on the Sunday afternoon and rescued a young man from drowning. It was most fortunate for the necessities that his distress was observed and that his rescuers were willing to spoil their clothing and get themselves a cold, or worse still, pneumonia, before being able to change into dry duds. It is curious that humans will take all kinds of chances to save the life of another under any conditions or circumstances—except when motoring on the open road. That is a horse of another color. There are motorists who will jeopardize their own safety, that of their passengers, and of other motorists they meet, in their crazy attempts to gain a few seconds, seconds they don't as a rule know what to do with after gaining them at such great risk; there are motorists who will take chances to show off—to demonstrate their superiness at driving; and there are those who are intoxicated with the rapturous sense of speed and power under their control, who rashly usurp that speed and power as being their own personal property, and permit their otherwise hidden brutal natures, who judging by their actions must be mentally classed as low and sundry "if you don't want to get hurt get out of my way!" And the irritating part is that the same man, the better man, has to get out of his way, if he has time, and can.

Mr. Average Driver is inwardly fuming and waiting for legislation which will deal with these terrors of the road and deprive them of the power

TENDER LET FOR SCHOOL

At a meeting of the school board Monday night to consider tenders for the new school building, the contract was awarded to the firm of Waterman Waterbury of Regina at a figure of $32,240.00. Five tenders were received in all, one each from Calgary, Edmonton, Vermilion, Saskatoon and Regina.

Resignations of Mr. Scarborough from high school staff and Miss Eva Newton from the public school were received. Both these teachers have gone to Edmonton schools. The previous vacancy on the public school staff was filled by the engagement of Miss Edythe Lipsey and that of the high school by Miss Dorothy Pemberton, B.A., New Zealand

The board have since secured the services of Miss M. E. Cameron of Edmonton to complete the public school staff and are advertising for a science and math-manical teacher for the high school.

The new fence has been completed around the Alexander school grounds and the trees are all fenced also and the clover and grass coming along well

250 FAMILIES FOR VERMILION FARMS

Hudson's Bay Company Is To Colonize 400,000 Acres

Over four hundred thousand acres owned by the Hudson's Bay company in the Vermilion and Alexandra district have been withdrawn from the market for colonization purposes. For the past few weeks a staff of experts have been making a complete survey of this land, and so it is passed our attention is at once directed toward effecting improvements along the lines followed by the Sandonald colony.

Five acres will be broken on each quarter, substantial farm buildings erected, the land fenced and a well sunk. The land will be settled as soon as the improvements are completed.

The intention is to have the entire colony of two hundred and fifty families placed on the land between now and next spring and in time to harvest their crops in 1929. The colonists will be confined to British settlers

How To Enter Canada's Terrain

Way Has Been Made Very Easy For the Tourist To Enter Dominion

Tourists enter Canada with as ease and freedom from annoyance which is a constant source of wonder to old-world visitors. Along the 3,000 miles of Frontier separating Canada from the United States automobiles stream across the border with seldom more than a few minutes delay. The corresponding with which visitors to Canada enter the Canadian Customs, is in part, due to the fact that many of the tourists are now thoroughly acquainted with the formalities at border points and come prepared with the necessary particulars regarding their automobiles and equipment so that the formalities may be quickly filled out and verified by the customs officials.

To make the requirements of the Canadian Customs still better known, the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, has recently prepared in co-operation with the Department of National Revenue a summary of customs regulations entitled "How To Enter Canada." Canadians who have friends or relatives whom they expect to visit them could perform an appreciated service by having this publication forwarded to the intending visitors.

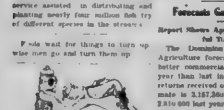
The reciprocal freedom which exists at present between travel between Canada and the United States is reemphified by the fact that no passports are required. Automobiles for purpose of health and pleasure are entered into Canada, duty free on payment for 90 days, which may be extended to 90 days. For longer periods up to six months, a bond for the amount of duty and taxes which is payable on the car is required, but this detail may be conveniently arranged through a customs' house or directly with an incorporated guaranty company authorized to do business in Canada. Pleasure boats may also be entered on permit without duty and are allowed to remain in Canadian waters until October 1.

The privileges of freedom from duty or deposit extend to the tourists' guns, rifles, fishing tackle, golf clubs, tennis racquets, and camera's where these have been previously used and are brought into Canada for health or pleasure. On other items of tourist outfit for personal use such as canoes, outboard motors, tents, camp equipment, phonographs, radios nautical instruments, etc., a sum of money equivalent to the duty and taxes is deposited with the customs officer, and this is refunded if the articles are identified and exported again.

The freedom of the Canadian customs as regards tourists' automobiles and outfits is exemplified in another way in that irrespective of the port of entry the tourist may leave Canada by any other port he chooses. He may enter at east coast and have his automobile and outfit checked out at the Pacific coast just as conveniently as if he had returned to the point of entry. And his automobile license is good all along the way. The license of any one of the United States is valid for a generous period in every province in Canada, the duration of this privilege varying in the different provinces.

In respect to Canadians entering and touring in the United States, similar privileges exist. Nowhere in the world is there a boundary line where there is less inconvenience for the tourist than on the road. It is up to international figure who crosses and recrosses the boundary line at will with refreshing facility today or tomorrow as he welcomed in either country.

During 1927 the California forest service assisted in distributing and planting nearly four million fish fry of different species in the streams.



"You can walk up as quickly as I can, but with my club I shall be down again two hours before you."

A Land Of Freedom

Time In Taboo That Time Has Come For All Canadians To Stand Shoulder To Shoulder

With the view that the time has come for Canadians of all religious beliefs to stand shoulder to shoulder for "one grand confederation celebration of the land of religious freedom," Rev. Col. R. H. Stacey, C.M.G., for seven years grand chaplain of the Orange Order in Canada, and prominent in war veterans' associations proposes that Catholics and Protestants should change the respective dates of St. Jean Baptiste Day and the celebration of the Battle of the Boyne and unite in a yearly celebration on July 1.

Col. Stacey takes the view that Canada has not any one nationality. The French-Canadians celebrate St Jean Baptiste Day on June 24. The Orangemen celebrate the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne on July 12.

Col. Stacey pointed out that, although celebrated on July 12, owing to changes in the calendar the Battle of the Boyne was actually fought on July 1. He thought that the Orangemen could easily change the date of their annual celebration.

Canada has not any one nationality. There is given an opportunity, will surely buy five to ten pounds of honey. Some families buy as much as a sixty-pound can of it. But you must let them know that you have it for sale. It is a mistake to ship your honey to some large centre and see that you supplied and in the meantime given him that the honey is good and will be taken back if any of it is unsatisfactory in any manner. He also should also be informed that all good honey granulates in cold weather, and that honey is not spoiled by granulation, since in some countries people will not buy it until it granulates.

Canadian Horses For Troops In Bermuda

Brenha Old Custom As England Is Source Of Supply

The breaking of an old custom which has for over three years existed between Canada and the West Indies. This was brought to light at the Toronto Dail this horse show by Lieut. Col. T. C. Evans, district veterinary officer of Military District No. 2, who said that horses shipped as part of four Canadian horses for the British forces in Bermuda.

The command of National Defence at Ottawa," said Col. Evans, "has requested by the Imperial Government to buy four horses for the British forces in Bermuda, where the Sutherland Highlanders are stationed. One was to be a combination horse for His Excellency the Governor of the Island. A second was to be a officer's charger, and the rest a matched team.

"This is a new departure since Canada and the Island are usually bought in England." All four purchases were made in Ontario from one at Brampton, Cayuga, and Sarford. They were shipped recently on the Government steamship Canadian Fisher."

Working To Prevent War

Peace Of World Guarded By Women Says Carrie Chapman Catt

Just as it was the mothers and the women of every land who suffered the heaviest casualties in the last war, so the makers and the keepers of that peace which can come only by international friendship and understanding, will be the women of the world. Such is the opinion of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, whose name recently headed the list of the 12 famous women of the United States and who is at present the president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. She is quoted by a Hamilton newspaper

"All around the world is heard the hammer of steel as men build battleships to win the next war. Not so loud, but even more insistently, the women of the nations are framing friendships so that there will never be another war. This is the responsibility of the mothers of the race and they are determined to fulfill it."

Fruitcrops Good Fruit Crop

Report Shows Apples Will Be Fifteen Per Cent Below Year

The Dominion Department of Agriculture forecasts a 12 per cent. better commercial apple crop this year than last in a report based on returns received on July 1. The estimate is 3,187,300 barrels as against 2,810,000 last year, and an average of 2,700,000 for the five-year period 1923-27.

This increase reflects a heavy crop in British Columbia. The report says that increased crops of cherries, plums and peaches are expected in Ontario. Good crops of all fruits are anticipated in British Columbia.

Safety Of Aviation

Not a single life of a passenger was lost in British commercial aviation in three years in 1927 a total of 18,971 passengers were carried, 2,450 flights and commercial planes flew 769,000 miles This is what makes people look upon aviation as the coming method of transportation.

Selling The Honey Crop

Small Producers Could Make Profit By Selling Direct To Customer

Beekeepers are getting much more active in selling their honey. They have found out that it is necessary to do some work, even in selling—after the work of harvesting. They also appear more inquisitive as to prices and rarely give the grocer an opportunity of setting the price at which their crop is to be secured.

Where there is difficulty in selling the output of a small apiary the best course is to try the neighbors. They all buy sugar, jellies, fruit. The average Canadian eats over one hundred pounds of sugar a year, and, if he is given an opportunity, will surely buy five to ten pounds of honey. Some families buy as much as a sixty-pound can of it. But you must let them know that you have it for sale. It is a mistake to ship your honey to some large centre and see that you supplied and in the meantime given him that the honey is good and will be taken back if any of it is unsatisfactory in any manner. He also should also be informed that all good honey granulates in cold weather, and that honey is not spoiled by granulation, since in some countries people will not buy it until it granulates.

Favors Return Of Resources

Eastern Paper Thinks Western Province Should Have Control

The Ottawa Journal thinks that the western provinces should exercise possession of their natural resources and a proper settlement. It thinks the question has been too long a political football, and says: "The western provinces should have control of their resources. There is no sound ground for having two kinds of provinces forming the Dominion; a really crucial friction, as far as the east is concerned, certainly so far as the people of Ontario are concerned, there would be a great satisfaction at seeing the west dealt with fairly and squarely in the matter."

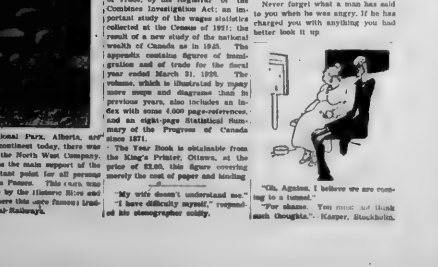
JASPER'S BEGINNING



While Jasper Park Lodge and Jasper National Park, Alberta, are numbered among the best known places on the continent today, there was a time when Jasper was only a trading post of the North West Company. That was about 1813. For half a century it was the main support of the trade route across the mountains and an important point for all persons journeying through the Yellowhead and Athabasca Passes. This route was established long year on the site of old Jasper House by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada to mark the spot where this once famous trading post stood.—Photograph by Canadian National Railways.

Product Synthetic Milk

Scientists Make Announcement At Conference In England

From England comes the news that scientists will shortly be able to make milk in their laboratories, the cows' milk. It is not yet indicated by what process method this result will be achieved, but it is clear that the scientists are confident, for their declaration has given a severe shock to dairy farmers, however. The announcement was made at the annual conference of sanitation inspectors, and it has been upon them a little while, since most of them will be out of a job when there are no more cow dairies or dairies in England.

The cultivation of milk-bearing grass will doubtless be taken up by the dairy farmers, however. They may even use veteran kine, by whom such grass can be tested. Nobody knows how nourishment is making milk out of grass, but everybody knows they do so. Therefore they ought to be a good judges of the finest quality of milk-producing grass.

Even if the pastoral scene of sauntering herd winding slowly o'er the lea is in danger of extinction from the English rendempers, it is entirely possible to contemplate the rural spectacle of a few high-class grass-fed cows reclining in bovine ease in some luscious mead, while they chew with mechanical jaw grasses fed to them conveyed from the hand of the scientist who will undertake the manufacture of the nation's milk supply. If Scotland remains unconverted known what the future held in store.—Montreal Star.

The present edition has been thoroughly revised throughout and includes 32 new tables in the latest information up to the date of going to press.

The general issues of the Year Book extends to 1,100 pages, and is divided into fifteen sections, as follows:—(1) Physiography, including the geography, topography, geology, climate and natural resources of Canada; (2) History and historical progress and chronology of Canada, by years since 1497; (3) Constitution and Government, with a description of the history of the Dominion Parliament and the Dominion franchise; (4) Population, including summary figures of the census of 1921, and a detailed treatment of vital statistics and immigration; (5) Education, including a general survey of Canadian systems of education; (6) Trade and Commerce, including details of Canadian foreign trade and of interprovincial and local trade; (7) Transportation and Communications, with subsections on government control over transportating agencies, steam and electric railways, express companies, roads and highways, motor vehicles, air navigation, canals, shipping and navigation, telegraphs, telephones and post offices; (8) Finance and Wages, including an account of the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Labour, the International Labour Organization, Dominion statistical publications, strikes and lockouts, co-operation, and industrial combinations and current wages, as well as wage-rate tables based on the census of 1921; (9) Prices, including wholesale and retail prices, assessed values, etc.; (10) Finance, with brief treatments of Dominion, provincial and municipal finance, national wealth and income, currency and banking, and insurance; (11) Education, including a general survey of education; (12) Public Health and Benevolence; (13) Administration, including subsections dealing with the administration of public lands, national defence, public works, Indian affairs, soldiers' civil re-establishment and miscellaneous administration; (14) Sources of Statistical and Other Information Relative to Canada, with lists of the publications of Dominion and Provincial Government Departments, including those of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, and (15) The Annual Register, 1927, with a review of recent Dominion and Provincial legislation, principal events of the year and important extracts from the Canada Gazette.

Among the new features incorporated in the present edition of the Year Book, are the following: A special article on the Climate of Canada, contributed by Sir Frederic Stupart, Director of the Meteorological Service of Canada; a summary of the results of the census of the Prairie Provinces, taken in 1926; comparative statistics of immigration, including the language, nationalities and birthplaces of immigrants, preliminary results of the census of manufactures for 1926, as well as detailed analyses of these statistics for 1923; an extended discussion of Canadian trade; a summary of the first authoritative statement on the total trade of Canada; material on the trade and the industrial position of the Canadian National Railways; a general article on Canadian legislation respecting Combination in Restraint of Trade, by the Registrar of the Combines Investigation Act; an important study of the wages statistics collected at the Census of 1921; the result of a new study of the national wealth of Canada as in 1925. The appendix contains figures of immigration and of trade for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1928. The volume, which is illustrated by many more maps and diagrams than in previous years, also includes an index with some 4,000 page-references, and an eight-page Statistical Summary of the Progress of Canada since 1871.

The Year Book is obtainable from the King's Printer, Ottawa, at the price of $2.50, this figure covering merely the cost of paper and binding.

Urged To Stay In Canada

Head Of Statistical Organization Warns Young Men Against Leaving Dominion

The young fellow who leaves Canada for a bigger job in the United States nowadays is penny wise and pound foolish in the opinion of Roger W. Babson, head of Income's Statistical Organization. His analyses of present conditions is that anyone who makes such a move is sacrificing much more in future prospects than he gains in immediate advantage. He arrived back recently in the course of a tour of Canadian cities.

"It always strikes me as unfortunate that we have so many of your capable young Canadians coming over to the States—unfortunate for them," he said. "What happens is that they come to the States, fall in love with an American girl, marry and remain in the States."

"What they overlook is that, while a young man can earn more in the United States than in Canada, per se, has nothing like the same opportunities for growth and advancement. The United States is nearing the limit of all capacity today, and there is not the room for expansion there that there is in Canada. Do not mean I would advise a middle-aged man to leave the States and come to Canada, but I would certainly advise any young man to leave Canada for the States. He is infinitely better off in the country.

"All you lack in Canada is men, for it is men that make values. The United States has not as much coal and iron and copper and land a hundred years ago as she has today. She has developed her power, though, because she has more men.

"You Canadians ought to see to it that you have more men, particularly those who have the training to qualify for leadership. There is a point to be made. In the United States 30,000,000 workers are employed under the direction of 60,000 executives. Or, reciprocally to one executive. Therefore, when one loses one young man who has in him the qualities of an executive he loses potential employment for 500 men.

Considered Good System

Capping Silo To Prevent Rot Is Plan Favored

Most silos are simply this spring and where there to a surplus of silage it is only a few feet in the bottom of the silo. A revival of the good old system of capping the silo would seem to be in order. Little silage is fed from the time that the cows go on grass till the pasture gets short in July. During this interval a lot of silage is left over—sometimes to a depth of three feet or more. Capping will save the most of this valuable feed. There are several methods. The one most commonly used in Ontario is to clear off the silo to a flat surface, cover with tar paper, throw in a couple of feet of straw, soak with water, and tramp. To be effective, the watering and tramping will need to be repeated two or three times.

The New York State method is a little different. Straw is not as plentiful across the line. There three inches of silage is taken over from one half of the top. This is covered with tar paper and the silage then packed with an additional three inches to allow the other side to be papered. The silage is then leveled and tramped solidly. To make it most effective, considerable water must be used to seal the silage. Another plan is to use oats Dickey on the silage. Regular watering and some tramping will insure a dense feet of roots that will keep out the air.

Hubby (coming in late): "I was held up; will cry any hour, I was so scared that my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth."

Wife (coldly): "Yes, I smell the clove."

Never forget what a man has said to you when he was angry. If he has charged you with anything you had better look it up.

"Oh, Agnes, I believe we are coming to a tunnel."

"For shame. You must not think such thoughts."—Kasper, Stockholm.

TWO SEAPLANES CARRY MATERIAL TO H.B. TERMINAL

Ottawa, Ont. — Remarkable feats have been performed and more are being attempted this year for the Hudson Bay terminal project.

Two seaplanes, under the guidance of Flight Officer James, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, are making two flights daily between Nelson and Churchill, transporting men and material from Winnipeg to the New Hudson Bay railway terminal.

Each plane is doing 600 miles a day. In addition to the large amount of material transferred by the seaplanes within the past month or six weeks, 118 men who have been working at Nelson have been transported to Churchill without any mishap.

The fliers have also taken photographs for use by topographical survey branch of the Department of the Interior, and observed ice conditions off the bay. Both have flown 270 men are at work at Churchill and 260 remain at Nelson dismantling the equipment. The seaplanes will go for transfer to Churchill. Eventually practically all of these men will have been transported to Churchill.

A large amount of transfer work is being done by boats, the material from Nelson being taken to the bay by temporary docks constructed at Churchill. About 13 000 tons of such material and supplies will be moved during the present summer.

Another big project is the towing to Churchill by means of the two dredges from Montreal.

Barring accidents it is expected the two dredges will reach Churchill by September 20, too late to do much work this year. Their real performance will commence next summer. The dredges and their convoys will represent a value of over $1,500,000. The two dredges cost $460 000 each, in addition to which will be a large quantity of material on at least one of the convoys.

Three hundred thousand feet of earth number is now being hauled to the Churchill terminal by the Public Works Department, and as soon as navigation opens in the spring about 75 per cent. of the number asked for to assist in the harvest of the Western wheat crop.

It is said that owing to the increased activity in the province in building and mining industries, the number of men who will go on the harvest excursion from Nova Scotia would not be more than 1,200.

Idea Is Advanced That It May Explain Fate Of Nungesser-Coli

It is stated that owing to the increased activity in the province in building and mining industries, the number of men who will go on the harvest excursion from Nova Scotia would not be more than 1,200.

All of the proposed policies with the exception of the low immigration scheme are either now in operation or which have been suggested by the Provincial government and refused.

The British Government.

This is true, particularly of the plan to give to settlers a substantial loan on the security of homestead lands in the province. The Canadian Government obtained the consent of the British Government, at least in principle, to an agreement whereby the British Treasury advanced $1 500 per head for each settler. The agreement expired the British government sought to reduce the amount for future settlers to $500 when the idea was refused they increased the amount to $1,200 and it is not expected that they will be willing to deal with settlers in still more generous terms.

In the matter of reducing the ocean rate the Canadian government has always been opposed to spending more public funds in granting bonuses, but it is believed that the steamship companies and the British government will agree to forestry officials to pay 20 to 30 fires which the local settlers and the navigation companies at Ottawa, and as soon as Lord Lovat arrives the department will reach a decision.

Harbor Workers Refuse To Handle Supplies Thrown From Ship To Dock

London.—While the flag at half mast, the supply ship Citta di Milano with General Umberto Nobile and the survivors of the Italia disaster on board, arrived at Marvik, Norway, and a Central News dispatch from that city.

The arrival, added the dispatch was watched with sullen interest by the harbor workers who refused to handle the ropes thrown from the ship to the docks.

The attitude of the Norwegians toward the Nobile party was caused by the reports of the desertion of Prof. Malmgrum, Norwegian scientist with the expedition, who was injured and left behind.

Phone Call From London

Hears Jazz Station Conveyed With British Metropolis in Test Talk Misses Jazz.—"Hello, this is London, England, speaking, how do you hear me?"

This question was asked by a voice speaking 6,000 miles away while the listener was a Moose Jaw man, J. A. Ingli, chief of the local telephone office. For two or three minutes Mr. Inch conversed with the operator in charge from the metropolis of England, some 6,000 miles away, and he could hear him clearly through out the conversation.

The test call was put in from the British lines to Saskatchewan to determine the efficiency of the long-distance system recently inaugurated whereby a person in the West can converse with anyone in the Old Country.

Veteran Mountie Dead

Captain Denny Enlisted When Furor Was Being Organized

Edmonton.—One of the two last survivors of the original troops of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police to cross the plains in 1874, Capt. Sir Cecil Edward Denny, 78 years old, sixth Baronet of Tralee Castle, County Kerry, Ireland, died in a local hospital on July 24.

He left Ireland at the age of 24 and enlisted at Ottawa in the N.W.M.P., which was then being organized. He rose to the rank of inspector in the force and was one of those to sign the famous treaty of 1877 with the Indians.

In late years Sir Cecil Denny has been known as an archivist for the Alberta Government, and has written several books on early life in the west.

Nova Scotia Reports Few Men Available

Cannot Supply Number Asked For To Assist In Western Harvest

Halifax.—The department of natural resources has notified the minister of labor, at Ottawa, that Nova Scotia would be unlikely to supply more than 70 per cent. of the number asked for to assist in the harvest of the Western wheat crop.

It is stated that owing to the increased activity in the province in building and mining industries, the number of men who will go on the harvest excursion from Nova Scotia would not be more than 1,200.

Distinguished British Statesman Has Been Adviser To Three Sovereigns

London.—Great Britain celebrated recently the 80th birthday of one of her most distinguished statesmen, the Earl of Balfour. Lord Balfour's public service goes back back 54 years. As he entered the House of Commons in 1874, and he is one of the few great survivors of the Victorian era. He was adviser to three successive sovereigns.

The only other statesman of outstanding eminence in the period alive today is the Earl of Rosebery. He has been out of politics for 20 years and is an invalid. Earl Balfour is a member of the cabinet today, being Lord President of the Council.

Notwithstanding the threat infections which laid him aside during the winter and spring, he is again normally active. His recent illness necessitated a rest from his usual physical activities including tennis, etc., which he was a devoted player, but the Daily Mail correspondent says that saying that he intends to take up tennis again shortly.

He started his earnings by winning the $25,000 Orteig prize for being the first to the Atlantic to Paris. For touring 76 American cities he received $300 a day from the Guggenheim Foundation.

WILL CONSIDER MORE PLANS TO AID IMMIGRATION

Ottawa, Ont.—The announcement by Right Hon. Winston Churchill that the British government is prepared to spend more money in stimulating British immigration to Canada has created deep interest at Ottawa. While officials of the immigration branch were unaware of the details of various policies suggested, it is expected that Lord Lovat, who will arrive in Canada shortly, will have complete details.

All of the proposed policies with the exception of the low immigration scheme are either now in operation or which have been suggested by the Provincial government and refused.

This is true, particularly of the plan to give to settlers a substantial loan on the security of homestead lands in the province. The Canadian Government obtained the consent of the British Government, at least in principle, to an agreement whereby the British Treasury advanced $1 500 per head for each settler. Cannot Supply Them To Meet Prospectors

Department Of National Defence Receives Many Appeals

Ottawa.—"The first requisite of a prospector is the ability to find himself." That is the view taken by the Department of National Defence as outlined by an official of that department. The department is being inundated with appeals for planes in search for prospectors thought to be lost.

"When a prospector in the Northern woods fails to turn up when his employers or associates think he should they rush to the Department of National Defence asking that a plane be sent to search for him," said this official. "In most cases the department declines. In the first place, the prospector is probably not lost at all, but something has impeded his progress Then if he were lost there is very little chance of an aeroplane seeing him from a plane

Interesting Items gleaned from the Files of The Vermilion Standard JULY 31st, 1912

The biggest cut in Alberta and probably in Canada, was delivered at the stockyards Tuesday by Steele-Briggs, both of Vermilion. It weighed in at 1427 pounds and good sized cuts would look re-markable beside her. The owner got to see the beef at 5c/lb for the animal in his hands was a magnificent 3-year-old steer which weighed exactly 1300 pounds and brought 5c on the hoof.

A meeting of council was held on Tuesday night to consider offers received for the 5000 issue of Town debentures. The highest bid was 95.00. The money market is dull and unless better bids are received the debentures may be held for a time.

RAILWAY BUILDING WILL BE CONTINUED

As Much Construction in Next Two Years as In the Last Ten

WINNIPEG, July 27. Railway plans of construction for the next two years in Canada are the most comprehensive in the dominion's history. This announcement comes from C P R sources with the statement that "there is every reason to believe that more building will take place in the next two years than in the past ten. The increase in the next two years is pro-bably 5,000 miles at a cost of $250,000,000. In 1911, $7,422 was the total steel mileage in Canada. By 1924 the mileage had risen to 40,332. It is 3,773 miles from Halifax to Vancouver by rail and the next two years' mileage estimated to be under construction will extend that distance by 700 miles. This estimate includes all railway building in the dominion.

ALEX. ROSS HEADS COMPENSATION BOARD

The appointment of Alex Ross, former minister of Public Works in the Alberta Government, to the position of chairman of the workmen's compensation board succeeding John T Mcintosh who recently resigned on account of ill-health has been announced by Premier Brownlee. It is felt that Mr. Ross' administrative experience and familiarity with workmen's compensation legislation will particularly qualify him for the duties of his new position which he will assume on May 1st.

Showing Canada her Opportunity in World Trade

Another Striking Advertisement by the Trade and Commerce Department, Ottawa

The various striking advertisements of the Trade and Commerce Department at Ottawa which have appeared in Canadian newspapers from time to time are calculated to create an export trade consciousness throughout the Dominion.

It was decided last year by the Hon. the Minister of Trade and Commerce, the Department in question, that Canadians should become more interested in developing their business opportunities outside their own country. In order to accomplish this end the campaign of publicity was calculated upon.

Canada's external trade has grown in such proportions as probably few Canadians realize. For instance, in the last fiscal year, ended March 31st, the Dominion's total exports reached a total of $1,334,000,000 and a quarter dollars, as to be exact $1,333,636,677. Our total imports for the same trade of more than $1200 for every man, woman and child in Canada. At the beginning of the present century Canada's export trade amounted to less than two million dollars.

Another method of gauging Canada's export trade is based in the fact that last year the country's exports of manufactured products alone amounted to about the same as the total products of Canada's agricultural products in 1900. In other words, Canada is expanding at such a tremendous rate as to double her total output of every twenty years. Three fine figures may give readers some conception of the Dominion's enormous increase in export business.

What public men and business men say on what their policies may be, agree that export trade is possibly the most vital question in the Dominion today. Canada's natural resources are so varied and so rich that there is every possible for Canadians to remain there. Take wheat for example: it is considered possible that 2,000,000 people to consume 400,000,000 bushels of wheat annually. Canada's enormous prosperity therefore is bound up in the ability to sell abroad the surplus production.

Where Canadian business men seek to sell their products in other lands, they cannot hope to control prices. They have to meet competition from thousands of other business men and producers living in other countries. They are faced with keen competition and must be prepared to meet it and hold on export business. To maintain this trade of a billion and a quarter dollars a year and to increase it, Canadians must become acquainted with every legitimate method known to business. They must learn how to meet their needs in the manner desired by the foreign buyer, they must learn how to package products daintily, how to ship these goods by the most economical routes, and they must also have the most important of all Canadian goods always in stock and kept up the standard of the sample submitted.

The Department of Trade and Commerce, at Ottawa, is doing everything in its power to further this export trade. Trade boards, composed of business men, were established, and trained trade commissioners are stationed in the principal centres. In fact, Canada had the few trade representatives abroad. Upon organizing a system which has been widely copied by other countries. Canada has the trained trade commissioners in strategic centres of the world. Here they are sent to foreign countries to get to other places. The government has also established, and at other points, informal first-class shipping facilities to foreign business centres. The trade commissioners are constantly on the alert, seeking out openings for the selling of Canadian products. Wherever they learn that there is a demand for Canadian goods being placed, they immediately communicate with the Canadian manufacturer, and offer their services. This service at Ottawa, giving all information they possibly can. This information is the compilation of the service at Ottawa is at the disposal of any Canadian business man and find out with little trouble, and no expense. If his products can be profitably marketed in almost any part of the world. Another service readers may receive from the export system adopted by Canada, and one which have a handling goods have received abroad, that it is fairly evident that Canada is developing a foreign business will amount to double the present figure. The Mr. Malcolm and the personnel to head of the Department would be in favour of handling business in foreign Canadian goods fully informed as to opportunities abroad. To do that he is reaching the largest shipping newspapers, magazines and trade journals

CLANDONALD IS EXPECTING A BIG CROP OF WHEAT

Hebridean Colony, North of Vermilion, Is Facing Prosperous Year

Given a successful harvest season, and the Clandonald settlers will have a grain crop conservatively estimated at 150,000 bushels, states Father A. Macdonell, who is in Edmonton following a visit to the settlement, during which he inspected carefully the situation of each settler.

There are 160 families in the new famous Hebridean colony. Father Macdonell says, of whom 70 are settled on 160-acre farms, while 30 families have 320-acre farms each.

Large Crop Acreage

There are between 3,000 and 4,000 acres in crop this year, and a large amount of new breaking has been done, in preparation for a crop next year.

Several settlers will have as much as 70 to 80 acres of new breaking in crop next year, while many of them have from 30 to 65 or 70 acres of splendid looking crops to harvest this fall.

A few individual holdings, taken at random from the records, indicate clearly the wonderful progress made by the settlers in this young colony.

Individual Holdings

One man has this year 49 acres of wheat, 18 of oats and 25 acres of new breaking. Another has 35 acres of wheat, 12 acres broken and 22 more ready to break. Yet another settler has 65 acres in crop, and 19 acres broken, and another man reports 50 acres of wheat and 15 more acres broken.

In addition, the settlers are building up strongly along mixed farming lines, each settler possessing horses, cattle, poultry, etc., which will add materially to the net returns from this year's work.

PROVINCIAL HEALTH EXHIBITS ATTRACTED ATTENTION

Among the exhibits which attracted a great many visitors at the Edmonton Exhibition were those displayed by the services of the Provincial Department of Health. The child welfare clinic proved to be as popular as ever and many children were examined by the nurses in charge. The attending physicians were Drs. Pelletier, Lovell, Swallow, Adamson, Holmes and Follabee-Newell, all of whom gave their services free of charge. One of the outstanding features of the exhibit was the display of work by the patients of the Provincial Mental Hospital at Ponoka and the Provincial Training School at Red Deer. This display, the best of its kind ever shown by those institutions, elicited very favourable praise from those who viewed it. Practically all the articles were sold and orders which were taken for work will require many months to fill.

The convergency hospital again proved one of the busy spots of the fair grounds and many patients with minor injuries were attended to by Miss Grant, P.H.N. and her staff of nurses.

HARD LUCK!

He had a prophylactic bout.
And led a sterile life.
His employer children and
A sanitary wife
Lived in a fumigated house,
And were nearly safe;
Ate germicidal food and smoked
De-nicotined cheroots.

His milk was always pasteurized,
His water thrice filtered;
He never forgot to swat the flies.
Mosquitoes he would slaughter,
He screened his doors and windows and
His office disinfected
Against microbes of every kind—
He felt himself protected.

He expected, he slept by rule,
And timed his every breath;
His health was excellent, and he
Indeed disease did scorn.
His plan was admirable, no doubt,
But, darn the measly luck,
He went and got run over by
A ten-ton power truck!

ALBERTA EXHIBITS FOR AMERICAN FAIRS

Exhibits of agricultural products and natural resources from Alberta will again, as shown this season in a number of the larger fairs throughout the central states by the publicity branch of the Department of Agriculture. Reports from Canadian Government agents indicate that a great deal of interest in Alberta has been shown by farmers throughout the territory visited in this way last year and that immigration to the province has been materially assisted by the favorable impression created by these exhibits.

The fairs at which the Alberta display will appear during August and September include the following: Mississippi Valley Fair and Exposition Davenport, Iowa; Hawkeye Fair and Exposition, Fort Dodge, Iowa; Blue Earth County Fair, Mankato, Minn. Freeborn County Fair, Albert Lea, Minn.; Interstate Fair, La Crosse, Wis.; Missouri State Fair, Sedalia, Mo., North Central Kansas Free Fair, Belleville, Kan.; Brown County Tri-county Fair, Horton, Kan.; Kansas Free Fair, Topeka, Kan.; and Kansas State Fair, Hutchinson, Kan.

WOLF CUB NOTES

WELL, Cubs, our second camp has come and gone once more. We all had a pretty good time, I think, and it was lucky having it this year to make things hum. Here we are home once more with all our tanks intact. We did have a notion that Kenneth Hunt's foot might be bow trouble if unattended, for it seemed to be continually in the wars, what with stepping on sharp rocks and pieces of wire, etc. However, we decided our ass wasn't quite sharp enough for the job

Tent inspection at 9-30 was very tidily an eye opener for the Old Wolf —he did not know it was possible boys could be so tidy—the Girl Guides had nothing on us, I'm sure. When the ladies from the next camp came to inspect they were quite distressed at having to pick on 1st, 2nd and 3rd, as they really considered all were worth 100 per cent. The floral decorations round the bed of the Pathfinder's tent was most artistic and one of the judges said she felt she ought to be down on the bed with folded hands.

It was a great improvement pitching our tents further east; we were never bothered with flies, but on visiting our last year's site we found it fairly buzzing with them.

The first evening all the Cubs paraded to the spot where we had buried last year's records. It took some digging as the stick we had planted to mark the spot had been removed, but we dug till we found the old tin and all the Records were then read aloud.

The Park was divided into two — the Reds and the Blues, each Cub wearing his distinguishing colour on his arm or cap. Clifford Gates and Fred Brimacombe were in charge of the Reds and Stewart and Gilbert Brimacombe had the Whites. Each side took turns in cooking over a two washing dishes, two peeling spuds, two fetching wood and water, etc. The fatigue duties started after the Old Wolf's mate brought out the dinner, steaming hot each day at noon. Our grateful thanks are due to him and to these mothers and the one father who so kindly undertook to cook the meat, puddings and pies, etc.

Dahlma and Pat Balding were the most popular pastimes—No, on second thoughts perhaps meal time was the most popular. The bread and butter cut up would surely, if placed slice by slice, have reached around the lake—maybe. Anyway the Old Wolf had a blister on her paw from cutting it up

We had one hike to the river where the scouts laughed in a swim. Every afternoon after a rest period and a bathe the Park would go to the woods and part of the fun was the finding and the name of A. S. C. These are most exciting games, the Old Wolf joined in, but to make sides even and her old bones still ache from her noble efforts to steal the enemies' flag by crawling through the bush or dashing wildly over stumps with half the Park on her heels. All in vain!—twice she got the enemies' flag home to the guard house, and twice did Perry Cooper valiantly rush to her rescue.

One evening Marwood Brimacombe and Douglas Cooper came out on their bicycles and spent the night under canvas. Marwood slept in a bed!

"Move over Tibbet, I'm falling out"

"Here give me a piece of that blanket, Gilbert, I'm frozen to the core"

Lots of fun

We would like to thank all those who so kindly helped us to get out and back to the lake with all our belongings, also the friends who so thoughtfully provided parties for the camp-fire. We are very grateful to all of them The Old Wolf would especially like to pay a tribute to the four Scouts who came out to assist her run the camp. They deserve high praise for the willing way they helped at all times.

The campers were: Alexis, the Old Wolf, assisted by: Stewart Brimacombe, Clifford Gates, Gilbert Brimacombe and Fred Brimacombe

Guests — Kenneth Welch, Stewart Smith, Bob Schofield, Allan Wiebe

Cubs — Jack Sample, Jack Rosebeck, Geoffery Brimacombe Douglas Brimacombe, Stanley Calvert, Billy Watson, Leonard Maskell, Perry Cooper, Kenneth Hunt, Jack Knoll, and Victor Tibbet

At our last camp-fire we had a few visitors and the Scouts drew up a short programme, at the end of which Akela read out the Camp Alphabet and Clifford Gates replied with a pean to the Old Wolf, both of which are printed below

Camp Alphabet

A is for Akela, the head of the Camp
B for Bill Watson, a mischievous scamp
C, Stanley Calvert, one of four in a bed
D is for Doug who caught cold in his head
E for Extra good Bob Schofield won
F is for Fred who sings a good song
G is for Gates, who's a jolly good fellow
H is for Hunt, from his bed he fell out

Bernard River

Interesting Story Of How This Westcoven Stream Got Its Name

In 1920 Sir George Simpson, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, crossed Canada from east to west by way of Peace River. At half-past five on Saturday evening September the travellers had made their paddles to camp for the night at the mouth of a small tributary to Peace River not far below where the latter river divides into two main branches, the Finlay and the Parsnip. In remembering from large canoes, passengers had generally to be carried from the canoe to the shore by George Simpson's guide Bernard was carrying the Governor ashore when he fell with him into the water. Since that day the river has borne the name Bernard and all that is known of the guide is that he was the youngest voyageurs in this incident. The name Bernard River has just been approved by the Geographic Board of Canada.

Automobiles As Settlers Effects

May Be Imported Without Sales Or Excise Tax Under Certain Conditions

Certain officers of National Revenue have apparently had difficulty in deciding whether or not excise and sales tax applies on the importations of automobiles as settlers' effects, having in mind that Tariff Item 705a provides for the collection of duty on the amount in excess of $1,000 on motor vehicles imported as settlers' effects

In order to clarify the situation the Department submitted the [illegible] to the Department of Justice for an opinion as to whether or not the exemptions in Schedule I and 2, Chap. IIV Revised Statutes of Canada and the effect of exempting automobiles as settlers' effects in total, or [illegible] to the value of $1,000 each

The Department of Justice has ruled that automobiles entered [illegible] as settlers' effects may be imported without the imposition of either sales or excise tax. These cars, however, are subject to the regulations and restrictions by the Customs Division with respect to length of ownership prior to importation and length of retention after importation.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

It was a pleasure to see the fine type of young men who were on the farm, vigorous, keen, happy fellows who say how fortunately they are situated to "make good" in Canada. The progress they had made was good, so much so that one of our party declared that the ploughing he had seen that day by former city workers would put to shame some so-called progressive ploughmen. Another declared that he would willingly exchange his present position as superintendent of a large department store for either of the two farms he had seen that day.

Before this fascinating day was ended, The Imperial Institute had invited us to dinner, where we were to meet the representatives of the woollen industry, under the chairmanship of Mr. Frederic A. Ackroyd, a large woollen manufacturer of Bradford. A magnificent banquet, tendered us by Mr. Ackroyd, was followed by addresses concerning the Canadian farmer, a long and deep interest which would meet the particular requirements of the British woollen trade. The challenging remarks of our hosts were met with most delevant by Mr. Atkell, of Canada's principality in breeding more of the shorter wool breeds for meat, primarily on account of the premium to be secured on the markets of the United States. His added spice and stimulus to a delightful evening. Afterwards we were shown over a section of the Imperial Institute by Sir Malcolm Watson.

One more day and then "goodbye" to London, but before actually leaving we had the honor of being accepted honor, an unexpected invitation to our greatest thrill of the tour, a gift from Croydon aerodrome, the largest and most complete in the world.

The greatest honor came from the King, for we were accorded a special place from which to view His Majesty's procession to Westminster for the opening of Parliament. It is one night in a lifetime, and the memory of such go by accompanied by all the pomp which marks such important occasions. Our only regret was that the Queen was ill at the time to be the recipient of knowledge of it, and also the honor of sight to be accompanied on the King to the opening at Parliament. Their Majesties, however, were able to appear on the balcony at the Palace with the Duchess of York, and we had a splendid view.

Our unexpected invitation came from Sir George Burbidge, the famous comedian who had received sent to the Canada party at the Princess Theatre, where we saw his revue, "Tell Me, Pretty Girl." Sir Harry toured in Canada this summer. A wonderful evening concluded with Sir Harry's singing "Back Home" to meet Mr. Robey and his leading lady.

The next morning saw the end of our flight at Croydon was at the "Windsor Castle" inn, a luxurious air liner capable of carrying 14 passengers, to Paris, the Imperial Airways, Ltd. Fleet. Strong, graceful, beautiful ships that are a credit to British air enterprise. All our impressions of the flight, a total length of 43 feet 6 inches, Her triple engines developed 1260 horsepower. We left Croydon at 10:30 and an hour in still air, was furnished with a delicious luncheon, and served with a buffet and waiter on her long trips. It was a thrill at Paris, after a view of the landscape. Soon, all too soon, our quarters of an hour in Paris, we descended in a long graceful glide to Croydon, landing lightly on the landing ground, taxiing along the ground to the place of debarkation. It was a wonderful, wonderful day, perfect, in more senses than one, a "high spot" in the tour.

How the new United States Legation at Ottawa will look. American architects have been engaged to draw the plans, and the building will be adjacent to the Rideau Club, fronting Parliament Hill, where two buildings will be demolished to make room for the new structure. The site cost the United States $104,000 and the building will cost about $300 000. This does not include quarters for the minister and his family and staff as in the case with the Canadian legation at Washington. The first floor of the new building will house the consular staff, the second the minister and the diplomatic staff, and the third floor the commercial attache and his staff.

PAUL IN A PAGAN COUNTRY

Golden Text: "I know how to be abased, and I know also how to abound."—Philippians 4:12.

Lesson: Acts 14:1-28.

Devotional Reading: Matthew 5:10-16.

Explanations and Comments

A Cripple Cured At Lystra, verses 8-20.—At Lystra Paul and Barnabas were face to face with stark paganism. Apparently they had come to Jerusalem in the city, and few Romans. There being no synagogue, Paul began to preach outdoors. One day he noticed, in the ground near him, a lifelong cripple, who was listening with an eager attention that revealed to the apostle a faith which was sufficient for the man's healing. Suddenly Paul interrupted his address by commanding the man, in a loud voice: "Stand upright upon thy feet!" The leaping of the cripple, able to walk, "Compare these words to the one with a palsied arm: "Stretch forth thy hand!" (Matthew 12:13) In each case there was immediate cure.

The men of Lystra looked upon it as a great material miracle, but the deeper fact was the spiritual miracle that lay behind it, namely the apprehension of the truth, and the application of it by the man to the preacher's knowledge of it, and his acceptance of sight in the man's proclamation of faith in the living Lord. That was a wonderful thing."—T. Campbell Morgan.

Announces Arts Competition

Viscount Willingdon To Donate Prizes Totalling Thousand Dollars

Announcement that His Excellency Viscount Willingdon, governor-general, is awarding prizes amounting in all to $1,000 for competition this year in literature, drama, painting, and architecture, will occasion much appreciation in art loving circles throughout the Dominion. In music there will be no prize of $200, and two prizes of $100 each; drama, one prize of $200; painting, one prize of $200; and sculpture, also one prize of $200.

These gifts indicate not only His Excellency's interest in the arts in Canada, but also his interest in Canadians generally. It is a practical interest of a type that only appeals to the world. We need have felt no qualms when we saw the Governor's favorite cherry little pilot, she rose like a bird, up, she climbed until she reached 3,000 feet. Below us the survey was not great London, but the land of Philpot—Surrey homes, tiny fields and ribbons for roads. Those two little towers behind the legs of a bird bedecked were the towers of the Crystal Palace. Favored by the wind we were travelling 110 miles an hour. It seemed like time, so slowly moved the landscape. Soon, all too soon, our quarters of an hour in the air ended. In a long graceful glide we descended, landing lightly on the landing ground, taxiing along the ground to the place of debarkation. Memory Of Explorer Honored

Hudson's Bay Company Remembers Captain From Whom It Takes It's Name

The Hudson's Bay Company of the year 1926, has done honor in a very beautiful way to the brave sea captain from whom it takes its name.

One day in the spring, at 1607 manor Henry Hudson and his crew met at the little church of Saint Ethelburga, in Bishopsgate Street, London, England, to take communion before sailing away to seek the Northwest Passage.

The little church was old then, but it still stands. The company has given it three windows, and, in the presence of some of its leading members, the first was unveiled a short time ago on the anniversary of that communion.

In his little sailing vessel, with a crew of eleven men and a boy, the adventurous captain made two voyages to the Arctic ocean. On the third, in 1609, he sailed for the Dutch East India company. Taking a northeastern course he discovered the Hudson river, and the Dutch traders who followed founded New Amsterdam on the banks of the mighty mouth of the river. In the three centuries that have passed the great city of New York has grown up around that site.

In 1610 Hudson was again in the service of an English company. This time he took a crew of twenty-three men, and set out again to find the Northwest Passage. He discovered Hudson Bay, and spent the winter on its shores. In the spring of 1611 the crew mutinied and sent him adrift in a boat to England. The captain, with seven sick men and his son, were not heard of again. He was ever heard of the frail craft, or its crew, but, ever since, the name of Captain Hudson has rung through Canada and the motherland, as well as the United States. The great company that still bears that name is one of the oldest and most honorable institutions of our country.

Homestead Entries

Show Marked Increase

Great Activity Seen Around Land Offices In Alberta

Homestead entries at the various land offices in Alberta are showing a very marked increase as a result of new regulations announced from Ottawa. Under the new arrangement settlers may now take up their homesteads prior to January 1, 1928, are entitled to file on a second homestead. It is necessary, however, to make application to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, Ottawa, specifying the land previously homesteaded and to secure authority from this source to enter for a second claim.

Inspector Wes Pruden of the Edmonton and Peace River are showing the greatest activity. At the former point the number of entries recorded for the month of June, making a total of 732 for the three months' period ending June 30, and at Peace River 400 entries in June have made up a total of 1,040 in the three months. Northbound trains from Edmonton are still carrying their full quota of prospective settlers, the majority of whom are either filing on homesteads or purchasing farm lands in the north.

Willing To Oblige

Recently arrested and brought to court was an Irishman, to whom the judge was a new experience. He was however, unabashed, and wore an air of a man determined not to get the worst of it. "Where's the beer," he sang out the clerk. "do you wish to challenge any of the jury?"

Pat looked the men in the jury box over very carefully

Too Much Acid

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 80 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do so. Make—or your druggist make—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

Voices Have Individuality

No Two Have Same Tone, Say Blind People

In the blind, the faculty of hearing is usually developed to a degree unhandicapped in speaking of voices says. "Many are similar, to be sure, but I have never encountered absolute doubles and in general voices are as sharply differentiated as faces—in fact, often more so. The only difficulty I have experienced, strangely enough, is caused by one person having two voices. Her tone of voice changes tone and quietnessone or less conscientiously according to our mood and I have to be very careful about change is disagreeably marked. One woman, for example, has as many as three voices. One is used when she is in physical condition is also revealed by the voice in a striking degree, both in its quality and in the inflections of its speech. Fat people, for example, have a voice quality which is all but invariably accompanied by a certain tone. Its characteristic tone, too, is easily read in fact it seems that character is revealed in the voice quite as much as in the features that is in the face, no doubt because the seeing, failing to recognize this, make use of an attempt to mask the voice.

SOME SALESMEN speak of the quality of their flour as if it resulted from secret and highly mysterious milling.

There are no secrets in milling.

The best flour is the result of intelligent selection of the very best wheat, a good mill, skilful milling and constant and never ceasing watchfulness.

That combination insures good flour. Nothing else does.

MARQUIS FLOUR NEVER VARIES FROM ITS HIGH STANDARD

LOCAL NEWS

The local stores and business places are closing at 12 o'clock on Friday in order to allow their staffs to take in the fair on that day. With few exceptions most of the business men are closing their premises on Saturday night also, in order to save as much current as possible for the midway on the fair grounds

WINTER WHEAT HARVEST STARTS

The first report of winter wheat harvesting this season comes from Chin, near Lethbridge, where on Friday, July 27, five binders started cutting on the farm of John Rost. The crop promises a heavy yield, although reports indicate that the dry weather during the month of May in some northern sections will be reflected in a slightly decreased yield of winter wheat as compared with last year's crop

Spring wheat cutting is expected to start in about three weeks, as early fields are beginning to color. The prospect for a highly satisfactory yield of this crop is very promising

The beautiful appearance of the town park fronting First Street South has been the source of much favorable comment. It is a decided asset to the town with its field of green sward bordered by lusty Russian poplars and the slower growing ash. Three years has wrought a miraculous change in these grounds and when walks are laid out and they are opened to the public, the park will prove an attractive rendezvous.

On Sunday, August 5th the Rev. A. R. Sage of Vermilion will preach at Wellsdale St Mary's Church at 11:00 a.m.; Pleasant Valley at 2:30 p.m and at St. Paul's, Islay, at 7.30 p.m.

Nothing untoward happening, Vermilion district will harvest the greatest crop in its history. The wheat crop indicates an average of from 35 to 40 bushels; oats from 60 up and barley around 40. Much of the wheat is already turning and predictions have been made that some wheat will be ready to cut by the middle of the month.

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT VERMILION FAIR

The twenty-third annual exhibition of the Vermilion agricultural society, held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, has been stamped as the most successful the society has yet held.

There was a total attendance for the three days of nearly 7000. While the exhibits of horses and cattle did not measure up to former years, the judges commented on the high quality of the stock shown.

The exhibit of domestic products far eclipsed that of any previous year and brought exhibitors all the way from Winnipeg and Vancouver in the east, however, the local ladies showed up remarkably well, as against the outside competitors.

The two keen competition in the livestock section. In the Clydesdale class the grand championship for mare went to Fred Lowe of Minburn. In the Percheron class, the championship ribbons were taken by James Powell of Vermilion, while in the Shires, G.A. Bell also of Vermilion took the premier honors. The heavy draft ribbon went to J. Bryden, Manaville. The championship in the purebred class, as also for the purebred Belgian team went to Cross Bros., Vermilion.

Other grand championships taken were: Hackbarn class, F. Talbot & Son, Lacombe; Pulled Angus, Harry Leader, Brandon; Red Polled, W. J. McComb & Son, Brandon; grade beef and silver cup, W. L. Robinson, Vermilion; Ayrshires, A. C. Anderson, Calgary; Holsteins, A. L. Peterson, Bellevue; mule and get, W. B. Jorkeland, Red Deer; female dairy and silver cup, W. Barr, Vermilion.

C. W. Chandler, Lacelle, Illinois, was a heavy winner in the sheep classes, with R. Whalen, Vermilion, taking second honors

G. R. Ball Strathcona; W. P. Morrison, Glenavon, Sask., and W. Sherwood, Vermilion, divided the major honors in the swine classes, in the boys' and girls' class, Doris Williams of Vermilion took the Brunswick Hotel cup in grade baby beef, while the silver medal of the Royal Bank of Canada for grade dairy calf, was won by Roy Cameron, Vermilion.

The livestock judges commented very highly on the quality of the stock exhibited. The parade on the last day in front of the grand stand was well worth seeing. The local exhibitor took his portion of the honors awarded in all the classes.

The grand stand attractions were the best seen here yet, and the aerial trapeze work in itself was worth the price of admission. The public enjoyed the enlarged seating accommodations provided this year by the society. The grand stand on Friday was packed to standing room only. It is estimated that there were over 2000 people on the grounds that day.

The Vermilion Horticultural society is to be congratulated on its fine display of home plants and garden flowers, bouquets, etc. The two exhibitables in the main building were taken up with the show, the full effect of which could not be appreciated on account of the character of the building. It was a magnificent exhibit, and augurs well for the annual show of the society a few weeks hence.

The Vermilion Citizens' Band under the direction of Mr. W. R. Elford discontinued the selections during the afternoon and evenings of the Fair. The programmes received unanimous commendation. One has to travel quite a distance to find a better than the Vermilion band.

Industrial exhibits loomed up largely this year. Local dealers in automobiles and trucks all had a splendid exhibit on the grounds in which considerable interest seemed to be centred. Both the Deico and Lister lighting systems were in operation and elicited many enquiries. In the agricultural lines, washers, separators, tractors and plows were numerous. The Carter-Deico separator, a neat compact wheat cleaning machine shown by W. R. Webb attracted general attention by its neat appearance and the way it came out thoroughly cleaned. By the use of this little machine the farmer retains on his own premises for the feeding of his stock, the foreign materials found in all grains instead of shipping them to the terminal elevators and paying freight on them besides. The waste products thus kept at home become a valuable asset in the feeding of swine, cattle and the best. The Hayward Lumber Company had on exhibit something new in the line of granaries; ease of construction and sturdiness were its main features

The big midway provided a round of amusements in the whip, merry go round, ell-a-whirl and ferris wheel. The passenger plane had a busy day Friday, securing everybody wanting to fly.

A dancing platform under the direction of the local Post of the Canadian Legion, was well patronized each night.

With the exception of Thursday morning the fair enjoyed ideal weather until about 4 p.m. Saturday when a cloud-burst swept over the town

President Telford Secretary Sutton and the directors, both ladies and gentlemen, are to be congratulated on putting the 1928 Fair over with such success and to the pleasure of all who visited it

SUBMARINE CREW PERISH

ROME, Aug 8 — Poisoned by acid fumes or drowned in the first rush of water the crew numbering 27, of the Italian submarine F-14, sunk in a collision early Monday morning in the Gulf of Adriatic, died in a man of their boats apparently with fortitude and resignation

The stricken submarine was raised to the surface Tuesday night after 24 hours of desperate labor by divers who worked hour after hour to attach an air pipe to be sunken vessel and to fasten steel cables in order that she might be lifted to the surface

Blue Ribbon Tea

A Great Achievement

Keen interest has been aroused in all parts of Canada by the announcement made at Victoria, recently, by Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, that, as a result of some years of study and work, a plan will be submitted to the Government and Parliament in the very near future providing for the financial reconstruction of the national system of railways a plan which, in the words of the C.N.R. president, "will in perpetuity, relieve the C.N.R. from being any further drag upon the Treasury of Canada."

As a matter of fact the financial reconstruction of the Canadian National Railways has been proceeding apace for some years past through the medium of annual debt arrangements and other financial operations of various kinds, and the plan which will be submitted to the Government and Parliament in the very near future providing for the financial reconstruction of the national system of railways is

UF A. PICNIC AND FIELD DAY AT O. S. A., AUGUST 10th

August 10th has been set as the day for the annual U F A. picnic and field day at the Olds School of Agriculture. Every woman for the day will consist of reviewing the crops, stock, flowers, fruits and shrubs, as well as some of the practical pastime The day is open to visitors from all walks of life and from all parts of the province. The Olds School of Agriculture management should appreciate having as many people as possible visit the school on that date. They make provision for supplying coffee and milk, free of charge to the visitors and also supply cups and plates, the visitors to bring their own lunches.

The crops and the grounds are looking very well and it would be worth a visit from all Alberta residents to plan a day at the school of Agriculture on that date

REMEMBER THE SEED

On Thursday evening Provincial Telephone received members of the Vermilion Turf Club went out to the cemetery and placed sprigs of heather on the grave of the late Dr. E. T. Cunningham one of the original members of the club and a most active supporter. The deceased left it as his wish that when the track events were being carried off this year they place heather on his grave for, he said, "I'll not be with you." The ceremony was simple but touching and was performed by the Rev J H Bell, B A by making appropriate remarks and placing a small memento on the grave

NEW Masterpiece Bodies by Fisher endow these new McLaughlin-Buick models with a measure of style, individuality and distinction unapproached by any other automobile.

Gorgeous new colours and wonderful new upholstries lend an added touch of luxury. New adjustable front seats and wider rear seats provide unequalled driving and riding comfort.

Increased horse and stroke—greater piston displacement—improved combustion chambers—all contribute to McLaughlin-Buick's famous valve-in-head six-cylinder engine—give you the smoothest, most powerful automobile engine of its size in the world.

The same great developments support thrilling new pick-up, quicker acceleration and a new top speed that few drivers will care to attain.

Other features include new high compression cylinder heads, improved manifolding and carburetion—new type instrument board—new type steering gear—and numerous refinements of appearance and convenience.

The 1929 McLaughlin-Buick is an epic among motor cars, a masterpiece of automobile engineering.

J. W. DODDS IS TO TAKE POST AT VEGREVILLE

Hon J F. Lymburn, attorney-general, announced Saturday morning that Joseph W. Dodds, president of the Alberta Civil Servants' Association would be in charge of the new judicial sub-district of Vegreville.

Mr. Dodds, who will take over his new duties on September 1, will be the deputy sheriff and the deputy clerk He has been in the sheriff's office in Edmonton for the past few weeks studying preparatory to taking over his new office.

Mr Lymburn stated that he hoped, within the near future, to arrange for sittings of the supreme court at Vegreville, Vermilion and Wainwright.

Numbers from the town and district attended the Lloydminster exhibition on one or other of the first three days this week. All attendance records are reported to have been smashed. Three outstanding events were celebrated namely, the 25th anniversary of the arrival in Canada of the Barr colonists, the 21st anniversary of the exhibition, and the "Coming of Age" of the town. The Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, K.C., prime minister of Canada; Hon. J. G. Gardiner, premier of Saskatchewan, and Hon. J. E. Brownlee, premier of Alberta, were notables attending.

SEVENTH FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, August 6th, 1928.

Wheat cutting will be fairly general in all sections of the province by August 20, according to telegraphic reports received on Friday by the Department of Agriculture for the seventh fortnightly crop report of the season. Wheat is filling well under the influence of the last few days' hot and warm weather since the last report and early sown fields are turning color rapidly. Harvesting of fall wheat has started in some southern districts and a very satisfactory yield is reported, although this was affected to some extent by the unusual drought during the month of May.

A good deal of the fall rye crop is in stook, and a good average yield is expected when this is threshed. Heavy stands of oats and barley are reported, and harvesting of these grains will be general during the first week in August.

Limited areas through the central and southern parts of the province have been visited by damaging hail storms during the past few days, but the injury to crops from this source is considerably less than at the same date last year. The 1928 crop has been particularly free from the attacks of insects and disease pests.

Cutting of alfalfa has commenced in some districts in the Peace River and later crops are receiving the benefit of good rains which are reported to bring the fields of both wheat and coarse grains fully up to the average.

The first cutting of alfalfa is in the stack in southern Alberta and the second crop is making rapid growth. Sugar beets are recovering well from the setback occasioned by the excessive rainfall of June and are promising a very satisfactory yield. Pastures are having an exceptionally good season, as a result of which livestock is in very good condition in all sections of the province.

SPECIAL CEREAL CROP FIELD DAY AT LACOMBE

To Be Held Friday, August 17th

Mr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, and Mr. Peter Stewart, Secretary, Canadian Seed Growers' Association, both of Ottawa, will be at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, on this date to discuss problems in connection with the production of registered seed grain. The Experimental Station has some 110 different plots of grain grown from seed submitted by Alberta Seed Growers' in the Canadian Seed Growers' Association for verification tests. There will be a showing to advantage on this date and will provide very interesting comparisons with respect to purity of variety and type. In addition to this, co-operative variety testing, plant breeding and Elite Stock Seed Production experiments will be available for observation and discussion. Come and bring any of your friends who are interested in the production of registered seed grain.

Minister Laid Cornerstone of New Dormitory

A Notable Event

At Vermilion August 2, a function of unusual importance took place at the School of Agriculture, Vermilion, when the Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, laid the corner stone of the magnificent new $150,000.00 dormitory Heavy showers south and west prevented many attending who had planned to drive by car, but in spite of this fact a large crowd assembled to hear Hon. George Hoadley speak and witness the ceremony.

The Alumni of the school had arranged to have their annual meeting on the same day and a great number of students were present around the ground. At 2 p.m. W. J. Elliott, principal, accompanied by Mr. Hoadley, Mr. Stewart, M. P. for Battle River, and Mr McDonald mounted the platform Mr. Stewart was introduced by the Principal and he gave a short but very appropriate address, stressing the advantages of such an institution not materializing. Vermilion and district on the presence of the School of Agriculture, with its possibilities for great good.

Mr Elliott then introduced the Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, who stressed the responsibility that the institution laid upon the district as especially upon the shoulders of young men and women who passed through its halls. Mr. Hoadley visualized the development of the school in the years to come. In the good days it would do in making a more prosperous and contented people, in improving the human soul in welding all our peoples into a harmonious whole, proud of the fact that they were Canadians and a part of the great British Empire

At this juncture Mr. McDonald, representing the architects department, presented Mr Hoadley with a small beautifully engraved silver trowel for the purpose of laying the stone With the stone containing the box of interesting things was suitably in place, Mr Hoadley tapped the stone and said "I declare this stone suitably and fittingly laid."

After this ceremony Mr. Hoadley spoke and the Vermilion Fair, in perhaps the shortest address that has ever been a need for such an occasion. He said "I realize that the man is more popular who is most brief on occasions of this kind. I therefore declare the Vermilion Fair opened."

Then Mr Hoadley hurried back to the school to address the assembled Alumni meeting. He said he had already given them one of his characters latterly position talks Following Mr Hoadley Mr. Elliott announced that next year the "Co-operative Institute" would hold several meetings in the Vermilion district. The first would be at the Vermilion School of Agriculture, where the new dormitory would provide the accommodation He said he invited the students to take hold of this matter as one of the greatest faring the people of the world today was only the matter of co-operative marketing but the general co-operative spirit of community and health up building

The Alumni then enjoyed a splendid supper provided on the lawn by the Domestic Science teachers after which there was a very exciting ball game between the present and ex-students of the school. The present students won by a small margin 7 to 6. Annual dance in the evening was also on the programme and the students and their friends who attended

It may be of interest to many to know that the ice box contained that was placed in the corner stone A partial list is as follows 1. Complete list of students who had matriculated the V.S.A. 2. THANK YOU, COUNT!

(From Montreal Daily Star, of Aug. 3)

Count de Toper, Englishman, banker and philanthropist, was among the cabin passengers sailing on the Cunarder Ascania for Europe this morning. The Count who also possesses the title of Duke of Ossalini, is a cousin of the late Emperor Franz Josef of Austria. His family has been prominent in Polish and Austrian history since the year 1010, one of the Count's forebears being Count Maximilian, Chancellor of Poland.

"I have no reporter for titles," remarked the Count, "but family matters make it essential that I should now leave. To my mind, the best kind of any account is the place in this world a man creates by his own efforts."

Count de Toper has extensive interests in Canada.

Siminoff Farming

Mainly through his efforts the small town of Vermilion, Alberta, has now extensive farm lands. He erected 46 houses there for the farm workers, and had a large plot of waste land turned into a nice park. The wooden sidewalks were replaced with cement ones. The farm workers are happy, and they have lived rent-free on his farms They have made such splendid progress, he said, that some of them earned as much as $10,000 in three years and came to him wanting to buy the property.

Count de Toper has extensive interests in the West and around Edmonton, which include nearly 60,000 acres of farm land.

"Farm land is cheaper in the Canadian West than anywhere else in the world," he remarked, "and the West holds a marvellous future for the ambitious farmer who is not afraid of a little hard work."

Count de Toper said that he avoided anything to do with the immigration of agriculturists into the country He pointed out that his visit was purely a business one and was done his best to further the claims of Canada as the premier agricultural nation of the world."

In addition to his philanthropic and economic interests, the Count is a doctor and a lawyer, though he does not practice

"I find no time to practice," he said, "but I am rushing home now to look after a sick friend who is lying ill in Le Pouldu, Finistere, Britanny, after which I shall return to England to my home in East Grinstead Sussex."

He is now engaged on the floatation of a big forestation loan through a question up to the nature of the loan brought forth the reply "All that I expect." He also financed a brass manufacturing company in Toronto

Modernizing E.P. Ranch

Electric Plants Furnish Light and Pump Water For Ranch Buildings

The ranch of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, has been electrified. Two large individual electric plants, of the type used by thousands of Canadian farmers, were installed recently on the E.P. ranch, completely electrifying the many buildings which form a small city on the farmstead. Two electric residences were overtime were also installed to supply drinking water, so that neither human beings nor stock from a pump as rare at the ranch house as they are in the Prince's home in London.

Stabilizing Easter

Hoped That International Agreement Will Be Reached For Fixed Dates

The measure stabilizing Easter in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, given third reading in the House of Lords recently, will not be effective until an international agreement has been reached, it is stated

The bill provides for observance of Easter on the Sunday after the second Saturday in April instead of determining the date by the phases of the moon.

We bade London an early farewell, being on the way to Cambridge by 8.30 a.m. passing through Waltham Abbey with its Abbey of the Holy Cross, re-founded by King Harold, in 1060. Cheshunt which was invaded by the Danes in 893 and Epping Forest, the former royal game preserve which is now the Londoner's favorite playground.

It would be impossible to describe the charm of the place of Cambridge University as a special setting among the wonderful trees through which runs the River Cam, or the beauty of the time-worn masonry. Nor could we hope to convey the sense of affluence that is given to this ancient seat of learning—something of which we could catch in our hurried trip through the grounds. Particularly we had the opportunity of visiting King's College Chapel. The towering vaulted roof of this poem in stone, the stained light reflected through the stained glass windows, the atmosphere of the vaults of the whole high in the centre of this noble building, spoke to heart and soul, and made a deep impression on those three Kings College students who, unwittingly, we will say architecturally, marvellous, an ambition to be a student in such a place.

Proceeding to Calus College we had a glimpse of the Master's Lodge, Dr. Wilkie at the head of the table. Again we passed through the old gateway into the surrounding world. Passing Trinity College and the Senate House, during the time of the Commonwealth, we were told that Oliver Cromwell was married here, and also Thomas Shaw, who started work as a weaver when ten years old and who became minister of Labor in Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet in 1924.

Outstanding empire figures who have achieved world-wide distinction are included in the list of British Parliamentary Association delegates who will begin a tour across Canada on August 24, from Quebec city. Among the party will be those pictured above: (1) being David Kirkwood, Glasgow Bolshiki, member of the House of Commons, whose fiery remarks once caused his suspension; (2) Sir Patrick McGrath, well-known journalist, who is president of the legislative council of Newfoundland; (3) Viscount Peel, former secretary of state for India and now commissioner of works, whose duties include supervision of the Tower of London and royal residences; (4) Lord Thomson, ex-secretary of state for air, who believes future travel will be by aeroplane; and (5) Thomas Shaw, who started work as a weaver when ten years old and who became minister of Labor

Raise English Pheasants

Experiment Is Being Made To Introduce Game Bird to Saskatchewan

An attempt is being made in the Alsask and Loverna districts in Saskatchewan, to raise English pheasants of the ring-necked variety. It is not many years since Hungarian partridge was introduced into Western Canada. The experiment will take take some years, it is said, and if successful will furnish an added attraction for bird hunters.

Seeley Information

A witness was being examined. "My Lord," he said, "you can believe my statement, for what I have said is absolutely correct. I've been wedded to truth since my childhood."

"Quite possible," replied the Judge, "but what the court wants to know is how long have you been a widower."

A Cheerful Personality

People Who Are Pleasant and Sympathetic Have Many Friends

There are smiles and smiles, but the one from the heart is the one which is always remembered.

Forced pleasantness is never convincing. The happy faculty of listening graciously to a bore when another would be yawning with boredom, and never talking of one's own troubles is the thing most difficult to remember and with all sincere lightening life's burdens for the and one thus anything you may do. Everyone is unique would to talk of it. No one cares about your own distress, if you can listen gracefully when your own heart is heavy and smile like you mean it, your work for that day is well done.

Cultivate a cheerful personality if you would be popular. No one wants a grouch in the party. Laugh and the world laughs with you is as true today as of yore, and becoming more and more so as time goes by. Life is no short and there is so much to be lived, that sorrowful persons have no place in the scheme of existence.

Increase In Immigration

Immigration to Canada for June amounted to 20,261, as compared with 18,052 for June a year ago, an increase of 12 per cent., according to a statement made public today by the department of immigration and colonization. For the three months ended June 30 the total immigration has amounted to 70,227. The principal sources have been British, 23,-060, and United States, 9,345.

Wanted the Usual Beaten

"Mes'ieur," said the butcher to the thrifty one, who was planning to make an exit from the neighborhood, "I have some fine lamb chops today you will never pay me the amount due. It would be very foolish of me to let you go when I have something of value that I care to attach. I'll just give you a receipt and call it paid in full."

"That's awfully nice of you," said Mr.

A few moments later the merchant noticed that Mac was still resting his pedantic extremities in the store.

"Was there something you wished to speak to me about?" asked the merchant

"Well, not exactly But isn't it customary to give a fellow a cigar when his account's been settled?"

"Do you know geometry?"

"I don't know any of the girls yet, I only joined the school yesterday."—Pagan Gales, Yverdon.

Sees Good Market In Canada

Great Britain Waking Up To the Importance Of Canada As Trade Centre

"In the past two years the British manufacturer has been waking up to the importance of Canada as a trade centre, and for this reason the Overseas Trade Department is taking steps and improving its system in this country in an effort to bring the necessary facts before the manufacturers of the Old Country," said W. J. Cleary, Inspector General for the organization in charge of this service in Montreal. "We are not here to wave the flag, and ask Canadians to buy British goods because they are under the Union Jack, but we want to create an organization here that will enable the manufacturer in England to become acquainted with the problems and requirements of Canadian importers," he stated.

Lesson: Acts 15.1-35; Galatians 2. 1-13.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 133.

Explanations and Comments

Trouble-Makers From Jerusalem, verse 1. Jewish synagogues were composed of Jews and proselytes, the latter being Gentiles who had received the Jewish rite of circumcision. Other Gentiles who attended the synagogue services were called "God-fearing" or "devout," but were not in "full fellowship," with the real because they had not been circumcised. We have seen how Paul and Barnabas preached to the Gentiles and founded churches among them at Pisidian, Antioch, Lystra, Iconium and Derbe on his first missionary journey, and how he reported to the church at Antioch of Syria, the church in which he began his first missionary, that "God had opened a door of faith unto the Gentiles" and the church at Antioch, itself composed largely of Gentiles, accepted the good news, and did not realize the far-reaching effect of this new departure. When the report reached the church at Jerusalem, however, it was not so received. What followed was violent opposition. "Certain men which came up" (to Antioch) "from Judea" (from Jerusalem, where the Judean Christians were) taught the Gentile brethren that they must be circumcised after the custom of Moses" in order to be saved.

For their stand there is much to be said. The rite had been practiced since the days of Abraham, and no one questioned it. And Jesus Christ, Who had authority to declare it unnecessary? What, then, could be said about this revolutionary procedure of Paul and Barnabas? Surely the teaching and uncircumcision is nothing?" Paul had been a leader of a movement from God, a revelation shown, not by visions and proof of prophecy, but by results, which proved God's will and purpose, that God bore the Gentiles witness, giving to them the Holy Spirit, even as He did unto the Jews; and he had on his side Christian believing Jews and Gentiles, cleansing their hearts by faith. Besides, there is the broad ways with men as well as through the Scriptures.

"The Jews of the first century esched their fellows," said the twentieth century eschew the Jews. They spy with one eye and no are we."—Georgs W McDaniel

Nordicus Night Noises Are Public Nuisances in Every Country

Health Association, meeting at Cardiff, Wales, declared war on unnecessary street noises as a public health menace.

A resolution was adopted urging that needless night noises be called public nuisances and punishable. Among them were mentioned the barking of dogs, clatter of milk bottles, the use of motor horns, noise of motorcycles and noises of parties going home from dances.

Sir John Corbett of Edinburgh, estimated that such noises impaired the working efficiency of the country by 25 per cent. He said he had planned that they affected the central nervous system through the disturbance of certain vegetative functional disturbances of the body

Trouble-Makers From Jerusalem, verse 1. Jewish synagogues were composed of Jews and proselytes, the latter being Gentiles who had received the Jewish rite of circumcision. Other Gentiles who attended the synagogue services were called "God-fearing" or "devout," but were not in "full fellowship," with the real because they had not been circumcised. We have seen how Paul and Barnabas preached to the Gentiles and founded churches among them at Pisidian, Antioch, Lystra, Iconium and Derbe on his first missionary journey, and how he reported to the church at Antioch of Syria, the church in which he began his first missionary, that "God had opened a door of faith unto the Gentiles" and the church at Antioch, itself composed largely of Gentiles, accepted the good news, and did not realize the far-reaching effect of this new departure. When the report reached the church at Jerusalem, however, it was not so received. What followed was violent opposition. "Certain men which came up" (to Antioch) "from Judea" (from Jerusalem, where the Judean Christians were) taught the Gentile brethren that they must be "circumcised after the custom of Moses" in order to be saved.

For their stand there is much to be said. The rite had been practiced since the days of Abraham, and no one questioned it. And Jesus Christ, Who had authority to declare it unnecessary? What, then, could be said about this revolutionary procedure of Paul and Barnabas? Surely the teaching and uncircumcision is nothing?" Paul had been a leader of a movement from God, a revelation shown, not by visions and proof of prophecy, but by results, which proved God's will and purpose, that God bore the Gentiles witness, giving to them the Holy Spirit, even as He did unto the Jews; and he had on his side Christian believing Jews and Gentiles, cleansing their hearts by faith. Besides, there is the broad ways with men as well as through the Scriptures.

"The Jews of the first century eschew their fellows," said the twentieth century eschew the Jews. They spy with one eye and no are we."—Georgs W McDaniel

Nordicus Night Noises Are Public Nuisances in Every Country

Health Association, meeting at Cardiff, Wales, declared war on unnecessary street noises as a public health menace.

A resolution was adopted urging that needless night noises be called public nuisances and punishable. Among them were mentioned the barking of dogs, clatter of milk bottles, the use of motor horns, noise of motorcycles and noises of parties going home from dances.

Sir John Corbett of Edinburgh, estimated that such noises impaired the working efficiency of the country by 25 per cent. He said he had planned that they affected the central nervous system through the disturbance of certain vegetative functional disturbances of the body

Wanted the Usual Beaten

"Mes'ieur," said the butcher to the thrifty one, who was planning to make an exit from the neighborhood, "I have some fine lamb chops today you will never pay me the amount due. It would be very foolish of me to let you go when I have something of value that I care to attach. I'll just give you a receipt and call it paid in full."

"That's awfully nice of you," said Mr.

A few moments later the merchant noticed that Mac was still resting his pedantic extremities in the store.

"Was there something you wished to speak to me about?" asked the merchant

"Well, not exactly But isn't it customary to give a fellow a cigar when his account's been settled?"

"Do you know geometry?"

"I don't know any of the girls yet, I only joined the school yesterday."—Pagan Gales, Yverdon.

NURSES know, and doctors have declared there's nothing quite like Aspirin to relieve all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is Aspirin the name Bayer should be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—is stamped on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box:

When Arthur returned to the city she went to the hospital to see Mrs. Lik, and she went without fear. She had the assurance of Lik's entire, and as far as he knew, complete recovery now it did not occur to her that she was a lonely girl in a big city, with a sick baby and no money. Helmi was already planning her summer and counting the days until little Lik could go with her.

The nurse who had so kindly received the baby came to speak to her. "Oh, I remember you," she said smiling, "you are looking much happier. I told you she would do well, and she has. The baby is a fine one, and Lik is doing well. Helmi, dear, ain't it wonderful how things come out?"

When John Corbett's son told the whole story that night, he met for a long time smoking a meditative pipe in genius and put-out mood. He was found in the room Helmi was going to stay with them until Lik could be taken from the hospital. As he entered, Helmi was to share Rosie's narrow bed, the lack of space of which would be amply overcome by the warmth of Rosie's affection.

Helmi sat on a couch which later would be turned into a bed for Rosie, and enjoyed the luxury of having such a welcome as the Corbetts gave her

"I am thinking," said John Corbett, after a long pause, "that maybe he Hughahman is the best man of the two."

"Oh, no, no, Mr. Corbett!" Helmi cried, distressed. "Mr. English is my good friend—I like him—he is so good— but I love my Jack. He is my man—there is a big kilata—what you call difference isn't there, Mrs. Corbett? You tell him!"

"Tut, tut!" said Maggie Corbett scornfully. "He knows, the sly old dog! He knows I have often told him I'd rather be fightin' with him than agreein' with any other man. That's love—and he knows it!"

CHAPTER XXX

Volbrenner, German prisoner camp known also as Cullebger Camp, was built on a peat bog from which the peat had been removed, leaving a sour, raw mud, on which not even a weed or bog wool grew. When the prisoners stepped out of the door they went to their knees in the indescribable mud. The condition of the camp inside may be imagined. A crowded rooms of miserable men; two smoking stoves burning the unseasoning peat, double rows of berths where greasy blankets on planks furnished the beds, despair written on every face—prepare for these conditions.

SOME SALESMEN speak of the quality of their flour as if it resulted from secret and highly mysterious milling.

There are no secrets in milling.

The best flour is the result of intelligent selection of the very best wheat, a good mill, skillful milling and constant and never ceasing watchfulness.

That combination assures good flour. Nothing else does.

Landonville School Fair to be held Sept. 5

Wednesday, September 5th has been officially set as the date for the fourth annual Landonville and district School Fair which will be held, it is understood, in Mr. Semple's hall, Mr. Semple having placed the hall, together with feed and water for the livestock and such other accommodation as may be required, at the disposal of the fair association.

The secretary reports that things are already taking shape and the prospects are that the fair will be bigger and better than ever. Fine prizes are being offered in the various classes and keen competition may be expected.

It is hoped that the parents will cooperate with the teachers and pupils in getting the entries on the grounds and in place early, so that the judging may commence work at 11 a.m. Remember that this fair is entirely free—no gate entree, no collection. Free coffee at noon. Just come and see the delightful array of achievements of some two hundred pupils under the earnest training of their teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Miller of New Westminster are back in Vermilion and are hoping to arrange to remain here.

ODILVIE STEPHEN

Odilvie Stephen, an esteemed resident of the district, passed away at the Vermilion municipal hospital on Monday, August 12th at the age of 69 years. Besides his widow there are left to mourn his loss three sons and two daughters: Davis, of Hamilton Ontario, William of Waskatenau, Alberta, Odilvie, at home; Mrs. Mitchell of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. Millward of Vermilion. The funeral is being held this Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the United Church.

The late Odilvie Stephen was born in Redfaire, Scotland, coming to Canada in 1907 and settling at Hamilton, Ontario. In 1921 he came to Alberta, settling on a farm a few miles northeast of town. His death is mourned by many friends and the sincere sympathy of the community is extended to his widow and family in their bereavement.

Tragic Death Of Andrew Y. Law

OVERCOME BY CARBON MONOXIDE FUMES WHILE IN HIS GARAGE MONDAY MORNING.

Death Came As A Great Shock To the Community

The news of the tragic death on Monday morning from carbon monoxide poisoning of Andrew Y. Law came as a great shock to the entire community and caused general sorrow throughout the town.

Mr. Law left his house to go to the garage shortly after 7 o'clock in the morning. He exchanged a few words with Mr. McKinnon, a next door neighbor and then went into the garage. This was the last seen of him alive, and it was not until a couple of hours later that Mrs. Law, receiving a phone message requesting Mr. Law, went to his garage and found him dead, the victim of the deadly fumes of carbon monoxide. Medical aid was called at once but it was found deceased had been dead for some time. It would seem that he had started his car then closed the front door of the garage, but failing to open the back door shut off his way of the late. The fumes evidently overtook him as he was passing by the car.

The deepest sympathy is expressed for the widow and three young children in their sad and sore bereavement.

Besides his family, deceased is survived by three brothers and four sisters, John of Vancouver, George Jones; Tom, Prairewood, Manitoba; Mrs. Wyper of Vancouver; Mrs. Turner, Winnipeg; Mrs. Aitken, Ayr, Scotland and Mrs. McVicar, Vancouver.

The late Mr. Law was in his forty fifth year. He was born in the parish of Loudon, Scotland and came to Canada about twenty-five years ago living in Winnipeg and Vancouver. In the year 1912 he came to Vermilion and opened a tinsmith and plumbing business which he conducted with a great measure of success. Besides other activities, deceased was a member of the local Masonic fraternity and a charter member of the town council, a director of the Vermilion Agricultural society and one of the founders of the Vermilion Horticultural society, and also of the St. Andrew's society, taking an active part in all these organizations. An outstanding trait in his character was his great love for flowers and the grounds about his home were always a bed of floral beauty.

A most kind husband and kindly father, true citizen, zealous in the discharge of his many obligations he passed the Great Divide, and in his activities he was imbued with the spirit of service to others. His great love for his fellowmen was outstanding and his most marked characteristics, as an old annual Film Kiddies' Day which was always an occasion of the deepest joy to his youngest. It was a source of great happiness to the little ones in the vicinity and untimely passing of Andrew Young Law, Vermilion has suffered an irreparable loss, but his memory will always remain green within the hearts of all. While flowers are fragile they will lessen the pangs of sorrow and sanction his form and life we also leave our tribute.

As a mark of respect the flag was flown at half-mast from the town hall from Monday until Thursday, during which time took place from the Union Church at 2:30 the afternoon interment will be closed during the hours. The Masons and K. of P. attending in a body and a Masonic service will be conducted at the grave when the fraternity at last bids a fraternal farewell to a departed brother.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Henry J. Wright, K.C. 86, prominent Toronto barrister is dead.

The London Sketch says that Oscar Slater, whose conviction of murder was recently set aside after he had been imprisoned for years, has accepted the government's offer of £6,000 ($30,000) as compensation for his wrongful conviction.

Rev. Father James Humin, former rector of St. Michael's, London, Ont., and St. Joseph's, Brantford, was killed when he wandered on C.N.R. tracks near his home. He retired a few years ago and was in his seventies.

Senator Dale, of Vermont, announced that President Coolidge had expressed his certainty that Herbert Hoover would be the next president of the United States. The Senator said that the chief executive had given expression to that view during a conversation.

Practical certainty that Charles Evans Hughes of the United States will be elected at the September meeting of the League of Nations, a member of the permanent court of international justice at The Hague came recently, when Italy and Poland jumped his 33 ballots when previously had nominated him for the place.

The first appointment of its kind to be made in Canada is that recently made by which Miss Lillian Hollingshead, a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, will become a member of the staff of the Dominion rust laboratory in Winnipeg, her duties to begin next Spring. Miss Hollingshead is now at the University of California.

F. W. Harris, of Birmingham, England, wrote to Major Norman, in Saskatoon, some time ago and asked for aid in locating a brother who had left England for Saskatchewan 15 years ago, and had not been heard of since. A letter was inserted in the Star-Phoenix and a reply was received from A. E. Harris, Dundurn, Sask., who stated he was the long lost brother.

DIARRHŒA Was So Bad Child Passed Blood

Mrs. Henry Nesbitt, R. 3. No. 8, Hanover, Ont., writes:—"Last Fall my little boy took very bad with diarrhoea and before I knew it he was passing blood. I went to our medicine and gave him a dose of

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Canadian National Railways' Tour To Great Britain and Denmark, 1928

Having seen Ingmarton Hall, once the home of Samuel Pepys, a three hours' run took us to N. Stagham. En route were Huntingdon, the birthplace of Oliver Cromwell; Peterborough with its cathedral founded in 1118—here Catherine of Aragon was buried, and for some time the body of Mary, Queen of Scots, lay; Stamford, marked by the Lancastrian in 1461; Oakham, where every traveller had required at one time to leave a horseshoe at the Castle, the earliest of the present collection being contributed by Queen Elizabeth, and Melton Mowbray, famous for its pork pies, Stilton cheese and fox hunting.

Our stay in Nottingham was for the night only. By 8.30 a.m. we were on our way to Newcastle, passing through Clifton on the border of Sherwood Forest, of Robin Hood fame, Doncaster, of the races and butterscotch; Selby, with its Abbey built by William the Conqueror; York; Darlington, the birthplace of the modern railway, and Durham whose cathedral, one of the most dominantly situated in England, is acknowledged the grandest Norman cathedral in the country.

Lunch at York gave us opportunity to visit York Minster and to view the city walls. History is not merely evidenced but felt in York. Here the Roman emperor Severus died in the year 211. Here the son of Constantine the Great was proclaimed emperor. Here Edwin of York their base to York the first stone church more than one campaign. In Bacon times York was a torchlight of Christianity. Last year York celebrated the 1300th anniversary of the founding of York Minster.

A statement filed our minds as we entered this glorious building lofty and more magnificently spacious than any cathedral we had seen from floor to roof. We feel more than feet in the air. The east window the second largest in the world, is 73 feet by 32 feet. The stained glass in the most part old and of exquisite workman. The Chapter House is the most beautiful in England. It is believed that the pagan temple of Diana stood on the site of York Minster. Here too that on King Edwin embraced Christianity and in the crypt we saw the well from which he was baptized. Most wonderful then that we should find in this venerable Minster the names of Canadian women! We found the name of the late Princess Louise "Five Sisters Window" which was later restored, had unveiled by the Duchess of York to the memory of 1000 British women killed in the Great War. The Canadian names mirrored 42.

One could not leave Yorkshire without a tribute to the excellence of its farming, the neatness and thrift-ness that characterizes this county of 3,000,000 acres. In this respect Yorkshire farming cannot be anything we have seen.

Nowhere was it better seen than at the home of Mr. J. N. Strickland, Raincone Caterick, one of the most outstanding breeders of dual-purpose Shorthorns in England today. By the courtesy some thirty of our party were enabled to see his herd and enjoy the hospitality of his home. As we rode on north we passed through the historic ground where the Shorthorn breed had its beginnings, and it was interesting to see over Mr. Strickland's mantel the picture of one of his ancestors who sold cattle to Amos Cruickshank.

As we passed through Darlington, we stopped in the famous old market place, the scene of historic conferences and animated discussions on the relative merits of the cattle of various old-time founders of the Shorthorn breed.

Newcastle, like Nottingham, was reached in the evening and left early in the morning, so we had not time to view this busy city. Suffice it to say that we were impressed by its activity and the signs on every hand of its industrial and maritime importance.

The journey towards the Scottish border was through beautiful and increasingly hilly country, becoming wilder and more magnificent as we approached the Cheviots. Then a stretch of wire running to the top of a large bald hill and a board marked "SCOTLAND" told us that we had reached the Border. Cheers broke out as each chara-banc crossed it—our salute to "Caledonia, stern and wild." Soon however, the sterner beauties of the Cheviots gave place to a kindlier prospect. Hard to believe that we were passing through the battlefield of Chevy Chase where the forces of Hotspur fought the troops of Douglas by moonlight 500 years ago.

We lunched at Melrose which boasts in Melrose Abbey, the finest ruin in Scotland, founded by the Cistercians in 1136, but destroyed repeatedly and rebuilt at various times. The ruins are principally those of the 14th century. Near the High Altar the heart of King Robert the Bruce is said to have been buried.

We had now a solemn duty to perform a sad tribute to pay. We had been shocked while in Denmark by news of the sudden death of Earl Haig. The funeral had taken place before our return to England, but Dryburgh Abbey was one of those places which we were to see en route to Edinburgh. What more natural than that we should wish to pay a tribute for ourselves and Canada at the last resting place of the great Field Marshal. We had brought with us a wreath of poppies obtained from the British Legion, that body of ex-service men for whom the late Earl had done so much. It was late in the afternoon when we reached Dryburgh Abbey, and the setting sun was shining through the trees. In this sheltered spot, quiet as in the days when monks had meditated there, the world seemed far away. We felt the peace of Dryburgh enfold us as we formed up silently to march in procession to the simple grave. Mrs. Matheson carried the wreath. Reverently it was deposited, reversal we stood and lingered. We were still silent when we moved away. A high privilege had fallen to our lot, a deep experience.

War On Crows

Saskatchewan's Crow Population Is Materially Reduced

Saskatchewan's crow population has been reduced by more than 50,000, and 154,159 eggs have been destroyed in the competition promoted by the provincial department of railways, labor and industry. According to the official returns up to the beginning of August, when the competition ended should have no trouble in negotiating the southern winters of Lake Ontario, when it is considered that he has been navigating the Kaministiquia for three months in preparation for the big grain—although Lake Ontario has not been known to freeze than fifty degrees Fahrenheit for the past month.

Arrangements are represented: Holland two; Poland, one; Australia, two; Germany, four; Switzerland, two; France, four; England, two; Ireland, three; Norway, two; Russia in Africa, one; Dutch East Indies, one; Hawaii, one; Belgium, one; the United States and Eastern Canada made scores, yet the west has only one to "chance his arm."

Another record is now in Canada, and in hard training near Quebec. Vierkoetter does his daily dozen in Jimmie Day; George Lyons, after a vigorous scrap with his management in which he capitulated, is still at Port Credit, where he attends meals to his camp. "Flying Fish" Summers of California, is looked on as a great sailor, but he has had to improved his stroke to a remarkable degree, now swimming a flutter kick in the water with his head and neck at his speed. AUGUST 19

PAUL CARRIES THE GOSPEL INTO EUROPE

Golden Text: "Come over into Macedonia, and help us."—Acts 16:9.

Lesson: Acts 15:36; 16:15.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 60:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

The Macedonian Call, verses 9, 10. Paul was at Troas, the gateway to Europe. As he walked the streets he saw a motley crowd, among them, Greeks, Romans, Jews. He heard in the harbor and gazed out at the distant islands ringing the coast of Macedonia, he must have longed to go over and preach the glad story of the cross for Christ. It was a natural vision which appeared to Paul that night, of a man of Macedonia standing before him and begging him to "Come over into Macedonia and help us." "There was that mighty power which Paul has called 'the urge of God' acting upon a soul ready to obey the divine behest in the utterance.

"How came the vision to take this shape in that moment? Who sent him? Perhaps because an active imagination lent shape to personality human need. Philip's Greeks even confided to a friend that sometimes, as he passed Macedonia and saw the multitude of faces in the congregation, he suggested their nationality by burgher and yeoarning, would suddenly melt into a composite face, like people becoming for the moment a single face in a crowd, and would hear the preacher profoundly, and to whom, when they were alone, he was to be improved his stroke to a remarkable degree, now swimming a flutter kick in the water with his head and neck at his speed. But mendell Burditt, from Wimpingo boy, a clerk in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, is not to be overlooked, and there are numerous swim-wise fans who are loud in the power of Christian Others quite as formidable as the need of Saskatchewan's long trip.

THIRD WRIGLEY MARATHON

Only One Swimmer In West Has Entered the Big Swim

Surprising as it may seem, to date only one swimmer in the west has paid the Exhibition authorities for the Third Wrigley Marathon from Western Canada—that is John Leslie Smythe, of Saskatoon, and sent in from Moose Jaw. However, John Paul-lin, as he is nicknamed, when it comes to swimming, as he long ago was a member of the Toronto Swimming Club, and learned most of his swimming there. He does'nt say where he does his training, but he will establish himself on the banks of Lake Ontario, a short week before the race.

Fred Crowe, of Port William, is the next nearest approach to a western entry, who up to now will be a competitor. Fred should have no trouble in negotiating the southern waters of Lake Ontario, when it is considered that he has been navigating the Kaministiquia for three months in preparation for the big grain,—although Lake Ontario has not been known to freeze than fifty degrees Fahrenheit for the past month.

Faith In The Wheat Pool

No Reason To Worry Over Possibility Of Falling Prices

Opponents of the Canadian Wheat Pool are already worrying over the predicament of the Pool when it faces a possible wheat crop of 500,000,000 bushels with a falling market. It is predicted that the organization will lose strength and may ultimately be unable to continue operations. That is a case of borrowing trouble which is not based on reason or experience.

The Pool may have been fortunate as well as skilful during the era of high prices of the past three or three years, but the drop of ten to twenty cents a bushel in recent weeks caused no consternation or panic and dealers alike. The carry-over of 40,000,000 bushels for export is larger than usual, and many added to the huge crop now ripening will make a problem in selling for the next few months. It is hinted that the "orderly marketing" methods or the Pool have failed to get rid of the 1927 crop as rapidly as was desirable. It has been called "the urge of God" acting upon a soul ready to obey the divine behest in the utterance.

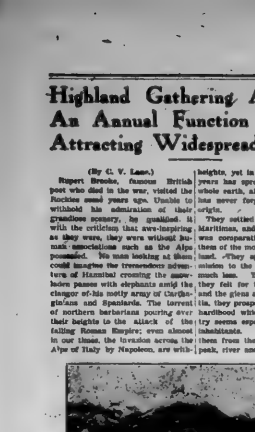
Highland Gathering At Banff An Annual Function That Is Attracting Widespread Interest

(By C. V. Lane.)

Rupert Brooke, famous British poet who died in the war, visited the Rockies some years ago. Unable to withhold his admiration of their grandiose scenery, he quabbled in with the criticism that awe-inspiring as they were, they were without human associations such as the Alps possessed. He was looking at them, could imagine the tremendous adventures of Hannibal crossing the snow-laden passes with elephants amid the clangor of his motley army of Carthaginians and Spaniards. The turmoil of northern barbarians pouring over their heights in the attack of the falling Roman Empire, even almost in our times, the invasion across the Alps of Italy by Napoleon, are within the experience of all.



Highland Scottish name derived from the early adventurers and explorers But it was reserved for the twentieth century to see the Highland Games of Canada to the people whose whole history is inextricably tied up to the Canadian Confederation in the heart of the Rockies, at a place with a Scottish name the first Highland Gathering was held. It was inaugurated last year with such success that it is to be repeated this year, and will be the big event of the season in the district in the future. In this way have the Rockies found that soul which Rupert Brooke thought they lacked.

Anyone finding themselves at Banff between August 31 and September 2, next, would enjoy a unique treat in the heart of the Highlands Scenery, speech the skirl of the pipes the color of the tartans, dancing, games everything that is of the Scot, Scottish, will be there, drawn as by a magnet to the attraction of the gathering. It will be as though the Fiery Cross of old times had been lit throughout the country, had fled for time. This time it will be for peace and for the celebration of the age-long ties that bind the Land of the Heather to the Dominion of the Maple Leaf. It will be a time of reunion with pipes and tartans and sports. It will establish new and lasting friendships between the Highlands of the Old Land and those of the New. It will be a time of rejoicing, of music and romance, of flood and fell, of victory and defeat. And the valley of Bow, with its lops still veiled, will be the heavens the other sunk deep in the precipitous. A little more than a year and we will be there, and we can only say that we have always lived in the shadow of the fiery.

Deep Well Diggers Threatening To Resist Of Good Quality

The growing of beets for sugar may at some time develop into an important industry in the province of Saskatchewan. The soil and climate are favorable to the growing of beets of good quality. A number of varieties or strains of sugar beets were tested at the Dominion Experimental Station last year, and it is recorded by the superintendent, in his report, issued by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, that the yields were good, and though the green weights were lower than other classes of roots, the dry matter content is much higher and compares very well in this respect. The report contains a table giving the yields of four of the best varieties in a two-year average. The yield of crop ran from 18½ tons down to 13½ tons to the acre, with a sugar content running from 14.78 per cent down to 12.86 per cent.

Sweet Clover For Cattle Pasture

After Acquiring a Taste For Sweet Clover, Cattle Prefer It To Other Pasture Crops

Cattle apparently have to acquire a taste for sweet clover pasture, but having attained the habit of grazing it they prefer it to other kinds of pasture crops. At the Rosthern, Saskatchewan, Experimental Station a group of heifers was pastured for a time on bluff lands during the early part of the summer, were moved to a hay field that contained areas of sweet clover, brome, and rye grass. The superintendent of the station in his report of the work, recently published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, states that the cattle passed over first sweet clover, then brome grass, but they gradually went over to the sweet clover until the whole field was eaten down, and at the time on this forage plant. He notes further that the sweet clover was ready for aftermath for dairy cows and heifers.

The Need Of Thrift

Buying Things One Cannot Afford Is Extravagance

"To buy or not to have an automobile? That is one of the big questions of the day. To some it is certainly a must and for the thing. It has much pleasure to the owner and his family and is a great convenience and a benefit in general to the community. But to others it is a luxury which they cannot afford and which they are sometimes better off without. Those who have them do not entirely realize, for instance, as personal matters, that those who have small salaries and those who are making shift to the end of the month will find that which is to be regarded as a necessity in one person, is still a luxury as far as another is concerned.

Poultry Improvement

Flock Of High Record Layers Developed At Southern Experimental Station

The Dominion Department of Agriculture Station at the Rosthern Saskatchewan Experimental Station is becoming an important centre for improvement of the poultry flocks of the province. The station has developed quite a large flock of high record layers and it is from these that the demand for setting eggs and young birds are being supplied. This station, according to the report of the superintendent, for 1927, has been that have reached the three hundred egg mark in a year, the almost care is being taken to keep the flock up to a high standard of health and production

The Economic Recovery From The World War Presents A Most Surprising Historical Fact

Time To Fight Weeds

July Is Best Month To Destroy Noxious Weeds

Next the fly, we are told, and the segregator of countless thousands is destroyed. The same is true of weeds. One vigorous, healthy, prolific plant will reproduce itself several hundred fold.

The critical period is during July. Mowers, scythes and sickles should be kept busy throughout the month. The roadsides especially should be attacked and not left, as they often are, until the plants have fruited and seeded down the neighborhood with pernicious weeds.

Cutting roadside and farm weeds before they ripen their seeds is a valuable control measure. Cutting them late in the season is evading the law, just as costly as doing it at the right time and far less effective.

For their own protection farmers would be well advised to take the matter in hand and see that the roadsides are cleaned up in time to prevent re-infestation. Many farmers make a practice every year of running the mower along the right-of-way in front of their lands and maintaining an annual cut-down. The middle of July would be the month a month for killing weeds, not propagating them.

Canadian Crop Outlook Favorable

Average Larger and Prospects For Higher Average Yield Than In 1927

A preliminary estimate just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics indicates this year's Canadi on wheat crop at 23,645,500 acres, an increase of almost a million acres over 1927. The area sown to oats is 13,277,000 acres about the same as last year. Barley shows an increase and rye a decrease

The condition of all wheat is given as 102 per cent. of 1927 when the total yield was 400,421,000 bushels in Saskatchewan and 54,000,000 bushels, which are now the chief sources of the world's wheat supply, all show conditions superior to 1927.

"The economic recovery from the World War to a more surprising historical fact than that of the World War itself, and it is in many ways a more important one." This challenging statement was made by Professor James T. Shotwell, director of the division of economics and history of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, with reference to the researches which he has been conducting for more than a year of the conflict on the economic effects of the war in all the countries of Europe and in the United States

Dr Shotwell pointed out that the war itself had not quite taken Europe by surprise. It had been long anticipated and prepared for; but as it progressed there were no economic plans or serious thinkers anywhere in any land, who had any glimpses of the rapidity of recovery from the appalling catastrophe

The results of the economic survey which the Carnegie Endowment has been making in the different European countries indicate a degree of recovery which shows that modern society is capable of enduring economic strains far beyond what anyone had thought possible in 1914, or even in 1919. Europe had actually suffered enormous losses, and yet, in spite of all the destruction of property, the standard of living of the working class is higher now in most European countries than it was in 1914 This does not mean that all classes have been able to hold their own, but the working class has definitely improved its wage standard and conditions of work

This improvement is not caused by the war, but has happened in spite of the war. All of which goes to show that there are forces at work in modern industry which are revolutionizing the world. The forces of improvement lie in improved business methods, in scientific management, in the spread of European civilization, but R Parker Gilbert's optimistic report of Germany's capacity to pay rests upon the belief that the world is still upon the upward course

The scientific researches of the Carnegie Endowment attempt to answer the question, what does war actually do to the economic processes of modern living? The answer is an emphatic negative so far as war is concerned but it has to recognize at the same time that modern civilization has acquired a capacity for adjustment and an economic strength unknown in earlier times. The fundamental attack upon the war system therefore must remain a moral one for the one irreparable destruction is in human life itself. With the consequent regression in moral outlook.

Two new volumes have just appeared in the vast collection of the economic history of the World War, which Dr Shotwell is directing They deal with the effect of the war upon Denmark and Norway An exhaustive series of monographs on Sweden appeared some time ago. A study of these volumes shows how deeply the neutral nations were involved in the blockade and economic struggle.

What a happy world this would be if there were as much enthusiasm at the finish of an enterprise as there is at the start.

SAVES DAUGHTER, LOSES LIFE

Hamilton, Ont., Aug 16—Dregt. Harry Smith, of the local police force was drowned yesterday just after he had saved his daughter, Harriet, from drowning in Lake Ontario, near Jordan harbor

Harriet, who is 16 years of age, was bathing when she suddenly slipped in a hole. Her father, although fully clothed, plunged in to her assistance, but after getting her out of danger collapsed. His daughter, already exhausted by her struggle, was unable to aid him. He is believed to have suffered a heart seizure.

HOSPITAL BOARD MEETING.

Minutes of the last regular meeting of the Vermilion Municipal Hospital Board held on Saturday, 11th. The members present were A. J. Morrison, J. J. Hope, R. C. Symes and J. A. Rondeau.

The special committee that was appointed at the previous meeting to investigate the possibilities of installing soft water, reported that they found it would be impossible for a tank to be installed in the building and owing to a loss so to what could be done in the matter. They also reported in connection with the alterations to the rooms that were under discussion, presenting an estimate on the cost of same. However, seeing that three of the members were not present it was decided to leave the soft water tank and the alterations over until the next meeting when there should be a full meeting of the members. The committee that was looking after the improving of the grounds reported that the land had been ploughed and disced and that nothing further could be done until next spring. In matter of a road they suggested that a road allowance be made along the south and west side of the hospital grounds and not to interfere with the traffic that at present goes right by the hospital building. It would also do away with the joy that now obviously turn their cows at the hospital which, with the road being right up against the building, is also distracting to the patients. The committee was therefore were instructed to see if this could be done.

In connection with the plastering of the operating room and the painting of the other rooms the secretary was instructed to see that the work was commenced as soon as possible.

The following accounts were passed and ordered paid: W. J. Moore $51.00; National Drug Store, 90.10; A. T. Law 14.00; P. Burns 32.30; Fairbanks Co. 3; Johnson Ltd. .52; P. C. Long 48.85; J. A. What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved, or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product, a baby-remedy meant for young folk. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night Baby begins to cry, Mother, or restless Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

CHAPTER XXX—Continued

Only desperate men would ever have dreamed of such a plan as theirs. The camp was fenced with eight strands of barbed wire, and every strand fence-post carried an arc light. But with the aid of a fire which one of the men professed, they would cut the two lower strands, at dusk, just before the lamps were lighted, and crawl through. At the last moment the other two men grew panicky. "It is no use death," said one; "they'll catch us. I can see how they are watching us. I'd go, and take a chance only I have a wife and kid—I've got to think of them."

The other men declared the plan a foolish one on account of the weather. "January in Germany is too much like the corner of Portage and Main," he said.

"A few select of prisoners had come in that day, and one of them, who was standing near enough to hear some Le Jack and asked if he might go. He was a grizzled man of about thirty-five

"I have no one depending on me," he said, "and I have already tried twice."

"Come along, dare," said Jack, "three times and out."

"Thank you so much," said the man heartily.

Jack was startled by his politeness. A prison camp does not always foster the social amenities.

"Your name is Doran, is it not?" asked his new friend.

"Mine is English at least that is my nickname. We are both from Dublin. We might as well try it as die here . . . there is always a chance."

While the prisoners were taking their exercise just at nightfall walking up and down the enclosure listlessly, aimlessly, Jack lay beside the fence filing away the two lower strands of wire. This done he crawled through, English following. The prisoners, who were all in the secret, kept a sufficient number moving by in front of them to hide them from the camp.

But into the big sweet the two desperate men, fighting for what we hold so lightly because we have never lost it. Their enemies were cold and hunger and the pitiless rains which seemed to fall every day. They journeyed only by night, and found his new friend's knowledge of the country to be remarkable. He seemed to know every village, and he spoke German as well as a native. In this way they were able to travel after the first few nights, and once they got a lift from a blind-hearted woman with whom English carried on a long conversation, eliciting the information that everyone was tired of the war, but it was considered the wisest policy to give the English a proper beating and teach them a lesson for all time. He asked them to stay in his house for supper, but they were afraid to do that, their Rhine clothes would betray them. The kind-hearted man gave them some sticks of liquorice and a bag he was taking home to his children.

"This man is the true German," said English that night as they continued their journey, "genial, simple, hard-working. The Germany that I knew when I lived here was a land of music, fairy tales, and a certain child-like simplicity. There was an inherent desire to make things beautiful, to turn desert places into gardens. But I was always afraid of the Prussians and their cast-iron methods. That, combined with the simplicity of the Germans, has made the war possible."

The fugitives had need of all the advantages English's knowledge of the country and language gave them, for the season of the year was unfavorable. The leaves were gone from the trees, making shelter difficult, there were no vegetables in the gardens, no cows in the field to furnish hungry travellers with a handy meal, and they could not be sure of finding a spruce thicket or a wood of flocktb for just enough daylight was coming but there was one advantage in winter travel the nights were longer.

A hundred times Jack blessed the happy chance which brought English to camp that day. His knowledge of woodcraft was wonderful — he seemed to carry everything that was needed—a sort of Robinson Senior from "Swiss Family Robinson." He made a fire each morning in the gray dawn to dry their clothes, explaining to Jack that a fire was almost invisible then In daylight the smoke shows, at night the flame, but in the steely blue dawn a fire can be enjoyed in comparative safety

In two weeks they reached the river which would determine their fate Beyond it lay Holland and safety The first night they stayed in the woods on the bank, trying to think out a plan The river was in flood so swimming was out of the question Uprooted trees floated in its current. Vainly they hoped for a boat or a raft. The magical happenings which come to travellers in books did not come to them not a boat, not a raft, not even a rope

From their cover in the trees Jack and his companion could hear the sounds from the other side of the river, the ringing of bells, the shunting of cars. There seemed to be only one way and that was to attempt the bridge. It probably would be guarded heavily, but English's knowledge of German might help. It looked to be the only chance

All day they waited for the night to come They had two good German smocks, stolen from a clothes-line and Jack had a warm pair of stockings To get these English had gone boldly into a garden as they came through a village He had a way of quieting the dogs by a peculiar whistle and this gave him a distinct advantage. The dogs who came out barking fiercely, changed their attitude when he spoke to them, and even showed a disposition to follow him.

"If the dogs could bring us food we would have plenty," he said that day, as they sat in the spruce thicket. "The chances are against us, Jack, but one of us may get over."

"One of us!" exclaimed Jack, "It must be both or none!"

"No!" said the other, "it does not matter much about me. No one cares so very much, and it happens that the one person who cares a little bit about me, cares very much about you."

Jack looked at his companion—disheveled, dirty, slug-haired and long-whiskered, his eyes bloodshot — and wondered if his mind were going "And who is that?" he asked gently, as if he would humor his poor friend's mood.

"Your wife, Helmi."

"Helmi!" Jack repeated, "My Helmi!"

"Yes, yours—she is the only woman except my mother who ever cared whether I lived or died."

Then he told Jack of his quarrel with Lauren in Engle Mines, and of Helmi's kindness, and of the week he had stayed in her house.

"She asked me to pray for you Jack," he continued, "and I kissed her golden hair. She told me she was sure you would go to the war, and asked me if I and you would I be your friend. That is why I came—it seemed as if I must come—when I found you at Vehmenau."

Jack's voice trembled as he spoke "Then you are Arthur Warner, and I have been doing you wrong in my thoughts. No one told me you were hurt—they only gave me half the story.'When I got back I found Helmi gone—gone without a word. She had been gone a week—I was a month late—but she might have waited."

The trees were throwing long, cold shadows over the sweeping current of the river.

"Did you not know there was a good reason for her going?" Arthur asked, after a pause.

"I knew nothing." said Jack "What reason could there be?"

"She went to the city to see a hospital to give birth to your child."

Jack's face grew white with pain "How do you know?" he whispered

"She told me. I wanted her to come to England 'and train as a nurse, and when I urged her, she showed me a little dress she had been making, and told me, and she told me she was glad. Her only sorrow was that you were away and the adventure you were on was dangerous."

"I did not know," Jack groaned.

There was silence then, when neither man could speak

THE SIX YEAR MOLAR

You have heard your dentist call the first double tooth "the six year molar."

Why is this? You have perhaps guessed it—that it is because it erupts usually at about the age of six years.

Now, you have been observant enough to note that it is a first tooth in the rear—that no tooth was lost to make room for it

And coming in at this early age you may have thought it a "baby tooth" which would in due time be shed.

So, in your child, you have perhaps neglected to give it the care that it deserved—with disastrous results.

Without doubt, this neglect is the most common of dental sins committed by parents, and perhaps with it great consequences to their children.

Because, should this tooth become badly decayed within from four to six years following its eruption as to infect the "pulp" your dentist as a rule, has no recourse but the use of the forceps, and, once the tooth, the whole series is deranged, since in the first place, this six year molar is the key tooth of the dental arch

Its preservation is, therefore, of sometimes you will find that where this tooth has been lost at an early age, the second molar has "drifted" forward to fill the space, with the third molar advancing in turn as it erupts. But this is only rarely the case—better a little care at the proper time to prevent this trouble rather than to rely on Nature for a cure.

Co-Operative Wool Growers

Shipments Already 30,000 Pounds Over That of Last Year

With the shipment of 12 carloads of domestic wool from Regina recently, the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association has already 50,000 pounds over last year in its shipments from Southern Alberta and Manitoba according to W. W. Thomas, manager at Regina

Mr. Thompson said two more carloads would complete the season's work, and he anticipated that in the next two months the 1928 shipments would show a total increase of about 100,000 pounds over those of 1927. A substantial increase now had been shown in the early wool shipments from Maple Creek

"I notice that the house of Lords have been taking on the judgment of wool dealers, which is all right, I suppose, but I am sure there must be some of them who are good judges. It is a hopeful sign to see the House of Lords take a sound view afterwards."
